NAZI DICTATOR RULE TRACED TO INFLATION ORGY

Reveals Hitler Rose from German Ruins.

(There is a great deal of talk these days about inflation. When governments find their expenditures far exceeding their income they always are forced to "printing press" money—another name for inflation. Just what this inflation means to the citizen of that country is vividly illustrated by the case of Germany. Miss Schultz's accompanying story tells of Germany's inflation experience.)

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 19.—Evaporating the wealth of the land, the German inflation of 1923 brought hunger to the man in the street, degradation to the middle classes, immorality to former stanch burghers, and corrupted every one who swung in its orbit of astronomical emptiness.

After drifting quietly into a currency expansion created by war finance, Germany became a frenzy of mad speculation, spending, food riots, strikes, and despair. The horrors of those years from 1921-1923 still echo in the daily life of the fatherland and its effects have been lasting enough to bring a dictatorship to the nation.

At the height of the inflation orgy, when it was even difficult to calculate the numbers of pounds of paper money bundles needed to pay for a ham sandwich or a glass of beer, the Germania, an old trusted Berlin paper, called for a dictator—"a Mussolini in bullet-proof armor with a revolver in each hand."

Savings Wiped Out.

Wiping out the heavy internal debt, this money confusion demolished the fortunes and savings of the middle classes and sharpened the class bitterness of the starving worker. The inflation repudiated every vestige of internal financial obligation, even in part the war reparations.

It brought huge "white elephant" industries which were erected over night to plunder in wild speculation and sell to the foreigner the wealth of the country at ridiculous prices.

After this debacle Germany collapsed in exhaustion. It became a nation with an inferiority complex. That complex prevailed until the Nazis under Adolf Hitler restored the intense nationalism, the military and the saber rattling that Germans like so much. The dictatorship made these things possible as a price for regained self-respect.

All this came out of the psychosis of the inflation. Let us look back to see what suffering and bewilderment in the inflation years has brought the "bullet-proof armor" of dictatorship to Germany.

Rate of Exchange Mounts.

Struggling through the war years on its own credit, Germany controled its currency expansion until, under the weight of internal debt and reparations insisted upon by the French occupation of the Ruhr, the rate of exchange on marks against dollars began to mount steeply.

In 1921 people began watching two things to find the value of wages and goods. They were the exchange rate for dollars and the wholesale price index. On both the figures began to climb, but the exchange rates for foreign currency advanced more sharply. As the price of food and clothing advanced, wages and salaries rose accordingly, but never quite so fast. Hence the cost of living became a greater burden day by day. A merchant who had borrowed 10,000 marks in 1920 paid it back in 1923 in currency worth only a fraction of the originally borrowed marks.

Municipalities paid obligations with rapidly depreciating currency, but on the other hand they gathered taxes of far less actual value than their expenditures.

Defaulted on Taxes.

The people defaulted on their taxes and paid the penalty, since before the tax collector could make his rounds the amount of the taxes depreciated in value and they paid only a fraction of the original cost.

Pensions from cities and the government to war widows and dependents became of trifling value. The old propertied classes in whom German culture had taken its world famous form and who were the carriers of social standards and tastes important for the entire nation began to feel the grip of hunger. They were rapidly relinquishing their place

AN EDITORIAL

THE BIRTH OF A DICTATORSHIP.

You may have forgotten Mr. Roosevelt's first act of statesmanship. He asked if there were not some vestiges of Wilsonian war imperialism remaining in the statute books which would give him dictatorial power. One was procured for him. No one who knows how easily government expands and with what difficulty it is reduced was astonished when it was found that wartime laws unsuited for peace time had not been repealed.

The law was the Trading With the Enemy act. Mr. Roosevelt thought it would serve his purpose. He asked Attorney General Cummings to find that it was still valid. Mr. Cummings, who became an expert in finding what he was wanted to find, did so. Mr. Roosevelt thereupon not only put an embargo on gold but he made it a criminal offense to possess it.

A good, strong, heady draft of power in the highest degree thus was taken as an eye opener by the new President. How can it be doubted that it went to the head? Mr. Roosevelt by his single act under a moribund law had prohibited citizens from possessing gold coin and certificates. The country was in a panic and he was applauded, not criticized or condemned. He, Mr. Garner, then speaker of the house of representatives, and the Democratic majority in the house had stubbornly done all they could to bring about a financial collapse between Mr. Hoover's defeat and Mr. Roosevelt's inauguration. The revolution had what revolutions need, a paralysis of the existing order.

Then followed the Hundred Days which marked the beginning of the end of representative government in the United States and the creation of commissions appointed by Mr. Roosevelt to make laws, enforce them, and fix penalties. Congress delegated its law making power, surrendering as bill after bill was shot from the White House, through the two chambers, and into the statute books, reshaping the American form to the uses of dictatorship which had been grasped as the first act of the new administration.

People were blinded to the developments by their sense of national emergency. They were told that these were acts needed as a bridge. Once on safer ground, all would be restored as it had been before. But Mr. Roosevelt had had new and strange experiences. He knew by this time what it was to say a word and have it obeyed. He had the credit of the nation at his command. Millions of people lived as he decreed and did as he bid. He could send them here or send them there. He could give them money or take it away from them. He took possession of rivers, mountains, and valleys, and undertook to change the lives of the people in great areas of the land.

He dominated business and controled agriculture. He said how much was to be produced, what wages were to be paid, and what should be the relations between employer and employé. He decided how much a corporation might save and what its dividends should be. His governmental corporations bought commodities, made loans, took mortgages, and owned homes and farms. The Great White Father in Washington was at last realized in the flesh and the American people had become blanket Indians.

All the intoxication of such supreme control was tasted by Mr. Roosevelt and he bitterly resented it when the Supreme court took some of the authority away from him. Few men will give up voluntarily the pleasures of such imperious power over 130 millions of people. Mr. Roosevelt is not one of these self-denying men. If he is reelected he will retain what he has and seek to regain what he has lost, and more. He tells the people it is wholly in their own good that he should be the director of their lives and the dictator of their ways. He says that only selfishness and greed oppose him. Such is the language of all dictators.

If the people of the United States do not put the President of the United States back in his place, restore their representative government to its proper authority, and protect their courts, they will have an absolutism. It is not likely to continue in Mr. Roosevelt's hands. A stronger man will take it.

CHICAGO VOTERS BEAT ALL TIME TOTAL AT POLLS

New Permanent List Law Meets Test.

BY PERCY WOOD.

Chicago voters set a record for a single day's registration yesterday when 957,746 men and women placed their names on the voting lists at their polling places in the 50 wards under the new permanent system.

The highest previous one day total was 762,273 on Oct. 1, 1932. Adding to yesterday's total the 139,339 voters who have already registered at the Chicago election board's offices in the city hall [including a small percentage from the suburbs] total registrations stand at 1,094,085.

Thus about two-thirds of the total number of voters registered last March for the April 14 primary—1,644,198—have already been re-registered under the permanent system. This includes the 2,284 persons registered at the city hall yesterday.

New Law Meets Test.

The record total piled up yesterday appeared to be ample proof to the election board that all voters who care to register can do so without difficulty by Oct. 6, the second and last precinct registration day.

Below is a tabulation of yesterday's registration by wards, compared with the revised totals of registrations last March for the April primary:

"It looks to me," Alexander J. McKay, chairman of the election board, said, "as though we will be able to register the rest of the voters without any difficulty and without the necessity of declaring an additional precinct registration day.

Praises Precinct Officials.

"Beginning tomorrow, Monday, registration will be resumed in our offices on the third floor of the city hall, and all persons who wish to do so may register there from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. We have thirteen days of city hall registration before the second precinct day on Oct. 6."

The chairman said that he was "delighted" with the initial day and congratulated all of the deputy registrars—the judges and clerks—who worked in the precincts. "Their work proves that this system is easier, simpler, and better," McKay said.

"As for violence, there was none of any consequence. If a citizen gets in a fight with a precinct captain outside the polling place that is none of our concern. There wasn't a single arrest made during the hours that polls were open, from 8 a. m. to 3 p. m."

County Judge Jarecki was equally pleased with the results.

"The system has worked out well,"

Planes Collide; Noted British Flyer Is Killed

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 19.—Capt. Tom Campbell Black, famous British flyer, and once the teacher of Mrs. Beryl Markham, British mother who recently flew the Atlantic from England to Nova Scotia, was killed today in a spectacular collision before 500 horrified spectators at the Speke airport in Liverpool.

Taking off for London in the plane, Miss Liverpool, which he had entered in the forthcoming race to South Africa, he crashed into a royal air force bomber which was just landing. The planes locked wings and careened dizzily across the turf. The bomber swung around and the propeller slashed into Black's cockpit.

Extricated with Difficulty.

Extricated with great difficulty by royal air force officers, Black was rushed to a hospital, but died five minutes later. His chest was crushed and there were internal injuries. The army flyer was unhurt.

The victim's actress wife, Florence Desmond, was rehersing for the revue, "Let's Raise the Curtain," in a London theater when told of the tragedy. She rushed to Liverpool immediately by plane, and the show's scheduled opening Monday was postponed. They were married in March, 1935.

Rescued German Ace.

Black won his greatest fame as co-winner with C. W. A. Scott of the England-Australia air derby in October, 1934. He also had piloted the prince of Wales [now King Edward VIII of England] during his majesty's African visit in 1930.

He began flying during the world war in the naval air service and the royal flying corps. He flew thirteen times between England and Kenya colony. He rescued the German ace, Ernst Udet, when the latter was lost in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, Africa, in 1931. For three consecutive years, 1929 to 1931, he won the East African Aero club's trophy for the year's most meritorious flight.

Woman Faints as She Irons and Is Fatally Burned

Mrs. Katherine Beck, 60 years old, fainted as she worked at her ironing board yesterday in her home at 6512 Dorchester avenue. Her electric iron tumbled on her dress, setting it on fire. Mrs. Beck was found unconscious by Earl Fitkin, 35 years old, who lives in the same building. He rolled her in a rug and took her to the Illinois Central hospital. She died there last night from the burns.

Siege Halts Crown Point's Marriage Mill

Mayor W. Vincent Youkey of Crown Point swore in eight special policemen last night and laid siege to the courthouse of Lake county, Ind. He was determined, he said, to enforce the city ordinance, passed a week ago, which bans marriages in a public office between 9 p. m. and 8 a. m. and thus interferes with business in the county clerk's office and in several all night marriage parlors.

The mayor stationed some of his policemen at every entrance to the courthouse, with instructions to warn every couple who approached, looking as if they were matrimony bound. At 10:45 p. m. a youthful pair appeared, and were duly warned. They explained that they only wanted a license and intended to get married next Wednesday.

Deputies Look Out for County.

Up stepped Chief Deputy Sherif Charles Carlson, who was on hand with four deputies to see that the county's rights were protected. He informed the couple they had every right to get a license, and after heated words with Mayor Youkey, escorted the couple to the desk of the night clerk, Harold Heyre.

Heyre issued a marriage license after the youth and his intended bride gave their names as Henry A. Serio, 21 years old, 170 East 16th place, Chicago Heights, and Velma Stewart, 19, of rural route 1, Chicago Heights. Serio explained he didn't have enough money to pay the fee, but after a whispered consultation with the clerk the matter was settled to the satisfaction of all persons except Mayor Youkey, who stood by and glared.

The mayor has charged that license fees vary according to the time of night they are issued.

Winnetkan Changes Mind.

There were no further applicants until 11:45 p. m., when three couples appeared. A spokesman for the group explained they were from Winnetka and that one couple wanted a license. The group was ushered into the clerk's office, Mayor Youkey and his cohorts close behind.

Chief Deputy Clerk Walter Mydeck ordered everybody out of the office except the Winnetka party. Mayor Youkey refused to depart. Mydeck took the applicants into his private office, but they soon emerged, and the prospective bridegroom announced he didn't want his marriage to be a test case.

The deputy sherifs stuck to their guns, as did the mayor and his police force, until 12:15 a. m., when the clerk's office was closed. Only one license had been issued after 9 p. m. and the mayor was confident his ordinance had been enforced.

BURN REBELS IN ALCAZAR RUINS! MADRID ORDERS

Fort to Be Sprayed with Gasoline.

[Copyright: 1936: By the Associated Press.]

TOLEDO, Spain, Sept. 19.—Government officers, failing in today's attempts to rout surviving Fascists from the dungeons of the old Alcazar fortress, which was dynamited yesterday, late tonight planned a new onslaught for early tomorrow.

Gen. Jose Asensio, commander of all government forces in central Spain, who is supervising the efforts to "mop up" the Fascists remaining in the ruins of the citadel, instructed his men to prepare to spray the ruins with gasoline at 5 a. m.

Then, when an attack is made with hand grenades, he said, "the whole place will blaze up."

Fascists Battle On.

His orders for the dawn attack came after shot, shell and smoke bombs had failed to dislodge the Fascists from the ancient stone buildings of the military school where they have been besieged for weeks.

Fighting their way inch by inch behind a rolling smoke barrage, the government militiamen rushed one after another of the Fascist "pillboxes" hastily fashioned from piles of jagged débris.

How many were still alive within the blood splattered fortress no one on the outside knew. It had been estimated there were 1,500 to 1,700 persons in the place when it was dynamited.

The survivors kept up a bitter resistance, their hail of bullets cutting through the stifling pall of smoke laid down by tins of ignited gasoline hurled at them by the government attackers.

Artillery Shells Ruins.

From a distance government artillery pounded away at the crumbling walls and turrets still jutting from the wreckage of the famous old cadet school.

The choking smoke was whipped by the wind into the mouths of tunnels leading to the subterranean dungeons where the women and children survivors are thought to have taken a last refuge.

Two remaining dynamite mines were set tonight, but government officials delayed touching them off, fearing that the two tons of explosive would surely crush like paper boxes the caverns sheltering the women and children.

Machine Gun Fire Sweeps City.

As the Fascist defenders were forced back foot by foot they began in their desperation mounting machine guns in more exposed places. The machine gunners swept their fire out into the city of Toledo over sections which had been considered areas of safety.

In the Plaza de Vocodover two men were shot down. One was hit in the foot and the other was felled by a machine gun bullet as he fired over a stone wall in the center of the square. In sight of his comrades, he lay writhing and crying for help.

An armored car drove up beside him while a hail of Fascist bullets rattled off the turret. An assault guard and the driver came out of the door on the sheltered side and crawled along the ground to their wounded comrade. They dragged him into the car and sped away to a hospital.

Streets Closed Off.

The narrow, tortuous streets leading from the Alcazar into the square were closed by a second armored car, which kept up a fierce barrage over the heads of more than 100 assault guards.

The guards scurried across the exposed area to the ruins, where they took up positions and opened fire on the Fascist machine gun nests.

Steel helmeted figures were limned against the murk and smoke, carrying all sorts of fighting equipment, including tools to dig away the débris and set up parapets.

The streets of ancient Toledo tonight were as the trenches of a war, filled with an army of civilians.

Fascist and government shots spattered overhead, chipping bits of stone and plaster from the upper walls of dwellings.

All Males to Be Killed.

Every one of the male defenders in the Alcazar is doomed to die no matter what decision they may make regarding escape for their families, government leaders said. Government attackers managed to "rescue" twenty women and children from the ruins.

Tales of the ghastly spectacle that attacking militiamen witnessed in the shattered Alcazar yesterday were told by government soldiers today. Said one:

"As soon as I got over the ruined walls I saw four priests with beards down to their waists pointing a machine gun at me. I threw my hand grenades and—well, they won't say mass any more."

Another militiaman, José Cabera, said:

"A ghastly sight faced us as we went over the top. Stumps of masonry in the wrecked cellarheads were spattered with blood. We had to trample over torn limbs and hideously broken human remains."

Emilio Vargas, another militiaman, told of falling through a manhole into a rich food cache when he dodged and stumbled to escape a thrown grenade.

"They had piles of rich food there, and liquors, too," he said, "so I broke open a packet of biscuits, opened a bottle of champagne and celebrated my find. Then we carried the entire stock out through a door where the rebel fire couldn't touch us."

Magtaz Mubru Beramar, the only Moor known to have been fighting with the government troops, said he had come across a line of laundry hung up to dry in one of the cellars, later almost wrecked by an explosion.

Perez Chicano, city councilor, estimated damage already done in Toledo at about $6,500,000 irrespective of the Alcazar.

Ready for 'Final Attacks.'

BURGOS, Spain, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Fascist armies tonight were ready for a "final attack" on Madrid. The northern and southern armies, a rebel announcement said, were ringed around the Spanish capital.

The northern wing of the Fascist army, the Fascist Junta asserted, had driven into the Lozoya valley south of the Guadarrama mountains. The government troops protecting the city's water reservoir resisted stubbornly, it was reported.

The southern wing of the Fascist army was asserted to be proceeding along two lines. One column was reported advancing along the main highway to Toledo after capturing Talavera de la Reina. The other column was driving toward Madrid, the Junta said, through San Martin de Valdeiglesias, 36 miles west of Madrid.

Report 'Great Slaughter.'

Fascist agents in Saint Jean de Luz, France, tonight proclaimed that the tide of the civil war has now definitly turned in their favor. Government forces, they asserted, were on the defensive "all along the line" except for a few isolated sectors.

The insurgent leaders declared that the forces of Gen. Emilio Mola, conquerer of Irun, San Sebastian and Orio, in the north, were pushing ahead in methodical advances designed to culminate in the fall of Bilbao, Santander, and finally Toledo and Madrid.

[Other dispatches said Gen. Mola had given the loyalists until 1 a. m., Sept. 25, to evacuate Bilboa and Santander. At that time, the ultimatum said, the rebels would attack without regard to life or property.]

A Fascist radio broadcast reported "great slaughter" had attended insurgent victories near Toledo. Retreating government troops, the broadcast said, left more than 4,000 dead in fields.

During the Fascist occupation of Ronda, it was declared, the government forces executed 800 hostages before they fled. Capture of Ronda, the Fascist leaders said, was preparatory to an attack on Malaga, where the government men are believed to be still strongly entrenched.

France Acts to Halt War of Insults Across Border

HENDAYE, France, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Insults shouted across the international bridge between rival Spanish factions led French authorities to forbid loitering around the French end of the bridge today. Spanish Fascist frontier guards issued a similar order on their side. The verbal fireworks were between Spanish government sympathizers on French soil and Fascist adherents on Spanish ground.

MADRID REJECTS PROPOSAL FOR BOLSHEVIK RULE

Socialists, Communists Rebuke Syndicalists.

MADRID, Sept. 19.—(AP)—The socialist-communist government today turned down the syndicalists' demands for general conscription and a decentralized government.

"There is only one point in our program," a government spokesman said, "and that is to win victory."

The Socialists, flatly refusing to consider the proposals, asserted that "those pushing such demands should be regarded as traitors."

Said the communists: "We cannot allow duality of power to exist."

Insist Victory Comes First.

The syndicalists, not represented in the government, but nonetheless a powerful component part of the "popular front," yesterday presented an eight point program to reorganize the government into regional committees independent of the Madrid administration. They also demanded that the present voluntary enlistments be swelled by compulsory conscription of all able bodied men.

In refusing the demands, the government said:

"Only after victory shall we be allowed to defend the political and social problems of the various groups composing the left popular front."

The sharpest attack on the syndicalists' demands came from the communists, who replied:

"There should only be one power—namely that of the government representing the popular front. There also must be a single command to coördinate all operations according to the needs of the war.

Cites Policy of Enemy.

"Our enemies move like one man to obey one single command. Discipline is our primary duty. Lack of discipline is our enemy. We must maintain discipline and obey one power and one command."

In its daily enumeration of government victories, the war ministry today added these:

CHILEAN ENVOY SEEKS TRUCE IN ALCAZAR BATTLE

MADRID, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Aurelio Nunez Morgado, Chilean ambassador and dean of the diplomatic corps still in Madrid, made an eleventh hour effort tonight to obtain the release of the women and children facing death in the besieged Alcazar fortress at Toledo.

Supported by all the foreign diplomats here, Nunez Morgado sent messages to Louis Rivas Vicuna, president of the league of nations council, and to Julio Alvarez del Vayo, Spanish foreign minister, demanding a "twenty-four hour armistice" in Toledo to get the women and children out of the old military school. Del Vayo is in Geneva.

He urged that the Fascist high command at Burgos be asked to give the commander of the Alcazar defenders authority to release the women and children. He estimated there were 300 of them in the Alcazar. Premier Francisco Largo Caballero has approved the plan and has given full facilities for its execution, the Chilean ambassador said.

Germany Bans 'Hallelujah' in Prayers; 'Hebrew Word'

BERLIN, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Nazi church authorities ordered all German churches to eliminate the word "hallelujah" from prayers because "the word is Hebrew and alien."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Sept. 20 [Sunday].—Breaking out in widely separated parts of China, attacks on Japanese, which have continued unabated over the week-end, and resulted in the loss of another life yesterday, are rapidly bringing the Chinese-Japanese situation to a head. Military quarters here are commencing to show great resentment.

Informed quarters feel that a recurrence of anti-Japanese attacks will compel the army to take drastic action. Diplomatic circles, however, while regarding the situation as extremely serious, feel that a solution of the difficulties should be reached through peaceful negotiations.

Sniper Kills Policeman.

In the newest incident a Chinese sniper shot and killed a Japanese consular policeman, Teijiro Yoshioka, in Hankow shortly before noon yesterday. According to the Domei [Japanese] news agency, Yoshioka was patroling the border area between the Japanese concession and the Chinese city when he was shot in the head from behind.

The report states that a near panic broke out in the Japanese concession as news of the attack spread.

Rear Admiral Masaharu Hibino, commander of the 11th fighting unit of the Japanese 3d naval squadron stationed at Hankow, ordered marines landed. Special guard duty was established by the marines.

On the heels of this assault, another attack was reported on the Peiping-Hankow railway. A Chinese mob entered a train at Kuanchuansintien, a station in southeastern Honan province, and broke into the compartment of Lieut. Col. Wei Liang, Corean born Japanese subject who is now in the service of the Manchukuan army. Lieut. Col. Wei hid himself in a washroom while the mob ransacked his belongings and took $1,000 in cash, according to the Domei report.

Tells of Chinese Attacks.

Eiji Amau, Japanese government spokesman, made the following statement:

"Following the Chengtu incident and before negotiations for its settlement began, the Pakhoi incident occurred. In the former four Japanese tourists with Chinese certificates were murdered. In the latter a Japanese merchant was killed by a mob. Therefore, the Japanese government instructed Shigeru Kawagoe, its ambassador to China, and Yakichiro Suma, its consul general, to warn the Chinese to take proper measures to prevent a recurrence of similar incidents in various parts of China, particularly in view of the fifth anniversary of the Manchurian incident Sept. 18.

[On Sept. 18, 1931, Japanese troops occupied Mukden, capital of Manchukuo. This occupation led to the creation of Manchukuo as a puppet state of Japan.]

"Hachiro Arita, foreign minister, also warned the Chinese ambassador on Sept. 17 that if such events occur in other parts of China they will stimulate public feeling in Japan. He asked that Nanking take stringent measures. In Hankow the Japanese consul general called in Hopei provincial authorities as well as Mayor Wu and Gen. Ho on Sept. 15 and 17, asking them to control the anti-Japanese movement and conspiracies. The consul general called on Hopei provincial authorities as well as Mayor anxiety."

Chinese Forced to Evacuate.

PEIPING, Sept. 19.—A band of 120 Chinese soldiers, hate smoldering in their eyes, marched stiffly with heads up today out of the Chinese city of Fengtai under the guns of 400 Japanese troops.

They evacuated the city at the peremptory orders of the Japanese army authorities because a Chinese soldier was alleged to have attacked a Japanese officer's horse and a Japanese hospital orderly.

During a formal apology ceremony that preceded the march of the Chinese from their city, near Peiping, Frank Smothers, Chicago Daily News correspondent who was trying to cover the story, his wife and his secretary were manhandled by Japanese soldiers and detained for 45 minutes at their gendarmerie office.

It was understood that Smothers intended to protest to the United States embassy and ask that representations be made against the detentions. The United Press and Associated Press correspondents, covering the ceremony, were not permitted to approach within 100 yards.

SPANISH GOVERNMENT NAMES SOCIALIST NEW AMBASSADOR TO U. S.

MADRID, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Fernando de los Rios, one time foreign minister and now dean of Madrid university, was named ambassador to the United States today. He will succeed Luis Calderon, who resigned on Sept. 5.

The Spanish embassy in Washington, in announcing the resignation of Calderon, who had been there since June, 1934, said: "He feels unable to coöperate with certain tendencies within the new Spanish government." Five other members of the embassy staf resigned before Calderon.

De los Rios, who is 60, has been a member of the Spanish Socialist party, one of the principal units in the present government, for most of his life. He is a member of the chamber of deputies. Before the Spanish republic existed he was jailed for trying to establish a republic.

Reports 8,000 Wounded Fill Madrid Hospitals

LISBON, Portugal, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Dr. Alberto Diez, a Spanish refugee, today said Madrid's 112 hospitals were filled with 8,000 wounded, and that new arrivals from the front lines were being taken to private homes, lacking proper care and medical attendance.

U. S. SAILOR HIT BY SPANISH BOMB, MOTHER CLAIMS

El Paso, Tex., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Kenneth Fitch, 21 year old member of the crew of the United States Destroyer Kane, wrote his mother here that he received a shrapnel wound in the leg from an aerial bomb when the warship was attacked by an unidentified plane in Spanish waters last month.

Mrs. Elizabeth Crump said her son wrote that he had been confined to the ship's hospital since. Young Fitch in his letter described the attack as "exciting."

Navy Unaware of Incident.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—(AP)—The navy department said today it had received no information concerning any injury to a member of the crew of the Destroyer Kane when an unidentified airplane attempted to bomb it off the Spanish coast Aug. 30. Naval officers said it was inconceivable that the Kane's commander could have failed to notify Washington had any of his men been wounded in the attack.

ZINTAK BASING FREEDOM FIGHT ON SWEITZER'S

Will Plead Not Guilty, Attack Indictment.

Frank V. Zintak, who was ousted as clerk of the Superior court of Cook county after discovery of a $22,560 shortage in his accounts, will plead not guilty to the indictment charging him with embezzlement of the funds. This was announced yesterday by his attorney, George Crane.

Zintak will be arraigned on the indictment tomorrow morning before Chief Justice Michael L. McKinley of the Criminal court. Crane said his first move will be a motion to quash the indictment on the ground that it does note cite a specific crime under the embezzlement statute.

Will Ask Week's Delay.

The lawyer will then ask a week's continuance to prepare briefs on his motion. The state's attorney's office would not say yesterday whether or not it would oppose the postponement. If Crane's motion to quash is overruled—as is expected—Zintak will plead not guilty, the lawyer said.

In this plea Zintak will again be following the technique of Robert M. [You Owe Me $216,000] Sweitzer. Sweitzer, ousted as county treasurer in June, 1935, after discovery of a $533,817 shortage in his accounts as county clerk [the office he held from 1910 to 1934], admitted before the county board that he owed $335,000 of the amount.

How Sweitzer Went Free.

When he went on trial, however, on a charge of withholding public funds from Michael Flynn, his successor as clerk, Sweitzer pleaded not guilty. He was acquitted by a jury in the Criminal court on the plea that the cash was made up of private trust funds and was not public money. Sweitzer has never paid back any part of the amount.

Zintak had admitted at the state's attorney's office last Tuesday that he took the $22,560 from escrow accounts in his office and used it for political purposes. Evidence of such a confession may embarrass Zintak if he takes the witness stand at his trial and makes a flat denial of any shortage.

Zintak surrendered on the indictment Friday afternoon at the Criminal courts building after he had been sought for three days by the state's attorney's police.

Given Every Consideration.

He was treated with every consideration and was released within a half hour on $25,000 bond, covered by $90,000 in real estate pledged as security by four of his friends.

The Sweitzer technique has been apparent in all of Zintak's actions since discovery of the shortage. He promised the state's attorney's office that he would repay the shortage by Wednesday morning but did not do so. Questioned by newspapermen after his belated appearance Friday, he said he knew nothing of a shortage.

Zintak was ousted as clerk by the executive committee of the judges of the Superior court Thursday evening. Brig. Gen. Edward H. White, United States army, retired, war veteran and Chicago attorney, was appointed clerk pro tem until the November election. Zintak is still a candidate for reelection to the office on the Democratic ticket. Party leaders are expected to "persuade" him to withdraw his candidacy through fear of periling the chances of the entire slate.

Problem for Party Chiefs.

The Democratic county central committee, in announcing recently the opening of campaign headquarters in the Morrison hotel, said that a room on the third floor would be used by Zintak and John Conroy, clerk of the Circuit court. What will be done about this in the light of Zintak's defalcation is another problem worrying party leaders.

The Polish vote, over which Zintak had some influence, is a factor in the situation. Some Polish organizations have asserted the indictment of Zintak is a "frameup prosecution," and will have to be mollified if the Democrats are to carry their votes. If Zintak leaves the ticket, the Poles will likely demand that the succeeding candidate be of the same nationality. No names for the candidacy have yet been mentioned publicly.

Quo Warranto Suit Indicated.

It was indicated by Attorney Crane that Zintak will file a quo warranto suit in an attempt to regain his office. Sweitzer filed a similar suit which is still pending. It is believed that one contention in Zintak's suit will be that he was illegally ousted and could only be removed from office through impeachment by the legislature. Calling of another special session of the legislature for such action has been suggested. The impeachment proceedings are not within the scope of the special session which reconvenes at Springfield tomorrow.

The indictment against Zintak was drawn under a special section of the embezzlement statute, applying to public officers, which provides a penalty of 1 to 15 years in prison on conviction. The regular embezzlement statute provides a penalty of 1 to 10 years.

STORM SWEEPS SEAWARD AFTER LOSING ITS PUNCH

Seven Dead, 23 Missing; 6 Million Damage.

New York, Sept. 19.—[Special.]—The hurricane, one of the most violent on record, which lashed more than a thousand miles of the Atlantic coast yesterday, roared out to sea today, after a final but comparatively mild slap at the southern New England shore line.

Its center missed Nantucket Island, for which it had seemed to be headed earlier today, by a few miles. Shortly before 10:30 a. m. weather bureau officials ordered hurricane signal flags hauled down all along the coast from the Virginia capes to Point Judith, N. Y.

Wind Drops to 46 Mile "Breeze."

As the storm passed Nantucket its maximum wind velocity was reported as a mere 46 miles an hour. A few hours earlier, as it tore over Sandy Hook and then Block Island, the wind's velocity reached 60 miles an hour.

The diminished storm center was headed northeastward from Nantucket toward the steamship lanes, and the wireless warned all vessels in its path.

The German zeppelin Von Hindenburg, due to dock at Lakehurst, N. J., tomorrow, has been fully advised of the storm's course.

Although property damage from the hurricane was set at 6 million dollars—shore front properties were wrecked from the Carolinas to New England—the loss of life was not nearly as heavy as had been feared. Latest reports from communities all along the coast bring the total known dead to seven and the missing to 23.

Hunt Missing Craft.

A few small craft still were missing and coast guardsmen took advantage of the fine weather which followed the hurricane to redouble their search.

Of chief concern was the tiny Norwegian tramp steamer Nidareid, nine days out of Turks Island, B. W. I., with a cargo of salt. Mariners believed the craft was in the hurricane area last night. The Nidareid is without radio equipment.

Coast guard stations here and in Cape May were trying to locate the yacht Ripple, which sent an SOS soon after midnight.

The coast guard was unable to learn anything about the yacht except that Lloyd's register lists a Ripple, a 38 foot gasoline engine craft, owned by Stuyvesant Wainwright, a socially prominent New Yorker.

Another missing ship was the Caspian, which put out from Stone Harbor, N. J., on Thursday, bound for Portsmouth, Va., for repairs. It had eight men on board.

Full Blow Misses N. Y.

New York escaped the full force of the storm when a high pressure area from the Great Lakes region changed the direction of the hurricane, according to the weather bureau.

The storm gave Long Island a severe lashing as it whirled toward New England. Montauk Point, which had been cut off from telephone communication with New York since midnight, had communication lines repaired by daybreak. A number of other communities suffered considerable damage to telephone, telegraph, and lighting services.

SURVIVOR TELLS OF WRECK

Lewes, Del., Sept. 19.—(AP)—As the whine and whistle of a tempest abated tonight, this port counted among its living thirty-five for whom hope virtually had been abandoned.

The white-capped sea which swallowed the fishing steamer, Long Island, gave up three dead, among them the vessel's master, Capt. Romey George. Four others were missing.

Thirty-two of the crew, after clinging for nearly four hours in a tossing lifeboat, found snug harbor aboard a coal barge. Three crewmen, one the master's son, swam to shore with the aid of bits of wreckage.

Capt. William Bertrand, pilot of the fishing craft, told of the battle with house-high waves, and although thirty years at sea and shipwrecked once before, the Brooklyn seaman described this "the worst storm I ever saw."

Pilot Tells of Trouble.

"The Long Island was listing to port and shipping water on that side," Bertrand said. "We had run broadside to the sea.

"We never had any trouble until about 7:30 a. m. [Friday] when we were right off the Overfalls lightship and then, in a half hour, the boat had gone down, the water had washed in, and even washed out the fires.

"We were in the lifeboat nearly four hours. We passed one barge, but couldn't reach it.

"At the second barge, the Hollowell, Capt. Vestre tossed a line with a life preserver on it. We were about forty feet away, but the life preserver drifted toward us and we grabbed it. We pulled up to the barge and they let down a rope ladder. They gave us warm food and a change of clothes."

Bertrand said the Long Island had been on a week's fishing cruise.

STORM FAILS TO HALT PROGRESS OF HINDENBURG

New York, Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Skirting the outer rim of the storm which had swept the eastern coast of the United States for the past 24 hours, the airship Hindenburg reached the North American coast early this afternoon. The airship made landfall at Quid Vidi, near St. John's, Newfoundland, at 1 p. m., eastern daylight saving time, and began a leisurely cruise down the coast to leeward of the storm area. The Hindenburg is scheduled to moor at the naval air station at Lakehurst, N. J., at 6 a. m., tomorrow.

The confidence of those aboard the lighter-than-air ship was indicated by the following radio message from Commander Ernst H. Lehmann:

FLOOD SWEEPS RICHEST FARM LANDS IN TEXAS

Coleman, Tex., Sept. 19.—(AP)—The treacherous Colorado river, swelled by heavy rains to the highest flood stage of record, menaced lives and property today on a sweep through several hundred miles of Texas' richest farming country.

One man was drowned at Milburn and the entire village, consisting of three stores and a number of dwellings, was flooded as the Colorado river spread destruction in central Texas.

Eight members of a family were feared drowned at Bowser.

Hundreds of farm families in the inundated river bottoms fled their homes and only the rescue work of boatmen saved some from death in the muddy current, which spread over thousands of acres.

Upstream the Concho river, which caused millions of dollars' damage to San Angelo, dumped flood waters into the Colorado. Virtually the entire area drained by the Colorado and its tributaries had been drenched by torrential rain, reaching from 16 to 20 inches.

Loss of crops, live stock, homes, bridges and highways was expected to total many millions of dollars along the Colorado. Thousands of acres of cotton and corn land were under water, communications to dozens of little towns in the river valley were disrupted and highways were blocked.

HELD 4 MONTHS FOR HEART BALM; WINS FREEDOM

Ex-Real Estate Dealer Is Carried from Jail.

William Handel, 63 years old, former wealthy loop real estate dealer, was freed from a debtor's cell in the County jail yesterday and taken to his home, at 2705 Washington boulevard, on a stretcher. He had been in jail since May 15. A technicality in a breach of promise jury verdict for $1,000 enabled Handel's lawyer, W. G. Anderson, to get his freedom.

WILLIAM HANDEL.

The jury included a malice count in the verdict returned last year for Mrs. Leah Fergeson, 43 years old, a divorcée. Handel was unable to pay the sum and Mrs. Fergeson arranged his jail commitment by paying his weekly board bill of $3.50. Under the law the holder of a judgment may keep the debtor in jail for six months by paying his board bill. Handel still had eight weeks to serve.

Charges Faulty Wording.

Attorney Anderson went before Judge Oscar Nelson of the Superior court yesterday with a petition for a writ of habeas corpus. It alleged that the jury verdict was faulty in its wording of the malice count. Judge Nelson agreed with Anderson's objection.

Anderson at once presented the release order at the county jail. For several weeks Handel has been in the prison hospital, seriously ill with a heart ailment and diabetes.

Mrs. Fergeson could not be reached yesterday for comment. Her attorney, F. Gerald O'Hara, has refused to reveal her address.

Mrs. Fergeson sued for $50,000 in 1934 before heart balm suits were outlawed by the state legislature. She charged that Handel promised to marry her in 1930 after a long courtship, and after he had borrowed various sums of money. The jury returned a verdict of $2,000 which was cut in half by the trial judge, Harry M. Fisher.

JANET AYER WED IN CHURCH TO ROSS BEATTY JR.

Myra Little Is Married to New Englander.

BY ELEANOR PAGE.

Miss Janet Ayer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ayer of East Walton street, became the bride yesterday afternoon of Ross James Beatty Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Ross J. Beatty of Highland Park. The wedding service was read by the Rev. Dr. John Timothy Stone at 4:30 o'clock in the chapel of the Fourth Presbyterian church. A large reception followed at the Casino club.

The bride, who is petite, brunette, and chic, wore a simple gown of ivory satin made with leg o' mutton sleeves, a row of buttons down the front, and a long train. Her cap and veil were perfectly simple in design, of ivory tulle, and she carried gardenias and lilies of the valley fashioned into a bouquet identical to the one her mother, the former Phoebe McCormick, carried when she was married to Mr. Ayer.

Bride Has Two Attendants.

Mrs. James McMillan Gibson of Washington, D. C., the former Patsy McCormick Goodhart, cousin of the bride, and Miss Veronese Beatty, sister of the bridegroom, were the only attendants. They wore peacock blue rough satin dresses, tailored in style, with half sleeves, small felt hats to match, and carried yellow roses. John Townsend Beatty served his brother as best man, and Eugene Swigart and John L. Fortune Jr., assisted the guests to seats in the chapel.

The receiving line formed in the Casino club's celebrated fountain room. Mrs. Ayer wore a stunning gown of deep grape color with a matching hat and an orchid corsage. The bridegroom's mother wore chartreuse green.

When the guests had left the reception, several members of the family and a few of the bride and bridegroom's friends remained for a bridal dinner which was given last night instead of on the eve of the wedding. Mr. Beatty and his bride will live on the near north side when they return from a wedding trip.

Little-Gettys Ceremony.

The large, high hall in the Charles G. Littles' Evanston residence was hung impressively with gold, brown, and white tapestry and silver cloth last night for the marriage of their daughter, Miss Myra Little, to Briggs Gettys of Pittsfield, Mass., son of Mrs. Frances McHeldin Gettys. The bride and bridegroom repeated their vows at 8:30 o'clock before an improvised altar decorated with white roses and lighted by white tapers.

The bride wore an ivory satin gown trimmed at the waist by a pearl ornament that adorned her mother's wedding gown, and her cap and veil were of old rose point lace that belong to her aunt, Mrs. Morris K. Wilson. Instead of a bouquet she carried a red velvet prayer book that was her grandmother's, the late Mrs. Hugh K. Wilson.

Her sister and only attendant, Miss Edith Little, wore ruffled tangerine mousseline de soie and carried flowers to match. Mr. Gettys and his bride will live in Pittsfield.

Thomson-Converse Rites in Church.

Miss Dorothy Thomson also chose ivory satin for the gown in which she was married to Loren R. Converse at 8:30 o'clock last night at the Winnetka Congregational church. It was made in redingote style with a chantilly lace yoke. She carried white roses, white orchids, and lilies of the valley in a shower bouquet.

The six bridesmaids wore frocks of canary yellow chiffon over apricot taffeta slips and carried blue delphinium and talisman roses. The matron of honor, Mrs. J. Warner Kellogg of Mount Clemens, Mich., wore delphinium blue chiffon over a matching taffeta slip and carried roses and delphinium. The bride is the daughter of Judge and Mrs. Charles M. Thomson, who gave a reception at their Winnetka home after the ceremony. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Arlan Converse.

Coleman-Holt Marriage.

White flowers covered the altar and filled the chancel of the Church of the Mediator last night for the marriage of Miss Rebecca Ann Coleman to George Chandler Holt, son of President Hamilton Holt of Rollins college, Winter Park, Fla. The bride wore a gown of white taffeta trimmed with velvet bows, made in old-fashioned style with puffed sleeves and a wide train, and she carried gardenias and lilies of the valley. Her lace veil belonged first to her great-grandmother, the late Mrs. Adelbert E. Coleman.

The bride's eight attendants wore ivory moire and carried bronze chrysanthemums. After the church service Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Ray Coleman gave a reception for their daughter and her husband in their home at 10552 South Seeley avenue. Mr. Holt and his bride will live in Winter Park.

Bersbach-Hutchinson.

Miss Barbara Bersbach, daughter of Mrs. Frank J. Bersbach of Indian Hill road, Winnetka, was married at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon in Winnetka Congregational church to William B. M. Hutchinson of New York. A reception was held in the Bersbach home. The bride wore the dress in which the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Robert Park Hutchinson, was married.

LEAGUE ACTS TO BAR ETHIOPIANS, OBEY MUSSOLINI

Little Nations Fight Move by Geneva Council.

GENEVA, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Little nations and big powers were aligned against each other tonight over the delicate question of whether the Ethiopian delegation to the league of nations should be barred to placate Italy's Premier Mussolini.

At the league council meeting today, preparatory to convocation of the annual assembly Monday, it was tentatively decided that the lesser of two evils would be to bar Ethiopia, authoritative informants said.

Thus, diplomats of the larger powers said, powerful Italian coöperation in peace efforts could be obtained, while if the league flaunted an Ethiopian delegation before Italy it was felt that the breach with Mussolini might be widened.

Small Nations Alarmed.

Against this view, representatives of the smaller powers were reported alarmed lest a precedent be established which they felt might presage league domination of smaller nations to please the major powers.

Should the league refuse to seat the Ethiopians, the smaller nations' representatives said, the move would be tantamount to league recognition of the Italian annexation of Ethiopia—still officially a league member.

Italy has declared she will not send a single delegate to Geneva unless assured that the Ethiopians will not be present.

A diplomatic move to straddle this demand and still maintain a semblance of Ethiopian recognition has been suggested—suspending Ethiopia because she no longer is a "self-governing state." This procedure also has been opposed strongly by the smaller nations.

Eden, Blum to Talk Peace.

PARIS, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Premier Leon Blum and Great Britain's foreign secretary, Anthony Eden, informed sources said tonight, will discuss all European problems relative to peace during their meeting tomorrow in Paris. Eden is scheduled to meet Blum in the late afternoon en route to Geneva for what officials termed "a mere tour of the horizon."

Relatives and a few friends witnessed the ceremony, performed by the Rev. J. A. Tweeder, Presbyterian minister, in the "Bridal Suite" on the Grace intercoastal liner.

Regis Toomey, actor, was best man, and Ruth Pursley, the comedienne's hair dresser, was maid of honor.

Witnesses included the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Blondell Sr.; her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Blondell Jr.; Frank Rowan, writer, and Maurice Leo, writer.

A reception aboard ship followed the ceremony. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. James Cagney, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Foster, Glenda Farrell, and Mr. and Mrs. Mervyn Leroy.

The marriage is the second for both stars.

Teas, Dinners, Dances Make a Festive Day.

BY JUDITH CASS.

The reputation of September Saturdays for gayety was borne out by yesterday's schedule of festivities for debutantes. There were four teas in the afternoon and two dinners, a dinner dance and a supper dance in the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Huntington B. Henry introduced their younger daughter, Miss Annie May Henry, at a tea in their home in Lake Forest. Mr. and Mrs. Henry and the debutante received at the entrance to the drawing room. Their elder daughter, Mrs. Gordon P. Kelley, who had made her bow at a tea in the same room six years ago, received with them.

Dinner Dance for Judy Butler.

There was dancing for the younger guests, and afterward the debutante, her assistants and their escorts went to the dinner dance which Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Glore gave at their home in Lake Forest for Miss Judy Butler, the Francis P. Butlers' debutante daughter.

At the first tea of the season in town Mr. and Mrs. Raymond L. Redheffer presented their daughter, Miss Anne Tracy. Mr. and Mrs. Redheffer and the debutante received in the living room of their apartment in East Walton place against a background of dark red roses that screened the east windows of the room.

The parents entertained their daughter, her assistants and their beaux at cocktails at the Casino club, and took them afterward to the Drake for dinner and dancing.

Two Make Bow in Winnetka.

In Winnetka Mrs. Clarence A. Burley gave a tea at home to introduce her younger daughter, Miss Julia Burley, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Walsh presented their daughter, Miss Florence Walsh, at a tea at home.

Mrs. Burley and her daughter received in the living room. White flowers predominated in the living room of the Arthur Walshes, where they received with their daughter before the fireplace. The Walshes took their daughter, her assistants and their escorts to dinner at the Indian Hill club before the supper dance that the senior George W. Blossoms gave there for their debutante granddaughter, Miss Louise Blossom.

Today Mrs. Thomas E. Wells is entertaining at luncheon at her home in Lake Forest for Miss Blossom and Miss Sylvia Peter, the William F. Peters' debutante daughter.

FLED GERMANY IN WAR; NOW MAN WITH NO COUNTRY

Lincoln, Neb., Sept. 19.—(AP)—William Kurt Scheer, former Lincoln resident who now lives in Dresden, Germany, today is a man without a country. Federal District Judge T. C. Munger entered a decree declaring Scheer's United States naturalization papers void.

A report from B. Neiler, United States vice counsel at Dresden, said Scheer came to America during the world war and was naturalized at Camp Fremont, Cal., on June 21, 1918.

In 1920 he returned to Germany and has lived there continuously since. He made no effort to retain his United States citizenship and last year applied for German citizenship and was turned down.

DEBUTANTES INTRODUCED AT TEAS

Miss Anne Tracy (left) was presented by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond L. Redheffer, at tea in their north side home yesterday. Miss Annie May Henry (center), daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Huntington B. Henry, and Miss Julia Burley, daughter of Mrs. Clarence A. Burley, bowed at similar affairs in north shore homes.

BARBARA MASON BECOMES BRIDE OF H. P. B. TERRY

Glen Head, N. Y., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—The marriage of Miss Barbara Mason, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julian Mason of Pound Hollow, and H. P. Baldwin Terry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wyllys Terry of 38 Sutton place, New York, and Bearnardsville, N. J., took place this afternoon at Christ Episcopal church, Oyster Bay. The rector, the Rev. Harold Pattison, and the Rev. Harrison B. Wright of Radnor, Pa., an uncle of the bridegroom, officiated.

A reception followed at Pound Hollow cottage.

The bride is the great granddaughter of the late Col. Roswell B. Mason, who was mayor of Chicago at the time of the fire in 1871. She attended Miss Chapin's school and was graduated from the Foxcraft school. Her father and mother were until recent years well known residents of Chicago.

Mr. Terry is a descendant of Roger Williams and of George Wyllys, fourth colonial governor of Connecticut. He is a grandson of the late Henry P. Baldwin, former governor of Michigan. After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Terry will reside at 17 East Seventy-third street, New York.

1780 LETTER TELLS TALE ABOUT TREASON OF BENEDICT ARNOLD

Boston, Mass., Sept. 19.—(AP)—A letter, 156 years old, which described Benedict Arnold's treason at West Point, was disclosed today by the Works Progress administration.

In the course of an historical record survey the WPA studied the letter written Sept. 28, 1780, by Col. Hugh Maxwell at West Point to his wife. The letter is now owned by Miss Mary Maxwell of Heath, a descendant of the revolutionary colonel.

The writer said Gen. Arnold had "entertained a certain Mr. Andre, the adjutant general of the British army," for about a fortnight.

"This same Andre, by Gen. Arnold's assistance," the letter continued, "had taken plans of all the works on the point and also formed the model of an attack upon the place, which was to have been delivered into the hands of the enemy.

"On Saturday last, as Mr. Andre was returning to New York in his disguise, he was met by a scout of ours, taken and discovered. . . . It is now over, Mr. Arnold is in New York and Andre is in irons and their plot detected."

STIMSON'S BOOK ATTACKS BRITISH FAR EAST POLICY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 19.—A new book, "The Far Eastern Crisis," by Henry L. Stimson, has just been published here and is creating a stir in diplomatic and political circles for its frank appraisal of British diplomacy from the American viewpoint during the Japanese Shanghai adventure in January, 1932, when Stimson was President Hoover's secretary of state.

One book critic said today, "All this story with dates and documents in studiously cautious and courteous language constitutes the most devastating criticism of British diplomacy that can ever have come from a foreign minister of a friendly power."

The tendency of most commentators on Stimson's book is to blame British policy, at that time directed by Sir John Simon as foreign secretary, for not having supported Hoover and Stimson in their policy of refusing to recognize territorial aggression in China.

The New Statesman and Nation said: "One of the greatest disasters in the history of the league [of nations] was the failure of the British to coöperate with the United States in opposing Japan's aggression."

The Spectator declared: "It should always be a fundamental principle of British policy to seek American collaboration."

MRS. ROOSEVELT 'IMPROVES,' BUT REMAINS IN BED

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was reported today by the White House physician, Dr. Ross McIntyre, to have "improved considerably" from an attack of influenza. She was ordered to remain in bed for the third day, however.

She was visited by the President upon his return this morning from Massachusetts. Mr. Roosevelt was assured that his wife's condition was by no means dangerous and planned to go to his summer home at Hyde Park, N. Y., tomorrow night or Monday. On Monday night a family reunion is scheduled at the Hudson river estate to celebrate the 83d birthday of Mrs. James Roosevelt, the President's mother.

Mrs. Roosevelt probably will not be recovered sufficiently to go to Hyde Park with the President, Dr. McIntyre said.

LEAGUE CHANGES MEETING PLACE TO PLEASE TURKS

GENEVA, Sept. 19.—(AP)—The league of nations council met in a special hall of the new league palace today to please Turkey. That nation's foreign minister did not like the idea of having its delegates look at a pictorization of a battle Turkey lost.

The council met Friday in the Austrian room in which was hung a huge Gobelin tapestry depicting an Austrian victory over Turkey during the era of Charlemagne.

Rustu Aras, Turkish foreign minister, let it be known he did not appreciate having to look at the tapestry, so the meeting was transferred to another hall.

Finds Hitler Rose from German Ruins.

in the structure of society to the newly rich, speculators and smugglers, fortunates from the upper and lower strata, who were being carried now high, now to the depths on the whims of the inflation.

In April, 1923, a buyers' panic arose in Berlin. The press urged its readers to buy only the barest necessities, because if they all rushed to the stores the demand would rocket prices upward and the crisis would be sharpened. Nevertheless, almost every one turned out to buy almost anything that could be had for currency. In the course of a few days the prices of articles and foods tripled. Buyers were amazed, and kept right on buying.

Hard to Get Food.

On May 16, 1923, the dollar went to 46,000 marks. It was hard to get food. Butter could hardly be found and the price of margarine had doubled the day before. Grocers withheld food from buyers in hopes of still better prices, and farmers stopped deliveries of foodstuffs to the city markets for the same reason. Some grocers even closed shop because the money obtained from sales depreciated before new stocks could be bought.

The mark had its up and downs. One day the dollar would be weaker and prices would remain stationary, while wages were reduced.

At the beginning of June, 1923, the government attempted to stabilize prices by controling and monopolizing the buying of dollars or pounds with marks. Left to no other device to safeguard their savings and earnings hordes of frantic citizens rushed to the bourse and bought industrial stocks, preferably steel. Huge profits and fortunes were made by speculators who, having more intimate knowledge of the money mess and possessing a quick ear for the supply and demand on the exchange, held out for exorbitant quotations and got them. The stock market would rise and fall with breakth-taking speed at every rumor.

77,000 Marks for a Dollar.

By this time a dollar would buy 77,000 marks. Salaries were doubled on the same day that the price of fats were tripled.

A joke was circulated. It said, that "prices rise while you wait." Foreign exchange quotations became an hourly affair and often would rise before the rates could be typewritten.

Workers began to ask pointed questions. They carried banners which read, "The dollar rose 10,000 marks today. Did our wages rise?" And the din and confusion of strikes would echo the answer. Wages hung far behind the price index. Workers measured their wages by the cost of the dollar. One pound of lard, so necessary to the laborer, cost half a day's pay. Grocers refused outright to sell foodstuffs. Meat was now out of the question and food riots advanced even into the decorous and perplexed town halls.

Strike for 8 Cents an Hour.

Bricklayers struck for 12,000 marks [8 cents] an hour. Metal workers demanded 3 cents an hour, and were turned away. Minimum bus fares in Berlin cost 1,500 marks. Considerable paper money was required to pay for a ride. A cut of veal brought 60,000 marks in the first week of July. A factory engineer took his weekly wages and rushed to shop in the stores, only to find that the value of his marks had declined 50 per cent.

About July 22, 1923, a dollar bought 350,000 marks. The printing presses had not kept up with the demand for new paper notes and money became bulky to carry about. Burgers and workers rioted, broke into shops, and the military was called out to maintain order.

What order! The value of the money in your hand "evaporated" while you held it. Wages and salaries doubled in a week, while the price of ham, apples, or corn doubled in a day or two. Shoes became luxuries. Children, already weakened by hunger as a result of the food blockades during the war, presented a sad and depressed appearance. Parents, unable to cope with the strange intangible strangulation of purchasing power and normal exchange, became frantic.

It was funny how the costs of things climbed. People laughed at it when they dared, and the value of incomes went on up into the milky way.

Printing Presses Busy.

The Reichsbank and its battery of 1,200 odd printing presses could not turn out money fast enough. The denominations of the notes should have been increased as the inflation progressed. Twenty thousand mark notes bought very little, and the marks obtained from the sale of a dollar filled a brief case, then a baby buggy, and finally a cart.

These conveyances actually were used in hauling money about to pay the most insignificant bills. It was as if the federal reserve bank were paying out money to member banks in pennies—truck loads of pennies. The transport and handling of money became a major problem.

As the zeros increased on the right side of numerals they were cynically laughed at and dropped in conversation. If one bought a glass of beer for 80,000 marks the price would simply be 80.

At this stage normal intellectual circles began to lose their poise. Banks and newspapers clamored for dictators. The rich were jumping from log to log on a swift river flow of timber ground up to make worthless millions and millions of marks which had been carefully saved and honestly earned.

Middle Classes Suffer.

The forests came down by the acre to make pulp for the money presses. With the forests came the middle classes, whose fixed incomes lagged far behind the inflation of prices and whose securities and investments were by now not worth the paper they were printed on. Former proud and independent dwellings began to admit a renter or two to help meet expenses.

In resorts in Bavaria and the Rhineland guests who came to hotels for a two weeks' stay cut short their sojourns and left hurriedly after a week. Depreciation of their money had sent them back home before the railroad fare should be increased.

A phonograph cost 5,000,000 marks at 10 a. m. The same machine sold for 12,000,000 marks at 5 p. m. A clever Berlin tailor would make a suit of clothes for the number of marks necessary to buy $40 on the day of delivery. With these marks he rushed to the nearest stores for food and materials. At odd times he would find that his marks bought more than he expected, but more often their value had been decreased or even erased by the latest dollar quotations. A son would have to be recalled from school. A pair of shoes would have to be worn after a child had outgrown them.

Madness and Frenzy.

Night clubs became reservoirs of maladjustment, where the rich and poor, beggar man and thief met on the common ground of confusion. Ethical and moral standards, already shaken by the bitterness and suffering of the war years, began to diffuse and change. Standards of conduct, business principles, and values taken for granted for generations faded and were liquidated in the madness and frenzy of speculation.

At this point, in the first week of August, city dwellers rolled their eyes and spoke of a new impending danger, the "green revolution." Peasants refused to take any more worthless paper for their produce. As exchange for foodstuffs they had begun to take farm machinery, grand pianos, fine house furnishings, jewelry, and novelties, until their lowly cottages were packed with beautiful and to them worthless objects.

A grizzly peasant woman from Silesia descended upon a department store and carried off a whole stock of cotton cloth bolts in exchange for some poultry supplies. The oversupply of farm machinery acquired at this time was later to accentuate, like a boomerang, the agricultural crisis.

Money Becomes Rubbish.

It became easier after the Reichsbank began to print 10 million and 50 million mark notes to pay bills or buy commodities. Back rooms had become stuffed and piled high with useless money. It was packed into bundles and stacked up to be forgotten as just so much rubbish.

In August, 1923, a bank depositor arose early and joined the long line of people before the doors of a bank, waiting their turn to withdraw deposits. At length he was allowed to draw out 10 cents' worth of marks. The bank's supply of newly printed paper notes simply was not sufficient to meet normal business. There was not enough in existence to go around. New shifts of men were constantly being put to work at the government printing offices. At this rate a bank transaction alone was enough to bring despair to business men.

Seize Farmers Near Leipzig.

In late August people in Leipzig marched with empty stomachs into the country, seized the farmers, and forced them to slaughter their stock and sell the meat at "reasonable prices." Potatoes were dug up and hauled away. In Hanover food warehouses were seized by hungry mobs and plundered. Riots broke out everywhere. Hundreds died from hunger. More hundreds were killed in riots.

Check money developed a curious paradox. When checks were presented, say at Berlin, on a bank in Dresden, the charge was 2 per cent a day on the face value of the check until it was cleared. And clearance averaged four days, and in some cases took ten. Thus the average charge for clearing an out of town check in Berlin was 8 per cent, a considerable loss. But often, even at this rate, the bank lost money because the value of the marks represented by the check would depreciate so that the actual accounting cost to the bank was not covered by the charge.

The story is told that it cost less to send a messenger to Hamburg by express train with a check for $25 to cash than to clear it at the above rate through the Berlin banks.

Loans and investments came to a standstill. A loan of 100,000 marks which represented $10 would be paid back later and be worth only $1. Naturally, no one wanted to invest or lend at such a risk. Brokers often charged as high as 900 per cent interest and still lost heavily.

The government levied a heavy tax on industrial profits. A 50 per cent tax levied on a company's profits when collected represented only 25 per cent. Profits cannot be calculated offhand at once and the tax collector cannot be everywhere at once. Hence the tax returns of municipalities and the government lagged far behind the heavy expenditures that had to be made for social services, charity, retirement of debts, pensions, and salaries.

Insurance Policies Wrecked.

Life insurance policy holders were in despair. When policies matured they were hardly worth the paper on which they were printed. The savings of years were thus dissipated in a few days or weeks. Every security was taken from the lower middle classes, the bulk of the stanch savers and investors. The suicide rate increased and the death rate rose to three times what it had been in more sober times, especially among women.

Finally the government had to allow insurance companies to write new policies on a gold basis and to buy dollars with which to secure them.

War Widows Destitute.

Widows who were left pensions and insurance from husbands killed in the war found themselves destitute and at the mercy of the day's exchange quotations. Whole families were thrown into a state of helplessness. The government printed more money for charity and for more pensions and the mark continued its way into the billions and trillions.

Money was a huge joke that mocked rich and poor alike. The important stratifications of German society were disrupted. The newly rich became scandalous in their lack of responsibility and taste towards others. One time wealthy persons, stunned by the loss of fortunes of many years' standing, lost caste and sold out their properties to meet current demands for food and clothing.

Antique shops sprang up everywhere as proud possessors of rare pieces of furniture and old works of art had to sell their collections to stave off hunger. Speculators grabbed them up swiftly and resold or traded them at amazing profits.

Invasion by Foreigners.

All this time there had been developing a great influx of foreigners who came to Germany to buy with their foreign exchange what in their own countries would have cost several times as much. One dollar wisely spent kept the average tourist in a city in luxury for a day, and in the provinces sometimes a week.

Living for these individuals was incredibly cheap. They bought estates and farms, houses, precious gems, works of art, clothes, and factory products for almost nothing. Export trade boomed and plant capacities were doubled and tripled to accommodate the influx of foreign orders.

When this movement finally developed into what sober people called "looting," the government stepped in and imposed a heavy duty upon all German goods leaving the country. Permits had to be secured to buy German products. But the loot of Germany by foreigners continued. The wealth of the fatherland was being transferred from German hands to foreign ownership in the form of goods.

Living Standards Tumble.

By now the middle classes had been robbed of all their savings and securities through the astronomical depreciation of the mark. Since their salaries and wages always lagged behind the rise in the cost of living their standard was now about one-fourth what it had been in 1914.

Consumption of foodstuffs had greatly decreased. In 1922, before the big toboggan slide in the value of the mark, Germans ate only 55 per cent of the wheat they had consumed in 1913, only about 60 per cent of the rye, and not quite as many potatoes.

Because of the steady rise in prices, the government had been able to collect only 25 per cent of the amount of its expenditures over the 1919-'23 period.

The wholesale price index was a wreck: In 1913 it had been 100,

in 1920—1,440,
in 1923—126,160,000,000,000.

Who could keep order in a house like that!

The note circulation was still more astounding. In 1914 Reichsbank notes, in marks, amounted to 2,909,422,000,

in 1918—18,609,873,000,
in 1923—496,507,424,772,000,000,000.

Behind such figures there lies a story of incredible hunger, riot, misery, and insanity.

It does not matter so much now how the inflation was finally curbed and how the rentenmark finally rescued the gold mark and stabilized it; or how in the long winded conferences of the late 1920s the international finance experts were finally to be convinced of "Germany's inability to pay."

What does matter is the suffering and losses imposed on the German people, their consequent inferiority complex, their youthful attempt at republican democracy and its failure, and the ground of discontent and misery left wide open to nurture the call to dictatorship sounded by the Germania, and others—a call which was answered by the Storm Troops of 1933 under Hitler.

German Foreign Chief Seeks Pacts in Southeast Europe

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 19.—Konstantin von Neurath, German foreign minister, flew to Budapest, Hungary, today on what was reported an "absolutely private visit." There was no doubt in anybody's mind that Von Neurath is visiting southeastern Europe because Germany fears France and Great Britain have been gaining new sympathies in that region in which Germany would like to claim the preponderant rôle "as waranted by its geographical and economic position."

Von Neurath plans to perfect the details of the German-Hungarian agreement which calls for close military, economic, and cultural coöperation. Authoritative Berlin circles allege he will advise the Hungarian government on its plans "to break the fetters of the treaty of Trianon the same as Germany broke those of Versailles." Von Neurath also is seeking conversations with leaders of Jugo-Slavia and Rumania while he is in Budapest.

Worried About Jugo-Slavia.

Germany is distinctly worried about Jugo-Slavia, its one-time friend. After the negotiations of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, German economic dictator in Jugo-Slavia, the reich looked forward to close coöperation with that country, only to find Jugo-Slavia suddenly swinging back to France.

Knowledge that hopes for a new French loan made Jugo-Slavia remember its sympathy for France failed to console business circles.

When the Germans learned that Jugo-Slavia and Rumania had agreed to link the two countries by building a new bridge over the Danube the Krupp firm [steel and armaments] rushed agents to Belgrade, offering attractive terms to furnish the steel. Yesterday the Jugo-Slav minister to Berlin asked the Krupp firm not to campaign for orders. He said France is advancing the capital to build the bridge and that French contractors will be given the first chance to place orders for steel.

Despite this rebuff Germany has not given up hope of increasing its influence in Jugo-Slavia. Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler has sent his sister, who keeps house for him, to spend a month at Dubrovnik on the Dalmatian coast. Her trip to Dubrovnik follows that of Col. Gen. Wilhelm Goering, Nazi minister of war. It is recalled that King Edward VIII. of England also visited Dubrovnik during his vacation in southeast Europe and the eastern Mediterranean.

Nazi Chiefs Accompany Her.

Hitler's sister is accompanied by a big retinue which includes leaders of the Nazi party. Germany informed Jugo-Slavia that she is traveling incognito and asked the authorities to protect her. Consequently detectives are guarding her safety as "unobstrusively as possible." Thus the sister of Germany's fuehrer is receiving the same attention as royalty traveling incognito.

Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda, intends to visit Greece in the near future.

The eagerness with which the German government is seeking the friendship of southeastern Europe is partly due to the fact it still hopes to obtain the raw materials it needs through barter agreements.

Statistics are revealed daily showing the steadily increasing shortage of raw materials. This week, for instance, wholesalers in metals were instructed to cancel all sales of lead except those to arms and ammunition factories.

A campaign is being waged for the use of stoppers made of wood instead of cork to reduce the nation's foreign cork bill, which totals $4,000,000 a year.

BELGIAN POLICE FIND EVIDENCE OF REVOLT PLOT IN RAIDED HOMES

[Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.]

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Sept. 19.—Police raids were made in many parts of Belgium today on headquarters, other offices, and houses of adherents of the Revolutionary Socialist party. A large quantity of documents and some arms were seized.

The police were primarily looking for arms. The documents, however, indicated that a revolutionary movement had been strongly developed.

Maps showing the location of police barracks and public buildings and a list of police and of officials hostile to the movement were among the documents seized. More than 150 raids were made in the Liege district.

BERLIN PAPER INSISTS STALIN IS CRITICALLY ILL AND WILL RETIRE

BERLIN, Sept. 19.—(AP)—The Berlin Tageblatt, in its issue dated tomorrow, asserts Dictator Josef Stalin of Russia is critically ill and will be succeeded by Klementi E. Voroshilov, commissar of war and marine. The story, under a Berlin date, says Stalin is suffering from hardening of the cardiac artery. The unrevealed informant, it was stated, was "an absolutely certain source."

Stalin's reported illness, the paper states, has resulted in "struggle for his succession going on in inner Kremlin circles. Although the present war Commissar Voroshilov often found himself in opposition to Stalin, especially over influence of Stalin's present policy on the army, it can be assumed Voroshilov will step into Stalin's place."

The predicted succession, the paper says, will result in radical changes of the present government.

Reports that Dictator Stalin is ill have been current in several European newspapers for some weeks, but all have been denied vigorously by the soviet government. Soviet officials said allegations that Stalin was ill were "absurd." He is vacationing in the Caucasus, Moscow sources said.

[Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.]

ATHENS, Greece, Sept. 19.—King George of Greece sanctioned a ministerial decree today establishing new state defense laws. The new decree outlaws communism, punishing by heavy prison sentences and fines any one publishing anti-state propaganda. All book shops were ordered to surrender anti-state literature within 20 days.

FEDERAL MONEY IS POURING INTO LANDON'S STATE

But Republicans Look for 100,000 Victory.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Topeka, Kas., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—If money from the federal treasury can win an election, the state of Kansas is in some doubt as to its November electoral vote.

Money is flowing in a constantly increasing stream from the federal coffers into Gov. Alf M. Landon's home state for distribution on the eve of the election.

This has had its effect, and there has been much "defeatist" talk around Topeka. It is said that persons are hired to drive about Kansas and spread the word, "Landon can't carry his own state."

Change in Last Few Days.

There has been a change, however, in the last ten days. This may be attributable to the results in Maine, where it was shown that federal money cannot buy a state. The Republicans now talk of a majority of 100,000 for him.

President Roosevelt has an undoubted advantage in the use of federal funds at this time for drouth relief, soil conservation payments, and a variety of other federal activities.

Former Gov. Harry H. Woodring, now acting secretary of war, the Democratic predecessor of Gov. Landon, said in a speech at Eastport, Maine, during the recent campaign there, that Kansas "has had $50,000,000 help from the federal treasury," and asked his audience whether it wanted for president "a man who puts his dollars above humanity."

"We want a humanitarian rather than a budgetarian," is the cry of the New Deal orators in the western counties, where the sentiment is admittedly strong for Roosevelt.

WPA Pay Is Boosted.

It was announced recently that Kansas WPA workers would get 10 per cent more work and 10 per cent more pay, effective next pay day, according to state administrator Evan Griffith. The increase was made necessary, he said, due to higher living costs and the drouth.

John G. Stutz, executive director of the Kansas emergency relief administration, who has been complimented many times by New Deal relief agencies for the manner in which he has handled relief in this state, has prepared a report which shows that the federal government has been so generous in providing drouth relief for this state that it has authorized quotas of employment in various counties that are larger than would be required if all those certified as eligible for public assistance were given jobs.

"In fact," said Mr. Stutz in a report which he was prepared, "under the pressure to fill quotas within a limited time, persons were assigned who had at the time of their assignment private employment or other reasonable means of making a living."

Works Progress Administrator Harry L. Hopkins is on record as saying that Mr. Stutz is one of the most efficient state administrators of relief in the entire country. He is a Democratic holdover from the administration of Gov. Woodring. Mr. Stutz now is greatly concerned by changes in the manner of handling relief, which have been ordered from Washington. He questions whether the so-called drouth relief program for his state is not a federal public works program or something else in disguise.

"The federal relief act of 1936, together with federal administrative regulations," he said, "indicate that the proposed program was designed to aid needy unemployed persons. The state and county public welfare agencies have generally been used to determine who were the needy unemployed.

Like Works Program.

"During the last few weeks in Kansas, however, there have been a good number of instances where the local administrative actions of the Federal Relief administration and the federal Works Progress administration have confused public assistance to needy persons with that of a federal public works employment program, for which the selection of employés is being made in various ways.

"The first evidences of this were the arbitrary instructions to put to work within too short a period a quota of more than 5,000 additional drouth relief farmer employés under the WPA in Kansas. Some of the district federal WPA directors in turn assigned arbitrary quotas to their respective counties, giving them even shorter periods of time in which to fill their quotas."

The Topeka State-Journal, which has sought unsuccessfully to get the Kansas WPA pay rolls, published yesterday what is described as an "unofficial" federal salaries list which is being widely circulated in the state. This shows that 25 New Deal job holders get an aggregate salary of $157,800. By comparison, 25 Kansas state job holders get $77,203. Gov. Landon's salary is $5,000 a year, but the 25 per cent reduction, which he put into effect for himself as well as other officials when he went into office, cuts him to $3,750.

Seven Get $10,000 Each.

In the New Deal list there are seven salaries at $10,000 a year each. Only five persons in this list draw less than $4,000. Of the $10,000 a year New Dealers the State-Journal says:

"Of the New Deal Kansans drawing $10,000 a year one is Guy Helvering, collector of internal revenue and Salina banker, to whom has been given the assignment of carrying Kansas for Roosevelt regardless of the cost. Another $10,000 salary is paid to Harry Woodring, former governor, now acting secretary of war, and the popular young Kansan selected by Helvering as a candidate six years ago when Helvering started his amazing political comeback.

"Another $10,000 salary goes to Arthur J. Mellott, member of the United States board of tax appeals. Also on the list is Carroll Merriam, a director of the RFC. Frank Hodges, Olathe Democrat and manager of the RFC at Kansas City, is paid $10,000 a year, as is Dudley Doolittle of Cottonwood Falls, former Democratic national committeeman.

Farm Leader Paid $10,000.

"Cal Ward, former state president of the farmers' union, once considered as a possible Republican candidate for governor but now turned enthusiastic Roosevelt supporter, also has a $10,000 a year job. The former Douglas county boy who made good in a big way in the New Deal receives $3,500 a year more than Ralph Snyder, former farm bureau president and former candidate for the Republican nomination for senator, who is paid a mere $6,500 a year as president of the bank for coöperatives at Wichita."

LANDONS TAKE CHILDREN TO FAIR

The Republican nominee for President with Mrs. Landon and their children, Nancy Jo and John Cobb, attended the Kansas State fair in Topeka yesterday. The governor and his wife appear to be interested in something down the midway.

Californian Sees Landon.

Marshall Stimson of Los Angeles, one of the organizers of the old Lincoln-Roosevelt league in California and for many years president of the good government organization of Los Angeles county, called on Gov. Landon today. He could not give a good Republican report of the situation in California, but told the governor he should go there during the campaign to consolidate Republican sentiment. The governor has not shown any intention so far of going to the Pacific coast. Mr. Stimson said after his talk with Landon:

"My interview with Gov. Landon this morning was very satisfactory to me as a progressive. While it may be said that Gov. Landon does not possess some aspects of President Roosevelt's charm, we should remember what the Good Book warns us against charmers and wizards.

"One is impressed with Gov. Landon's forthright honesty of manner, sincerity of purpose, and clear-headed vision of America's destiny."

3 PLUNGING HORSES INJURE 15 PERSONS WAITING FOR PARADE

New York, Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Three horses, one being ridden and the others led, plunged into a throng waiting on the sidewalk for a parade in Coney Island today, causing injuries to 15 persons. The most seriously injured was a patrolman who was knocked down and trampled.

Half a million persons had assembled on the sidewalks to watch the feature parade of the annual Coney Island mardi gras. Men and women were standing eight and ten deep and the curbing was packed with children.

As 30 fife and drum players struck up a marching melody, one of the horses suddenly bolted into the crowd, pulling the others with it. Those who were not bowled over by the wheeling animals were knocked down and walked on by other persons trying to escape.

ZOLLER DENTAL CLINIC AT U. OF C. WILL OPEN SOON

The plan of the late Walter G. Zoller, Chicago coal merchant, to establish a great dental clinic and laboratory at the University of Chicago will be realized next month with the opening of the Zoller Memorial Dental clinic in quarters adjoining the Frank Billings library in the university clinics.

On his death in 1933 Mr. Zoller, a bachelor, left a trust fund which now amounts to $2,900,000, specifying in his will that the income should be used "to prevent the numerous ills which result from neglect of the teeth." The clinic will have the three-fold purpose of prosecuting research, providing advanced training for young dentists, and giving dental service to a selected group of needy patients.

Dr. James R. Blaney, formerly professor of dental pathology and therapeutics at the University of Illinois, has been named director of the clinic.

PILLS OF COBWEB

By CALEB

THE first book printed from movable type—that is, individual pieces of metal for individual letters—was the Gutenberg Bible, in 1454. Printing is commonly said to have dated from that period, although "block-books" had been made earlier.

Printing has simplified immeasurably the work of historians. What we want to know of people, beliefs, races, discoveries, religions, et cetera, since that date, is for the most part to be found somewhere in print.

Old books are full of revealing information on our ancestry since the fifteenth century. They tell us what our ancestors knew—and how little they knew. Even a hundred years ago ignorance, gullibility, and a narrow provincialism hung like a low, dark pall over the heads of mankind. Truth and wisdom shone like a light in some places, but light didn't carry far in those days.

Between 1747 and 1840, a book of John Wesley's on remedies went through thirty-six editions. John Wesley was a great and good man. Much of what he wrote was more sane and sound than might be expected from the general levels of knowledge of his time.

The book referred to included, however, prescriptions which make our modern physicians look like miracle men—sprung, in less than a hundred years, out of a world which had read and believed the unbelievable.

"For an Ague:—Make six middling pills of cobwebs. Take one a little before the cold fit; two a little before the next fit (suppose the next day); the other three, if need be, a little before the third fit. This seldom fails.

"A Cut:—Bind on toasted cheese. This will cure a deep cut.

"A Fistula:—Grind an ounce of sublimate mercury as fine as possible . . . (two quarts of water to be added, then half a spoonful with two spoonsful of water to be taken, fasting every other day). . . . In forty days this will cure any cancer, any old sore or King's evil."

We have a deep suspicion that many of the books we print today will be revealing a hundred years from now, not only as to our advanced ideas but equally as to the state of our present comparative ignorance. There are so many mysteries in the physical sciences and in religion yet to be explained. Our most intelligent guesses today will come to look pretty pitiful to the common man of tomorrow.

PRESIDENT CALLS POWER PARLEY ON DISTRICT OF TVA

Sets Sept. 30 to Talk on Pool Compact.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today announced he had called a conference of representatives of private utilities and manufacturing interests to meet Sept. 30 with government officials to discuss the "possible establishment of a southeastern power pool" in the Tennessee Valley Authority district.

Last week, in an address to the third world power conference, Mr. Roosevelt declared that if the electrical industry failed of its own accord to reduce the cost of power the government would take steps in that direction. Today's action, exactly seven days after the threat, was heralded as the first step.

Cites Public Interest.

The President declared that "the public interest demands that the power that is being or soon will be generated by the TVA and at the Bonneville dam and other PWA projects should be made to serve the greatest number of our people at the lowest cost."

For several months, Mr. Roosevelt said, he had been conferring on this subject with representatives of the federal power commission, the national resources committee, the TVA and the rural electrification administration as well as with "utility executives, engineers, and economists."

"These discussions," he said, "indicate agreement to a remarkable degree that this objective can best be attained by coöperative pooling of power facilities within each region, including those of the federal projects, the privately owned utilities, and the municipal plants, through the joint use of the existing transmission line networks under the control of the members of the pool. Such a pool, it appears, will smooth out the peaks and valleys of separate system operations, reduce the amount of necessary reserve capacity, and postpone the need for investment in new generating facilities."

Praises Plan for Pool.

The President dilated on the benefits of such a pooling of interests and predicted that "cheap and abundant power" would thus be brought to every community in the region at "uniformly low rates."

"Engineers and rate experts," he declared, "tell me that by such pools power could be made available throughout great regions at wholesales rates as low as if not lower than the wholesale rate at which the TVA is now supplying power to communities, private utilities, and industries. The regional network also would promote rapid expansion of the government's rural electrification program."

On an optimistic note, the President ended his announcement with the declaration that "I hope and believe that we will be able to work out a constructive plan that will extend to the southeast and other great regions of our country the benefits and comforts that can be secured through proper development of our unparalleled natural resources."

Those Called to Conference.

Those invited to attend the conference were:

Wendell L. Willkie, president, Commonwealth and Southern corporation; Preston Sarkwright, president, Georgia Power company; Samuel Ferguson, chairman of the board, Hartford Electric Light company; Owen D. Young, chairman of the board, General Electric company; Russell C. Leffingwell of J. P. Morgan & Co.; Chairman Arthur E. Morgan, H. A. Morgan, and David E. Lilienthal of the Tennessee Valley authority; and Chairman Frank R. McNinch and Basil Manly of the federal power commission.

WHILE HEARST KEEPS SILENT EDITORIAL IS BLOW AT ROOSEVELT

New York, Sept. 19.—[Special.]—At the New York offices of William Randolph Hearst, it was said tonight no statement would be made concerning the White House statement. Mr. Roosevelt's secretary, Stephen Early, gave out word from the President that the charge of his passive acceptance of communistic support was "conceived in malice and born in political spite." Mr. Hearst was said to be in Europe and no word had been received from him. Advance proofs of the leading front page editorial, appearing tomorrow morning in the New York American were made available. It was said the article speaks for itself.

The editorial, set eight columns wide, asserts that Soviet Russia and the communist party of America are taking an aggressive part in the presidential campaign "on the side of the New Deal."

It charges that President Roosevelt is the real, though unofficial candidate of the communists, because they realize they cannot elect their own nominee, Earl Browder.

The article quotes Candidate Browder's statement in the July, 1936, issue of the official magazine of the third International, published by the executive committee of the communist party in Moscow. That statement said in part:

"We, the communists, can join such a commont front with the workers supporting Roosevelt. By doing this, of course, we do not express our confidence in Roosevelt in any degree. Our position in regard to Roosevelt is clear. We do not cross out a single word from the criticism to which we have subjected Roosevelt. We do not want to take and do not take on ourselves the responsibility for Roosevelt. But we do not want to sever our connection with the organizations in favor of a common front because they follow Roosevelt. We have to a considerable degree common purposes and opinions, among them the aspiration to defeat the reactionary Republican party and its supporters."

OFFERS ADVICE ABOUT VOTING TO POSTAL MEN

Cleveland, O., Sept. 19.—(AP)—William W. Howes, acting postmaster general, closed the National Association of Postmasters convention last night with a statement that "I don't expect to tell anyone in the postal service how to vote."

"I might as well say at the start I'm for Roosevelt, but everyone should be the captain of his soul," asserted Howes.

"You're not supposed to be interested in politics at all," he said. "You stay that way and some Republican will have your job.

"We've talked about Maine. It's one of the six states that Hoover carried. It is surprising they only got it by a margin of 5,000 votes.

"The Kansas governor has not repudiated the Du Ponts, J. P. Morgan and the two Rockefellers who laid the groundwork in Maine. I don't think the people of America are going to fall for anything like that.

"If they do, we'll all be in some other work," Howes said.

Provincetown Refuses to Let Communists Meet

Provincetown, Mass., Sept. 19.—(AP)—The board of selectmen announced tonight that this port, where the Pilgrims first anchored, would refuse to permit communists to hold public meetings. The board rejected an application by W. E. Avellar for the use of the town hall for a communist party rally, at which Earl Browder, communist presidential nominee, was expected to speak.

ROOSEVELT HITS STORY HE TAKES REDS' SUPPORT

Effort to 'Frame American People,' He Says.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—In his most explosive statement since his famous outburst against the United States Supreme court, President Roosevelt today indignantly denied he was agreeable to the support of the communist party or any other alien organization.

In bitter terms, the President characterized charges that he "passively accepts" such support as "conceived in malice and born of political spite." He said "a certain notorious newspaper owner" was the leader in making the accusations.

Follows Harvard Speech.

Although the White House secretariat refused to identify the newspaper owner publicly, an authoritative source said the reference was to W. R. Hearst.

Back in the White House only an hour after his return this morning from a speech at the Harvard Tercentenary yesterday Mr. Roosevelt issued the following statement through his secretary, Stephen Early:

"My attention has been called to a planned attempt led by a certain notorious newspaper owner to make it appear that the President passively accepts the support of alien organizations hostile to the American form of government.

Calls Articles Malicious.

"Such articles are conceived in malice and born of political spite. They are deliberately framed to give a false impression, in other words to 'frame' the American people.

"The President does not want and does not welcome the vote or support of any individual or group taking orders from alien sources.

"This simple fact is, of course, obvious.

"The American people will not permit their attention to be diverted from real issues to fake issues which no patriotic, honorable, decent citizen would purposely inject into American affairs."

COUGHLIN PINS 'RED' SUPPORT ON ROOSEVELT

Des Moines, Ia., Sept. 19.—(AP)—The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin "challenged" President Roosevelt today to repudiate what he said was the support of "Earl Browder and the communist party."

Browder, asserted the Detroit priest at an Iowa rally of the National Union for Social Justice, is "publicly urging his communist party to vote for Roosevelt and Mr. Roosevelt grins and likes it."

Father Coughlin said the President "has not the courage to excoriate Browder and say: 'I don't want your red votes'."

POPE APPROVES NOTRE DAME PLAN TO WAR ON REDS

President of Alumni Outlines Fight.

An offer presented to Pope Pius yesterday by Arthur J. Hughes, a Chicago attorney and president of the Notre Dame National Alumni association, to enlist 10,000 Notre Dame alumni in the fight on communism, was reported to have been accepted and the pope was reported in a cablegram from Castel Gandolfo, Italy, to have given his blessing to the plan.

Hughes, who has law offices at 332 South Michigan avenue, and who lives at 527 Washington avenue, Wilmette, was received by the pope yesterday. In an interview after leaving the pope's summer estate, Hughes said his proposal was approved by Cardinal Mundelein in Chicago before he went to Italy.

Plans Nationwide Campaign.

Before leaving Chicago he announced that all the facilities, prestige, and influence of the Notre Dame Alumni association would be offered the holy father to help check the inroads of communism throughout the world. He said that as president of the alumni association he would ask the members all over the country to take the lead in fighting communism, both here and abroad, provided the pope approved the plan.

At the same time the Rev. John F. O'Hara, president of the University of Notre Dame, announced his approval.

"Mr. Hughes will pledge our allegiance in the fight for conventional institutions of society, without which no group can hope for existence as a social unit," said Father O'Hara.

"I speak of the four necessities—the home, education, the rights of private property, and the rights of the state. All Catholics can insure the continuance of those blessings, as we know them in the United States, by leading the kind of life for which the holy father pleads."

Bishop Announces Drive.

A week after the departure of Mr. Hughes, the Most Rev. John Francis Noll, Catholic bishop of Fort Wayne, Ind., and chairman of Catholic lay organizations of the country, announced the formation of a nationwide drive against communism, in which the members of faiths other than Catholic would be invited to enlist.

"American intelligence cannot ignore the fact that our religious liberties are menaced," Bishop Noll declared. "Communism," he added, "is no respecter of creeds in its horrible warfare on God."

TROOPER KILLS SERGEANT, THEN TAKES OWN LIFE

Cookeville, Tenn., Sept. 19.—[U.P.]—Edward Whitaker, 24, a cavalryman, committed suicide tonight with the same weapon he had used to kill Sergeant Zina Mitchell, 52, earlier in the day while at the troop's barn near here. Whitaker shot himself just before a sheriff's posse surrounded him a second time during the afternoon. The suicide ended a wild pursuit over mountains and through underbrush and caves.

ANTI-ROOSEVELT TALKS PLANNED BY AL SMITH

To Stump East as Enemy of New Deal.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Alfred E. Smith, Democratic presidential candidate of 1928 and former governor of New York for four terms, has decided to enter actively into the field against President Roosevelt and the New Deal during the last six weeks of the campaign.

Upon his own initiative, it was learned today, Mr. Smith, whose brown derby campaign brought millions out to see and hear him eight years ago, has determined to make a series of speeches. They may number as many as five. He is expected to give his first address in Carnegie hall in New York in October.

Will Stay in the East.

One speech in Massachusetts, another in New York, and another perhaps in New Jersey are included in the program which Mr. Smith is reported to be working out. He is to make his own announcement in a few days. Neither the Republican party nor the American Liberty league, according to the information in political circles here, will be the sponsor for the former presidential candidate.

Mr. Smith proposes to make his own announcement when he is ready, prepare his own speeches, and deliver them under his own auspices. Whether he will speak for Gov. Alf M. Landon, nominee of the party which Mr. Smith has fought for a lifetime, is a detail with which the capital is unfamiliar. But the whole point of Mr. Smith's essay into the campaign is to help mobilize opinion against Mr. Roosevelt and against perpetuation of his administration.

Angered by New Deal.

Angered by the policies of the New Deal, Mr. Smith broke openly with President Roosevelt, delivering a scathing attack on the administration in a speech last January at a dinner of the American Liberty league. He has since been silent except to sign a round-robin letter to the delegates to the Democratic national convention last June, warning against a party indorsement of the New Deal.

Mr. Smith's coming into the campaign may energize and dramatize the split in the Democratic party. He is still credited generally with a popular following of significant proportions in the industrial districts of the east.

GEO. N. PEEK ATTACKS NEW DEAL TACTICS WITH NEW MAGAZINE

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 19.—(AP)—George N. Peek, former AAA administrator, in a statement released today by the "National Jeffersonian Democrats," opposing the reëlection of President Roosevelt, declared "Whatever the New Deal may be, it is not American in its inspirations or its practice."

Lovely Color (Similar to Nature's Own) For Your Gray Hair

With Pure, Harmless Canute Water

20 years without injury to a single user

Canute Water is a pure, colorless and odorless liquid of wonderful properties. This crystal-clear fluid, when applied to gray, faded or streaked hair, will again make it appear youthful, lustrous and uniform in color.

Not a single person has ever been injured by the use of Canute Water in over 22 years. This exceptional record is your guarantee that it is perfectly safe to use.

Easy to Use

Because of its safety, cleanliness and dependability, you can use Canute Water alone, in the privacy of your own room. No previous experience is necessary. You simply wet the hair with it and allow to dry.

Speedy Action

It requires between one and three applications to re-color the hair to the proper shade. The treatment can be completed in a single day.

And when the hair has once been re-colored, a single treatment, given only once a month, is sufficient to keep it that way. No more attention is necessary.

Results Amazing

Canute Water is neither sticky nor greasy. It leaves the hair clean and natural to the touch. There's not even a suggestion of "dye". Neither is it just a hair "darkener". Canute Water imparts a color similar to nature's very own.

Even your most intimate friends will be unable to distinguish the re-colored hair from the natural. And the new color remains in the hair, permanent against sun, air, salt-water and shampooing.

Action is Positive

No matter what has caused your grayness, Canute Water will positively overcome it. There are no exceptions.

Even if you have used some other hair coloring, it will be a revelation to you to see what Canute Water can do for your hair.

The time of day or the state of the weather makes no difference when using Canute Water. Apply it at your convenience. And since it does not alter the texture of your hair, you may curl, wave or set it—or get a permanent—as usual.

For Men, Too

We made a survey in a number of Cities recently and found that approximately 40% of Canute Water users are men. Since they have less time for the toilette, as a rule, they appreciate the simplicity of its use.

Inexpensive

Even a very modest purse can spare the trifling cost of keeping the hair lovely with Canute Water. A bottle contains enough for six average applications.

So, if you are still young — if you still care what others think — and if you are not quite ready to be classed with the "old folks" or the "has beens", get a bottle now. It will solve your problem so completely that you, yourself, will be astonished.

BEAT NEW DEAL AND MAKE JOBS FOR ALL: BROOKS

Sees Industry Strangled by High Taxes.

The great army of unemployed will be absorbed into permanent jobs if on Nov. 3 the people repudiate the New Deal, which has strangled and regulated industry with huge taxes, both at Washington and at its echo, Springfield.

Wayland Brooks, Republican nominee for governor, brought this message yesterday to 5,000 persons assembled at Ehrhardt's picnic grove in Park Ridge. The occasion was the celebration of William Busse day, arranged by Oscar Schmidt, former county commissioner. Mr. Busse is Republican candidate for county recorder.

Mr. Brooks spoke later at Joliet and Steger in Will county, at Morris, in Grundy county, and at Oswego, in Kendall county. At midnight he took the train for East St. Louis, where he will make three speeches today.

Full Time Jobs at Stake.

"Permanent full time jobs are at stake Nov. 3," Mr. Brooks said. "Reemployment and permanent full time jobs will come from industry and business workers and investors, small and large. They will come provided these sources are not dried up by taxation or destroyed by the tax collector's use of tax money to set up the government in business against the taxpayer.

"If I am elected governor I shall immediately call the leaders of industry and labor to survey Illinois and see what encouragement and inducements we can offer business to expand and new industries to locate in our state. Illinois, with its vast agricultural domain using the manufactured goods of the city and its cities consuming the produce of our farms, is an inland empire that should stand first among the states. Illinois must aid and encourage industry to locate and expand.

Must Ease Tax Burden.

"Every possible tax burden must be lifted in order to give this state a nation-wide reputation for fair treatment of the worker and industry. The threat of increased taxes is halting employment and recovery. Taxes take money that should be paid the wage earners."

Exhibiting a metal tag he picked up in Rockford which bore the label "Made in Germany," Mr. Brooks attacked the reciprocal tarif policy of the administration, which is "taking American markets away from Americans."

BURTON RASCOE JR., 22, SON OF CRITIC, FOUND DEAD IN KITCHEN

New York, Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Burton Rascoe Jr., 22, son of the author and literary critic was found asphyxiated in the kitchen of the Rascoe home at Larchmont today. Gas was flowing from a half dozen open jets of the range. Police said it was a case of suicide. On the floor near the body was a note reading:

"I owe Frank Massey $4."

Mr. and Mrs. Rascoe were reported to be on a motor trip through New England. The youth, recently enrolled as a student in a New York City art school, had been staying at the home alone. His chums said he had shown no sign of despondency.

Mrs. Rosalie Vandrovec, 96 years old, died yesterday, apparently of heart disease in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Antoinette Ruzicka, 2100 52d avenue, Cicero.

EX-WIFE LOSES AGAIN IN FIGHT FOR 2 CHILDREN

Mrs. Alice Des Chatelets, 29 years old, 6358 Drexel avenue, lost twice yesterday in her court fight to regain custody of her two children from her former husband, Joseph Des Chatelets, 336 West 80th street, a city policeman.

Her attorney, Edward Schatz, asked Judge Oscar Nelson of the Superior court for a change of venue. At a stormy court session last week Judge Nelson took the two children, Nathalie, 8 years old, and Jacqueline, 10 years old, from the mother and awarded their custody to the father, declaring Mrs. Des Chatelets was unfit. He ruled yesterday that the custody case was closed and denied the venue change.

Des Chatelets' attorney, Norman Becker, then presented a petition asking that his client be relieved of paying $50 a month alimony, as directed in an order entered in 1933 at the time of the divorce. This request was granted. Since the divorce Des Chatelets has remarried.

SEIZE MYSTERY GIRL IN SLAYING ON DOPE CHARGE

Miss Mildred Kavanaugh, 35 years old, who was known as the "mystery girl" in the slaying of Frank Cremaldi, bootlegger, in 1926, was arrested yesterday by federal agents on a charge of possessing 58 grains of heroin. Seized with her was a man who gave his name as Michael Kelly, 40 years old, who is charged with selling her the narcotics.

The girl and Kelly were arrested at 43d street and Wentworth avenue. Both were arraigned before United States District Commissioner Edwin K. Walker, who set bond for each at $2,500 and committed them to the Bridewell. Miss Kavanaugh gave her address as 7345 South Shore drive.

Shortly after she was arrested, Attorney C. J. Bisesi appeared at the United States courthouse and said he was conservator for her $40,000 estate. Miss Kavanaugh had inherited $250,000 from her father, Denis Kavanaugh, once a well known night club owner in Chicago.

After the slaying of Cremaldi, Miss Kavanaugh was discovered in an alleged disorderly house on the south side. Police found she had no connection with the murder, although she had been with Cremaldi before he was killed.

LANDON OFFERS SOIL AND WATER PLAN TO LEAGUE

Monticello, N. Y., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas, Republican presidential nominee, in a telegram to the New York state Izaak Walton league convention here today declared that "the government should take a more active part in co-operating with the states in the fields of soil and water conservation."

"Not only would this conserve basic resources but it would provide an immense amount of employment, contrasted to the present system of makeshift jobs," the telegram said.

"If we will work together a real conservation program covering use of the soil, proper control of waters, and amelioration of drouth conditions can be put in operation."

REVEAL HIGH PAY FOR DEMOCRATIC MUD SLINGERS

G. O. P. Bares Farley Plot to Smear Landon.

The Republican national committee, through its Chicago headquarters, announced yesterday it had information that "poison gas" workers have been paid as much as $500 to take part in a campaign to "smear" Gov. Alf M. Landon.

"Jim Farley apparently had advance information when he said this would be a 'dirty' campaign," read the statement of the committee on this subject.

"'Smear' tactics in an effort to hurt Gov. Landon are in progress throughout the country. Apparently they have a common origin. Information that certain workers are being paid as much as $500 to spread 'poison' gas about Gov. Landon has been received by the Republican national committee."

Misquoted on Relief.

The statement attacked in particular an alleged canard that Gov. Landon said at some time that $1.08 a week was enough to take care of a family on relief. This assertion was labeled "an utter untruth." According to the committee, Gov. Landon "never said anything like that."

"Gov. Landon," continued the committee's statement, "did not say that a relief family should live on $1.08 a week and has no sympathy with such a view.

"The story was started by State Senator Joseph McDonald of Kansas City, Kas., a New Deal adherent and one of Gov. Landon's bitterest critics. Senator McDonald never has submitted proof of his charges which he made during debate on a social security program, recommended by Gov. Landon, which the Kansas legislature was considering in special session.

Exposed by Democratic Paper.

"Sam J. Shelton, a staf writer of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, a strongly Democratic newspaper, who made an independent investigation of the matter, wrote an article printed in that paper on July 11, 1936, showing that Senator McDonald not only had no proof of his charges but that he had no letter—as he had claimed—to support his attack upon Gov. Landon.

"Senator McDonald hails from Wyandotte county, where, according to the research division of the Kansas legislative council, direct relief for each family case averaged $13.89 a week last January and $13.39 in February while single persons received $9.89 and $8.54, respectively. Statewide averages for family cases were $13.99 and $14.53 during the two months.

"Because of constitutional limitations, the Kansas state government has not been able to levy taxes and raise funds for relief. One of the proposed constitutional amndments to be voted on at the November election would give the state authority to contribute directly to relief and to supervise it in the counties.

Kansas Record Among Best.

"Kansas has one of the best relief records of all the states west of the Mississippi and has consistently ranked in the upper group of states on the basis of nonfederal funds expended.

"In 1935 Kansas was fourth among the states in this category and in 1933 and 1934 was fifteenth among all the states in the Union. Kansas counties gave $6,870,000 for relief in 1933, $9,160,396 in 1934, $8,076,558 in 1935, and an estimated $7,800,000 this year."

The committee statement also charged that "poison gas" efforts have been made in some sections to picture Gov. Landon as Jewish and in other areas he has been accused of being anti-Semitic. The committee replied that neither assertion is true.

James M. Cox to Speak for Roosevelt in Ohio

New York, Sept. 19.—[Special.]—James M. Cox, Democratic candidate for President in 1920, will make a campaign speech for the Roosevelt-Garner ticket on Sept. 28 in Dayton, O., Chairman James A. Farley of the Democratic national committee announced today. Roosevelt was his running mate in 1920. The Dayton address will be broadcast.

DEMOCRATS MAP STATE TOURS BY TWO CARAVANS

Horner and Sen. Lewis Will Head Parties.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—The Democratic state committee today announced next week's schedule for two caravans, one headed by United States Senator James Hamilton Lewis and the other by Gov. Henry Horner, to canvass downstate Illinois for the Democratic ticket.

With Senator Lewis will be John Stelle, candidate for lieutenant governor; Edward J. Barrett, candidate for reëlection as state auditor; Otto Kerner, candidate for reëlection as attorney general, and Lewis Long, candidate for congressman at large.

With the governor will be Edward J. Hughes, candidate for reëlection as secretary of state; John C. Martin, candidate for treasurer, and E. V. Champion, candidate for congressman at large.

Leave Capital Sunday.

The senatorial caravan will leave Springfield on Sunday morning to attend a rally at Danville sponsored by the Vermillion county Democratic committee. Senator Lewis and Michael L. Igoe of Chicago will be the principal speakers. The remainder of Senator Lewis' schedule follows:

Monday—2 p. m., Tuscola; 8 p. m., Mattoon.

Tuesday—10:30 a. m., Newton; 2 p. m., Olney; 8 p. m., Bridgeport.

Wednesday—Noon meeting of all candidates in Chicago; 8 p. m., Centralia. Senator Lewis will be the speaker.

Thursday—11 a. m., McLeansboro; 2:30 p. m., Benton; 8 p. m., Marion.

Friday—10:30 a. m., Chester; 3 p. m., Nashville; 8 p. m., Belleville.

Saturday—10:30 a. m., Jerseyville; 2 p. m., Carrollton; 8 p. m., Jacksonville.

Horner Going on Air.

Gov. Horner will open the week with two broadcasts tomorrow, speaking from 11:30 to 11:45 in the morning and from 12:15 to 12:30 p. m. He will speak in Springfield and the morning broadcast will be over WBBM, Chicago. The afternoon speech will be broadcast by WCBS, Springfield.

The governor will leave Sunday for Cleveland, where he will invite the American Legion to meet at Chicago in 1938. Returning to Illinois on Monday night, he will join his caravan of speakers for meetings at Lincoln, Clinton, and Champaign on Tuesday.

Get-Together in Chicago.

Wednesday noon all candidates will attend a Democratic organization meeting at the Morrison hotel, Chicago. That night the candidates in the governor's party will speak at a rally in Kankakee.

On Thursday, the Horner party will speak at Morris at 2 p. m.; at Aurora at 7:30 p. m., and at Downers Grove at 9:30 p. m.

The Friday schedule calls for appearances at De Kalb at 11 a. m. and at Belvidere at 2 p. m.

The Democratic parties probably will campaign downstate until two weeks before the election and will spend the remaining time campaigning in Cook county.

LEMKE MAY CUT ROOSEVELT VOTE IN FOUR STATES

Old Nonpartisan League Region Backs Him.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

One bloc of states — Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, and Montana—is deemed by the politicians to be a special area where the third party candidacy of William Lemke of Fargo, N. D., for the presidency may prove a balance of power which may land them for Gov. Alf Landon of Kansas in November. In these states the old Nonpartisan league, cradle of some of the New Deal ideas, had a large following some two decades ago. Lemke was the legal mind of the league when it captured control of the North Dakota government and ran the legislature at Bismarck through the agency of an outside caucus.

They are among the states in which the late "Fighting Bob" La Follette of Wisconsin ran in second place as a third party candidate in 1924. In all four states the effects of the reciprocal trade agreements, particularly the one with Canada, are deemed a potent issue among the dairy farmers and the settlement. Indications are that it has perceptibly diminished the strength of President Roosevelt and increased Landon anti-New Deal sentiment. The swing is regarded by some competent observers to be so marked that the Lemke candidacy may tip the scales in favor of the Republican ticket in this especial area.

Olson's Death Blow to Party.

In Minnesota in recent weeks the situation has been turned topsy-turvy. The death of Gov. Floyd Olson removed the mainspring of the Farmer-Labor party. The Farmer-Labor party itself was an offshot of the old Nonpartisan league. Its antecedents and genesis lay with the old league. Gov. Olson left a reputed deathbed wish that his party support President Roosevelt. But the strong man is gone, and the Farmer-Labor party now has several steersmen none of whom seems to have a grip on the helm.

Meanwhile the Minnesota Democrats are split in a feud between old Al Smith men and Roosevelt men. Resentment also still is being cherished by some Democrats because the New Deal supported Senator Henrik Shipstead, Farmer-Labor, in 1934 against Einar Hoidale, the Democratic nominee, and sent the latter to the cleaners by a margin of over 200,000 votes.

With the Farmer-Laborites split apart over leadership, the Lemke third party candidacy has prospects of taking both Democratic and Farmer-Labor votes from President Roosevelt. Lemke's scheme to refinance farm indebtedness is reported making an appeal to a radical farm vote. The Farmer-Laborites are shouting that a vote for Lemke is a vote for Landon.

In the recent conference of so-called "liberals" held in Chicago at the call of Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin, Paul Kvale, Minnesota Farmer-Labor congressman, broached plans to have the conference condemn Lemke's union party movement. The conference indorsed Roosevelt.

"Second in Home State."

In North Dakota, estimates of Republican leaders are that Lemke will run second in his home state and may cut so strongly into the Roosevelt vote that Landon may carry the state. At Bismarck estimates are that 90 per cent of Lemke's poll will be votes which otherwise would be cast for the New Deal ticket. In South Dakota, the Lemke third party candidacy is also deemed likely to prove a balance of power. In Montana, Republican reports are that Lemke may cut into the vote both in the western cattle and grain regions and in the western mining regions, and this state which has been regarded as in the Roosevelt column appears veering in the direction of the Republican ticket.

As old party politicians view it, Lemke may possibly cut strongly into the New Deal vote in Wisconsin, the one state carried by La Follette in 1924.

3 SISTERS WED TOGETHER; WILL LIVE TOGETHER

Fall River, Mass., Sept. 19.—(AP)—A triple wedding took place in Notre Dame church today. Three daughters of Mrs. Laura Girard of this city were the brides.

Alice M. Girard, 23 years old, was married to Hilaire N. Legasse of Fall River; Lillian J., 25, was married to Wilfred O. Jeffrey of Providence, R. I., and Loretta G., 28, was wedded to Adrien W. Robbilard of Fall River. The Rev. L. Damase Robert officiated.

After a joint wedding trip to New York and Washington, D. C., the couples will live in the same house in Fall River.

SISTERS WED IN TRIPLE CEREMONY

VANDENBERG HITS CONGRESS; CALLS IT MONEY DUMB

New Dealers' Spending Is Attacked.

New Britain, Conn., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.], charged today that "congress is utterly money-dumb" in its spending of public funds.

"It has no more concern for a million dollars than Mr. Farley [James A. Farley, Democratic national chairman] has for a Jefferson Democrat," he said in an address at the opening of the Connecticut state campaign at Lake Compounce.

Asserting congress had voted billions with "only the most casual and perfunctory" debate, Senator Vandenberg continued:

"Usually it leaves the distribution largely to the discretion of the President and his burocrats. On one amazing occasion, the President, asking for three billion, actually had the temerity to say: 'I suggest that you appropriate it to me.' And congress did!

Innovation for America.

"Although this autocratic process is highly familiar abroad, this was the first official moment in American history when the personal pronoun began to dominate our democracy."

The senator charged that the President had failed to keep his inaugural promise to "put our national house in order and make income balance outgo," and instead "the treasury is become chiefly a device for manufacturing debt, while Santa Claus writes checks and pollyanna pays for them."

"Upon my responsibility as a senator," said Senator Vandenberg, "I state to you my deep conviction that the Roosevelt party and Roosevelt spending—unless sharply interrupted next November—will bring you to the end of what the President himself described as 'the road to bankruptcy.'"

Party Changes Complexion.

He said "Democrats no longer can recognize the Roosevelt New Deal party as their own."

"It is a new party—a third party—without fixed principles, as demonstrated by its own boastful contempt for its wholly broken promises of 1932," the senator charged.

"It is, too often, a party of opportunists who spurn principles in favor of devices; of spoilsmen who prefer politics to merit and sincere public service; of impractical, impetuous experimentalists who create more problems than they solve."

"It would be absurd to deny," the Michigan senator said, "that large and legitimate expenditures have been made to care for the innocent victims of the depression, but I want to say this specifically to those who are on relief: You have a greater stake in the preservation of the public credit than any other class, because the public credit is all that stands between you and disaster until we can restore Americans to jobs.

"No, it is not legitimate expenditure against which we complain. We do propose to economize by demobilizing vast battalions of the Farley boys who cling like leaches to the blood stream of the public credit and by quitting such nonsense as the $200,000,000 Florida canal and by stopping such wild subsidies as the reckless Wallace generosity in paying one California corporation $219,000 for not raising 14,857 hogs on 445 acres."

Wed in Church

Three sisters were married last night in a triple wedding ceremony at the Trinity Lutheran church in Oak Lawn. The brides are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Albert C. Fritz, 9308 South Turner avenue, Evergreen Park. They are:

Estelle, 21, bride of Clifford Krueger, 21, of 7100 West 95th street, Oak Lawn.

Ruth, 19, wed to Leonard Bulow, 23, of 5600 West 79th street, Oak Lawn.

The father of the young women owns the Crown Vault company in Evergreen Park, a cemetery vault factory.

SEN. VANDENBERG CHALLENGED TO DEBATE LEWIS

Senator James Hamilton Lewis yesterday challenged Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan to a series of four debates in Chicago.

The subject he proposed was:

"Resolved, that there has been no measure passed under the direction of the President and the present administration that was knowingly unconstitutional or intended to be an unconstitutional measure."

The challenge was said to have been inspired by Senator Vandenberg's reference in his Constitution day speech in Chicago to President Roosevelt's plea for enactment of the Guffey Coal bill in spite of constitutional doubts "however reasonable."

Senator Vandenberg spoke at New Britain, Conn., and Springfield, Mass., yesterday, and late last night was reported en route to his home in Michigan.

WPA COERCION CHARGES TO BE SIFTED AT ONCE

Workers Threatened on Vote, Says Davis.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—An official inquiry is to be made into the alleged coercion of Works Progress administration employés to vote Democratic at the November election in Pennsylvania, according to an announcement today.

The investigation will be conducted at the meeting of a United States senate committee on Sept. 28.

A letter from Senator James J. Davis [Rep., Pa.] will form the basis of the committee's action.

Sign Building Charged.

The Republican committee added to its list of WPA irregularities in Pennsylvania today the accusation that workers were being forced to erect monuments and roadside signs in Pennsylvania urging the reëlection of President Roosevelt and state and local Democratic candidates.

A photograph was displayed showing a terraced slope in Schuylkill county in which the word "Roosevelt" was spelled out in whitewashed stones. Above is a large framed sign bearing a picture of the President and the caption "We Want Roosevelt Again." State highway "caution" boards, painted with political slogans, notified motorists of the "view" ahead, the committee charged.

"Other Roosevelt shrines may be seen at other points," a committee statement read. "WPA toolsheds and other structures are plastered with political signs."

Coercion Described.

In his letter to the senate investigating committee, Senator Davis wrote:

"I hope you are not going to overlook the coercion of voters that is taking place in Pennsylvania. I know of nothing so indescribably low as to compel a man with a family dependent on him to give up his choice of political voting according to his choice or else give up his job, especially when the particular job is one on a public pay roll, which employment is paid for by every taxpayer.

Coercion Threat Told.

"You will be forced to admit, unless your committee has cotton stuffed in its ears and blinders over its eyes, that it cannot fail to see the hard hand of the so-called Democrats holding the threat of unemployment over the voters on the WPA."

It was announced today that a report received from investigators listed total Democratic disbursements in the Maine campaign, as tabulated up to Aug. 28, at $21,867.

JONES IS SWORN IN AS FEDERAL JUDGE FOR VIRGIN ISLANDS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—(AP)—George P. Jones of Minnesota was sworn in today as judge of the federal district court for the Virgin islands.

The oath was administered by Ugo Carusi, executive assistant to Attorney General Cummings, in the presence of Cummings and a score of other officials.

Jones, a special assistant to the attorney general since 1934, said he planned to leave by ship for St. Thomas about Oct. 1. His recess appointment by President Roosevelt, announced Thursday, is subject to confirmation by the senate.

Jones succeeds Judge Albert C. Levitt of Connecticut, who resigned Aug. 1 after complaining of interior department "interference" with the court."

WIFE INJURED BY FALL FROM AUTO IN DOMESTIC ROW

Mrs. Eva Allan, 35 years old, 4454 Wilcox street, was critically injured early today when she fell from the running board of the speeding automobile of her husband, Melvin, an automobile salesman. The fall was the aftermath of a domestic row that had taken the police to the Allan home earlier in the night.

At Frances Willard hospital where Mrs. Allan was taken she told the police that her husband had gone out in the car and that she suspected another woman was with him. When he returned, she said, she berated him and he slapped her. Then he left the house. The police were called and they heard Mrs. Allan's story, then left to hunt for the husband. After they were gone Allan returned to the home and the quarrel started all over again.

In a rage, Mrs. Allan said, he rushed from the house, jumped into the car, and stepped on the gas. Mrs. Allan sprang onto the running board as the car started away and clung to the door handle for four blocks until the car reached Adams street and Lavergne avenue where she lost her grip and fell. Her husband speeded on without stopping, but later appeared at the hospital where he was taken into custody pending the outcome of Mrs. Allan's injuries.

Seven Treasury Officials to Confer Here Two Days

Seven officials of the United States treasury department will arrive here tomorrow from Washington for a two day conference with Chicago federal officials. The Washington group will be headed by Harold N. Graves, assistant to the secretary of the treasury; Rear Admiral Russell R. Waesche, commander of the United States coast guard, and Elmer L. Irey, chief of the intelligence unit of the internal revenue department. Matters of interdepartmental coördination will be discussed.

NEARLY MILLION REGISTER IN DAY; SET NEW RECORD

Permanent Poll System Meets the Test.

he said as he watched the precinct officials bringing the registration cards into the election board offices, where ward totals were compiled. "And the precinct officials like it. They wouldn't go back to the old system, many of them tell me. I don't believe that we will have any difficulty in registering the remainder of the voters by Oct. 6.

"Of course, we will study these results carefully, and if it is shown that in some sections of the board's territory the registration was exceptionally light, I may order a few polling places opened for another day prior to Oct. 6. We won't know if that will be necessary until we compare the registration with that on which the primary was held."

The board divided large precincts several weeks ago, reducing them to an average of 450 voters. Some had had as many as 600 voters. The division necessitated adding 431 precincts.

Anticipating confusion during the initial precinct registration, Chairman McKay had installed twenty telephone lines in the board's offices, manned by as many men, to handle the calls.

"But ten would have been enough," he said. "Everything went smoothly and we feel that our weeks of preparation have been rewarded."

The nine suburbs in the election board territory which are under the new system are Berwyn, Chicago Heights, Cicero, Elmwood Park, Evergreen Park, Harvey, Morton Grove, Stickney, and Summit. No figures were available on the registration in these suburbs last night, but it was reported to be the heaviest in history.

Residents of country towns in Cook county outside the jurisdiction of the election board will register on Sept. 26 and Oct. 6. They are not under the permanent registration system.

HENRY J. ALLEN RAPS '40% RELIEF TO NEEDY AND 60% TO WASTE'

Rehoboth, Mass., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Former United States Senator Henry J. Allen of Kansas told Bristol county Republicans today he spoke for both Gov. Alf M. Landon and himself in opposing relief that gave "only 40 cents of each dollar to the man who needs it."

"We do not resent the spending of money for relief," Allen asserted, "but it is the maladministration of relief to which we object, when 60 cents of every dollar goes for overhead and administration and only 40 cents to the man who needs it."

Burglars Blow Open P. O. Safe; Routed by Tear Gas

Burglars broke into the Albany postal station, 8 South Albany avenue, early today, and blew open a safe with nitroglycerin, but were routed by tear gas let loose by the blast before they could take any of the contents. The safe contained about $500 worth of stamps and probably $200 in money, according to Postal Inspector Walter Johnson who began an investigation. The burglars gained entrance through a coal chute and a window in the rear of the room.

KANSAS WOMEN UPHOLD LANDON'S SCHOOL RECORD

Two Kansas women came to Chicago in a militant mood yesterday to tell the truth about Gov. Alf M. Landon and the Kansas school situation. They are Mrs. K. W. Claybaugh of Topeka, and Mrs. J. V. McKinney of Hartford, writer of a farm column in the Emporia Gazette.

Charges have been made from political quarters that Gov. Landon, Republican nominee for President, has closed 440 Kansas schools unnecessarily, and has slashed the pay of teachers.

Mrs. McKinney pointed out that Kansas school districts are local units and independent of the governor. Moreover, she said the 440 schools were closed for consolidation purposes. The only thing Landon did, she said, was to compel the schools to go on a cash basis.

As for the teachers' pay reductions, Mrs. McKinney said they were part of the general economy and that the governor himself took a 25 per cent salary cut.

Shot When He Complies with Request for Match

Louis Rolanec, 50 years old, 1521 West 18th place, returned from a lodge meeting last night with Michael Anderlick, 75 years old, 1849 South Laflin street. As they stood in front of Anderlick's home two men approached and asked Rolanec for a match. He reached into his pocket, and one of the strangers suddenly pulled out a pistol and shot him in the chest. Then the men fled. Rolanec was taken to the County hospital, where it was said he probably would recover.

VOLUNTEERS WIN LANDON SUPPORT OF IOWA VOTERS

Workers Are Active in All Parts of State.

Des Moines, Ia., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Leaders of VOLUNTEER units in Iowa reported today that a marked swing to the Landon-Knox ticket has been noted in the state within the last few weeks, and were enthused at the interest displayed in the patriotic organization started in Illinois and extended to a number of states in the union.

Activities of VOLUNTEERS were reported to Des Moines today from a score of communities which have organized units and are furthering the cause of the national Republican ticket by house to house canvasses, meetings, and in contacting voters who hitherto have kept out of organization politics.

Two New Units Formed.

Typical of these reports was one from Decorah, which stated that VOLUNTEER headquarters have been set up at two towns in Fayette county, West Union and Oelwein, and a large number of VOLUNTEERS enrolled from each division. VOLUNTEER literature is being sent out daily, and is being supplemented by personal calls from both party and VOLUNTEER workers.

As a result, says the report, Fayette county will return a Republican majority. Further enrollment of VOLUNTEERS will be taken at a picnic at the West Union fairgrounds tomorrow.

From Clinton came word that VOLUNTEER literature, distributed widely, had had a telling effect upon the independent vote. Frank E. Ogden, president of the Clinton Lock company, who with Mrs. Anna Baade and Mrs. Daisy Dean Kraft are leading the organization, reported that the facts presented by the literature as to the expenditure of millions by the New Deal for power projects "and the extravagance of the federal government in this particular work," was receiving sober attention.

Have 500 Members.

Cass county reported a VOLUNTEER unit of more than 500 members and plans under way to double and triple the number. Two enthusiastic meetings were held within the last ten days, Earl S. Holton, county chairman, and John O'Connell, secretary, said.

John Stark, Wapello county chairman, stated from Ottumwa that although THE VOLUNTEERS was inaugurated in the county only two weeks ago, 500 had been signed up and that the prospects were for 2,000 more during the campaign. The pledge cards, Stark added, were going "like hot cakes." In addition to the independent, the movement is receiving support from the regular party workers, the Young Republican league, the Republican Service league, and the Republican Women's club.

Hundreds of Wapello county VOLUNTEERS will go to Des Moines Tuesday to hear Gov. Landon's address. On Friday they will journey to Ottumwa to listen to Col. Knox speak at the Fifth congressional district young Republican rally.

Clinton county's VOLUNTEER organization got under way last night at a big rally at Clinton which resulted in more than 600 enrollments from southeastern Iowans. The plea to unaffiliated voters was especially well received. John M. Henry, county chairman, expressed high satisfaction with the start of the movement.

Young Republicans Active.

In Cedar Rapids, Linn county, the Young Republican league has been one of the most active VOLUNTEER units in the state. The organization is set up to include representatives from every town and township in the county under the direction of 30 chairmen.

United States Senator L. J. Dickinson, arch New Deal critic, and State Senator George Wilson, Republican nominee for governor, have appeared at VOLUNTEER rallies and large amounts of campaign literature have been distributed.

Cedar county's VOLUNTEER chairman, Duane Donahue of Tipton, who succeeds Howard Haesemeyer, recently appointed secretary of the Republican state central committee with headquarters here, is carrying on Haesemeyer's work.

Attorney Realff Otteson of Davenport reported that more than 2,000 men and women had been enrolled in THE VOLUNTEERS in Scott county. Otteson, chairman of the unit, said virtually every new member has pledged himself to obtain several more. It is the plan to name vice chairmen in every precinct and carry on a vigorous campaign.

THE PROTECTION OF NEGRO RIGHTS.

At Dalton in Georgia a few weeks ago a young Negro who had been arrested on a charge of attempted rape was lynched. The customary ritual was followed. A crowd of about 150 men stormed the jail, forced the jailer to hand over his keys, took the prisoner from his cell, carried him a few miles from town, and hanged him. Some hours later the sherif found the body and cut it down.

All of this was told in a few lines on the inside pages of the newspapers. Nothing has been done by the sherif at Dalton and nothing by the government of Georgia to punish the perpetrators of this hideous crime. And, in all probability, nothing will be done. Public opinion [except, of course, among the Negroes] in vast areas of the south approves this kind of mob violence, especially when it is directed against Negroes.

The significance of this fact is very great and it is also very plain. Negroes are lynched in the south because Negroes are considered there to have no rights as human beings or citizens which any one need respect. The Negro is tolerated because his labor is needed; if he makes no attempt to rise above the station to which he was born he is not likely to suffer injury, though he knows that at any time, for any real or fancied offense, he may be taken out, whipped, hanged, or even burned with impunity.

Bitter as is the lot of the Negroes in the south [and, to a less extent, in the north as well], it would be vastly worse were it not for the protections which the constitution throws about them. The amendments added by Republican effort after the civil war are the charter of Negro rights and, in a sense, of all minority rights in this country. The Supreme court has done much to clarify and preserve these rights.

But what of the future? In the next four years in all probability the man who is elected to the presidency will have the appointment of one or more Supreme court judges. If Mr. Roosevelt is reëlected, whom is he likely to appoint? Joe Robinson of Arkansas has been prominently mentioned. Pat Harrison of Mississippi is another candidate. There is a considerable probability that Mr. Roosevelt will find his appointees in the solid south which has supported him most consistently; and there is a practical certainty that, whomsoever he may name, the new judges will be men who, like Mr. Roosevelt, regard the constitution as a horse and buggy document full of old-fashioned protections of individual freedom which must be got around in one fashion or another.

We know what the Supreme court as it stands today will do for the Negro. On Feb. 17 of this year the court handed down its now famous decision in the case of Ed Brown, Henry Shields, and Yank Ellington against the state of Mississippi. They were poor, unlettered Negroes who had been suspected, on the flimsiest of evidence, of committing a murder. The only evidence presented against them at their trial in Mississippi was a series of confessions wrung from them by the most brutal torture. Under the eyes of a deputy sherif, and with his active participation, Ellington was twice strung up by the neck until he was senseless. When he recovered consciousness and still refused to confess he was beaten unmercifully. He still refused to confess, and was again whipped and told the treatment would be repeated until he did admit he had committed the crime. At last he yielded. Similar brutality extorted similar confessions from the other two.

All of these facts were revealed at the trial in Mississippi, but the men were convicted and the conviction was sustained on appeal to the Supreme court of the state. Only when the case reached the United States Supreme court were the fundamental human rights of these unfortunate black men, rights guaranteed them by our constitution, given any recognition.

Mr. Roosevelt wants to appoint judges who will reshape the constitution to suit his convenience. He wants to whittle away a little here and there. Even though he himself may not be desirous of depriving the Negroes of any of their hard won rights, that may very well be the effect of the kind of whittling he proposes and certainly his supporters south of the Ohio river would be delighted if it were.

Mr. Roosevelt's NRA was declared unconstitutional by the Supreme court. Under it he had fixed wages for workingmen all over the country. He fixed higher wages for northern than for southern labor. Had his law been sustained, what would be more probable than that some southern successor of his should by law undertake to fix the wages of Negroes everywhere lower than that of whites doing identical work? And with a Robinson or a Harrison on the court [Harrison from the same Mississippi which convicted Ellington and affirmed the conviction; Robinson, who made no protest against the recent lynchings in his state, Arkansas], what reason is there to think that the court would not sustain the discrimination?

If Gov. Landon is elected President the new members of the Supreme court will be selected by him, and the Negroes, together with every other minority in the country, can feel confident that the great constitutional guarantees of human rights and the prohibitions against racial and religious discriminations will be preserved. In a very real sense, the voters will select the new judges of their Supreme court in November. There is no more important issue in the campaign than this one.

PAROLE THEORIES AND PRACTICE.

At least one speaker at the conference on prisons and parole struck at the fundamental evil in our treatment of crime, corrupt politics. The speaker was Mrs. Blanche La Du, president of the American Prison association. "It is not the theory of parole," she said, "but the administration of parole that is causing the trouble. Just so long as dangerous or habitual criminals are turned loose in the community after serving a very brief term for a serious offense, whether by mistake of a parole board or political pressure, just so long will danger to the community and antagonism to the parole system exist."

This is what we have been saying to the friends of the parole system and penal reform for years. But it is given little heed because it is pleasanter to talk about other things, to devise new laws and regulations, to theorize on the criminal personality, to indulge in humanitarian proposals for ameliorating the conditions of the convicted offender. To face the fact that all reforms depend upon competent and honest administration and vigorously to attack the forces responsible for the flagrant maladministration, revealed day after day in the news, is much less pleasant.

But it is essential if the parole system is to survive or deserves to survive. Antagonism to the parole system arises from no lack of sympathy with its ideal purposes but from the notorious abuses for which the alliance of crime and corrupt politics is mainly responsible. And that antagonism is growing rapidly. The associations and individuals who are devoted to the improvement of our penal system will have little influence with an alarmed and indignant public for the defense of their theories and proposals so long as they shirk the crux of the situation.

THE MARINES IN THE ARMY.

Now that the government has adopted a policy of nonintervention in Central America it would seem that the marines' chief occupation and raison d'etre are gone. It is true that the policies of governments change, but it is likely that this one, for reasons which we need not discuss here, will prevail for some time. That assumption is not necessary to support the suggestion we have made before, namely, that the marines be taken out of the navy and be absorbed into the army.

This will be energetically opposed by and on behalf of the marine corps, which has a long and splendid tradition and a fighting record unsurpassed. But so has the American army, and the marines would suffer no disparagement in entering the regulars. Objections based on any special advantage of rank or promotion can be met, at least in part, by giving equivalent rank to the officers of the marines, commissioned and noncommissioned, in the army establishment, and in any case should not prevent a consolidation if it is, as we believe, desirable from the viewpoint of the good of the defense service and therefore the public.

There is, it seems to us, no reason for a guard of soldiers on a modern warship. Naval sailors are trained and disciplined for all the purposes a naval vessel is asked to perform. They are exercised in infantry tactics and the handling of all instruments of fire, revolvers, rifles, machine guns and artillery. They have proved their mettle and efficiency in land warfare time and again and they are quite able to police the ship as well as a marine guard.

By bringing the marines into the army we would simplify organization, cut down some overhead, reduce opportunity for interservice official rivalries and promote coördinated action in military operations. To maintain a separate establishment is wasteful of money, effort and efficiency, and the influence neither of inertia nor of the sentiment which we respect should outweigh these practical considerations.

ALBERTA'S ABERHART.

William Aberhart, social credit premier of Alberta, says that something will have to be done to curb the mad dog tactics of certain financial newspapers. He suggested licensing them. That was the early English method of control of the printing press by the crown. A publication could be suppressed at will by the revocation of the license to print.

Mr. Aberhart is a pious and naturally inoffensive man. There's nothing at present the matter with him except that he is full of fiscal prune juice and talked himself into office by telling other prune juicers he could do something he can't. He is unable to give every citizen of Alberta $25 a month, and worse than knowing he can't he is being told, apparently, by financial writers that his illusions are dangerous. So he thinks a mad dog press is after him and he would lock it up.

Before Mr. Aberhart went ballooning he probably wouldn't have done any violence to any one's person or opinions. The chemistry of frustration works a change. Hitler, when he first appeared on the German scene, was on the amusing side. Even the coöperation of Ludendorff did not make him impressive. His putsch fizzled in a scamper. There was a laugh and that seemed to be the end of the Austrian who would rule Germany with his National Socialists and save the Aryans. A slightly cracked crusader had popped on and off the stage. And that was Hitler.

As Mr. Aberhart finds himself more embarrassed, uncomfortable, or desperate he'll be bound, if he can find a way, to make other people uncomfortable. He'll not admit that his ideas are foolish. He'll say that an unscrupulous opposition is keeping him from doing the good he could. Canadians ought not to be easily pushed around, but no one ever knows what a frenzy and a senseless ambition will do to people.

RELIGION'S NEW FRONTIERS

BY WILLIAM HARMON NORTON.

My caption is a favorite phrase of that rampant imperialism which commands the church to "move out upon the social, economic, and political fronts" and conquer that benighted Ethiopia, the capitalistic order. It is now the churchman's burden to clean up the individualistic jungle and impose the blessings of a socialistic civilization. Preliminary surveys are being made by federations for social service and commissions of social action. Social creeds are adopted as campaign plans. Active recruiting is going on through the pulpits, publications, and youth societies of several communions.

The objectives are in part industrial and social reforms which all good men favor in principle at least. But our chauvinists are not content with territorial slices. They covet the entire kingdom. They propose to overthrow the existing economic order and reconstruct society. In this course dissension, defection, and schism are sure consequences. The resolutions of several church councils already really cancel the right to membership of heretics who do not profess the new socialistic creed. And the church which turns itself into a forum to discuss endlessly the unsolved problems of economics, which busies itself with making blue prints for "God's coöperative commonwealth," will be secularized beyond redemption. To "shift Christianity's center of gravity from the frontier of the inner life of individuals to the frontier of the public life of society, the Kingdom of God," as the Christian Century urges, is to shift it from its sources of inspiration and power, to tear it from its roots.

The militant clergy may well contend—although I do not recall that they have done so—that in "moving out on the social, economic, and political fronts" they are only reclaiming for religion territories which long were undisputedly hers. For religion once ruled the entire political realm. At the dawn of history, in the Tigris-Euphrates valley, for instance, political authority was the voice of the tribal god, speaking through his representative, the priest, who thereby was also king. In early Israel religion directed the march, led in battle, and dictated the laws. When a distinct political government emerged it was subordinate to religion. Samuel the prophet anointed Saul the king, announced his rejection, and chose David his successor.

There were few, if any, realms of life that primitive religion did not rule. In the first civilized communities the temple rose as the center and source of things, the depositary of knowledges and skills, the house of supernatural powers. Still earlier, men looked to religion to provide by sacrifices, often human, for the security of bridges, the fertility of fields, and the increase of herds and the tribe.

The really new frontiers of religion were drawn long ago by the Founder of Christianity. Jesus withdrew religion from all alien fronts, from the outlying lowlands of secularity to its own native high plateau, rich and easily defended, of the spiritual life. He recognized as of the devil his early temptation to a political career. At the last he affirmed, "My kingdom is not of this world." He neither incited armed insurrection nor a campaign of nonresistance and soul force against the rule of Rome. His maxim, "Render unto Cæsar the things which are Cæsar's and unto God the things which are God's," should have ended the sacerdotal state and the political church. As clean cut was his cleavage of religion from economics. When asked to redistribute certain inherited wealth, he retorted, "Who made me a judge or a divider over you?" but added, "Take heed and beware of covetousness, for a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of things which he possesseth."

The Christian church, however, soon became restless behind the bounds its Founder set. It coveted a place in the secular sun. And its campaigns to reclaim paganism's old frontiers were so successful that the dominions of the medieval church-state were nearly as extensive as those of primitive religion. Pope Boniface VIII. was another prophet Samuel when he proclaimed, "The spiritual power must install the temporal and judge when it has been good." Religion again crowned and discrowned kings, dictated state policies, sent out armies to destroy dissidents, as the Hussites, instigated crusades, set up courts of justice, and punished with rack and stake. And when at last religion freed itself from the church-state it was only to become entangled with politics in state churches. Truly the effort "to shift the frontiers of religion from the inner life of individuals to the public life of society" is nothing particularly new.

The church long claimed rule also over the territories of science. In astronomy it denounced the heresy that the earth moves round the sun. Later it denounced the geologic record and fixed the exact date of a flat creation at 6,040 years ago. It still holds a few outposts on the biologic front from which it denounces evolution and invokes the civil authority to punish those who teach it.

Naturally the new ecclesiastical imperialism of today has different methods from the old. There are few kings to set up or down. But there are electorates with millions under the influence of the clergy. The American churches do not organize a political party. The Anti-Saloon league is dead. All the same, our Socialist-Christian leaders are using the sanctions of religion for political pressure. A docile laity may be expected to vote against anything the church denounces as unchristian, even if it involves the established economic order, and for anything the church proclaims needful to the building of the better world, such as a controled economy or Fabian socialism, or a Christian communism. It is hoped that laymen, if duly hypnotized, will gulp down even communism if it is deodorized and emulsified with religion. Those leaders believe that the church, the great body of ministers and laymen, is as biddable as the camel, which may be enticed to follow up steep desert dunes by dangling before his eyes a skein of barbed wire, his dull senses not sufficiently distinguishing it from his native thorny fodder. But the church hardly will be lured on by the illusory Utopia of material plenty. Surely it will distinguish that wretched travesty from the Master's spiritual kingdom of righteousness and good will.

Laymen sometimes query whether those who write the resolutions of church conventions are Socialist-Christians or Christian-Socialists. Does religion urge them into socialism as a field for the exercise of practical piety, or does socialism urge them into the churches as a field for the exercise of political pressure? It is quite immaterial. These imperialistic brethren have united politics and religion in a higher synthesis—socialism.

The crusade for religion's new frontiers is a matter of concern outside the churches. In the name of religion our Christian Socialists are stirring up class envies and class hatreds. They teach the workers that they are "the disinherited," "dispossessed" of their "equal birthright in the country's wealth"; that the privileged possessors will offer armed resistance to the demands for social justice and that therefore the dispossessed must needs resist this armed resistance by force of arms. Our Socialist clergy, while pacifist in international affairs, recognize the arbitrament of war in class struggles. They give revolution the sanction, motive, and impetus of religion. Their cries may loose the avalanche.

And what if the churches should withdraw within the frontiers delimited by the Master, drop their social creeds, write no more political platforms, and discharge their committees on social action? They could then once more join in singing:

We are not divided, all one body we,
One in faith and doctrin, one in charity.

And perhaps the mysterious Source would be found more surely when sought with all the heart, and the leaven of religion work more freely in the hearts of men.

How to Keep Well By Dr. Irving S. Cutter

HEALTH IS WEALTH

HOW WE SURVIVE EXPOSURE.

MANY of us followed with interest the dramatic story of the rescue of two persons trapped in a Nova Scotia gold mine. Survival under such harrowing circumstances demonstrates the tenacity with which the body hangs on to life. The cave-in occurred on April 12, 1936, and rescue was effected ten days later.

Lack of food did not prove to be the most damaging factor. It is well known that if external heat and water only are available the body can survive approximately thirty days. Matthew iv., 1-2, records that during the sojourn of Jesus in the wilderness that he fasted forty days and forty nights.

The imprisoned men, however, were exposed to cold and wet constantly. As a result, circulation was impaired and the extremities [the feet] soon became swollen. In addition, they suffered from distressing digestive disturbances. There was so much pain in the feet that rest was practically out of the question, neither of the survivors being able to lie in one position for more than a few minutes at a time.

The youngest of the three, Mr. McGill, died before relief arrived. At the time of rescue Dr. Robertson was mentally alert and cheerful. There was no pronounced emaciation, but the lack of proper nourishment was observed in his thickened, cracked, and tender tongue. His chief complaints were spasms of the throat and a sensation of burning beneath the breastbone. The throat constrictions occurred intermittently and were exceedingly painful. The blood pressure was about normal, but the heart and respiratory rates were increased. The hands were swollen, the tips of the fingers bluish in shade, and numerous cracks appeared on the skin. Both feet and legs were markedly distended and the skin presented a grayish-blue color.

This patient was promptly surrounded with blankets and hot water bottles were added to restore body heat. Dry toast and tea were given, but swallowing was followed by vomiting. Within a few hours, however, clear warm tea with an excess amount of sugar was taken without discomfort. Neither hot nor cold fluids nor orange juice could be tolerated. Nausea came on at intervals. Because of the continued painful throat spasms, a solution of calcium was administered with prompt benefit.

Symptoms in the extremities improved with each succeeding day and the first sign of returning circulation was a pronounced tingling. As the numbness in the feet began to recede coincident with the reduction in the amount of swelling, several attacks of sharp pain were observed. Difficulty in walking was experienced for more than six weeks due to nerve damage.

The feet of Mr. Scadding, the other survivor, were in a much worse state than those of Dr. Robertson, and it was believed amputation would be required. Furthermore, Mr. Scadding's temperature was 102 degrees Fahrenheit, while that of Dr. Robertson was slightly below 100 degrees. He was transferred to Montreal by plane, and warm air and suction were employed for the first twenty-four hours. Later, both positive and negative pressures were used. Gradually the dusky color began to clear, and at the end of ten days pulsation could be felt in the arteries. The gangrenous condition of the toes, however, continued in spite of the fact that the digestive tract and the circulation showed rapid gains.

It is rather remarkable that any one survived such an ordeal and it would seem that the margin of safety under conditions of starvation and cold is greater than previously has been understood. Dr. Robertson, who of the three would have been regarded the least favorable risk, came through the trying experience best. There is no question but that in his case a considerable amount of body fat was the chief factor in maintaining a practically normal resistance to the fast. Fortunately, an abundant supply of water was immediately at hand. The poison gas menace, so fatal in coal mine disasters, was not encountered.

SPINAL TUBERCULOSIS.

G. N. writes:

1. What are the symptoms of spinal tuberculosis?
2. What is the treatment?

REPLY.

1. The symptoms of spinal tuberculosis or Pott's disease are: Pain, rigidity, deformity, abscess formation, and injury to nerves as evidenced by paralysis of the legs or of the bladder.
2. Treatment consists in the general management of the disease—tuberculosis—and of local control of the destructive process in the bones. Rest, good food, sunshine, fresh air, and a high vitamin diet are fundamental. In the area affected the essential factor is rest to the part, best secured by a plaster cast or proper back support. Sometimes surgical intervention is required.

IT'S ONE FORM.

J. J. O. writes: A claims that consumption and tuberculosis are the same. B claims they are two different diseases.

REPLY.

Consumption is tuberculosis of the lungs.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

PARTNERSHIP BUSINESS.

Alton, Ill., Sept. 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—When husband and wife are operating [1] as a company in the sale of merchandise and each has a separate account—titles to real estate and personals vest in either in the event of death and a will appointing other relatives as their administrator.

2. Would the survivor have full rights and control of property or would administrator have any authority over survivor until will is contested or probated?

3. If husband and wife give a company note for cash used in the company's business, in the event of death would this note be collected from the descendant's estate if survivor is unable to pay [descendant's estate being solvent]?

4. Where husband and wife apply for old age pension and it is allowed and they receive benefits and assistance, in the event of death to either to which that property might vest in—would their estate be probated then and the state collect their portion and set aside the survivor's equity and their claims allowed, or would the property stand clouded with the lien during the survivor's life?

J. E. F.

1. It is not clear whether you mean a corporation or a partnership. We will assume the latter.

2. It is not clear whether your question relates to partnership assets. If the deceased owned real estate having nothing to do with the partnership business, it would descend subject to claims of creditors and probate would be necessary in order to produce a merchantable title. If you have no better understanding of the situation than is implied by your letter, we advise you to have a personal interview with an attorney.

3. As a matter of law, death terminates the partnership. Unless a survivor is willing to pay the note, the partnership assets should be sold and the note paid out of the proceeds.

4. The pension payments would be a claim against the estate of the recipient. Presumably the pension officials would force probate of the estate.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

"BEWARE OF FALSE PROPHETS, WHICH COME TO YOU IN SHEEP'S CLOTHING, BUT INWARDLY THEY ARE RAVENING WOLVES"— ST. MATTHEW VII, 15

From Across the Sea

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI.—Military clashes in Manchukuo usually have been preceded by "battles of railways," involving feverish construction of rival lines by nationalistic interests—Chinese, Japanese, Russian.

This was true in connection with the Russo-Japanese war of 1904 and the Chinese-Japanese clash of 1931 which resulted in Japan's occupation of Manchuria.

History may be repeated, for the Japanese military authorities have just announced the remarkable feat of completing practically 2,000 miles of new railways in the brief period of three and a half years. It is doubtful whether this feat has ever been equaled since the beginning of railway history.

For practically a decade prior to the stirring events in Manchuria in 1931 the Chinese and Japanese authorities staged a "battle of railways," which had much to do in precipitating the clash. As a result of Japan's victory over Russia in the war of 1904-'05, Japan fell heir to the so-called South Manchurian railway, which had been built originally by the Russians and was part of their Trans-Siberian-Chinese Eastern system.

The czar's object was to link his cold Siberian territories with the warm waters of the China sea at Dairen and Port Arthur. But construction of this railway brought on the war with Japan and Russia's defeat. The Japanese obtained control of the southern section of the line between Port Arthur and Changchun at the Portsmouth peace conference, which solution received the blessing of the late Theodore Roosevelt who acted as "godfather" at the conference.

Chinese interests in Manchuria, unable to compete with the Japanese militarily, set about to checkmate the Japanese by launching a rival railway program, their object being to parallel the Japanese system. New lines, some built with money borrowed from the Japanese, others from Chinese private and governmental sources, were constructed in haphazard manner, so as not to arouse the suspicion of the Japanese.

By the fall of 1931 the various Chinese lines were linked and connected with a new port known as Hulutao located on the upper shore of the Gulf of Liaotung. But the Chinese were too successful, because almost simultaneously with the dedication of their new port, which threatened to rival the Japanese port of Dairen, the Japanese army launched its intervention at Mukden, resulting ultimately in the occupation of Manchuria.

With the entire territory in their control the Japanese then launched their own railway building program.

Recently Japanese military headquarters at Changchun, capital of Manchukuo, announced that the railway system in the Japanese colony of Corea is to be merged with the Manchukuan system.

As the "battles of railways" in Manchukuo usually have preceded military outbreaks in the past, indications point to a similar development. Since most of the new Japanese lines have been directed toward the defense of the borders against a soviet attack, the Russians began work on the double tracking of their Trans-Siberian line between the Ural mountains and Vladivostok. The job was completed this year.

In addition, they have built innumerable branch lines giving access to the border at strategic points regarded as vital in the defense of Siberia against a possible Japanese attack.

1,460 NEW DEAL REGULATIONS.

Hillsboro, N. M., Sept. 14.—I am in receipt of a printed circular from the government printing office advising me that the latest issue of the Federal Register is available, and that this register contains all rules, executive orders, regulations, certificates, codes, licenses, notices, and similar documents having general applicability and legal effect, issued or prescribed by the President of the United States, executive departments, and other agencies of the executive branch of the United States government, which become valid and effective against every one after they have been filed with the division of the Federal Register.

According to this circular 1,460 documents have been published and have become law between March 14 and Aug. 15, 1936.

One thousand four hundred and sixty rules and regulations in five months!

Under any one of them, possibly, you and I or Johnny over there may be sent to jail or fined.

THE BELFRY MURDER.

Chicago, Sept. 16.—Many readers of the Belfry Murder story, which appeared in the Graphic Section on Sept. 6, have written me, stating that the Rev. J. George Gibson confessed the crimes for which Theodore Durrant had been hanged some years earlier. The case involved the murder of two girls in Mr. Gibson's Baptist church in San Francisco in 1895. I should like to assure those readers that Mr. Gibson never confessed. The story of his confession, persisting these many years, is a legend. I believe it originated in this manner: Immediately after the discovery of the murders an out of state newspaper printed a lurid story intimating that Mr. Gibson had confessed. In spite of police denials, a mob threatened him. A few years later Mr. Gibson confided to a friend that he feared some one would kill him and plant a fake confession in his pocket, the idea being to simulate suicide and confession. This story was also printed. It is easy to see how the two incidents could be distorted. Mr. Gibson was an unjustly maligned man. He died in Chico, Cal., on Oct. 25, 1912. He did not confess. He had nothing to confess. The real slayer, Durrant, had settled the score. FRANK CIPRIANI.

DR. STOCK'S ASSISTANT.

Chicago, Sept. 16.—In 1905, when Theodore Thomas died, the Orchestral association considered it advisable to seek a "foreign" conductor for the orchestra. But owing to the insistence of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and its musical writer, William Lines Hubbard, the association gave the assistant conductor, Frederick Stock, a chance, and he made good. Mr. Stock at that time was practically an unknown, but THE TRIBUNE's staf had faith in him and boosted him.

Today we have lost Dr. DeLamarter and Mr. Lange from elsewhere has been engaged to take his place. Mr. Lange is an excellent musician, but have we none in Chicago who could have filled the position? Surely we have men in our own orchestra, as was Mr. Stock, who are worthy of being given an opportunity to develop. What's wrong with the Orchestral association? They ask for the support of the Chicago musicians, but when such an important position is open they give no consideration to the qualifications of these same musicians. I've attended the orchestra for some thirty years and resent this discrimination.

INSURANCE.

Chicago, Sept. 4.—I can't refrain from remarking that R. C. Forbes' criticism of your front page editorial, "Are You Paying Life Insurance Premiums?", is an excellent example of the kind of thinking that is being done by supporters of the New Deal.

Any 10 year old child [provided his father wasn't a New Deal Democrat] could tell Mr. Forbes that the editorial contained no suggestion whatever that any one should "cease to pay premiums and hoard his money instead." The point that stuck out [far enough for even a New Deal Democrat to see] was that holders of insurance policies should protect their investments by getting rid of the New Deal bunch before they wreck the country and make insurance policies worthless. And that's real horse sense, and no insult to anybody who has any intelligence.

Body of Daughter Found After He Surrenders.

Incoherent from liquor, John Pavelka, 42 years old, 2709 South Ridgeway avenue, a widower and sign painter, staggered into the Lawndale police station shortly before noon yesterday and mumbled:

"Put me in the electric chair, I've just killed my daughter."

While Pavelka was led muttering to the office of Capt. Frank Malone a squad under Lieut. James Kilgore went to the home. There in the third floor attic apartment, where Pavelka and his daughter, Catherine, 15 years old, lived alone, police found the body of the girl wrapped in a blanket in bed.

Strangled and Beaten.

The girl had been strangled to death and beaten with a monkey wrench, which was found on the floor near by.

Later Pavelka sobered up enough to tell of the killing. He said he had been drinking heavily Friday night. "For several months," he said, "I have been fearing that my daughter would go wrong. I would rather see her dead than lead a life of shame."

Pavelka said that after he had killed the girl he sat beside the body and drank a pint of whisky.

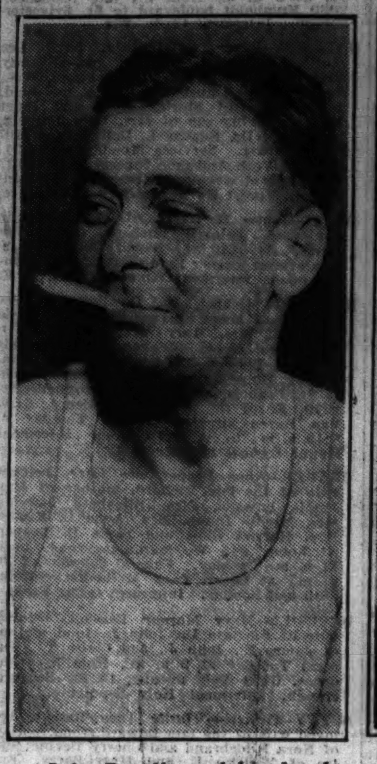
Planned to Hang Himself.

He decided to hang himself, he said, and contrived a noose from the rafter, but then lost his nerve, and instead left the house and visited several taverns.

Neighbors told the police that the girl, who was a student in the eighth grade at Robert Burns school, had a good reputation. They said Pavelka had been drinking heavily since receiving his soldiers' bonus several months ago. Catherine's mother died when the girl was 2 years old.

Pavelka later repeated his confession in the state's attorney's office. An inquest will be held tomorrow.

GIRL, 15, SLAIN BY FATHER



John Pavelka and his daughter, Catherine, whom he strangled and beat to death while crazed by drink. He surrendered and asked to be electrocuted.

TRIES SUICIDE AGAIN; SUCCEEDS.

Mrs. Nellie Baroody, 55 years old, 3130 Wenonah avenue, Berwyn, who tried suicide by poison last Wednesday, shot and killed herself yesterday with a .22 caliber rifle in the kitchen of her home. Police said she was ill.

Benny Howard on Mend After Loss of One Foot

Crown Point, N. M., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Reassuring reports on the condition of Benny Howard, Bendix air race victim, came from his bedside in the Navajo Indian Service hospital today. On the fifteenth day since his badly broken body was taken from his speed plane doctors said he had shaken off semi-consciousness again after a relapse three days ago and that he apparently had rested better last night. One foot was amputated.

BOY, 5, RUNS INTO STREET IN FRONT OF TRUCK; KILLED

Rubin Anderson, 5 years old, 6621 South Green street, was fatally injured yesterday when he ran into the street near his home and was run over by a truck driven by Stanley Bazaunt, 5347 Monroe street. Bazaunt took Rubin to St. Bernard's hospital where he died.

Mrs. Julia Frank, 63 years old, 2020 Indiana avenue, a widow, died yesterday in St. Luke's hospital from injuries she received when she was run down by a truck at 20th street and Indiana avenue last Monday. The driver, John Van Campen, 33 years old, was released on bond. Mrs. Susan Pavles, 63 years old, 1117 West 19th street, died in the county hospital yesterday from automobile injuries incurred at Menominee street and Stockton drive in Lincoln park on Aug. 23.

Frank Novak, 21 years old, 13952 Chippewa avenue, Burnham, an automobile mechanic, was crushed to death early today when an automobile driven by Martin Strug, 58 years old, 1 Forestdale park, Calumet City, crashed against his towing truck as he was hitching it to an automobile he was about to tow from the scene of a previous accident at 114th street and Burnham avenue, Burnham.

Miss Mary Cappiello, 18 years old, 12845 Winchester street, Blue Island, was killed last night and five other persons were seriously hurt when two automobiles collided at 26th street and Chicago road, Chicago Heights.

The seriously injured were Joseph Czernik, 20 years old, 213 East 159th street, Blue Island, driver of one of the cars; John Zychowski, 23, of 527 East 155th street, Harvey; Mrs. Emily Fuller, 22, of 1635 Thorne street, Chicago Heights; Miss Louis Fuller, 23, her sister-in-law, and Miss Minnie Fanello, 19, of 3421 Florence avenue, Steger. All were taken to St. James hospital, Chicago Heights. The driver of the other car, Anthony Cellini, 23, of Steger, was not seriously hurt.

Louis Brown, 10 years old, 625 Colfax street, Evanston, son of Arthur C. L. Brown, a professor of English at Northwestern university, was seriously injured yesterday when he was run down on his bicycle in an alley near Colfax street and Sheridan road, Evanston, by an automobile driven by Gershon Robinson, 19 years old, a sophomore, living in Foster house.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday 696 persons had been killed in automobile accidents in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 537 were killed in Chicago. In the same period 13,412 were injured in trafic accidents in the city.

THE MASSACRE

Chicago's 1936 Trafic Toll

Over 98 per cent of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

RULES OUT STATE TEST FOR AUTOS PASSED BY CITY

Thomas S. Gordon, city vehicle license commissioner, was advised by Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes yesterday that Chicago motorists whose autos successfully pass the city safety test inspection need not submit to further inspection in public garages designated as official inspection stations by the state of Illinois.

Hodes ruled that a Chicago motorist needs only the city sticker to satisfy all requirements.

The protest of the Automobile Mechanics' union, local 701, against the use of WPA workers at the eighteen automobile testing lanes is not justified, according to Otto K. Jelinek, Park district trafic engineer who has charge of the lanes. "These men are merely dial readers, not mechanics," Jelinek said.

COMMUNITY FUND READY FOR DRIVE; ASKS $3,400,000

More Agencies, Less U.S. Relief Raise Goal.

The Community Fund of Chicago will open its 1937 appeal for the support of 154 private welfare agencies on Oct. 13, James B. Forgan, general chairman, announced yesterday.

The 1937 goal is $3,400,000, an increase of $200,000 over that of 1936, but necessitated, Mr. Forgan explained, by several inescapable demands. One of the most important of these is the increase of charities affiliated in the fund from 147 to 154.

The gradual retirement of government agencies from the field of direct relief, as well as the reduction of public funds in the field of health service, is producing a crisis in welfare work, he added. It is doubling the load of the private agencies, he said—and this crisis can be met only by a wholehearted response to the fund by the citizens of Chicago.

Cash Raised at Less Cost.

"We have demonstrated in the past," Mr. Forgan said, in issuing an appeal for support of the fund, "that the Community fund system is not only the most effective and efficient method for raising funds for a multiplicity of charitable agencies, but also is far more economical."

This is the sixth annual campaign for the fund, which supplied approximately half of the budgets of the 154 private agencies. The total budget for 1937 is slightly over $7,500,000, half of which is raised by endowment, benefits and individual subscriptions. All types of charities, Protestant, Catholic, Jewish and non-sectarian, participate.

Controled by Budget.

Expenditure of funds collected in the campaign is controled by a budget system which has been developed to a high point of efficiency, Mr. Forgan pointed out. Allotments are on the basis of proven requirements and demonstrated service, while at the close of every budget period each agency is examined for verification of needs and expenditures.

"The method and objectives of the fund now are well established in the minds of Chicagoans," Mr. Forgan said. "It is necessary, however, to conduct the drive in a systematic manner. To that end, more than 1,000 business men have enlisted to carry through the routine."

More Cheerful Giving.

"From the most important executive to the lowliest workman in industry, the giving is carried on in a far more cheerful and willing basis than in the days of the confusion of individual drives and campaigns, which occurred at the rate of one a week before the organization of the fund.

"The agencies themselves are in a better position to devote all time and energy to the administration of their affairs than when they were forced to concentrate on money raising campaigns. Even when they did stage their periodic campaigns, they seldom realized enough for their purposes.

SPALDING BUYS STRADIVARIUS; PRICE IS $27,500

New York, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Stradivarius violins are "moving" once more. Albert Spalding, famous violinist, has just bought one. Spalding paid $27,500 for the "Artot" Strad, certainly the highest price since the 1929 deluge, and no mean price for any time.

It was not that Spalding lacked violins — his famous Guarnerius Delgesu, hitherto the favorite of his collection, is an instrument to make connoisseurs water at the mouth. But the "Artot" Strad is something more. It was made in 1722, and for many years was owned by Artot, famous violinist.

Later it came into the possession of Falcon de Rinuccini, one of the numerous prize winners at the Paris conservatoire. In 1842 the Lafont family of France bought the "Artot" and it was in their possession up to the time it was added to a musical concern's collection. Spalding bought it from this concern.

EX-MISTRESS OF HAPSBURG HEIR DIES IN POVERTY

VIENNA, Sept. 19.—[U. P.]—Wilhelmina Adamovics, who caused the second great scandal in the imperial Hapsburg family under Franz Josef's reign, is dead at the age of 59.

This once beautiful woman, the toast of Europe during the mauve decade, died friendless and in poverty. Unless some gallant comes forward with the necessary funds, her bones may rest in a pauper's grave. She died last Wednesday but the news was not disclosed until today.

Only a few years after the historic "Mayerling tragedy" of 1889 in which the emperor's only son, Crown Prince Rudolph, and his pretty commoner mistress, Mary Vetsera, were found dead together in a hunting lodge, the emperor's nephew, Archduke Leopold, also in line for the throne, met and fell in love with Wilhelmina, then 18 years old.

Built Villa for Her.

The archduke met Wilhelmina while inspecting a small garrison in Moravia. He persuaded the girl to follow him to Vienna where he built a spacious villa for her. Here they lived openly together for two years until the emperor decided to put an end to the affair.

Leopold was sent to Egypt for a prolonged stay while the emperor's agents tried to buy off Wilhelmina. She indignantly refused and communicated with Leopold.

The archduke rushed back to Vienna and had a violent scene with the emperor. The archduke declared he would marry Wilhelmina if it meant renouncing his claims to the throne and titles connected with his rank as a member of the imperial family.

Archduke Becomes Mister.

The emperor took him at his word and the proud archduke became Mister Leopold Woelflino with $200 a month allowance from the emperor.

So Wilhelmina and Leopold went to Zurich where they were married in 1903—about the same time the archduke's sister, Crown Princess Louise of Saxony, eloped with her children's French tutor.

Leopold and Wilhelmina were happy together for a few years and then Wilhelmina became ill. Finally Leopold left her and went to Paris where he obtained a divorce. Wilhelmina returned to Vienna. For awhile she was in an asylum but was later released in the custody of two sisters. They died. Wilhelmina took to begging at church doors until she became ill of malnutrition and was taken to a pauper's hospital where she died.

VIC OLIVER DENIES HE INTENDS TO WED SARAH CHURCHILL

New York, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Sarah Churchill, daughter of Winston Churchill, British statesman, will be met when she arrives in New York tomorrow by her theatrical friend, Vic Oliver, who denies any intention of marrying her.

SARAH CHURCHILL.

Oliver at first indicated he would be out of town when the 21 year old dancer arrives, but now he is going "to see that she is properly taken care of" until her pursuing brother, Randolph, reaches New York.

Her flight from London so upset her family that Randolph, whose aspirations to sit in parliament with his father have been crushed in three elections within the last fifteen months, sailed after her on another boat.

Oliver explained reports published in London that she left a letter to her family saying she was coming to America to "accept his engagement." Oliver said he merely offered her a $50 a week job in a vaudeville unit which will play New York and Chicago.

PLOT THICKENS IN JUDGE SMITH'S BOND MYSTERY

Think Cannady, Ex-Cop, Famous "Big Boy."

Shades on the front windows of the first floor apartment at 3130 South Union avenue were drawn yesterday afternoon and the occupants were said to be away. Consequently it could not be learned definitly whether William Cannady, who lives there and who served as a city policeman from June 6 to July 31, is the same person known to Judge Cecil G. Smith of the Municipal court as "Big Boy Kennedy."

Judge Smith, himself, said he did not know positively that Cannady is the man who last Sunday induced him to release Louis Swinberg, a thief with a long record and many aliases, on a personal bond with no surety. He said he knew "Big Boy" to be active in Democratic politics in the Eleventh ward.

Swinberg Skips Out.

Swinberg, who had given a false address as had Benny Berof, who added only his signature to Swinberg's bond, failed to appear before Judge Jay A. Schiller in the Felony court last Monday. This brought about an investigation of the bond. Berof was brought into court Friday and cited for contempt by Judge Smith. The judge said his bailifs were seeking "Big Boy" as well as Swinberg, who was caught after snatching a purse from Mrs. June Walker, 115 Clyde avenue, Evanston.

Swinberg, who had been arrested and sentenced several times as a thief, pickpocket and purse snatcher, was caught by two elevator operators who took up the chase when they heard Mrs. Walker scream. The purse was snatched on the 22d floor of the Midland building, 176 West Adams street. It was found under Swinberg's shirt.

Takes Word of "Big Boy."

Swinberg was in jail two days. Then last Sunday the mysterious "Big Boy" and Berof, who has a record as a petty thief, called at Judge Smith's home and the bond, with schedule waived, was approved, giving Swinberg his freedom, which he still had yesterday. Judge Smith said he knew "Big Boy" and took his word that Swinberg was a "respectable" business man.

"If 'Big Boy' is William Cannady, I didn't know it," said Judge Smith yesterday. "I do not know if he ever was in the police department. I made a mistake in taking his word. I certainly want to see him again."

Police department records show that Cannady was appointed last June 6 and that while he was in the school of instruction it was noticed that his right arm was disabled. An examination showed that an old injury caused a ten per cent loss of the use of the arm due to muscular atrophy. For that reason Commissioner Allman recommended his dismissal.

Cannady, upon his return home, will be asked to report to Judge Smith for verification or denial of the report that he is the "Big Boy" who obtained freedom for Swinberg. If he is the man, Judge Smith said, he will be required to show cause why he should not be held in contempt of court.

Committee to Discuss Case.

Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby of the Municipal court said that the bond committee of the court will discuss the Swinberg bond at the first meeting after Judge Smith has disposed of the "pending case." While Judge Smith had the power to accept a "no schedule" bond in his home on Sunday, the rules of the court require that such consideration only be given a person "having a known place of residence," Judge Sonsteby declared.

REV. GERALD SMITH HERE TO MAKE FOUR ADDRESSES TODAY

The Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith, head of the share the wealth movement and a supporter of Congressman William Lemke, Union party candidate for President, arrived here from Toledo yesterday to address four large meetings arranged by the Unionites in and near Chicago.

REV. GERALD SMITH.

The Rev. Mr. Smith, who continued the movement founded by the late Huey Long, will speak first at 2:30 p. m. at the Lake county fair grounds, Crown Point, Ind.; then at 4 p. m. at Santa Fe park, near Willow Springs. At 5:15 p. m. he will appear at 6900 Pershing road, Stickney. The evening meeting at 7 o'clock will be held in Ehrhardt's Grove, Talcott road and Touhy avenue.

A bitter opponent of the New Deal, Smith said: "This election is a mere incident in my life. I am developing my leadership to the end that I may serve my country in the coming crisis. It is only a matter of a year or two until the same thing that has taken place in Russia and Spain will be attempted here. I am convinced that the international communist party, in coöperation with the potent New Dealers, is planning to change our form of government. If the Roosevelt New Deal returns to power, this may be our last election."

Prosecution Completes Detroit Case.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—The state rested its case suddenly today in the trial of twelve members of the Black Legion, charged with the night murder of Charles A. Poole, a legion member, who was shot to death on May 12, supposedly because he beat his wife.

Immediately after the prosecution rested, Bernard N. Cruse, chief defense counsel, moved for a directed verdict of not guilty in behalf of eight defendants. The motion did not apply to Dayton Dean, confessed actual slayer, Harvey Davis, a legion colonel and alleged ringleader of the murder plot; Ervin D. Lee, who reputedly fired several shots at Poole, and Lowell Rushing, who is accused of spreading false stories of wife beating against Poole, and thus inciting the murder.

Hear Argument Tomorrow.

Judge Joseph A. Moynihan of the Circuit court, who is presiding at the trial, did not grant nor deny Cruse's motion. He set 2 p. m. Monday as the time for defense arguments on the motion. The continuance was asked by the defense.

If the motion is lost, the defense will begin to present its evidence on Tuesday morning. The defense will have at least 25 witnesses, among them "Col." Davis.

Dean, upon whose testimony Prosecutor Duncan C. McCrea chiefly depends for a conviction in the case, spent most of today's session under cross-examination. His story of the shooting had been given earlier, largely in a written confession. Some of his statements were read today by McCrea.

Ordered Him to Shoot.

Cross-examination failed to shake Dean. One of the main points in his story is that Davis ordered him to shoot Poole.

A little excitement was injected into the trial during a recess. Poole's widow, Rebecca, who has denied that her husband had ever beaten her, approached Dean. She was carrying her sixteen months old daughter in her arm. "I'm Charley Poole's wife," she said. She uttered a few more words before being removed from the court. Dean flinched, but said nothing. For a time it was feared the incident might cause a mistrial.

CICERO'S REFUSAL TO PAY WATER BILL BACKFIRES

Needs City O.K. to Get PWA Cash; Reply, No.

Unless Chicago approves two new water connections from the city supply, Cicero cannot obtain the necessary Public Works administration funds to complete rehabilitation of its water system. By this ruling, it became known yesterday, Chicago may be able to collect in full Cicero's unpaid water bill of $331,892.

This latest development in the dispute between the two municipalities was revealed by Assistant Corporation Counsel Martin Foss. In a letter to S. K. Markman, town attorney for Cicero, Foss said that Chicago refuses to grant approval for the connections unless Cicero pays its bill in full.

Town Acts in Anticipation.

Anticipating a PWA grant of $425,000, Cicero has begun construction to modernize its water system. The remainder of the necessary funds is provided in a $700,000 issue of water revenue bonds.

Installation of two connecting links with the city's 20 inch main at Laramie street and Roosevelt road and at Mayfield avenue and Roosevelt road is necessary to provide the suburb with an "adequate water supply," Cicero officials contend. Under the present system, water leakage amounts to about fifty per cent.

On June 9, Cicero asked Chicago for permission to construct the new connections. Again on Sept. 2, Cicero asked for permission. This time, their communication explained that work had already started, but that the PWA officials would not release the government funds until Cicero can certify that the necessary permits for construction of the connections have been granted by Chicago.

City Likes Coöperation, Too.

But Chicago had reason for hesitating to coöperate. Last summer in response to the city's claim for $331,892, Cicero retaliated with a counter charge that Chicago owes the suburb $970,000 in over charges because of "unfair rates."

So the advice given the corporation counsel on Sept. 11 by Oscar Hewitt, commissioner of public works, was not unexpected. Mr. Hewitt wrote that in his opinion Cicero is getting an entirely adequate water supply, so why bother about approving the permits. Wrote Mr. Foss:

"Chicago is not required to furnish water to any municipality which refuses to pay the uniform rates charged therefor, but . . . has the right to refuse . . . more water . . ."

Coshocton, O., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Clasping her 4 month old baby in her arms, Mrs. Edith Buckmaster West heard Judge J. C. Daugherty sentence her today to three to ten years in the woman's reformatory at Marysville for her part in a train wreck plot. The court did not decide on the custody of her baby.

Two of her three men companions in the plot to wreck a Pennsylvania train and rob its passengers, Wayne Hartley, 30, and Albert Buckmaster, 21, her brother, were sentenced to three to ten years in the Otio penitentiary.

The other plotter, Norman Hartley, 24, was given one to ten years' reformatory sentence. He was the only one of the quartet without a previous criminal record.

United States Pays $2,011,907 for 79.69 Acres for Local Federal Housing Projects

COUNTY RECORDS SHOW 263 LOTS COST $1,206,487

Price Is Equal to $82,523 Per Acre.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

With completion of purchases of property for the Jane Addams houses additions on the west side yesterday an analysis of the deeds filed with the county recorder disclosed that the United States government has paid $1,206,487 to individuals for 263 lots, or close to an average of $4,967 per lot. This is at a rate of $1.89 per square foot and $82,523 per acre for the 14.62 acres purchased as sites for so-called "low cost housing."

ANGELO R. CLAS.

According to Chester A. Inman, district manager of the housing division of the Public Works administration, the price paid is under the PWA allotment for buying the property and is lower than the appraisals.

Paid $2,011,907 Cash.

With the price paid to individuals disclosed for the first time, it is now possible to figure what has been disbursed for land by the government for its housing ventures in Chicago. Leaving the South Side Gardens [for colored families] out of the picture, as buying still is in progress there, the PWA has paid $2,011,907 in cash for the 79.69 acres acquired as sites for the Jane Addams houses, the Jane Addams houses additions on the west side, the Julia C. Lathrop homes on the north side, and the Trumbull park project in South Chicago. This is at a rate of $25,259 per acre for the entire city.

The $82,523 per acre paid for the site for the Jane Addams addition is by far the highest price of any land acquired for the so-called "low cost housing" projects of the PWA in Chicago. For the 6.24 acres adjoining, which were bought from the Jewish Peoples institute, $100,000 cash was paid, or at the rate of $16,025 per acre.

South Chicago Site Cheapest.

Land for the Julia Lathrop homes at Diversey and the river, was bought in three parcels. The PWA paid $632,000 for 27.94 acres. For one parcel $42,500 an acre was paid; for another, $15,879, and for a third, $14,668.

The lowest price paid by the government for its Chicago housing sites was $72,715 for 20.89 acres, or at the rate of $3,176 per acre, for land in South Chicago opposite Trumbull park.

The prices paid to individuals for the 263 lots on the west side for the Jane Addams houses additions very from $500 to $32,500. The lowest figure was for a 28 by 125 foot lot at 1257 West Taylor street, purchased from Anna Giunta and her husband, Patsy.

Top Price for Racine Corner.

The top figure was paid for a business corner lot at the northwest corner of Taylor and Racine. This was purchased from Irving H. Levin for $32,500. Another purchase price, close to the top, was $30,000 paid to William L. O'Connell, receiver for the First Italian State bank, for the southwest corner of Taylor and Racine. The northwest corner of Roosevelt road and Racine avenue was bought from the Valley States corporation for $20,000.

According to Angelo R. Clas, former Chicagoan, who is now assistant administrator of the Housing division of the PWA in charge of investigation, who was in town yesterday from Washington, the local housing projects "are in good shape."

180 Men at Work.

District Manager Inman said that in Trumbull park 180 men are at work. First floor concrete slabs were poured in twelve buildings on Thursday. On the north side, where no work is going on at present, owing to delays at Washington, actual construction of the superstructure is expected to start within a few days.

At the Jane Addams houses first floor concrete slabs have been poured in seven buildings and brick work started on Friday. Bids on the Jane Addams additions for both foundations and superstructure will be opened on Sept. 30 and it is expected work will be under way within two weeks.

To date $300,000 has been paid out for 38 parcels of real estate in the South Park Garden project for colored families, Inman said. He said that 61 per cent of the control of the site has been obtained.

CAN COMPANY TO ENTER CITY ON LARGE SCALE

Entry of the Owen-Illinois Can company into the Chicago area on a large scale is indicated by its leasing of a one and two story building in the Clearing Industrial district with 102,000 square feet of floor area. In addition it is understood it has an option of 200,000 square feet of floor space adjoining the property.

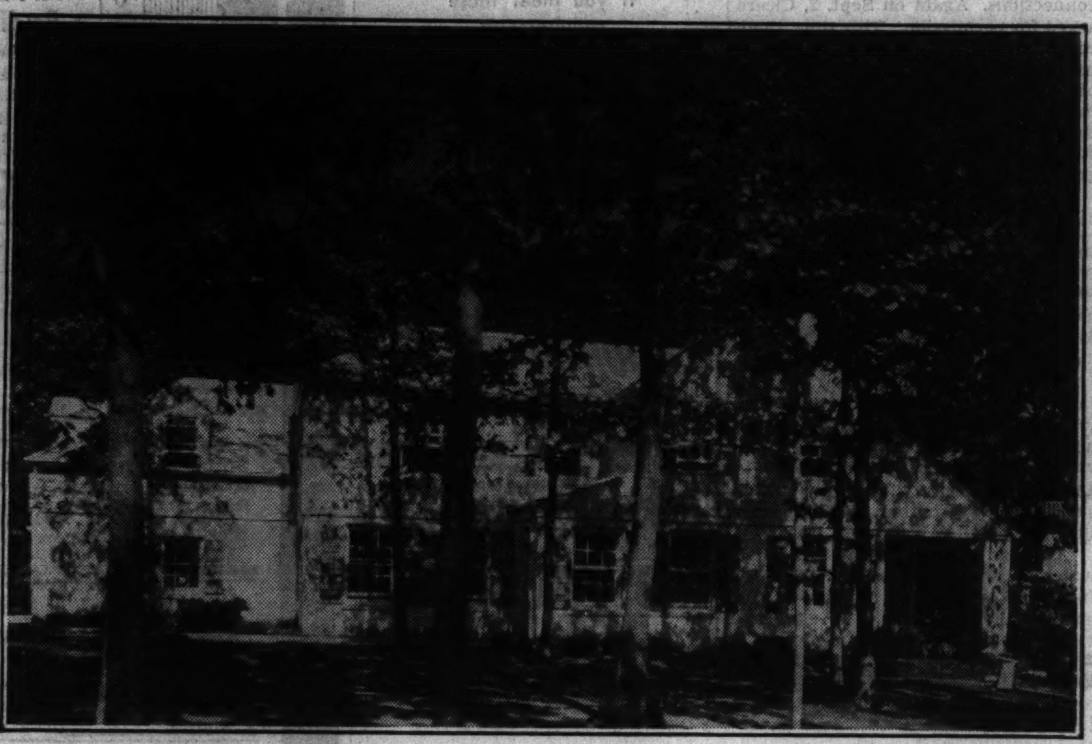
The building just rented is south of 65th street and west of Natchez avenue. It is 295x360 according to the county records. The lease is for five years at an annual rental of $24,000.

The Owens-Illinois Can company is a comparatively new subsidiary of the Owens-Illinois Glass company. Its president is Fred A. Pahl, for many years vice president of the Continental Can company.

Industrial Plant Expands

Excavating has begun for a $100,000 three story addition to the plant of the Dole Valve company, at 1901 Carroll avenue, shown on the right of the above picture. Ivar Viehe-Naess is architect and the R. C. Wieboldt company has the general contract. Ivar Viehe-Naess Jr. made this drawing. Established more than three decades ago, the Dole concern is a manufacturer of brass products used in plumbing, heating, and in the automobile trade. The above addition will approximately double the plant's capacity. Completion is set for the middle of December.

Part of a Half Million Dollar Home Building Program



The above residence is nearing completion on Sheridan road, near Waverly road, Highland Park, from plans by Architect Samuel Marx. It is one unit in a building program that the Tecumseh company, 7 South Dearborn street, has under way for the erection of seventeen residences in Highland Park to cost a total of more than half a million dollars. This residence was financed with an FHA loan through the Republic Realty Mortgage corporation. An unusual feature of the above home is its white painted shingle roof. More is told of this building program in a nearby column.

PLAN 12 MORE MODEL HOMES IN HARLEM HEIGHTS

With the purchase of all twelve of the demonstration houses now nearing completion in the Harlem Heights development of the Robert Bartlett Realty company, it was announced yesterday that twelve additional units will be erected in the area centering around Harlem avenue and 123rd street.

This total of 24 new demonstration dwellings under construction comprises the largest single group of model homes, all open for public inspection, in the metropolitan area, according to Bartlett.

Adding these units to the 26 built to order homes already completed brings the proposed schedule of 100 homes in Harlem Heights by Christmas to the half way mark, it was pointed out.

The same offer to sell the houses at actual cost of construction, plus cost of land it bought before completion, which resulted in the sale of the first dozen, will apply to the second twelve, Bartlett said. They will be four, five and six room structures with garages attached, built on miniature estates as big as four city lots, with 120 feet of street frontage. They will cost from $3,600 to $5,800 each.

Howard J. Wallace, who has been active in the band and orchestra instrument field for the last three decades, has leased the store at 315 South Wabash avenue for the sale of band and orchestra instruments and accessories.

An analysis of over eleven thousand units managed by the six south side offices of McKey & Poague, Inc., shows an increase of $2.67 per month over the average rent level for 1935, according to Richard W. Gates, renting manager. The current average monthly rental per unit is $40.06, he said. The average for 1935 was $37.39.

"Adjustments in the fall rent schedule will result in a slight increase over the current figures," he said. "Both the percentage of lease renewals and the number of new tenants secured during the last few months indicates a marked improvement in occupancy.

"Actual increases in rent which the tenant is paying are negligible factors in the major improvement which the last few years has witnessed in the condition of income property generally.

"The major improvement which is encouraging a return to a more healthy condition in the real estate market is to be found in the increase in occupancy and a decided decrease in collection losses. According to our survey these items together with the increases in rents have resulted in an average increase of approximately 27.3% in the gross income of properties under our management during the last three years. Delinquency ratios and collection losses have to a surprising degree paralleled the improvement in occupancy."

Contracts Awarded

Contracts awarded in Chicago the week of Sept. 11 to 17, according to figures supplied by the F. W. Dodge corporation, totaled 27, with a combined cost of $783,600. For the corresponding week last year there were 34 contracts totaling $319,540. So far this year the total cost of contracts is $28,130,900, compared with $16,836,936 for the same period last year.

PLAN 17 LARGE RESIDENCES IN HIGHLAND PARK

Program Will Cost Over Half Million.

Chicagoland's largest building program of homes in the more expensive bracket in several years is under way in Highland Park by the Tecumseh company, which has offices at 7 South Dearborn street. Three residences, each to cost in the neighborhood of $30,000, are well under way, and work is scheduled to start on three more within a few days. Eleven additional homes will be erected later in the season, making a total of seventeen when the building program is finished. The completed homes will cost more than half a million dollars, it was said.

All of the residences are being designed by Samuel A. Marx of Glencoe, architect of many outstanding homes on the north shore and well known for his interior planning of modern railroad coaches and Pullman cars.

Two on Sheridan Road.

Two of the three residences already under way are being built on Sheridan road, near Waverly road, in Highland Park, on large lots, each with 100 feet of frontage and considerable depth back to a ravine. Each has eight rooms and three baths, with gas fired furnaces equipped with winter air conditioning.

The third home is on Green Bay road near Edgewood road and the Northmoor Country club, in Highland Park, on property owned by George C. Moseley. The rest of the homes to be built in this area will occupy large lots, of 200 and more feet frontage, with a depth of 250 feet.

Use FHA Mortgages.

The two Sheridan road residences were financed through the Republic Realty Mortgage corporation with Federal Housing administration loans. The house being built at Green Bay and Edgewood roads was financed by the Prudential Insurance Company of America.

All of the houses have attached two car garages. The two Sheridan road residences will be completed within a few days. The other is being plastered and will not be finished until the latter part of this month.

PALMER DRESS PLANS MICHIGAN AVENUE STORE

The Palmer Dress Shops, Inc., have signed leases for three stores on the Michigan avenue first floor frontage of the Railway Exchange building and an equivalent area on the second floor connected by private elevators and staircase. An entirely new interior treatment, designed by Graham, Anderson, Probst & White, will be completed about Oct. 15. Louis R. Cerf & Co. represented the lessees and Howard L. Storch of Ross & Browne the lessor. The Palmer organization operates stores in Chicago, Oak Park, and in Fort Wayne, Ind.

Florsheim Shoe Remodels Jackson Boulevard Store

The Florsheim Shoe company has completed remodeling its shop at 32 East Jackson boulevard, on which thoroughfare the company opened its first Chicago store three decades ago. The rebuilt unit has an enlarged selling floor, a new store front, new fixtures, new modern furnishings, and an all-year air conditioning system.

Evanston Model Home

The above Evanston model home, at 2030 McDaniel avenue, near McCormick boulevard, which has been opened informally for some time, will have a formal opening today, according to W. G. Ruggles & Co., sponsors of the project. Built by C. A. Hemphill & Associates, with Raymond F. Houlihan as architect, and furnished by the John M. Smyth company, it was partially financed with an $11,000 FHA loan through the Percy Wilson Mortgage and Finance corporation. Standing on a 50 by 165 foot lot, valued at $2,500, the house is reported to have cost $15,000. It is completely furnished and ready for a family to move in. It will be open from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. daily until the middle of October.

Start Work on $150,000 Block in Oak Park Business Center

Oak Park's rapidly growing business center at Marion and Lake streets is to have another good sized addition. Sol. H. Goldberg, president of the Hump Hairpin Manufacturing company, has started work on a $150,000 one story business block at 1124-30 Lake street, from plans by Leichenko and Esser. With its completion every foot of business property between Marshall Field & Co. at Harlem avenue and the Fair store at Marion street will be occupied by chain store organizations.

The new Goldberg building will house four chain stores of concerns which operate on the same side of State street in the block between Madison and Monroe. They are Maling Brothers, shoes; Grayson Shops, Inc., and Bezark's, women's wearing apparel, and Three Sisters, dresses.

Will Be Air Conditioned.

These leases were made by Asher J. Goldfine & Co., who will manage the property. The Coen-Berkson company represented Three Sisters. The leases are for ten years at a reported aggregate minimum guaranteed rental of $500,000 plus a percentage of gross sales.

The new building, fronting 100 feet on Lake street, with a depth of 186 feet to an alley, will have an all-year air conditioning plant. Of fireproof construction, the exterior walls will be of Indiana limestone with granite trim. Store fronts will be of stainless steel, aluminum and plate glass. A sales basement will cover the entire lot.

Active in Oak Park.

Goldberg has been active in Oak Park for several years. He built the arcade building directly across Lake street from his new building, now occupied by the Hillman food shop and other tenants.

The Oak Park store, rented by Maling Brothers, will be the fourth of their units to occupy Goldberg space and also the fourth store for Graysons. The latter firm will move from the Goldberg arcade building because of increase in business. This will be its third location in Oak Park in five years, each move being necessitated by growing business.

Perlman Corporation Leases New Quarters

The Victor S. Perlman corporation yesterday leased the top floor at 72 East Randolph street for a term of years beginning Oct. 1. Harmon L. Waterstone was the only broker. The lessees, established more than three decades ago, have designed, manufactured and installed lighting fixtures in most of Chicago's theaters, in many office buildings, hotels, other public buildings, and homes.

Federal, State and City Agencies Rent Space.

The United States treasury department and other branches of the federal government, and state and city agencies have leased approximately 260,000 square feet of space in the Merchandise Mart—equal to about one and a half complete floors—one of the largest office space transactions consummated in Chicago in several years. The new tenants will move in next week.

The United States treasury procurement division has leased 220,547 square feet of the total amount. Of this space the headquarters of the state division of the Works Progress administration will occupy 70,000 square feet. The National Youth administration will have 5,000 square feet.

Administrative Use Only.

The state offices of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission and the central administrative offices of the Chicago Relief commission will occupy 31,000 square feet.

"The offices selected will be used for administrative purposes only, as all relief allotments and all matters pertaining to the relationship of the Chicago Relief administration with those persons needing public assistance will be carried on in the several district offices throughout the city," said Leo M. Lyons, executive secretary of the IERC.

Wholesale Space Rented.

With the government leases the Merchandise Mart has had 442,000 square feet of new leases closed so far this year. Of this total 308,000 square feet have been for office use, 123,000 for merchandise display and salesrooms, and 11,000 for retail stores and miscellaneous purposes, according to Percy Wilson, real estate manager for Marshall Field & Co.

Practically all of the space recently released by the abandonment of the wholesale division of Field & Co. has been rented to new tenants, he said.

BRITISH LABOR PARTY SPLIT SEEN OVER ARMS ISSUE

One Faction Favors End of Pacifist Policy.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 19.—This year's conference of the Labor party, which will be held the first week of October in Edinburgh, Scotland, is attracting political attention here in view of efforts which party leaders now are making to define the party's attitude on the armament and defense policy.

A clash of interests, if there is not a split in party ranks, may be reached at the conference, it was predicted today, following the decision of the committee which met yesterday to draft a declaration of policy, to postpone its efforts until a few days before the conference meets.

The Old Policy.

Hitherto, Labor's parliamentary representatives have condemned all plans of the government for strengthening the army, navy and air forces. A few, headed by George Lansbury, former party leader, have adhered consistently to the principle of nonresistance.

A majority of the Laborites have admitted that the military establishment must be kept up to requirements, but they have contended that the government's present proposals to spend more than 1½ billion dollars on rearmament during the next three years is excessive. They are accused by their Conservative opponents of missing no opportunity, at the same time, to urge a foreign policy that would entail grave military commitments.

Admits Stand Illogical.

Many members of the party in private admit that labor's policy is illogical, but the first public admission of the fact was made in the recent trades union congress by Sir Walter Citrine, secretary of the congress' general council, and E. Bevin of the Transport and General Workers union. Their speeches showed there was a serious split over making pacifist sentiments a party shibboleth any longer.

Today Arthur Greenwood, secretary of the party's research department, told a meeting in Thornbury, Gloucestershire, that the Laborites are not prepared "to embark on a futile armaments race," but that "if peace methods fail, it [the Labor party] will not shrink from necessary preparations to resist aggression and imperialism. It has repeatedly pointed out in the house of commons that it is not opposed to the provision of arms required to fulfill Great Britain's international obligations."

On the other hand, Sir Stafford Cripps, also prominent in the party, declared that "opposition [to the government] would become a farce" 'if the Laborites supported, even conditionally, the arms program.

JEWISH FUNERAL CORTEGE FIRED ON IN HOLY LAND

JERUSALEM, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Snipers, crouching in the hills near the Jewish cemetery, fired on a funeral procession today accompanying the body of Eliezer Turjeman, 8 year old Jewish boy who was killed by a bomb explosion Friday night. The military escort convoying the mourning crowd dispersed the snipers with machine gun volleys. The police reported tonight the arrest of an Arab for complicity in the bombing which caused serious injuries to the young boy's 70 year old grandfather.

Five Jews Get Ten Years.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Sept. 19.—(AP)—A military court today sentenced five Jews, two of them women, to 10 years' imprisonment for having shouted "down with Fascism" during a demonstration on the city's main street. The court explained the shout was an insult to Rumanian nationalism.

VETS WHOOP IT UP ON FRENCH BOX CAR

Detroit delegates attracted attention in Cleveland yesterday with a real "40 and 8" car as American Legionnaires thronged the city for the national convention, which opens tomorrow. The box car, used in France to transport troops, is a gift of French war veterans. It is pulled by a motor driven locomotive.

LEGION THRONGS JAM CLEVELAND FOR CONVENTION

Ready to Show City Something New.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—This Ohio metropolis, already fed up with conventions during the year, has put on its "Sunday clothes" in anticipation of the eighteenth annual convention of the American Legion which will show the citizens of the city, according to advance delegations, that "you ain't seen nothing yet."

There is no way to tell how many of the expected 250,000 are here tonight, but already a call has been dispatched by the reservations committee to Akron, almost forty miles distant, for accommodations for the overflow.

The housing committee also has asked Cleveland citizens to take care of 18,000 more visitors than originally planned, and hotel lobbies are crowded with veterans who failed to make reservations.

Only one thing looms as a controversial issue. This is a resolution calling for congressional approval of a bill providing for payment of pensions to the widows and orphans of all wars, regardless of the cause of death of the veteran.

COOK COUNTY GROUPS LEAVE.

An advance guard of 300 American Legionnaires departed yesterday on the Nickel Plate road for the 18th annual convention of the Legion in Cleveland. They will be followed today by 2,500 more Chicago Legionnaires who will endeavor to repeat their triumph at St. Louis in winning the trophy for the largest parade unit.

"We have sufficient support throughout the country to assure Chicago of the convention in 1938 unless some 'dark horse' city crops up at the convention," said Edward Clamage, past Cook county commander. "Chicago should see a convention two years hence that will overshadow even that of 1933 when the famous 'Elmer' was lost."

Among the hundreds of Legionnaires who will leave Chicago today will be the 35 piece drum and bugle corps of Carson Pirie Scott post, No. 314, and Van Buren post, No. 401.

Three past presidents of the American Legion auxiliary, all now serving the Republican national committee in executive capacities, will leave today for the convention. They are Mrs. Robert Lincoln Hoyal, Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobart of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. A. C. Carlson of Minnesota.

Parks' Summer Photograph Contest Closes Tomorrow

The Chicago Park district's summer photo contest will close at 5 o'clock tomorrow evening, according to V. K. Brown, head of the park recreation department. More than 1,500 entries have been received. To be eligible, the pictures must be taken in parks, along boulevards or on other property controled by the park district. Awards, including tuition to a school of photography, cash and cameras, are to be announced by next Saturday.

YouthOrdered Out of Park; Returns and Clubs Keeper

Arthur Listin, 33 years old, 3011 Edgewood avenue, is a grounds keeper at Eckhart park, Chicago avenue and Noble street. A week ago he ordered a young man out of the park for breaking bushes. The youth threatened to get even. Yesterday he returned with a baseball bat, beat Listin severely, and fled. At Alexian Brothers' hospital Listin was found to have incurred concussion of the brain and possibly a skull fracture.

18 YEARS FOR BANK ROBBER.

McCook, Neb., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Ralph [Shorty] Morrision today was sentenced to 18 years in prison for the $4,931 Bartley State bank robbery, May 3, 1935, by District Judge C. E. Elred.

FRENCH TEXTILE STRIKERS REFUSE TO GIVE UP MILLS

New Labor Troubles Grip Several Cities.

PARIS, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Settlement of a strike paralyzing the French textile center in the Vosges mountains was held up tonight by the refusal of workers to leave the mills pending negotiations.

The Blum government sent Marc Rugart, minister of justice, to Epinal to arbitrate the demands of 30,000 textile workers who want wage increases and collective bargaining agreements. Owners said most of the mills were still occupied despite previous agreements to evacuate.

As labor difficulties gripped several cities in widely separated sections of France, nationalists clashed with leftists subway employés on the Champs Elysees. A police sergeant was slightly injured as detectives broke up the fight.

Dairy Workers Strike.

Dairy workers in the Marne department near the capital went on a strike. A scuffle among workers occupying the plants resulted in one receiving a fractured skull from a fall.

A total of 1,600 unemployed marched on the city hall at Boulogne-sur-Mer protesting failure of the government to carry out promised increases in relief payments. Four hundred entered the city hall itself.

At Tours, in the heart of France, building trades strikers paraded the streets singing the communist anthem, the Internationale. Gendarmes, however, prevented them from forcing workers to leave their jobs at the military airfield.

Textile Workers Stop Machines.

At Lyons, strikers who had been turning out artificial silk from the finishing rooms of the Rhodiaceta factory during the three day strike, stopped their machines and asked the prefect of the Rhone department to arbitrate their conflict with the employers.

The Lyons Industrial association in a statement declared the action "proved the workers were unable to operate the factory without chemists and engineers."

This, however, met a quick denial from the strikers. Strike leaders said no attempt was made to operate the whole plant, but the workers merely tried to make use of a chemical mixture which had been prepared when the walkout began, in order to prevent its spoiling. The leaders said all the mixture was turned into the finished product and there was no reason to continue work.

Threaten General Strike.

They threatened to call a general strike of textile workers unless the employers "stop trying to misinterpret our efforts to save them money."

Government officials attempted to persuade "stay-in" strikers to leave the shipyard at Toulon, France's chief Mediterranean naval base.

Although a strike of metallurgical workers at Marseilles was settled by the signing of a collective bargaining agreement, other plants in the Rouen area near Le Havre remained idle.

NEW YORK FARMERS STRIKE; 'KEEP MILK AT HOME,' SLOGAN

Watertown, N. Y., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—New York dairymen today called a milk strike to begin next Thursday. More than 100 farmers shouted approval in the Jefferson county court house when a special committee announced the decision.

"Do as you want with your milk, but keep it at home," Paul J. Woodward, North country leader, told the farmers.

The "milk holiday" is the farmers' answer to Agriculture Commissioner Peter G. Ten Eyck's compromise order yesterday. The farmers have demanded a flat $3 a hundred pounds for their milk, with no classification system whatever.

RED SLAIN AFTER BOMB IS HURLED INTO DANCE HALL

GRENOBLE, France, Sept. 20.—[Sunday.]—(AP)—A young communist, who gave chase to political opponents after they attempted to bomb a hall in which 400 persons were dancing at Vienne, died early today of wounds received in a running gun battle.

The bomb was tossed into the midst of the dancers, but one of them picked it up and hurled it outside. It exploded setting fire to a neighboring building and breaking windows in others.

The dancers were thrown into a panic. Some of them rushed after the attackers, exchanging shots with them. In addition to the man fatally wounded by a bullet in the neck, others were believed hurt.

The bombers escaped, but the communists said they could identify one of them. Authorities said the attempted bombing was evidently a "political act."

ENGINE CREWS QUIT TWO RAILWAY LINES; AFFECT THREE STATES

Greenville, Tex., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Five hundred union enginemen and trainmen on two southern railroads struck today as a climax to trouble brewing for more than three years. The railroads affected were the Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas line and the Louisiana and Arkansas road.

A replacement crew ran a mixed train out of Greenville this morning for Shreveport, La., but railway officials indicated that would be the only train sent east today. Ordinarily two or three trains move each way daily. Guards were aboard the mixed train.

The strike was called by the "Big Four" brotherhoods as a result of the railroads' failure to reinstate agreements abrogated in June, 1933. Those agreements recognized standard rates of pay, rules, and working conditions.

Spanish Revolt.

At last, after nine weeks of deadly but scattered warfare, the Spanish rebel army was able to concentrate last week on the long anticipated "big push" on Madrid. [See Map.] When San Sebastian was occupied last Sunday after the capture of Irun ten days before, Gen. Emilio Mola accomplished his major objective on the north coast of Spain. This was to cut off the loyalist coastal area to the west from supplies or aid by land and sea. Rebel troops continued to march on Bilbao, Santander and Gijon but many were withdrawn to the Madrid sector. It appeared that the blockade could starve the loyalists out on the north coast.

Gen. Francisco Franco sent about 175,000 soldiers against Madrid, the center of a three cornered offensive. One sector was the Guadarrama mountains on the north, where fighting was resumed last week after long idleness. Another sector was at San Martin, thirty-six miles west of Madrid. The third and most important was on the southwest.

From Talavera, where loyalists had been holding the rebels for three weeks, Franco sent his troops at Toledo, Maqueda and Santa Olalla. Open highways link all those cities with Madrid. Franco had the advantage in airplanes, artillery and ammunition. Madrid was poorly supplied with each. Aerial bombardment of loyalists preceded "the fiercest battle of the revolt," which, the rebels claimed, took them close to Toledo and within forty miles of Madrid. Other reports said the rebels had made no great gains from Talavera. Correspondents found that German airplanes comprised most of Franco's great air force based at Caceres.

At Toledo 1,500 Fascist soldiers and their families have been besieged in the ancient Alcazar fortified castle for two months. Artillery bombardment wrecked the castle but did not dislodge the rebels who retreated into underground passages. But Friday the government troops dynamited the Alcazar with two charges, two tons each, placed in tunnels underneath. The rebels had repeatedly refused to surrender. The dynamite leveled most of the castle and did extensive damage in Toledo, but how many were killed in the blast is unknown. When assault troops stormed the wreckage they were met with machine gun fire which showed that many defenders still lived.

In Madrid the syndicalists issued an ultimatum to Socialist Premier Francisco Largo Caballero, "the Spanish Lenin," to draft all able bodied men to fight and to create an outright workers' soviet government. The government army previously has depended on volunteers. The government rejected the syndicalists' demands yesterday. [See main news section.]

War of Words.

Realmleader Adolf Hitler of Germany continued his word war upon Russia and the "Jewish bolshevists" as the Nuremberg convention of the Nazi party ended. After Hitler two weeks ago shouted for the return of Germany's war lost colonies he publicly speculated on what he could do with Russia's rich Ukraine district on the Polish frontier and other soviet resources.

Russia replied last week. The soviet mouthpiece newspaper Pravda charged that domination of Czechoslovakia, war created republic of Germanic and Slavic peoples, was Hitler's next goal. [See map.] Czechoslovakia, said the Pravda, offers Germany a route into southeastern Europe and thence into Russia. It charged that Nazis are agitating the factions of Czechoslovakia to divide, and offer Hungary a share of the territory.

Klementi Voroshilov, soviet war commissar, at the conclusion of the Red war games, delivered a warning. Voroshilov declared, "When an enemy attacks the soviet Ukraine . . . or any other part of the soviet union, we will not only prevent his invading our country, but we will beat him on the territory whence he comes." After that he reaffirmed Russia's willingness to disarm if other nations did likewise.

In his final oration at Nuremberg Hitler cried, "It is utterly impossible for us to have any trafic whatsoever with communist leaders." Observers believed Hitler's wants a diplomatic split with Russia but not an economic one. Russia is a good market for German products.

One purpose behind Hitler's refusal to deal politically with Russia was to limit Great Britain's proposed Locarno treaty conference. Ever since Hitler broke the treaty by remilitarizing the Rhineland Britain has attempted to get the signers [including France, Italy and Belgium] together to create a new peace treaty. But Britain insists not only on considering the peace of western Europe but also on proceeding to a settlement in eastern Europe—between Germany and Russia chiefly. The conference was set for Oct. 19 but last week Germany and Italy asked for a delay to make diplomatic preparations. Capt. Anthony Eden, recovered from chicken pox, returned to his office of British foreign secretary and Friday sent a note to the other four Locarno powers suggesting further negotiations in secret, as Hitler asked.

In his general tirades against the spread of communism through Europe, Hitler declared that "Democracy undermines states." This brought a reply from Socialist Premier Blum of France, again beset by Red strikes. [See Foreign Notes.] Blum declared that democracies are the most stable governments.

After reviewing his private army at Nuremberg and before witnessing his regular army's war games, Hitler revealed that his "party army," including 2,000,000 Storm Troopers, totals about 3,000,000. Adding 1,200,000 in the regular army and 400,000 in the labor service this gives him a force of 4,600,000 men.

League of Nations.

The league of nations council met Friday at Geneva as a preliminary to the convocation of the league assembly tomorrow. [See main news section.] It found that Ethiopia had not quite been disposed of in July. Then former Emperor Haile Selassie made his historic "last stand" while the league went about lifting war trade penalties against Italy.

The league's small powers on Friday showed themselves ready to oppose any efforts of France, Great Britain or other nations to disbar Haile Selassie's league delegates on the ground they represent a defunct government. Larger powers want Italy back to coöperate in European peace measures. Mussolini refuses to send delegates to the league until assured Ethiopians will not be seated.

If anything the assembly meeting will face worse conditions than the Italian-Ethiopian war, which sapped the league's prestige.

Julio Alvarez del Vayo, representing the Madrid government of Spain, is ready to charge that Portugal is supporting the Spanish rebels and produce proof that Italy and Germany are sending war supplies. Portugal provides a corridor for such shipments. In London, Britain's international neutrality committee discussed declaration of an arms embargo against Portugal. A German foreign office spokesman declared Germany was opposed, feeling that the committee could act only on a Spanish arms embargo. Portugal has a Fascist government threatened by a revolt of radicals, which both Italy and Germany would deplore were it to materialize.

Another league worry was that Russia might use the assembly for a reply to Hitler's attack. [See War of Words.]

Outstanding on the program are proposals for reform of the league. Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos of France plans to lead this movement. Last week he said he would seek limitation of armaments.

Strange

Returning from a fishing trip in the Atlantic ocean off Saugus, Mass., Frank and William Belkus were astounded to see a wild deer, nearly exhausted, floundering in the water. The brothers hauled the animal into their boat, took it ashore, and released it in a woods.

Mrs. Walter McChesney and Mrs. Kate Pochoka appeared in court in West Orange, N. J. Mrs. McChesney told the judge they live in a two family house and that Mrs. Pochoka bred mosquitos in old butter tubs so that Mrs. McChesney would be bitten.

While investigating a catbird nest Jimmy Holiday, 12, of Chicago, found a dollar bill which had been woven into it by the birds.

Ross C. Hall, trafic policeman at the Texas Centennial exposition in Dallas, lectured a woman driver for disregarding a stop light. As she drove away a pocket of Hall's trousers caught on a doorknob of the car and his pants were torn off.

Tony Vivrito of New Orleans heard a buzzing sound and felt a strange lump in his ear. He went to a hospital. A physician found a black grasshopper, an inch long, in the ear.

Deputy Sherif Romas Raley of Macon, Ga., raided a farm for a liquor still. A goat attacked him from the rear and butted him six times. Raley was off duty two days recovering from his injuries.

Early last summer A. E. Mittelstadt of Laurel, Neb., lost two $5 bills in his yard. Recently he found the bills under a can, but they had rotted to pieces. Mittelstadt sent two shovelsful of dirt, containing the pieces, to Washington. He received two crisp new $5 bills from the treasury.

Fifty street car passengers in Philadelphia were delayed by the snouts of two swordfish. The fish snouts protruded across the street car right of way from a parked automobile. It took half an hour to find the owner of the car.

Politics

"As Maine Goes——."

By tradition the political barometer of the nation, the Maine election Monday was hailed by Republicans as definite proof of the swing away from the New Deal.

The Republican victory, while close, was decisive. Senator Wallace H. White's reëlection was considered the most significant indication that Maine has repudiated the New Deal. He defeated Gov. Louis J. Brann, Democratic nominee. This contest had attracted national attention. In the gubernatorial election the Republican candidate, Lewis C. Barrows, won by a majority of 40,000 votes over F. Harold Dubord, Democrat.

Republican leaders recalled that in eight of the last ten presidential election years, the Maine election in September has accurately forecast how the nation was going to vote for President.

Senator Joseph F. Guffey of Pennsylvania, chairman of the Democratic senatorial campaign committee, announced that a recount of the Maine vote for senator would be demanded. Republican leaders immediately asserted that such a recount would show a greater majority for the winner.

Maine's lead was quickly followed the next day by Michigan. In the primary election in that state, former Gov. Wilbur M. Brucker, New Deal foe, won an overwhelming victory for the Republican senatorial nomination over Senator James Couzens, New Deal supporter. More important to Republicans generally was the fact that the party candidates in Michigan polled twice as many votes as did the four candidates for the Democratic senatorial nomination.

Reports were current in Washington that Senator Couzens would be rewarded with a cabinet post if the New Deal is returned to power in November.

Another primary result heartening to Republicans was the victory of Gov. James M. Curley of Massachusetts for the Democratic nomination for United States senator. Curley is an outspoken critic of the New Deal. He defeated Mayor Robert Greenwood of Fitchburg. Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. won the Republican nomination. The nomination of Curley, Republican leaders contended, proved that even Democrats prefer candidates opposed to the New Deal.

In all the primary results of the week the unmistakable rising tide of popular support for the candidacy of Alf M. Landon for President was discernible, it was asserted at Republican national headquarters in Chicago.

The Landon Campaign.

The highlight of Gov. Landon's week was his speech Friday before delegations of young Republican men and women, thousands of them from every state in the union, in the Topeka Municipal auditorium. The nominee gave his young audience a forthright statement regarding the fundamental issue of the campaign.

"The real issue as we see it," he said, "is this: The present administration apparently believes that there is no future for this country. It has accepted the idea that we have reached the peak—that ahead of us is a large standing army of unemployed; that in consequence the government must play a greater and greater part in managing the details of our daily lives. . . . The Republican party, on the other hand, utterly rejects this philosophy. It believes that America is on the upgrade."

Returning early in the week from his triumphant tour to Maine, Gov. Landon again was hailed by huge crowds at many stopping places in all states through which his special train passed. Back in Topeka he plunged into further plans for the campaign, chiefly his next tour which will begin Tuesday. That evening he will deliver a major campaign address in Des Moines, Ia. From there he will go to Minneapolis, making rear platform address en route. Following another speech there he will go to Milwaukee for the third formal address of the tour. The return to Topeka will be made by way of Illinois, where Gov. Landon will spend a day in conference with former Gov. Frank O. Lowden at the latter's Sinissippi farm near Oregon, Ill. [See map.]

With President Roosevelt.

In his triple capacity of President of the United States, chairman of the United States Harvard tercentenary commission, and as Franklin D. Roosevelt, Harvard '04, Mr. Roosevelt returned to his alma mater Friday to address fellow alumni at the 300th anniversary of the founding of the university. His speech had a scholarly tone, as befitted the occasion. He sounded a plea for tolerance "in this day of witchburning" and predicted that Harvard and the nation would continue to meet changing and new conditions, "marching under the old banner of freedom."

Mr. Roosevelt announced that he would return to Washington instead of going to his estate at Hyde Park, N. Y. The reason was the illness at the White House of Mrs. Roosevelt, who sent word that she would be unable to leave Washington until today.

The President expects to be at Hyde Park until Sept. 29, when he is scheduled to address the New York state Democratic convention at Syracuse.

During the week in Washington Mr. Roosevelt conferred with the heads of several life insurance companies. Following the meeting the insurance men gave out a prepared statement in which they said they had assured the President that the condition of life insurance companies is excellent.

The White House announced that Mr. Roosevelt expects to start a campaign swing of the west on or about Oct. 1.

The President yesterday indignantly denied charges he is agreeable to the support of the communist party or other alien organizations. [See main news section.]

Political Notes.

Results of the third week of the Literary Digest's 10,000,000 ballot presidential straw poll reduced Gov. Landon's lead slightly but the Republican candidate held an overwhelming majority of electoral votes of the 13 reporting states. President Roosevelt's small gain came from three southern states, reporting for the first time. One new farm state, Iowa, gave a substantial lead to Landon. The total number of ballots sent in to date were divided 153,360 for Landon and 88,815 for Roosevelt.

Former President Herbert Hoover, arriving in Chicago on Friday, began a series of conferences with Harrison Spangler of Republican headquarters on arrangements for political speeches Mr. Hoover will make in the near future in behalf of the Landon-Knox candidacy.

In a campaign speech in Toledo, O., Congressman William Lemke, Union party candidate for President, asserted the nation's public and private debt could not be paid "unless the government issues and controls its own money and credit." The candidate said the public and private debt is now estimated at 250 billion dollars and the physical value of all property in the United States at 150 billion dollars. "How are we going to pay 250 billion dollars with 150 billion dollars?" he asked.

Earl Browder, presidential candidate on the communist ticket, canceled a scheduled address in Atlanta, Ga., after he had been warned by police that he would be arrested for any "communistic utterances." Browder left the city.

The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, Detroit radio priest, asserted in a New York speech that "it is time for us to throw out bodily every one who says 'support Roosevelt'." He said that under Roosevelt congress had submitted to a new kind of dictatorship—"must legislation."

The Constitution.

The 149th anniversary of the signing of the constitution of the United States was celebrated Thursday. In the Chicago Stadium 18,000 gathered to hear distinguished speakers of the occasion. Principal speakers of the evening were Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan and Maj. Gen. Johnson Hagood, whose charge of "stage money" in WPA waste brought the wrath of the New Deal upon him. Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE presided, after taking over the gavel from Julius H. Miner, executive director of the Constitution day committee.

Highlights of the speeches:

"Without the constitution we shall go the way of crashing freedom under other flags. With it we shall keep the lamp of liberty aflame."—Senator Vandenberg.

"This is the third annual celebration of the signing of the constitution. This is the 149th anniversary of its life. In a few days will be decided not only whether the constitution may be celebrated again, but whether it will live to be a hundred and fifty years old."—Col. R. R. McCormick.

In a Constitution day address in Minneapolis Dr. Glenn Frank of the University of Wisconsin charged that the present trend toward strong centralization of government "will end in tyranny." He said the constitution was America's sole protection.

Only one member of the President's official family, Attorney General Homer Cummings, formally observed the constitution's anniversary. Before the Kiwanis club in Washington Cummings declared that the constitution was an elastic document, and that no persons ought to attack the patriotism of one whose interpretation of it was broad.

Sweitzer to Zintak.

When County Treasurer Robert M. Sweitzer was ousted in June, 1935, for a $414,129 shortage in funds [this was later increased to $533,817] that he held in trust as county clerk for the preceding 24 years, he called such monies "vest pocket funds" because, he said, there was no compulsion to put them elsewhere. At that time Frank V. Zintak, clerk of the Superior court of Cook county, spoke up and said that he had some vest pocket funds that he would like to get rid of. No one paid any attention.

But last Wednesday the whole county building took notice when Clayton F. Smith, president of the county board, and State's Attorney Courtney announced that Mr. Zintak was $22,560 short in escrow funds. This made him the tenth county official or employé, beginning with Sweitzer, to help himself to public funds. Added to that were 10 persons who recently confessed to swindling court clerks of nearly $100,000 in escrow funds. In all, 20 persons have made off with around $700,000. Little has been repaid.

Before and after Zintak, a politician for 20 of his 48 years, confessed, there developed most of the complications of the celebrated Sweitzer case.

County Auditor Lee Howard two weeks ago made a semi-annual examination of Zintak's accounts. He found the shortage and reported to Smith, who called in Zintak a week ago. Zintak told Smith and Howard that he would deposit a check to cover the $22,560 on Monday. It appeared he drew from public funds in one bank to make the deposit in another. This was exposed and Zintak was called before Smith and State's Attorney Courtney. He denied and then admitted the shortage, they said, and agreed to have the money Wednesday morning. Then he put on his hat, walked out and, in fact, was lost from official sight until late Friday. Early that day a grand jury indicted him on an embezzlement charge. Friends raised Zintak's $25,000 cash bond by posting $90,000 in real estate. Then Zintak ended his three day dodging of police and appeared in Criminal court to be released on bond. He will be arraigned tomorrow. [See main news section.]

From Frank Witowski, Zintak's bookkeeper, the grand jury learned that Zintak had been juggling shortages from account to account since July 9, 1935, a month after Sweitzer was exposed. Witowski related that he kept a daily running account of the shortage and kept still.

The judges' executive committee of Superior court met Thursday and named a temporary successor to Zintak, Brig. Gen. Edward H. White, 63, a Spanish American and world war officer and attorney. The situation was complicated by the fact that Zintak is running for reëlection in November. The Democratic party has no way of removing him from the ticket except by persuasion. His withdrawal is highly desirable to Democrats, who must forego any previous inclination to defend Zintak to keep their slate "clean." Zintak is Democratic committeeman of the 12th ward and admitted that he used the missing money for campaign purposes.

After holding various minor offices, Zintak was appointed to the court clerkship in 1931 to fill a vacancy, and elected in 1932.

While police sought Zintak, his attorney, Stephen Love, became his spokesman, attesting Zintak's innocence, demanding justice, and expressing his willingness to pay when properly informed—all in the best Sweitzer style. When Zintak showed up, he said, "There is no shortage that I know of."

Gretna Green.

Crown Point, Ind., seat of Lake county, lies 40 miles southeast of Chicago. To Crown Point every year go some 6,000 couples to get married and no questions asked, drunk or sober. Crown Point is to Chicagoans what Gretna Green, Scotland, was to Englishmen—a popular destination of elopement.

But a week ago Mayor W. Vincent Youkey of Crown Point obtained an ordinance from his city council prohibiting marriage in a public office between 9 p. m. and 8 a. m., the hours in which gin generally inspires Cupid. The first action was to tear down the signs of justices and marrying parsons. Bootleg marriages seemed the alternative and the Rev. Howard H. Kemp agreed to perform one in private. Tiptoeing down the rear stairs from his office to take the couple to his home, Kemp tripped and broke his leg.

With one rebel out of the way, Mayor Youkey found a bigger problem in Dr. George Swygert, county clerk, whose all-night office offers marriage licenses for "How much will you pay?" Swygert refused to close his office and the mayor was temporarily stumped on legal procedure against a county official. Meanwhile he warned that couples violating the law would be jailed.

City Notes.

Its 200 pupils got a poor impression of the hallowed halls of learning when the Union Ridge school in Norwood Park township opened. Boos and cheers of 50 parents and a dog fight reflected the controversy between the school board, which ousted three teachers, and the county superintendent of schools, Noble J. Puffer, who ousted Principal Charles O'Hearn after charges that O'Hearn had attempted to hug and kiss the teachers. The parents cheered for O'Hearn and were happy to find that the school board put one over on Puffer by appointing O'Hearn an "unsalaried business manager." Teachers Clarabell Lindsay, Larinda Cleary, and Mary Hammond, in contrast, drew boos. They appeared at the school only so they could receive a formal discharge as a basis for a lawsuit against the school board. The dog fight was incidental.

Weather Forecaster C. A. Donnel declared that the week's rain already has made this month the second wettest September on record. Normal rainfall from now on, he said, would raise the month's total over the 8.28 inch record of September, 1894. Rain in the last 10 days wiped out most of the year's deficiency in precipitation, caused by the drouth. Last July was the driest in Chicago weather history. Last week-end's rains flooded many basements and caused much damage to underground power lines. [See Chicago Weather Week.]

Miss Hazel La Breck, 27 years old, a concert singer coming from Eau Claire, Wis., to Chicago for an opera audition, met Irving J. Greene, 45, on a bus. Greene, it seemed, told her he was a movie agent and that if she would come to his hotel room and show him her figure he might get her a Hollywood contract. Miss La Breck, however, did some thinking and asked advice. Then she went to Greene's room. He asked her to strip. As she started to do so two detectives, who stood ready, walked in and arrested Greene. He turned out to be a traveling salesman for New York clothiers.

Judge Samuel B. Trude and 40 attachés of the Municipal court saw a movie without leaving court. It was called "Wonders of the Human Anatomy" and depicted typical nudist camp scenes taken by Stephen A. Holish. He was suing for return of his films from the Eastman Kodak company, which had developed them but refused delivery for fear of becoming a party to obscenity. Attorney Alois Knapp, whose Roselawn [Ind.] Zoro Nature park was the locale of the movies, argued: "They're just as good and clean as movies of any Sunday school picnic. . . . The less clothing, the better the morals." Judge Trude disagreed, ruled the films indecent, and said they could be destroyed.

FINANCE-SPORTS

Reviews of the week in finance and general business and also of sports are to be found in the finance and sports sections.

Washington

Fresh borrowing operations by the treasury last week boosted the public debt far above the 4 billion dollar mark for the last year. The debt increase during the Roosevelt administration approached the unprecedented total of 13 billions. The gross public debt amounted to 33 billion 815 million dollars on Sept. 15, according to a treasury statement. The total increase in the debt since Sept. 15 of last year is 4 billion 344 million dollars. The New Deal added more to the debt burden in the last year than was added during the entire four years of the Hoover administration, which increased the debt by 3 billion 592 million dollars.

Publication by the French royalist newspaper, Action Française, of a charge that William C. Bullitt, newly appointed United States ambassador to France, is a "soviet agent," was a minor diplomatic incident of the week. Immediately the French government expressed its "regrets" to the United States chargé d'affaires, Edwin C. Wilson, in Paris. In Washington Bullitt, formerly ambassador to Russia, said the attack on him was "too absurd to warant any comment." Secretary of State Hull branded the charge as "ridiculous." No protest was made to the French government.

Redemptions of soldier bonus bonds through Sept. 12 totaled $1,227,647,100, the treasury announced. The amount paid out indicates that approximately 70 per cent of the bonus bonds issued have been redeemed, the balance being retained by veterans. Of a total of 3,516,191 world war veterans entitled to adjusted compensation, 3,374,967 had received their adjusted compensation bonds and checks as of Sept. 12.

Speaking before a dinner of the Good Neighbor league in New York, Secretary of State Hull defined the corner stone of American foreign policy as being the "willingness to be friends but not allies." He declared firmly against the participation by the United States in "collective arrangements" obligating signatories to resort to force when disputes between nations brought them to war.

Armament increases by foreign powers and the "disturbed conditions" in many countries, Hull said, had forced the United States to increase its defense forces.

"We would not serve the cause of peace," he declared, "by living in the world today without adequate powers of self-defense. We must be sure that in our desire for peace we will not appear to any other country weak and unable to resist the imposition of force or to protect our just rights."

Creation of a temporary European squadron to be known as "Squadron 40-temporary" under command of Rear Admiral Arthur P. Fairfield, was announced by the navy department. Subsequently Admiral Fairfield sailed from the Norfolk navy yard aboard the light cruiser Raleigh, flagship. Other ships in the squadron are the destroyers Hatfield and Kane and the coast guard cutter Cayuga. These three ships are in European waters. The Raleigh will relieve the cruiser Quincy, which will return to the United States. Admiral Fairfield's command is the first Atlantic squadron this country has had since 1929.

A suspected case of sabotage in Bancroft hall, dormitory of the United States Naval academy at Annapolis, Md., was being investigated by agents of the department of justice. Rear Admiral David Foote Sellers, superintendent of the academy, reported that electric wiring in two new wings of the dormitory had been destroyed.

Justice Joseph W. Cox of the United States District court in Washington issued an order, returnable tomorrow, directing the Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies to show cause why they should not be enjoined from complying with a subpena of the La Follette senate committee on civil liberties. The subpena required the production of telegraphic correspondence of two railway detective agencies. At the same time investigators for the committee were busy piecing together torn letters and records of the two detective agencies, seized from waste baskets in the agency offices. The committee has asked the federal grand jury to consider a "contumacy" indictment against six officers of the Railway Audit and Inspection company and the Central Industrial service. The officers failed to answer subpenas to appear before the committee.

The United States in a formal note reminded the German government that on Sept. 30 it would owe this country instalments totaling approximately $15,000,000 on the costs of American army occupation of the Rhineland following the war and for mixed claim commission awards.

The treasury department announced the seizure at Atlantic City, N. J., of the American motor vessel Machonoch, suspected as the intended carrier of smuggled arms to Central and South American revolutionists. The seizure followed the capture at Biloxi, Miss., of an automobile truck loaded with 200 rifles and 21,000 rounds of ammunition and the arrest of three suspected arms smugglers. Willard Campbell of Atlantic City, one of the men arrested in Biloxi, was named as the owner of the Machonoch, a 110 foot craft, which was fully provisioned and carried fuel supplies for a long voyage.

Following a conference between President Roosevelt, Acting Secretary of War Woodring and Gen. Malin Craig, army chief of staf, it was reliably reported that the post of secretary of war, left vacant by the death of George H. Dern, would not be filled for some time.

A suggestion by Maj. Gen. George Van Horn Moseley, commanding the Fourth army corps area at Atlanta, Ga., that activities of the Civilian Conservation corps be expanded to include military training, brought an immediate and vigorous protest from Frederick J. Libby, executive secretary of the National Council for the Prevention of War.

In the rôle of the world's biggest landlord, the New Deal administration has authorized foreclosure proceedings on 43,870 homes and 30,257 farms, it was disclosed in records of the Home Owners' Loan corporation and the Farm Credit administration. The records showed that the number of persons dispossessed by the HOLC through foreclosures had doubled during June, July and August over the three preceding months.

Crime

Trial of twelve members of the Black Legion, night riding terrorist society, accused of the murder of Charles A. Poole, WPA worker, proceeded rapidly in Detroit last week. The widow of the victim, Mrs. Rebecca Poole, denied from the witness stand Thursday that her husband had beaten her shortly before the birth of her second child. Dayton Dean, star witness for the state, who confessed firing the shots which killed Poole, had testified that the murder was ordered by Harvey Davis, a so-called "colonel" in the Black Legion, who told members of the society that Poole was beating his wife. Dean described how Poole was lured to a lonely road and shot down. The jury was taken Friday to view the scene of the murder. Yesterday the state rested its case. [See main news section.]

Shirley Temple, child movie star, was the target of an extortion letter sent to her mother by a 16 year old youth of Atlanta, Ga. The youth, Frank E. Stephens, was arrested and confessed after being questioned by federal agents. The extortion letter received by Mrs. Temple in Hollywood, demanded $25,000.

"Get the money if you want to keep Shirley," it said.

J. Edgar Hoover, director of the federal bureau of investigation, said that charges against young Stephens had been turned over to the federal district attorney at Atlanta.

Evidence of a "whoopee" party in which two nude women took part, staged by a federal court jury considering a liquor conspiracy case in Peoria, Ill., was disclosed there before Federal Judge J. Earle Major. Attorneys for eleven defendants found guilty by the jury offered the judge affidavits, signed by the two women, describing the wild party. Judge Major refused to consider the affidavits, but ordered Henry Triebel, one of the jurors; Deputy Marshal A. T. Curry, and Bailif Ernest T. Young, and the two women to show cause why they should not be held in contempt of court. Shortly afterward Curry and Young resigned.

Miss Bea Gottlieb, the American girl who once defeated the prince of Wales, now King Edward VIII. of Great Britain, at golf, caused the arrest of Carey Phelan, owner of the bar at a Far Rockaway, N. Y., hotel, on a charge of rape. Miss Gottlieb, now a golf teacher, said in her complaint that Phelan attacked her in the ladies' room of the hotel and that one of her wrists was fractured and she was otherwise injured in the scuffle.

Found sane by a jury in Criminal court, Roland Munroe Jr., 15, who confessed the hammer killing of Mrs. Agnes Roffeis, 65, in her Chicago home last Aug. 29, was ordered to trial Oct. 13 on a charge of murder. At the sanity hearing Dr. Harry R. Hoffman, head of the county behavior clinic, testified that young Munroe was morally incompetent but legally sane.

A charge of murder against Mrs. Edna Smith, 38, who stabbed her husband, Clarence, 40, to death in Chicago on Sept. 10, was dismissed by Judge Jay Schiller in the Felony court. Assistant State's Attorney Charles McNamara informed the judge he had found evidence to prove Mrs. Smith's story that her husband had subjected her to inhuman cruelties over a long period and threatened to drown her on the morning of the slaying.

Ten men and a girl employé were terrorized Friday in the offices of Paschen Brothers, Inc., general contractors, on the ninth floor of the 33 North La Salle Street building in Chicago by four nervous gunmen. The bandits escaped with a $3,100 pay roll.

Hearing of charges against Frank R. Thomas of Park Ridge, Ill., an insurance underwriter, accused of sending extortion letters demanding $2,000 to Harry R. Kendall of Evanston, president of the Washington National Insurance company, was continued by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker until Sept. 29.

A coroner's jury decided that Policemen William Mangan and Abraham Greenblau of the Fillmore street station were justified in shooting Frank Lappen, 45, to death last Sunday in his apartment at 4239 Fillmore street, Chicago. The policemen had gone there to serve a warant on Lappen. They said he resisted arrest and opened fire on them. Lappen's widow testified that the policemen forced their way into the home and fired without provocation.

Don Burdick, New York broker and polo player, remained in a serious condition in a Norwalk, Conn., hospital from injuries incurred in an automobile crash. When he recovers he will be charged with attempting to murder his father-in-law, Harry E. Byram, wealthy retired railroad president. Byram, recovered from a bullet wound in the head, was married for the fourth time in New York on Monday. His bride is Mrs. Frances Evans.

"I've just killed my daughter," he said. "I want the electric chair."

A police squad was sent to the Pavelka home. There they found Catherine Pavelka, 15, dead. She had been strangled to death. [See main news section.]

Removal charges against William F. X. Geoghan, district attorney of Kings county, N. Y., were dismissed Thursday by Gov. Herbert H. Lehman following a 13 day hearing of evidence in Albany. Geoghan had been accused by a special grand jury of laxity in handling the Drukman murder case in Brooklyn.

Delegates to the 66th annual congress of the American Prison association listened to many speeches last week in the Stevens hotel in Chicago. They were told that the country's annual crime cost is $15,000,000,000. One committee report blamed certain types of defense lawyers for helping to increase the number of "repeating" criminals.

Medicine

The theory that the alleged poisonous effects of alcohol cause whisky paralysis and alcoholic insanity was exploded before the medical section of Harvard university's 300th anniversary scientific meetings. Dr. Maurice B. Strauss, Harvard instructor in medicine and assistant in tropical medicine, reported that 75 patients with whisky paralysis had been cured apparently by diet alone. Ten of these patients were cured of paralysis of arms and legs and delusions and loss of memory while drinking up to a quart and a half of whisky daily. Dr. Strauss discovered that not alcohol but starvation and vitamin deficiency caused the ailments. Tipplers, he found, never felt hungry because of the volume of alcohol they consumed and developed a deficiency in digestive juices. A properly balanced diet plus injections of viatmin B brought cures in from two weeks to four months.

Dr. George R. Minot reported the discovery of William B. Castle, Harvard associate professor of medicine, that the lack of an unknown "X factor" in stomach secretions could cause pernicious anemia and other nutrition deficiency diseases. In these the patients' stomachs produced the known digestive juices but failed to extract necessary elements from food.

Dr. William G. Smillie, Harvard professor of public health administration, discussed the progress made by the Rockefeller institute in New York and the National Institute of Medical Research at Hampstead, England, in combating epidemic influenza. The Rockefeller institute developed a vaccine from "flu" virus taken from human patients. The English institute developed a vaccine from horses infected with influenza. Each vaccine appears effective in preventing the disease.

Dr. Frederick A. Gibbs, Harvard research fellow in physiology, and William G. Lennox reported the first practical use for measurement of electrical brain waves in men and monkeys by placing electrodes against the skull. They found that changes in the wave lengths forwarned by 18 to 24 hours the approach of a convulsion in an epileptic. Thus, they speculated, an epileptic might be able to anticipate his seizures and have them without danger or embarrassment, or prevent the seizure with a sedative.

The Illinois department of public health at Springfield reported that 9,423 deaths in the state during July set an all-time high for one month, including a new mark of 1,193 deaths attributed to the heat. July's deaths represented a 40 per cent increase over the 6,727 for the same month in 1935. The previous highest number of heart deaths was 636 in July, 1934. Heart impairment was blamed for 2,325 deaths compared to 1,645 in July, 1935.

Science

Oscar H. Reinholt, geologist and mining engineer, credited WPA dynamiters in a municipal quarry at Iron Mountain, Mich., with unearthing life forms that existed one billion 500 million years ago. Imprints of a cabbage-like seaweed were preserved in vertical layers of rock. Reinholt said that at the time the seaweed grew Wisconsin was a large granite island and the Menominee mountain range country [where the fossils were found] was a shore of a sea probably extending into eastern Canada. Lime and magnesium in the salt water preserved the weed as the sea dried up and later upheavals of the earth compressed the rock formation and stood the layers on end.

The upper Michigan peninsula region, said Reinholt, now takes precedence over the Saratoga Springs [N. Y.] section as the oldest region in which life forms are known to have existed. He said the fossil discovery was "at least as important" as those of dinosaurs in Mongolia, toothed birds in Bavaria, and saber toothed tigers near Los Angeles.

Meanwhile in the London magazine Nature, Dr. R. Broom of Transvaal reported that a possible "missing link" was found in caves near Krugersdorp, South Africa. Dynamiting of limestone uncovered the fossil head bones of an unknown manlike ape more closely allied with humans than with the gorilla or chimpanzee. Dr. Broom said this fossil fits into the chain connecting fossil apes with the earliest form of man.

Baron Thomas Jeeves Horder, physician to King Edward VIII., told the British Association for the Advancement of Science, meeting at Blackpool, England, that man must exercise judgment and control to slow the rapidly increasing pace of modern life or pay the penalty of shattered nerves.

ROMANCE?

VETERANS ASSEMBLED.

Thousands of members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars gathered in Denver for the annual encampment of the organization. Speakers attacked communism and Fascism and demanded that the United States stay out of war. Yesterday in Cleveland the hosts of the American Legion were assembling for the annual convention of the largest veterans' body. [See main news section.]

Flying

The big silver monoplane, Lady Peace, carrying Dick Merrill, veteran pilot, and Harry Richman, night club entertainer and sportsman pilot, completed the first round trip flight across the Atlantic Monday. The plane landed in a bog near Musgrave Harbor, Newfoundland, slightly more than 16 hours after the flyers had left Southport, England. Neither was injured in the crash landing.

Later Pilot Merrill was quoted as blaming Richman for dumping 500 gallons of gasoline in the ocean on the homeward flight in spite of his vehement protests. A violent quarrel during the trip was indicated but this was denied by Richman.

Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, head of Eastern Air Lines, with mechanics and supplies, flew to Musgrave Harbor Thursday and assisted in getting Richman's monoplane ready for the flight to New York. Merrill and Richman, with the help of residents of the vicinity, had succeeded in removing the big ship from the bog.

The westward flight of the two men was made through rainstorms and wind squalls. It ended as did their hop from New York to England. That leg of their adventure halted in a forced landing in a cow pasture in Wales. Lack of fuel was blamed for both incidents.

Baroness Eva von Blixen-Fineckeand and her pilot, Kurt Bjorvall, completed test flights in the plane they intend to fly from Bennett field, New York, to Sweden. The baroness said weather conditions would govern plans for the take-off.

C. A. Donnel, chief government weather forecaster at Chicago, announced that 20 new aviation weather reporting stations have been established in this area and that one forecaster has been added to the staf of eight in the office of the airways division of the weather bureau at the Chicago airport. The expansion was made possible, he said, by the recent increase in the congressional appropriation for airways weather service.

Pilots Harold Gillam and Bert Lien of Fairbanks, Alaska, contracted with the government to scout by plane for polar cold waves approaching the United States, and to send reports to Washington this winter by radio. It is expected the observation flights will enable the weather bureau to forecast cold waves far in advance of their arrival.

The Russian flyers, Sigismund Levanevsky and Victor Levchenko, landed at the Moscow airport Sunday to complete a trail blazing flight from California, across arctic wastes, to Russia. The 6,000 mile flight started from Los Angeles on Aug. 5.

The German Zeppelin Hindenburg left Frankfort-on-Main, Germany, Thursday on its eighth flight to North America. Aboard was Mrs. Frances Springs of Fort Mill, S. C. She was the 1,000th person to book passage on the Hindenburg and was honored by officials of the Zeppelin company. The Hindenburg is due at Lakehurst, N. J., today. It veered its course to miss the Atlantic hurricane.

JOHN GILBERT'S BED.

An eight foot square bed, in which the late John Gilbert, romantic lover of the screen, slept, was sold in Hollywood for $1,250 to the manager of a Uniontown, Pa., hotel. Leo Heyn, the buyer, said the bed would be placed in the hotel's bridal suite. He expected it would increase business.

Foreign Notes

More reports of slayings came from Palestine as the first of 12,000 British troops arrived to reinforce the 5,000 who have been fighting Arabs for five months.

The decision of the British cabinet two weeks ago to establish martial law in Palestine to protect the Jews marked a general concentration of British military strength in the Mediterranean area. Sir Samuel Hoare, first lord of the admiralty, is completing a long tour of inspection of Mediterranean naval bases. One of the results of his trip is a plan to establish an air, naval and military base on the Island of Cyprus [See Map.] Another step to tighten up the "empire lifeline" was taken on the Island of Malta, off the "toe" of Italy. To suppress sympathy for Italy at this British naval base the government reduced Malta from a responsible constitutional government to a crown colony under direct authority and permanently banned the Italian language from schools and courts.

All Britain's Mediterranean measures were backed up by the treaty of perpetual military alliance recently signed with Egypt.

The Paris radical newspaper Humanite charged that all the Fascist and nationalist semi-military organizations which Premier Leon Blum decreed out of existence last summer are plotting to overthrow the Popular Front government. Such leaders as Col. François de la Rocque of the former Croix de Feu veterans' organization were accused of accepting Nazi money to agitate rebellion. This sensational charge was based on the fact that the Croix de Feu, now the Social party, was posting signs attacking the government. The Socialist paper Populaire reported that De la Rocque had made a secret trip to French Algiers and charged it was more "sedition" against the government.

Meanwhile the Blum government was confronted with new strike difficulties. Settlement of the textile strike in the Vosages mountains involving 30,000 workers was held up when workers refused to leave the mills pending negotiations. They seek wage increases and collective bargaining agreements. Elsewhere new strike disorders were reported. [See main news section.]

At daybreak last Sunday a rock avalanche suddenly broke loose from the side of Rogne mountain, which towers 6,000 feet over Lake Loen near Loen, Norway. The rock masses swept over the cliffs and plunged into the lake. A wall of water overflowed the shores, demolishing the villages of Nesdal and Bodal and the surrounding countryside. Of the 120 inhabitants, about 72 were killed, the rest were left homeless.

Pope Pius XI. blessed a world-wide militant defense against the "mad" forces of communism. Although he pardoned the slayers of bishops and priests in Spain, the holy father called upon the authorities of all nations to "oppose these great evils with every remedy and barrier that is possible."

Friday was the fifth anniversary of the Japanese occupation of Mukden, Manchuria, with the consequent creation of the puppet state of Manchukuo. Chinese observed the day in mourning with flags at half staf and patriotic societies scattered anti-Japanese handbills.

A rush of developments added to the tension between China and Japan. Outside of Peiping 100 Chinese soldiers stopped 100 Japanese soldiers returning from a maneuver and attacked an officer. Added Japanese forces surrounded the Chinese and there was shooting. The Japanese marched the Chinese from the suburb, Fengtai, after a formal apology. The famed 19th route army, which defended Shanghai against the Japanese in 1932, refused to let either Japanese or Chinese of the Nanking government investigate the killing of a Japanese in Pakhoi on the South China coast. The 19th route soldiers prevented Japanese investigators landing from a gunboat.

Eiji Amau, Japanese government spokesman, yesterday indicated that Japan holds the Chinese government responsible for six recent deaths. These include four at Chengtu, one at Pakhoi, and one yesterday at Hankow, to which city Japanese marines have been ordered. [See main news section.]

Hurricane.

Smashing in from the sea at a velocity of 100 miles an hour, a terrific tropical hurricane lashed more than a thousand miles of the Atlantic coast Friday and yesterday. The winds for a time threatened to strike New York City with a fury unknown to the metropolis. Late Friday night, however, the full force of the hurricane veered eastward over the sea.

Loss of life was not as heavy as it was feared. The total known dead yesterday was seven. Twenty-three persons were missing. The diminished storm center headed toward steamship lanes.

Lack of communications caused fear that the extent of the property damage done by the hurricane would not be known for several days, but an early estimate was $6,000,000. The furious winds raged along the Carolina and Virginia coasts for many hours, smashing communication lines. [See main news section.]

Tercentenary.

Representatives of 502 universities, colleges and learned societies from every state in the Union and forty foreign countries were received and addressed Wednesday in Cambridge, Mass., by James B. Conant, president of Harvard university. The guests had been delegated to attend Harvard's 300th birthday celebration.

"You come," said President Conant, "to an academic festival which marks the turn of a century in the history of this university. To all of us, however, the celebration has deeper significance, for it marks the 300th anniversary of the beginning of higher education in this country. It marks the passage to a new continent through an Anglo-Saxon channel of that intellectual ferment of the middle ages—the university spirit which first worked miracles."

Labor

Salinas, Cal., was the labor storm center of the country last week. Violence of serious proportions developed in the three week old strike there of 3,200 fruit and vegetable workers who are demanding union recognition. As a result of rioting many persons were injured. Crowds of picketing strikers were dispersed on several occasions by police using tear gas and wielding clubs. Nearly 1,000 citizens were sworn in as special deputies to aid in maintaining order. Strike breakers were being used to harvest the Salinas lettuce crop, largest in the world. Yesterday a settlement loomed. [See main news section.]

In Minneapolis, two major strikes for union recognition continued to paralyze flour and feed mills and wholesale grocery delivery service. Although Gov. Hjalmar Petersen of Minnesota called upon all concerned to end their differences, no early settlement was in prospect.

Labor trouble was threatened at Terre Haute, Ind., where T. N. Taylor, state representative of the American Federation of Labor, was severely beaten by ten men. Other labor officials of Terre Haute later received threats. No explanation of the attack on Taylor was given.

A strike of 1,500 workers of the United Drydock company delayed the scheduled launching of the new United States destroyer Fanning for two days. Invited guests who assembled Wednesday were told at the Staten Island shipyard of the company to return Friday. On that day, in spite of the strike, the Fanning was launched. Miss Cora A. Marsh, a great-great-granddaughter of Matthew Fanning, naval hero of early American history, christened the new ship with a bottle of champagne.

The dispute between the American Federation of Labor and the rebellious committee for industrial organization [CIO] headed by John L. Lewis president of the United Mine Workers, was officially recognized Thursday at the annual convention of the Illinois State Federation of Labor, meeting in Quincy. For a time serious dissension over the issue threatened to disrupt the convention. A compromise was reached, however, through the efforts of Victor Olander, secretary of the federation, and other leaders. By unanimous vote the convention adopted a resolution urging officials of the A. F. of L. and the CIO to reach an agreement on their differences.

The fight, which has split organized labor, is over the effort of the C. I. O. to organize big industrial unions in place of the traditional craft unions upheld by the federation. Lewis' group and the unions it controls, with a membership of more than 1,000,000, were suspended recently by the federation.

Village for Sale.

The entire village of Kinlock in the Pennsylvania coal mining district was put up for sale at auction Friday. Bids were asked by the auctioneer on 95 one and two family houses, two large apartment houses, an office building, a store, and a village hall. A woman bought the store and hall for $4,475. Many of the town's dwellings were bought by miners for as low as $175. The sale was the result of a decision by the Valley Coal company, owners of the town, to shut down its big coal mine there.

Religion

The annual observation of Rosh Hashanah, which ushered in the Jewish new year 5698, was begun Wednesday at sundown by Jews throughout the world. The largest gathering in Chicago was at Sinai temple, 4600 South Park way. There Rabbi Louis Mann addressed a huge congregation, including more than 500 Jewish refugees from Nazi Germany.

"Never has the message of the Jewish New Year been more appropriate or as much needed as it is this year," said Rabbi Mann. "The central idea of the high holiday is that amid all the changes in the world there is one thing that remains constant—the kingdom of God. God is absolute and man is the creature."

Rabbi Mann pleaded for restoration of the primacy of religion in the lives of men and nations.

Other Chicago synagogues were crowded. Members of orthodox congregations began a week's celebration of the high holiday. Reform synagogues observed the feast only until sundown Thursday.

A letter written by George Bernard Shaw to the New York Times, in which he criticized the Catholic church for attempting to censor parts of a proposed motion picture of his play, "St. Joan," stirred up a controversy. Will Hays, movie "czar," denied that the Motion Picture Producers' association, which he heads, had any connection with a censorship organization of the Catholic church. Archbishop John T. McNichols of the Catholic diocese of Cincinnati, a founder of the Legion of Decency, said the Catholic church had never attempted to censor the production of motion pictures.

The largest meeting of a Catholic church organization ever held in New York began Thursday. It was the third annual convention of the Holy Name society. The sessions were started with a solemn pontifical mass in St. Patrick's cathedral. More than 200,000 members of the society were expected to attend the closing meetings today.

The Illinois conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, opening Tuesday in Rockford, discussed the problem of continuance of the Wesley Foundation, which serves students at the University of Illinois. The foundation is the oldest religious institution at a state supported school.

Fight for a Fortune.

Mrs. Mabel Harlow Green, widow of Col. H. R. Green, a son of the late Hetty Green, "railroad queen" of Wall street, continued her court fight in Elizabethtown, N. Y., to be appointed temporary administratrix of Col. Green's 80 million dollar estate. The widow lost a point when Surrogate Harry Owen admitted in evidence a purported agreement between Mrs. Green and her husband at the time of their marriage in which she renounced all interest in the Green estate in return for $625,000 in cash and securities. The estate is claimed by Mrs. Matthew Astor Wilks, a sister of Col. Green.

ALL BUT CHICAGO GET THEIR SHARE OF GAS TAX FUND

State Finds Ways to Hold Up City's $7,000,000.

While the political feud between Gov. Horner and members of the city administration is holding up Chicago's $7,000,000 share of the state gasoline taxes for street improvements, it was learned yesterday that nearby communities are getting their shares promptly.

Gov. Horner has vetoed requests of the city council for $2,350,000 of Chicago's $7,000,000 to be used for needed repairs to 225 miles of surface in 32 important streets. With the WPA offering to put up $5 for every $1 provided by Chicago, the work would give employment to 2,400 men.

The state rejection of the city council's plea last Friday was the sixth rejection since May. Ernst Lieberman, state highway engineer and spokesman on highway matters for Gov. Horner, has insisted that the state be allowed to designate the streets on which the work will be done.

Aid for Storm Sewers.

Elgin has been granted $18,000 and Rockford $30,000 from the gasoline tax fund for construction of storm sewers. The gasoline tax is imposed for the specific purpose of improved streets and highways.

"We asked the state for $22,500 for construction of storm sewers under and near arterial highways on the ground that this was a just use of such funds because it would prevent flooding of the highways in a storm," Victor H. Kasser, city engineer of Elgin, said yesterday. "We were granted $18,000 of that amount and the WPA provided us with additional funds on an approximate basis of $5 for each one we put up to begin work on a $300,000 storm sewer project."

In addition to the storm sewer projects Kasser said that Elgin has received $20,000 from the gas tax fund for paving projects. He estimated that Elgin should be entitled to approximately $55,000 for its share of the gas tax fund this year.

$81,627 For Rockford.

Rockford also has received coöperation from Springfield, having been granted $81,627 from the gas tax fund from January to August. The use of $30,000 was granted for a WPA storm sewer project that will total a million dollars, of which Rockford expects eventually to provide $150,000 from gas tax funds.

This year Rockford also has used $35,000 to buy land for a one block extension of Jefferson street and $16,000 for a state highway sponsored paving project in East State street.

Chicago Heights attempted to get the state to build an underpass under the Lincoln highway in front of the Roosevelt school. The state refused but Gov. Horner and Lieberman okayed the use of $50,000 of gas tax money due Chicago Heights when Mayor Joseph Gannon asked that the suburb be allowed to build the underpass.

La Grange Receives $15,000.

Seventy men are employed in La Grange on a north side street improvement program made possible because La Grange was granted $15,000 from the gas tax fund to use in conjunction with WPA money for the work. North Wiaolo, North Spring, North Kensington, North Katherine, and North Madison avenues are being repaired through this grant. Deputy City Clerk W. D. Palmer estimated that La Grange is receiving approximately $1,500 a month from the state.

Gov. Horner allocated only $280,000 to Cook county roads in the state's $10,824,000 federal aid highway construction program which got under way last July 1.

Lieberman denied yesterday that holding up funds for Chicago was due to the political feud. He said the Chicago plans call for paving side streets and that the law says the gas tax money can be used only for arterial highways. He admitted the state was the judge of what constituted an arterial highway or a side street.

CHAUFFEUR LOSES HIS STRIKE.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 19.—[U.P.]—A chauffeur's strike to abolish "slavery conditions" and win the right to bargain "collectively" was declared illegal today by the federal labor conciliation board which said his bargaining demand was void because he struck alone. Early this week, Andrez Vazquez parked his employer's car in front of his garage, draped the machine with a red "strike flag," and began picketing.

She charged cruelty. The young couple were married June 16, 1934, after Mrs. Wieland won the title of beauty queen in dramatics at Northwestern university.

FIND POISON IN DEAD MATE; SEIZE WIDOW

Murphysboro, Ill., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Mrs. Clara Reiman, 55 and comely, was arrested at her farm home ten miles northwest of this city late yesterday on a warant charging her with poisoning her husband, Will, a middle aged farmer. The murder warant was issued secretly on Thursday after an analysis of the contents of Reiman's stomach. That report came from a St. Louis laboratory. The analysis, according to Sherif Ross Ozburn of Jackson county, showed five and forty-five-one-hundredths grains of arsenic.

HE'S HELD AS FRATRICIDE.

Whitesburg, Ky., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Robert Collins, 38, a farmer of Letcher county, is held at Bever Creek in connection with murder yesterday of his brother Orbin Collins, 32, and Wilbur Mounts, 38.

3 POLICEMEN CHARGED WITH KILLING MAN, 64

Uniontown, Pa., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti declared tonight an investigation showed that Frank C. Monaghan, hotel keeper, was "barbarously and brutally beaten to death" while being questioned by police in connection with the stabbing of a detective.

Two state troopers Anthony Sahute and Stacey Gunderman, and County Detective Wilbert Minerd are free under a joint bond of $20,000 after being charged with the murder.

It was said the beating was done in the Bertillon room in the basement of the Fayette county courthouse.

Monaghan, 64, died last Saturday at detective headquarters. Police said at the time that he collapsed suddenly while being questioned. The doctors asserted Monaghan's nose and jaw had been broken, eleven ribs fractured, and his body bruised.

Monaghan had been accused of stabbing County Detective John C. Wall after being arrested for allegedly driving while under the influence of liquor the night of Sept. 11. Wall is in a serious condition at a hospital.

POLICE AND FIRE CHIEFS HURT AT STREATOR BLAZE

Streator, Ill., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Six men, including Fire Chief Frank Owen and Police Chief Harry Reynolds, were injured here last night and early today while fighting a fire that swept through two large store and office buildings, causing damage estimated at $175,000.

Starting in a drug store on Main street in the heart of the business district, the blaze burned more than 12 hours. Ottawa's fire department joined that of Streator.

The police and fire chiefs were injured by an explosion in a building occupied by the S. S. Kresge company store and several offices. The others injured were firemen. All will recover.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Rip Collins' pinch homer with the bases full, knocked off Curt Davis with two out in the seventh inning, was the essential smack of many which yesterday enabled the St. Louis Cardinals to supplant the Cubs in second place in the National league standings. The Cardinals won the second game of the series, 9 to 6.

The contest in its entirety was a great show of Cardinal power or a sad display of sour pitching by both Davis and the starter, Larry French. Since the same Card crew was held to three hits Friday, many of the 12,866 who paid to see the affair may have leaned to the sour pitching theory. French, who survived for 6 1-3 innings, allowed 13 hits, including a pair of doubles, as he failed again in his ambition to set a new high for himself in the matter of major league victories in one season. Larry has been choking recently in quest of his No. 19.

Six Games Back of Giants.

The Cubs now find themselves six games back of the Giants and a half game back of the Cards. Yesterday's sag, unlike most of the Chicago failures this season, was not due to a meek attack. The wilted champs made 13 hits, including a homer by Gabby Hartnett, a triple by Stan Hack, and doubles by Bill Herman and Johnny Gill. Fuzzy base running blighted the Cubs on two or three occasions, but fair to middlin' pitching in the third and seventh innings probably would have won.

French was a good pitcher until his mates startled him by making two runs before anybody was out in the second inning, said two runs being the result of a single by Demaree, a triple by Hack, and a wild pitch. Thus startled, however, Larry promptly swooned in the St. Louis third. Though the Cards went ahead with three runs Manager Grimm rejoiced that none of his players was injured by the five whizzing line drives in the inning.

Disagree with Umpire.

McGee opened the third with a single to center and, after Demaree had made a fine catch of Moore's drive, went to third on Garibaldi's double to left center. Allen made a sterling play on this drive and appeared to have sunk McGee on his throw to third. Umpire Barr didn't agree with the Cubs and when the game was resumed after the Chicago squawks had stilled, J. Martin sent a long fly to Galan, McGee scoring. Medwick slammed a double off the left field wall, Garibaldi scoring the tying run. Mize whanged a single to right, Medwick scoring.

French seemed to be out on his feet, but pitched to Durocher, who singled to left center, Mize reaching third. Gutteridge flied to Demaree.

Cubs Tie Score.

The Cubs tied the score in their end of the third. After French had fanned, Galan beat out an infield single and stole second as Cavarretta fanned. Herman knocked his No. 55 double to the left field wall, Galan scoring. Demaree beat out a bouncer to Garibaldi, but Herman fell down after rounding third and was out, Garibaldi to Gutteridge.

The Cubs resumed the lead in the fifth. Jurges opened with a single to left and reached third on French's sacrifice and Galan's infield single. Cavarretta bounced to Mize, who held the ball while he tried to decide what to do. He finally threw

Mucho Gusto Wins Peabody $3,190 Stake

A Kentucky horse—Mucho Gusto, owned by Mrs. Kirby Ramsey of Louisville—stunned 12,000 racegoers at Lincoln Fields yesterday when he rushed up from behind on the last turn into the stretch and went on to win the eighth running of the Francis S. Peabody Memorial handicap by the wide margin of three lengths.

He shocked the spectators by the spectacular speed he showed and his victory got into their hair a little bit more, since hardly any of them had backed him. They watched him gallop to his easy victory at the juicy betting odds of 16 to 1.

Pharosay, the wild horse—turfmen say he is eccentric—had delayed the start of the race for 3½ minutes. During this delay he unseated his rider, the diminutive H. Hauer, three times.

Pharosay Just Quits.

Finally they got him up to the starting gate and away they went. Pharosay rushed right up on the outside and took the lead. To the amazement of the crowd he held it for three-quarters of a mile. Those chasing him appeared afraid to move up alongside him because he might pull one of his bolting stunts and carry them to the outside fence.

Finally Jocky Buddy Haas had the nerve to shoot Mucho Gusto up on the outside and on even terms with Pharosay. The latter didn't bolt. Instead he quit. Mucho Gusto raced out into the lead. All the others in the field galloped on past Pharosay. Still they couldn't catch Mucho Gusto.

Silk Mask did the best job of trying to do it and his fine effort carried him into second place. Noble Count, after racing far back early, closed a big gap and got up to be third. Roguish Girl from Ald. Coughlin's stable was fourth.

Back Captain Cal, Rock X.

Backed to the exclusion of all the others in the race was the Tranquility farm entry of Captain Cal and Rock X. They failed to justify the heavy backing that caused them to be made the even money favorite. Captain Cal finished fifth and Rock X, which a week earlier had won the Crete handicap, was eighth.

The speedy pace Pharosay made caused the race to become one of the fastest that has been run at Lincoln Fields this season. The quarter was run in :22 2-5, the half in :46, the three-quarters in 1:11 1-5, and Mucho Gusto finished out the mile in 1:36 4-5.

The Peabody had a gross value of $3,190, and with the heavily backed entry out of the money high mutuel prices prevailed. Mucho Gusto paid $34.20 to win, $19.40 to place, and $11 to show. Silk Mask's place price was $11.20 and he was at $7 to show. Noble Count paid $13.40 to show.

Pharosay Takes Lead.

Soon after the break came Hauer went to work on the wild fellow with his whip and took him across the field to the rail. Down the chute and into the back stretch it was Pharosay in front with Rock X. trailing by a length and Crowning Glory and Mucho Gusto next in order. Mucho Gusto was racing easily, a trifle wider than the others. Captain Cal was fifth and also in contention.

Mucho Gusto moved up as they rounded the last bend. He caught them one by one until one, Pharosay, remained in front. The wild fellow was tiring from his antics by that time and when he faded he did a complete job of it. Mucho Gusto shot into the lead as they came into the stretch. For an instant Captain Cal loomed dangerously. The Tranquillity farm colt was second, though trailing by four lengths.

Takes Mucho Gusto to Center.

Haas took Mucho Gusto to the center of the track down the stretch and he was never in danger. Captain Cal dropped back as Silk Mask came with a rush on the inside. Noble Count moved up swiftly on the outside. Neither could menace the winner. Pharosay was practically walking at the end, pulling up tenth and last.

Mucho Gusto is an awkward running 4 year old son of Marvin May-Sweetheart Time. He has done most of his running in Kentucky. This was his second start at Lincoln Fields. It was the seventh victory he has scored this year in 18 starts.

AMATEUR GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP STAYS IN U. S.

Jock McLean of Glasgow, Scotland, plays out of the rough at the fourth hole of the morning round of his match with Johnny Fischer of Cincinnati for the national amateur golf championship at Garden City, N. Y., yesterday. McLean was ahead until the last hole, but lost on the 37th green. The match was one of the most exciting ever played in the 40 year old tournament.

Conquers McLean in Final.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Regardless of what finicky critics may prate as to the quality of the golf in today's final they cannot deny Fischer a place among the great champions of the game, a champion whose courage won the greatest last ditch golf victory in a score of years.

Three Historic Holes.

Forget that at the end of 34 holes of none too elegant scoring, a majority in the gallery of more than 6,000 were resigned to seeing McLean take the championship trophy aboard the Queen Mary, first overseas player to win the title since Harold Hilton of England won a 37 hole battle from Fred Herreshoff at Apawamis in 1911.

Throw out those first 34 holes and consider the last three—three holes of golf that will stand up with any of championship play. Watch the gallery deploy itself along the 35th fairway, ready for the kill and the obsequies of American hopes. McLean has three putted six greens from the 24th through the 34th and yet is one up.

Both are off the edge of the green, 488 yards from tee to green, the flaxen haired McLean being only a foot from a gaping bunker. The crowd roars as Fischer almost holes out his chip shot, the ball halting six inches from the hole. McLean answers this by putting his third a foot away for a half in birdie fours.

Deuce Is a Reprieve.

The gallery stampedes toward the home green, 166 yards away, with the tiny Lake Cornelia between the tee and the cup. Both clear the lake nicely, McLean's ball landing 25 feet above and to the right of the pin. Fischer hits a beautiful iron up within 12 feet of the cup on the left side. McLean makes a great downhill putt but the ball skitters a foot wide. All of the pressure is on Fischer, who spends two minutes studying the putt. He steps up to the ball and strokes it. A foot away it seems the ball will either stop or waver from the line, but it keeps rolling slowly on into the cup. It's a last minute reprieve, that precious deuce, and there's an even chance on the 311 yard 37th, a hole the right hand shore of which is dented with the pictiferous bunkers native to McLean's home heath.

It takes the American, Fischer, to show the Scot, McLean, how to drive those rearing obstacles. His tee shot, one of the best of the week, is on the velvet, only 50 yards short of the putting surface. McLean almost pours his into one of the bunkers, but it clears and rolls on to the fairway, 50 yards back of Fischer. McLean's pitch appears good as it strikes short of the flag, but wanders on into the shallow sand at the rear; Fischer's second is little more than a high chip. It falls 20 feet short of the pin. McLean, whose only superior in coolness this week has been Fischer, calmly flicks his ball onto the green, two feet from the cup.

Brings Title to Mid-West.

McLean is never permitted to hole that two foot putt, for Fischer wins the hole and the championship by dropping his putt for a third straight birdie, climaxing a finish such as the amateur never has seen.

The shy Fischer today not only avoided what might have been a 1936 American sports catastrophe, but also became the first middle western product to win the amateur since Harri-

Sox Rained Out; Play Two Games Today

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 19.—Rain fell on the local baseball premises today and the White Sox were able to do nothing about preserving second place in the American league. The Browns officials, who always have the welcome sign handy for double-headers, really wanted to play because of the lateness of the season, but there was not a chance. The postponement, however, involved no financial loss. There were not 200 customers present when the game was abandoned.

The washout will mean a double-header next week for Chicago fans. The game will be transferred to Comiskey Park as part of a double-header Saturday or Sunday in the concluding series of the season. It could not be put on here tomorrow because a double-header already is on the books. If tomorrow's two games are washed out they will be played here Monday, which at present stands as an open date in the schedule.

Kennedy and Lyons.

Vernon Kennedy, who was supposed to pitch today, will be one of the Sox operatives tomorrow. The other game will be entrusted to Ted Lyons, who before old age finally envelopes him completely hopes to know how it feels to be a member of a first division team. Ted has been waiting since the spring of 1923, when he joined the Sox, for that comforting sensation. Kennedy, if he can get the Sox back on a winning basis after their three successive defeats, will have twenty-two victories to his credit, a total now boasted by only one other pitcher in the league Tommy Bridges of the Tigers.

Mr. Jim Dykes, who manages the Sox, was still burning today as the result of decisions by Umpire Lou Kolls yesterday. The present situation, so far as Dykes is concerned, isn't one of those temporary conditions which frequently arise between umpires and managers. Dykes really is stirred up and is going to make another howl to league headquarters. He made one about Kolls several weeks ago and the latter was properly censured. Kolls revealed this yesterday when he called Dykes a "front office man."

Kolls Says He's Tough.

Kolls also was guilty of another act which Dykes intends to report. The umpire informed Dykes after yesterday's game that he would knock the ears off Mule Haas if the latter didn't cease his uncomplimentary comment from the bench. Kolls added he hoped Dykes would convey the information to Haas. Dykes then made some choice comment of his own, but the umpire refused to issue a new challenge to include the Sox boss. All Haas said to Kolls after an apparently bad decision was "Death takes a holiday."

If the Sox play their double-header here tomorrow they will leave right after work for Cleveland, where they can loaf Monday prior to two single games with the Indians.

Johnny Fischer, new national amateur champion, is carried off course after his 37th hole victory over Jock McLean. An excited crowd mills around.

Skeldon was hurt when he swung back of the line and was struck in the eye by the ball as it was passed from center.

Rice Opens Football Season with 33-0 Victory

Corpus Christi, Tex., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Rice, playing its first game of the season, scored a 33 to 0 victory over the Texas College of Arts and Industries today. Texas A. & I. threatened only once, late in the fourth quarter when Lindell Ramey, center, intercepted a Rice pass and ran 40 yards before being downed on Rice's 15 yard line.

Warren Giles Gets MacPhail Post with Reds

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Powel Crosley Jr., president of the Cincinnati Reds, tonight named Warren C. Giles, president of the International league, as vice president and general manager of the Reds to succeed Larry S. MacPhail, resigned.

Giles also is president of the Rochester club of the International league, a farm club of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Crosley said Sam Breadon, president of the Cardinals, and Branch Rickey, vice president, had released Giles from a 5 year contract to start next January.

Assumes Post Nov. 1.

Giles will assume his new position Nov. 1, the effective date of MacPhail's resignation, but he will act in an advisory capacity with MacPhail and Crosley in the meantime.

He will continue as president of the International league until the December meeting at which his successor will be named.

Crosley withheld information on the terms of the contract Giles signed with the club. The announcement of his appointment came at the end of an all day conference and following a day in which Giles conferred at length at St. Louis with Cardinal officials.

Crosley, in a statement, said Giles was selected to succeed MacPhail "after a survey of the entire baseball field." He said he regarded Giles as "the outstanding man" among the younger baseball executives and felt that Giles' eleven years of experience with the Cardinals "would be of benefit in connection with our efforts to recruit new players."

Native of Illinois.

Crosley and Giles said present policies of the club would continue. The farms system built by MacPhail will be continued and expanded, they said.

A native of Bureau county, Illinois, where he was born May 28, 1896, Giles became president of the Moline, Ill., club of the Three-Eye league November, 1919, serving three seasons and winning the pennant in 1921. He was business manager of the St. Joseph club of the Western league from 1923 through 1925 and president of the Syracuse, N. Y., club of the International league in 1926 and 1927.

He became president of the Rochester club in 1928.

He started his baseball career in 1885 with Chattanooga of the Southern league, later playing with Lincoln, Neb.; Buffalo, N. Y., Des Moines, Ia.; Sioux City, Ia.; Brooklyn, Pittsburgh, St. Louis Nationals, Cleveland, Milwaukee, Peoria, Columbus, Little Rock, and Chattanooga.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

George Halas, Curley Lambeau and L. H. Joannes are three of the most worried men in America today. Mr. Halas is coach of the Chicago Bears. His team opens its National league season at Green Bay this afternoon. Mr. Lambeau is coach of the Green Bay Packers. His team faces the Bears. Mr. Joannes is president of the Packers and he is aging a year every hour trying to devise a means of accommodating 25,000 fans in 12,000 pews.

It will be the 34th league meeting between the two western division rivals, for years two of the outstanding teams in professional football. Their series has been one of the most popular in the post graduate game, but it seldom has aroused the interest manifest in today's contest. Operators of a special train from Chicago were forced to turn down reservations early in the week because of a scarcity of tickets to the game. The Packers management utilized all available space in the small Green Bay Stadium to erect temporary seats and still its accommodations are inadequate.

Important in Title Race.

The contest itself promises to be worthy of all the traditions of the series which has been marked by intense rivalry and spectacular play. Aside from its entertainment value, it is of the utmost importance to the participants in their fight for the western division championship. Green Bay, already victorious over the Chicago Cardinals, gives evidence of becoming the strongest eleven in the league.

The Bears, untried except in two All-Star contests which amounted to exhibitions, are faced with the necessity of regaining championship heights to maintain their popularity and prestige. A victory today will serve the twofold purpose of auspiciously launching their own campaign and slowing down the Packers, who have combined freshmen material with a new offense to effect a formidable attack.

It is possible that out of today's game will come the new league champion. The Bears will rely largely on veterans to stem the spinners and weak side thrust off an unbalanced line with which the Packers, previously disciples of the Notre Dame system, piled up 174 yards by rushing in whipping the Cardinals, 10 to 7, last week. Running plays against the Cardinals, the league's champion defensive eleven last year, brought the Packers 10 first downs.

Bears Scout Packers.

Fifteen of the Bears accompanied Coach Halas to Green Bay last week on a scouting expedition and have a first hand knowledge of the plays which baffled the Cardinals. The line which will have the first opportunity to stop the plunging of George Sauer, Clark Hinkle, and Hank Bruder will be composed of six veterans and one rookie, Joe Stydahar, giant West Virginia tackle. Stydahar was a star in the All-Star game at Soldiers' field on Sept. 2. In that contest he became thoroughly acquainted with the professional type of play as he wreaked havoc with the champion Detroit Lions' running plays.

Halas will start the veterans, Bill Karr and Bill Hewitt, at end, with George Musso, an all-league tackle, teaming with Stydahar. Jack Carlson, who is starting his ninth season with the Bears, and Joe Zeller, a former Packer, will man the guards, with Ookie Miller, old Purdue star, at center. This combination in other years has been a formidable offensive unit. If it hits its stride today, the Bears expect to send veteran backs on long gallops through the Packer secondary.

Feathers, Sisk to Start.

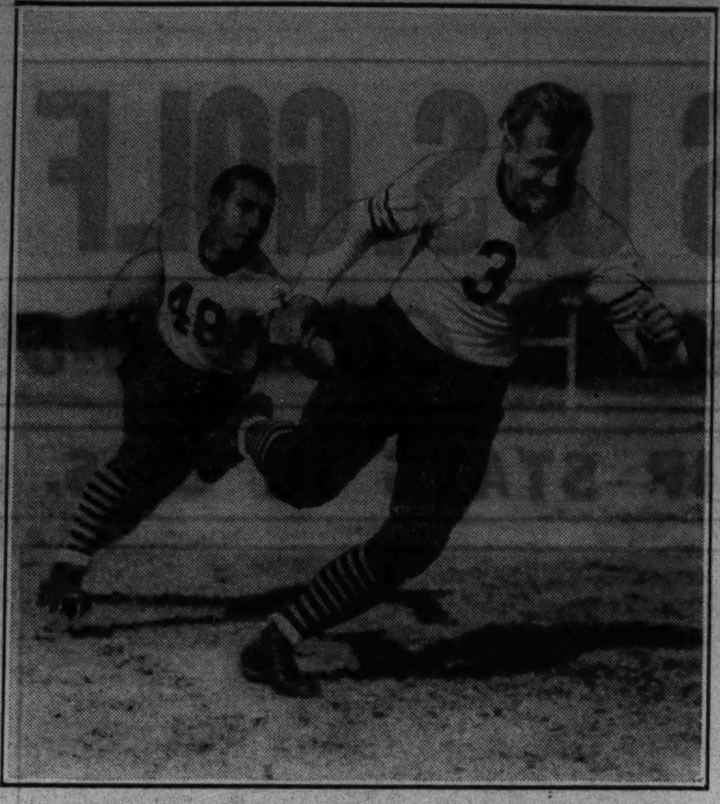
Beattie Feathers, who in 1934 set an all-time record for ground gain in his first year with the Bears, and John Sisk, fleet Marquette star, who is especially adept at pass defense, will start at the half backs with Jack Manders at full back. Bernie Masterson will call the signals. Later Carl Brumbaugh, for years one of the league's greatest quarter backs, and Bronko Nagurski, line crushing full back, who expects to take up where he left off when arthritis laid him low early last fall, will be called upon. Brumbaugh will be making a comeback after a year's leave of absence to coach at West Virginia.

The Packers' chief running threats will be Sauer, who was handicapped with injuries last year, his first in professional football, and Bob Monnett, the pint sized speedster, who gained 36 yards in five attempts against the Cardinals last week.

Cardinals Go to La Crosse.

While the Bears depend upon their customary powerhouse attack to beat back the fast moving Packers, the Cardinals will play an exhibition game at La Crosse, Wis., preparatory to opening the Lions' season next week at Detroit. The only other league game scheduled for today brings Boston Redskins against the surprising Eagles at Philadelphia. The Redskins were upset by Pittsburgh, 10 to 0, last week while the Eagles were scoring a spectacular, 10 to 7, victory over the New York Giants. Philadelphia, greatly strengthened and completely reorganized, is the favorite, a most unusual circumstance in the pro league.

THESE BEARS ARE OUT TO REGAIN PRO TITLE



Two brilliant backs, Beattie Feathers, half back (left), and Bronko Nagurski, full back, are on their way as they practice for season opener against the Packers at Green Bay today. Nagurski is reported in his old time form and has recovered from injuries which hampered his play last season.

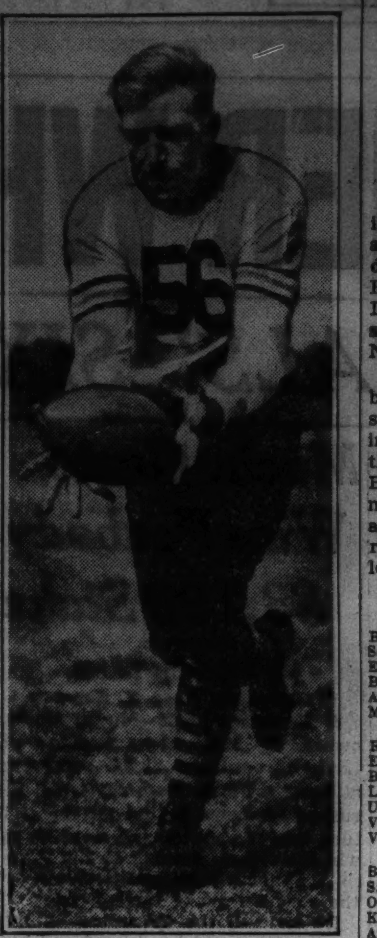
Ray Nolting, former Cincinnati half back, and a newcomer to the Bears, is expected to prove the kicking sensation of the National league. The ball travels far when Ray boots it.

Jack Manders, half back, a Minnesota product and now more famous for his field goal achievements with the Bears, is off on a run that's hard to stop.



Bill Hewitt of Michigan, one of the greatest ends in pro football, is ready for another brilliant season.

John Sisk, former Marquette half back, who after several seasons in a relief role for the Bears, has won himself a starting assignment.

Cooper Is Star as Wolverines Show Added Speed and Power

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Michigan's first scrimmage of the year this afternoon revealed the Wolverines with more offensive power and more speed than last year. In the first few minutes of the practice game a tentative first team which had Sweet, Smithers, Cooper, and Levine in the backfield, showed its heels to the second team and rolled up a 9 to 0 score with a safety and a touchdown.

Bob Cooper, Detroit sophomore, lived up to all that has ben said about him as a triple threat back. He reeled off a 75 yard run that took him almost to the goal line, threw a 20 yard pass to Smick for a touchdown, and later turned in several more long runs.

Offensively he was the star, but Russell Hook, a halfback from Grand Rapids, sent his stock soaring by galloping 20 yards through the first team for a touchdown with an amazing burst of speed. It was Hook who overtook Cooper on his long run and prevented him from scoring.

WILDCATS ROUT FRESHMEN.

Northwestern's first and second varsity football elevens scored 70 points on ten touchdowns and as many points after touchdowns in a combination scrimmage against the varsity reserves and freshmen at Dyche stadium yesterday.

The scoring was distributed among seven players with Steve Toth, Ollie Adelman, lettermen, and Jack Kaufman, a junior, playing his first year of football, scoring two touchdowns each. Don Heap, Don Geyer, Clarence Hinton, and Steve Zitko went over for the others. Zitko, an end, scored after taking a 25 yard pass from Heap.

All of the scoring with the exception of a two yard touchdown plunge by Geyer was accomplished by runs ranging from 15 to 60 yards.

Coach Waldorf and his aids were particularly pleased with the showing of Hinton and Kaufman at right half back. Both players broke loose for long runs. Kaufman, who won his letter at a pitcher on the baseball team last spring, has never played football before. In his first scrimmage yesterday he made two touchdown runs of 60 and 35 yards each. Hinton scored on a 25 yard sprint.

OHIO REGULARS WIN, 36-0.

Columbus, O., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Ohio State's football squad played its second regulation game of the week this morning with the regulars trouncing the second stringers, 36 to 0.

The first team, composed of Cumiskey and Wendt at ends, Hamrick and Gales, tackles; Smith and Zarnas at guard, and Wolf at center; Dye, quarter back; Bettridge and Booth, half backs, and MacDonald, full back. This team scored one touchdown in the first quarter.

At the start of the second quarter Coach Francis Schmidt sent in a new team composed of West and Crow, ends; Reams and Schoenbaum, tackles; Maggied and Chrisinger, guards, and Wuellner at center with Wasylik at quarter, Kabealo and Antenucci at half back, and Rabb at full. This combination added another touchdown in the quarter. Mixing up the players in the last half, 14 points were added in the third quarter and 9 in the last.

BADGER SOPHOMORES IMPROVE.

The eligibility status of Eddie Jankowski, veteran full back from Milwaukee, will not be known before Monday, it was learned tonight.

PURDUE TRIES AERIAL GAME.

Although still worried over the serious condition of Lowell Decker, the football camp was slightly cheered by reports that he was holding his own in the hospital. Pat Malaska, the other Boilermaker still confined to the hospital, was showing steady progress.

The coaches continued their juggling of assignments in their effort to present the strongest possible combination for the season's opener with Ohio university here a week from today. Fred Stalcup, converted quarter back, performing at left half back, turned in several sparkling runs, while John Drake, shifted to right half for the afternoon, drove at full power.

Tomorrow will find a delegation of Purdue players and coaches headed by Noble Kizer, athletic director and head football coach, journeying to Evansville to pay final tribute to Tommy McGannon, second victim of last Saturday's shower house fire, at funeral services at 9 o'clock Monday morning. The representatives of the squad will be Capt. George Bell and four of McGannon's former back field mates, Cecil Isbell, John Drake, Fred Stalcup, and Wayne Gift. Memorial funeral services for McGannon will be held here simultaneously with the funeral held at Evansville.

Smith, Irish Captain, Quits; Name Lautar

Notre Dame, Ind., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—John Paul Lautar, Moundsville, W. Va., senior, was elected captain of the Notre Dame team today to succeed William Robert [Bill] Smith, Hackettstown, N. J., who retired from the captaincy this morning after Dr. James E. McMeel, team physician, had ordered him out of football for the year.

Smith was elected without having played in 1935 because of an operation for the removal of gall stones. He underwent another operation in January, after his election, and was unable to participate in spring practice. Fearing that a bump might lead to serious consequences, Dr. McMeel refused to sanction Smith's participation.

Lauter was elected two hours later at the daily noon meeting. He is one of three members of the squad who have won two monograms and one of two returning regulars. He is an honor student in the college of engineering.

Coach Layden ordered another stiff scrimmage today, in the wake of which several lineup changes are expected.

Lautar distinguished himself in the scrimmage by giving the varsity its winning touchdown in a 14 to 6 encounter against the second team. Early in the scrimmage, a pass from center eluded Jack McCarthy, junior left half back, and rolled over the goal line where Lautar dropped on it for a touchdown. Andy Puplis, quarter back, place kicked the extra point.

Bunny Megin, senior quarter-back with the white shirted varsity, returned a Blue punt 80 yards for another touchdown, Ben Binkowski adding the placement.

The second Blue team scored on a three yard plunge by Ed Simonich at the end of a 55 yard march, which featured the running of Bunny McCormick and Russ Nickel, half backs.

SHERMAN STARS FOR MAROONS.

Solly Sherman, former Marshal High school star, ripped off the best run of the afternoon as Chicago's Maroons went through their second scrimmage session yesterday. The Maroons are preparing to meet Lawrence college at the Midway Saturday.

Sherman, who led the city league in scoring three years ago, slid off the left tackle on the second play of the day for a 75 yard touchdown dash against the reserves. Shortly thereafter he made a hard tackle under a punt and retired dizzy, but uninjured.

Added to the casualty list was Ned Bartlett, veteran half back, who sustained a muscle sprain. Along with Lew Hamity and Clarence Wright, the other two sidelines inhabitants, he should be ready for more action by Wednesday.

Sherman's run was the only score while the varsity worked as a unit. Although Warren Skoning and Fred Lehnhardt made good gains, an epidemic of fumbling halted the advances.

ILLINI PRACTICE CURTAILED.

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Registration curtailed Illinois football practice today, but most of the candidates reported for a short workout. Warning that DePaul would outweigh the Illini was given by Coach Zuppke, who anticipates a hard game next Saturday.

In order that Illinois and DePaul may not be totally unprepared, Zuppke and Coach Jim Kelly have agreed to exchange formations from which plays will start. Zuppke has followed this custom in all opening games.

GOPHERS HOLD SCRIMMAGE.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Head Coach Bernie Bierman used thirty-nine players on the varsity today as the University of Minnesota went through their last scrimmage before leaving for Seattle Monday to battle the University of Washington next Saturday.

Tuffy Thompson, subbing at lett half for the injured Andy Uram, was a standout with two touchdown runs. He scored one on an 80 yard run, the other on a short plunge. Bierman kept Uram, Full Back Whitman Rork, Bud Svendsen, center, and Bob Weld, guard, all suffering minor injuries, out of scrimmage.

MARQUETTE STARS IN FORM.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Capt. Ray Bulvid and the Guepe twins, Marquette university back field stars, gave another demonstration of their prowess today as the varsity engaged in ninety minutes of scrimmage with the freshmen. Bulvid and Art, and Al Guepe, aided by the blocking of Ward Cuff and Ray Sonnenberger plus strong offensive work by the line, ran wild through the frosh team.

SIMMONS LEADS IOWA.

Iowa City, Ia., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Ozzie Simmons was back in form today as the Iowa varsity ripped through the seconds for three touchdowns in the hardest scrimmage of the year. Simmons danced his way through the reserves for several long runs as the Hawkeyes displayed the best form they have shown in practice sessions.

Bush Lamb, veteran quarter back and leading punting prospect, scrimmaged with the regulars for the first time today, with Wagler, Hild and Balazs also appearing in the regular back field. Balazs, who made several twisting runs, appears headed for much service in the back field this season.

RUBAIYAT AND GOSSOON II. WIN YACHT EVENTS

A fleet of 59 sailing yachts competed in the Chicago Yacht club's annual autumn regatta and Commodore Sheldon Clark race yesterday off Navy Pier, won by Rubaiyat and Gossoon II. on corrected times in their respective divisions. Only one boat, Norwester, withdrawing.

A spectacular finish was recorded between Bagheera, a 55 foot cruising schooner, and Warrior, a 50 foot racing sloop. On the last leg, a reach to the finish line, John T. [Bud] Snite, Bagheera's owner-skipper, spread more than 3,000 square feet of canvas and Bagheera started to close up Warrior's lead. Bagheera won by the length of its bowsprit. Summaries:

SURPRISE FOR 12,000 RACEGOERS—Mucho Gusto (No. 9), owned by Mrs. Kirby Ramsey of Louisville, wins the Francis S. Peabody Memorial handicap after being overlooked by Lincoln Fields gathering. So many wagered on the entry of Capt. Cal. and Rock X. that Mucho Gusto and Jocky L. Haas went to the post with odds of 16 to 1 being quoted against them. At the finish Mucho Gusto was a comfortable winner, Silk Mask was second, and Noble Count, after making up ground in the stretch, was third. The entry which was backed down to even money was nowhere.

Carl Hubbell, New York Giants' star pitcher, and leading National league hurler on his record of 25 victories and six losses this season, has earned ranking with the great baseball tossers of all time. At the left (1) Carl is doubled up at the start of his peculiar but effective windup. Hubbell at top of windup (2). The great lefty is about to let one go (3). HUBBELL HURLS 25TH VICTORY AS GIANTS WIN, 9-1

Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Carl Hubbell all but hurled the New York Giants into the National league pennant today as he set the Dodgers down with four hits to win his fifteenth straight victory, 9 to 1.

While his mates were firing a ten hit attack, which included homers by Mel Ott and Joe Moore, at Van Lingle Mungo, Dodger ace, Hubbell stopped Brooklyn cold in every inning but the second to record his twenty-fifth victory of the campaign against six defeats.

The triumph stretched the Giants' league lead to 5½ games over the St. Louis Cardinals, who climbed back into second place by defeating the Cubs today. The Giants now have to win only four of their remaining nine games to take the flag.

For four innings Mungo outpitched the masterful Hubbell. But the Giants drove in five runs in the fifth, and from that inning on were never in danger.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Detroit whipped Cleveland today for the third straight time, 7 to 3, and moved into second place in the American league standings. The Tigers took second from the idle Chicago White Sox.

After Gehrig's single had aided a three run rally in the seventh which enabled the Yanks to come from behind and tie the score, Bill Dickey broke up the game in the ninth with his 22d homer of the year. Gehrig, who had a double as well as his single, received a scroll before the game in recognition of the greatest iron man record the big leagues have ever known.

Lee Will Pitch Against J. Dean for Cubs Today

Bill Lee and Dizzy Dean will be starting pitchers in today's installment of the Cub-Cardinal cut throat series, which is giving the Giants much hearty laughter.

Advance sales indicate a near capacity crowd at Wrigley field this afternoon. Weather like yesterday's will be just the right dish to assure a great turnout for the season's last National league Sunday show in Chicago.

The great Diz has far above his quota of rest. He hasn't even warmed up in the dugout during the last two days the Cards have been here. And that's backed up with an off day Thursdray.

The White Sox and the Cubs haven't done much in each's last performance to smoke up the probable city series. But the demand for the series continues great despite the aroma of morning glory blossoms and smelling salts.

Manager Frankie Frisch looks cleaner these days than he's ever looked in his career. Dressed in a new and spotless uniform, he has exposed himself to dust and grass stain only twice in the series. He emerged to growl briefly at the umpires.

Homer with 3 On Drops Cubs from 2d Place to the plate too late to keep Jurges from scoring. Herman then ended the inning by hitting into a double play launched by Durocher.

Hartnett Knocks Homer.

Foolish base running by Demaree cost the Cubs at least one run in the sixth. Frankie opened with a single to left and moved up on Hack's sacrifice. Demaree got the notion that he'd like to be on third and started running for that station. Unfortunately for his big idea Gutteridge was waiting for him with the ball when he arrived. Hartnett then made Frankie look sillier than ever by knocking the ball over the left field wall. Allen popped to Garibaldi.

French's seconds were able to keep him on his feet until the seventh. Then, with one out, Garibaldi, J. Martin and Medwick knocked successive singles to fill the bases, and Mize singled to right to make it 13 hits off French. Larry was led away, and C. Davis took his place. Davis walked Durocher on four pitches, again filling the bases. Gutteridge tapped to Hack and Medwick was forced at the plate. Then Rip Collins batted for Ogrodowski and slapped a homer into the right field stands, scoring behind Mize, Durocher and Gutteridge. McGee flied to Demaree.

The Cubs got a run in their seventh on a pinch double by Gill and Galan's third single. The inning over, Bryant became the third Chicago pitcher.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Babe Phelps of the Dodgers, the only man giving Paul Waner of the Pirates a fight for the National league batting crown, lost considerable ground yesterday and gave his chief adversary an 11 point lead going into the final week of the season. While Waner was getting one hit in four times up, falling one point to .378, Phelps went hitless in four chances to fall off five points to .367. In the American league Bill Dickey of the Yankees moved into third place, getting three hits in five trips to the plate for a three point rise to .363, replacing Gerald Walker of the Tigers. YANKS EXTEND LONG-HIT TOTAL TO 562, RECORD

New York, Sept. 19.—(AP)—The New York Yankees broke another major league slugging record today—their fourth in a week—by surpassing the mark for most long hits by one club in one season.

When Bill Dickey poled out a homer and Lou Gehrig and Johnny Saltzgaver hit doubles in today's game with the Senators, it boosted the Yankee total of long hits to 562 for the year. The previous mark was 560, set by the Yankees of 1930.

In the last week, the Yanks have also shattered the major league home run, run scoring by a pennant winner, and extra base records. Their total for the season now is nearing a dozen.

Two Purdue Players Die of Burns Review of the Week's Sports

Death stalked the sports pages last week when a gasoline explosion in training quarters claimed the lives of two Purdue university players and put four others in the hospital. The dead athletes were Carl Dahlbeck, 25, veteran guard from Lyndonville, Vt., who died twelve hours after the accident from burns and shock, and Tom McGannon, 20, star junior half back from Evansville, Ind., who suffered a relapse on Tuesday night and succumbed on Thursday morning after two blood transfusions.

The injured were James Maloney, Oak Park, Ill., reserve guard; John Drake, Chicago, star full back; Pat Malaska, Crawfordsville, Ind., star basketball guard and football half back, and Lowell Decker of Reading, Mich., a substitute full back. Drake rejoined the squad for practice early in the week. The three others remained confined, with Decker, the most severely burned, still in a serious condition.

The explosion occurred in the shower room of the university's engineering camp, twelve miles down the river from the campus, where the team had gathered for practice with conference approval. Gasoline used in stripping tape from the players' ankles spilled over the floor and flowed down to the heater. The players were left standing in flames. Dahlbeck suffered a dislocated shoulder attempting to escape. Drake escaped more serious injury when he plunged into a swimming pool.

Charges Football Players Paid Like Actors.

Special Assistant Attorney General M. L. Eustace, pleading the government suit for possession of taxes collected on athletic admissions at the University of Georgia and Georgia Tech, told Federal Judge E. Marvin Underwood that intercollegiate football is a business apart from scholastic activities and charged that "football players are paid the same as actors to put on a show." Judge Underwood, whose decision against the universities in a previous hearing was reversed by the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals, took the case under advisement.

The same day football players at Susquehanna university, where A. A. Stagg Jr., is coach, struck, demanding that the school reimburse them for time lost at their jobs in a nearby state colony for epileptics. After meeting all necessary collegiate fees and board and room, their pay checks left them only two dollars a week during the football season, the players claimed.

Eagles, Pirates Win in Pro Football Upsets.

Two surprises marked the opening of the National Professional Football league season, the Philadelphia Eagles beating the New York Giants, defending champions of the eastern division, 10 to 7, and the Pittsburgh Pirates conquering the Boston Redskins, 10 to 0. At Green Bay the Packers beat the Chicago Cardinals, 10 to 7.

Full Back Dave Smukler, star of last year's Temple university team, passed 12 yards to Eggs Manske, former Northwestern end, who lateraled 20 yards to Carter for Philadelphia's touchdown then passed to Manske later to put the ball in place for Reese's 13 yard field goal to beat the Giants.

George Kalasic, substitute guard, scored nine of the Pirates' points, running 26 yards with a Boston fumble for the touchdown and kicking a 22 yard field goal.

An interference penalty on a long pass, which gave them the ball on the 2 yard line, enabled the Packers to tie the Cardinals in the third quarter. Tackle Ernie Smith won the game in the last two minutes with a field goal. The Cardinals scored on a 36 yard pass, Sarboe to McBride.

Fifty-five thousand saw the three games.

Sox Lose Second Place to Detroit Tigers.

With the American league championship won the New York Yankees were expected to quiet down, but stubbornly kept up their bombardment of enemy pitchers to win three games in as many starts last week. The fight for second place, involving four teams, narrowed down to a dog fight when the White Sox, leading by three games, lost to the Yankees at home and then journeyed to St. Louis to take two whippings. The Sox yesterday were kept idle by rain and dropped to third place as the Tigers won.

In the National league the St. Louis Cardinals lost their big opportunity to overhaul the Giants when they lost two of three games in New York, achieving their only victory in a double-header which attracted 64,417 spectators. The Pirates compiled the best showing, winning six and losing two games.

The Cubs slid into third place in the National league yesterday by losing to the St. Louis Cardinals after having moved into second position on Friday when they beat the Cardinals in the opening game of their series. The week's record of games won and lost:

AMERICAN LEAGUE.	W.	L.	NATIONAL LEAGUE.	W.	L.
New York	4	0	Pittsburgh	5	2
Detroit	6	1	New York	4	2
Cleveland	4	3	Chicago	4	3
Washington	3	3	Brooklyn	4	2
Chicago	2	3	St. Louis	3	4
Boston	2	3	Philadelphia	2	4
St. Louis	2	4	Cincinnati	2	4
Philadelphia	0	5	Boston	1	4

Gunnar Hockert, Finnish Olympic champion, set a world's record for the 3,000 meter run in Stockholm, running the distance in 8:18.8, three and six-tenths seconds faster than the old record established by Henry Nielsen.

The Kodak Park team of Rochester, N. Y., won the national men's softball championship in a tournament conducted in Chicago, defeating the Weaver-Walls team of Cleveland, 2 to 0, in the final game. The women's championship was won by the National Screw Manufacturing company team of Cleveland, which beat the Montgomery V-8s of Chicago, 16 to 12.

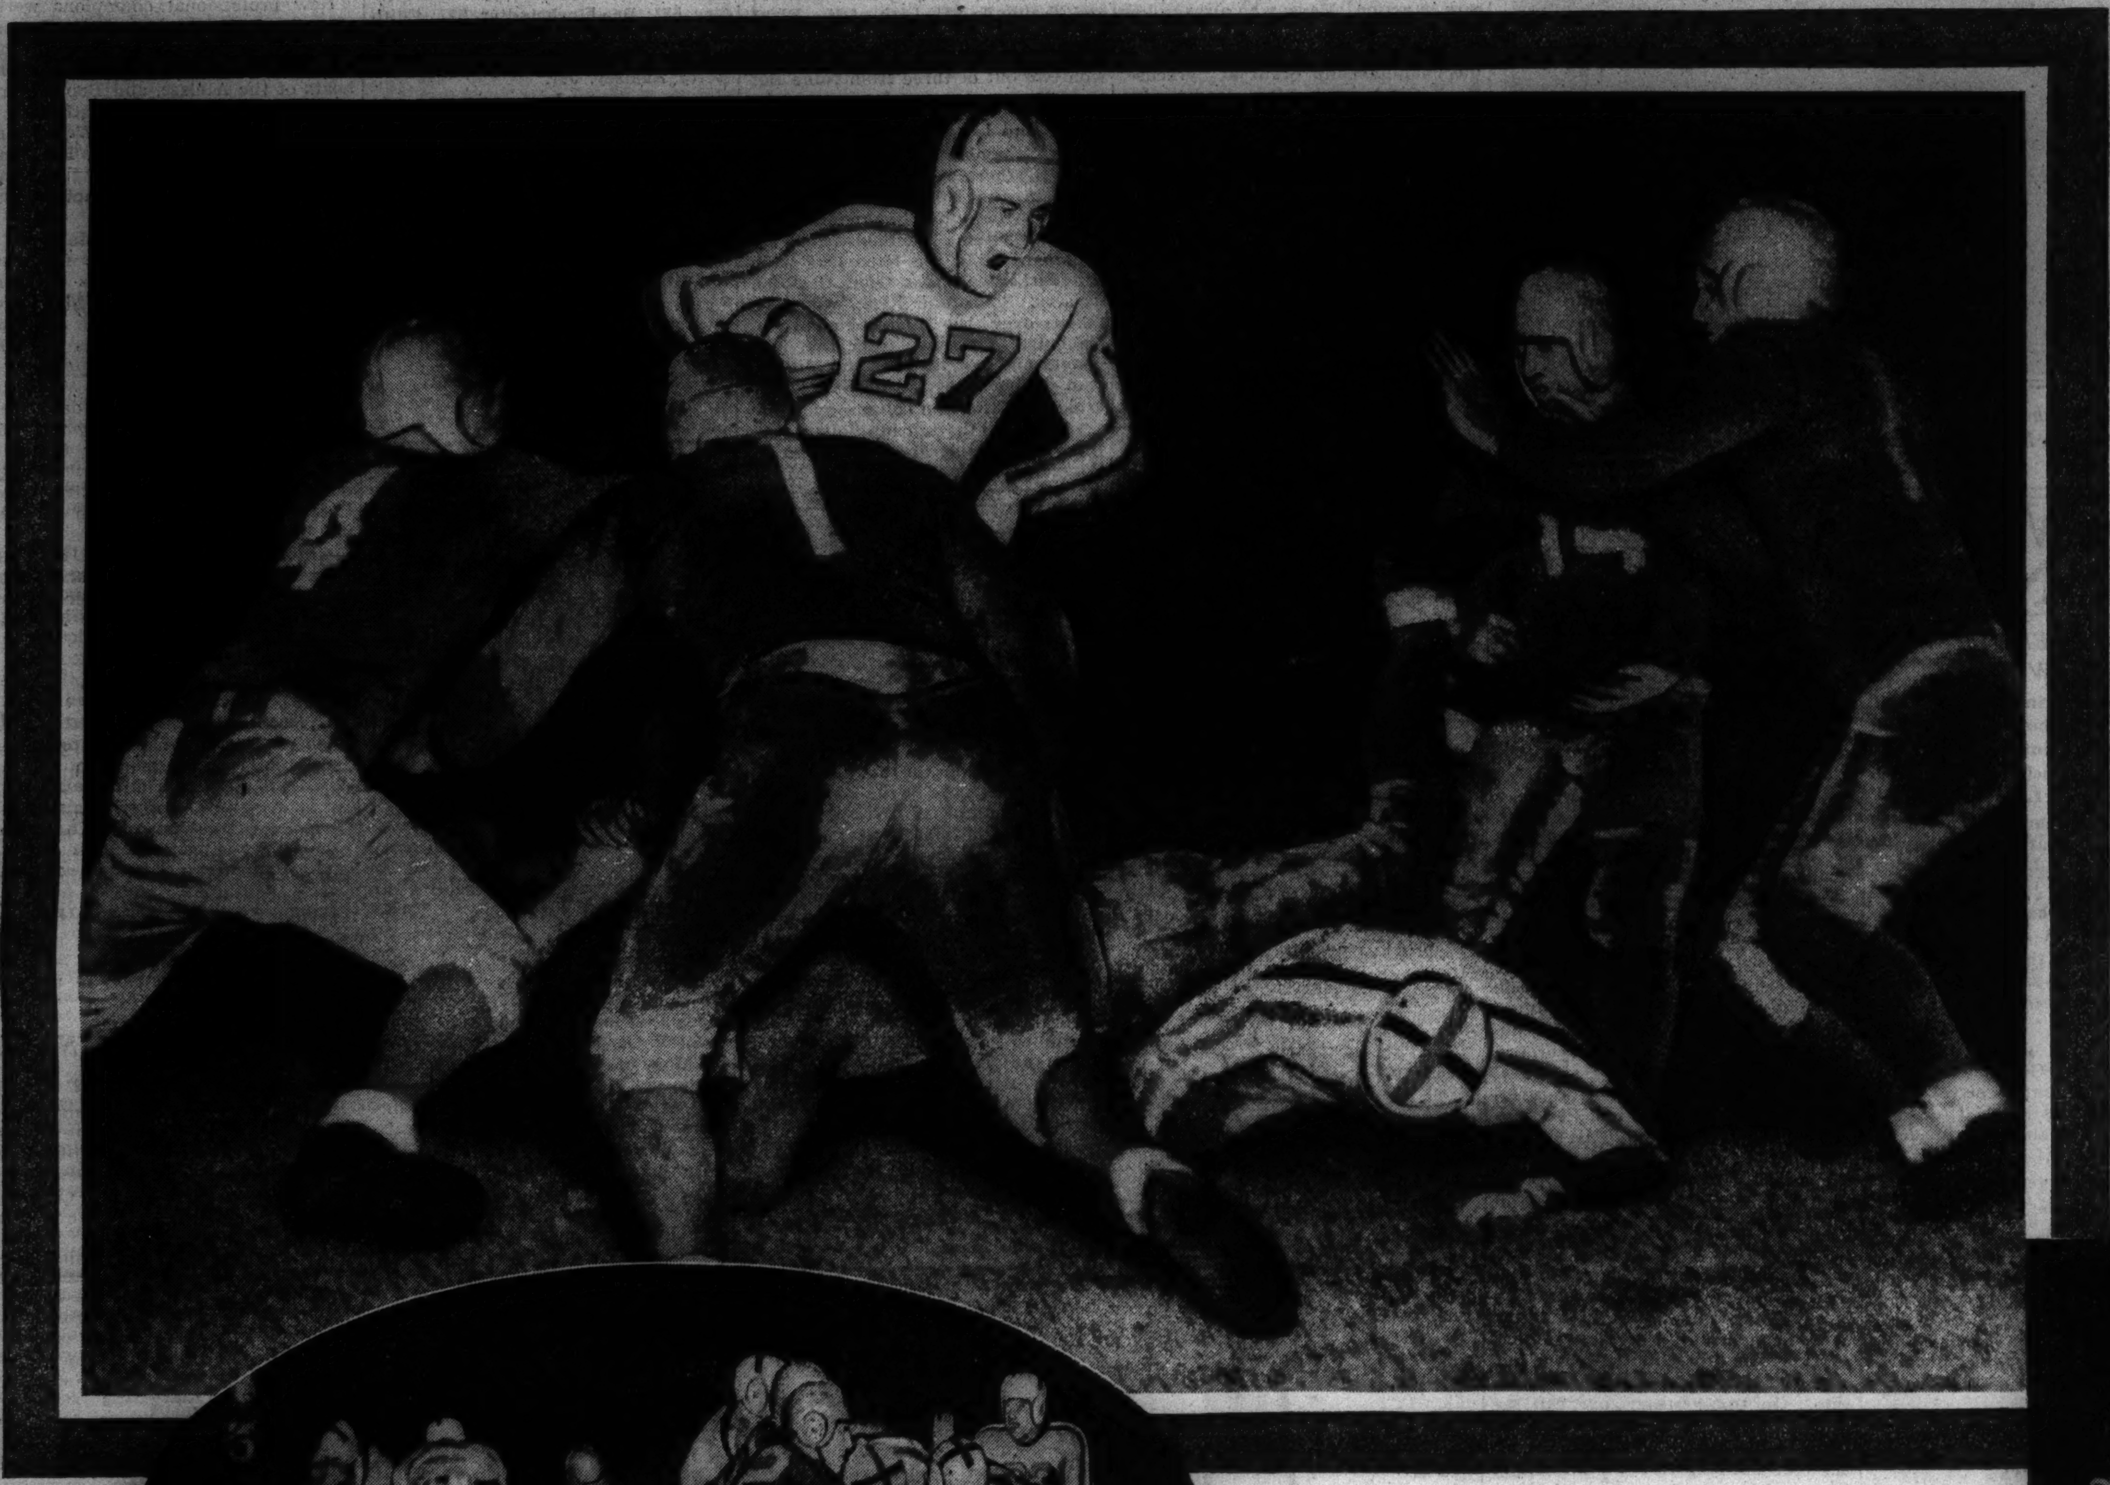
77% VOTE FOR VINTAGE TOBACCO'S FLAVOR



CHICAGO, ILL., SEPT. 2—Vintage tobacco is always in championship form... Mellow taste puts it in the winning column every time. 220 fans at the All-Star Football Game voted White Owl its 17th straight taste victory.

We picked smokers at random from the crowd... gave each two unidentified cigars—a Vintage White Owl and another, representing the leading nationally advertised brands.

No names or familiar bands on the cigars... not a thing to prejudice the smokers... Taste alone counted. Each man smoked both cigars, then indicated the one he liked best. 77% preferred the Vintage White Owl's mildness.

Wherever you are, you can get the same mild, uniform cigar that won these taste tests. It costs but 5¢ at your nearest cigar store.

ALL STARS . . . a sparkling array of talent. Top-notch football—a tie score. 80,000 fans at Soldier Field in Chicago witnessed the "dream game" of football—the outstanding college stars against professional champions. And up in the stands the fans were giving White Owl another taste-test victory.

EVANSTON HIGH ELEVEN DEFEATS MISHAWAKA, 13-0

Mishawaka, Ind., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Evanston, Ill., High school defeated Mishawaka, Indian state football champion in 1935, 13 to 0, here this afternoon.

Worthington and Jewett led the Evanston offensive, the former scoring both touchdowns. The husky full back drove through in the second quarter for the first score and Mudzeonawski kicked the extra point. In the third quarter Worthington took the ball over center for a touchdown after his teammates had carried the ball to the four yard line. The kick for extra point was wide.

Mishawaka threatened only once, when Wardlow raced 50 yards to the Evanston 20 yard line. Two line plays carried the ball to the eight yard line, where Mishawaka fumbled.

Evanston nearly scored a third touchdown on a freak play. Canericci, Mishawaka full back, passed just as the gun for the half was fired. The toss was intercepted, but all except one Mishawaka man began walking off the field thinking that the half was over. The Evanston back dashed to the one yard line where he was downed. Summary:

Open Season on Grouse Off in Wisconsin

BY BOB BECKER.

Sportsmen who look forward to a few days' hunting ruffed grouse in Wisconsin every season are going to be disappointed this fall. According to the regulations issued recently by the Wisconsin conservation commission there will be no open season on grouse this year. The commission has held its meetings, decided about game conditions, and has spoken. Not only is grouse on the prohibited list, but the commission also considers it advisable to close the prairie chicken and sharp tailed grouse season this fall. There will, however, be an open season on pheasants in many of the counties starting Oct. 17 and continuing through Oct. 22. [A bag limit of two is permitted with four in possession.] The quail is on the closed list.

Deer Season Opens Nov. 21.

Looking over these regulations and those of other states it doesn't take any great amount of study to arrive at this conclusion: There are mighty few spots in this country where our game birds are increasing at a rapid rate. On the contrary, one can see the trend down hill with fewer game birds and tighter laws every year. It's true not only in one state but in many. Only the tough, smart, ring-necked pheasant seems to be holding its own or increasing its numbers in our game coverts. One wonders what a lot of sportsmen would do in the fall unless the hardy ringnecks were on deck, always getting along where quail and prairie chicken are unable to live.

Wisconsin has decreed that Nov. 21 to 27 will be the open season for buck deer in many northern counties. Some of the residents up there are annoyed about this law since there are certain counties that apparently wanted no open season. As one resort owner in northwest Wisconsin told us a few days ago:

Must Have Forked Horn.

"We voted 3 to 1 that we did not want an open season in this county. We'd rather keep our deer because they are an asset to our vacation country. Visitors get a thrill out of seeing many deer. Hunters who come up kill does, fawns, bucks—anything that moves in the woods. A majority of residents here don't want to see deer killed."

Under the Wisconsin season a hunter may kill one buck "with forked horn." Hunters figuring on shooting hunting deer in Wisconsin this fall should start now getting equipped with steel helmets and suits of armor that will turn bullets from high-power deer rifles. Indications are that there will be a record breaking crowd of hunters after bucks, including many nervous fingered shooters who shoot first and check on the target later.

Two Cricket Games Scheduled for Today

A brilliant array of drivers mounted in the fastest speed creations the automobile racing game knows will compete this afternoon at Roby speedway.

Among the pilots are Rex Mays, Pacific coast champion, Wild Bill Cummings, a former Indianapolis winner and always a spectacular figure; Ted Horn, second at Indianapolis last Memorial day; Shorty Cantlon, Detroit racing star and also a former Indianapolis winner, and George Connors, San Bernardino, Cal., holder of the mile and twenty-five mile dirt track record.

Match Race Is Carded.

A three cornered match race involving Mays, Cummings, and Horn will be the special event with a rich money prize and a special trophy for the winner. The race will be over a five mile distance on the winner take all basis.

The feature race today will be at fifty miles and will see t least twenty cars in action. Mays, who already has won two races at Roby this year, is the favorite. Marie Warmbier Will Bowl Tonight in All-Star League

BY HOWARD MARTIN.

Marie Warmbier, women's match bowling champion who toured the country last year, will make her debut in the second annual Women's All-Star league which will open tonight at the Woodlawn alleys. Entries include 16 of the leading feminine pin topplers of the city and most of them could make the average male bowler envy the way they pile in strikes and make their spares.

Miss Warmbier will be one of the favorites to win the championship, but she will have stiff opposition from Edith Kirg, last year's winner who averaged 189 for 120 games. Other strong contenders are Dorothy Burmeister, who was runner-up to Miss Kirg, and Bess Fender, third place winner. Ann Weiler as well as Miss Warmbier is a newcomer to the league. Tonight's matches, which will start at 8 o'clock and be rolled across eight alleys, are:

Randolph League.

Members of the Randolph league lost no time warming up to their tasks on the opening night with the result that several lofty totals were recorded. The best count was 680 by Lippe of Roosevelt Brewing, which took three games from Live Stock Press. Next in the individual ratings were Flanagan of the Bismarck hotel, a new entry, with 672; Lellinger, 660, and Traubnik, 651, both of the Birks, and Lorenz of Burlington Route, 630. The Mineralites, perennial champions, won two out of three from None Better Ice Cream.

North End League.

The Schamberger Schlitz and the Birk Brothers remain tied for first place in the North End Traveling league by winning two games from their opposition. The Schlitz took the odd game from the Michelobs while the Birks won two from the Budweisers. Stack and Ryan, who have taken over the Schueneman-Flynn franchise, won two from the Waggoners and lost three to the Milfords in a double-header. The Samuelsons broke into the won column by taking a game from the Lincoln Squares and the Fox De Luxe dropped two to the Waggoners. Les Fuller of the Michelobs topped the individuals with a 675 series, followed by Roy Coles with 632, Joe Sinke with 619, and Bill Zelasko with 610. Tomorrow night's schedule:

Michelobs at Samuelsons, 7 p. m.; Birks vs. Waggoners at the Faets Bryn Mawr, 7 p. m.; Stack and Ryan vs. Schambergers at Harry Kaads, 7 p. m.; Fox De Luxe at Milford, 7 p. m.; Lincoln Squares at the Gold Coast, 9 p. m.

Here and There.

The sixteen team Tribune league started the season at Stack and Ryan's with Berny Boyle of the Black Press shooting high series of 592. Charles Scheisser of the Roto plant turned in the best game, 232. . . . The Republic Steel corporation began its season Friday evening with 16 teams in action at the Woodlawn alleys. C. J. Reiter is its president, J. Radnik vice president, and C. A. Steeves secretary treasurer. . . . Eight modernistic alleys were formally opened last night at the Stevenson Recreation. In all there now are 28 drives at the 79th and Cottage Grove Recreation, which also has opened a large clubroom for members of its leagues.

About the Women.

Two 600 series were shot as the Congress league of 100 women began its season at the Congress alleys. Dorothy Burmeister turned in games of 212, 210, and 189 for 611 and Ruth Albrecht upset the pins for a 606 total on games of 214, 202, and 190. Cecelia Grob had 597; Marie Warmbier, 583; Bee Hochstadter, 577; Edith Kirg, 571; Celia Rosecrans, 569; Lee Liepe, 548; Betty Kleine, 544, and Betty Ramsey, 541.

Windy City League.

Don Pinc helped the Strachan Coals get off to three victories in the Windy City Major league by scattering the pins for a 643 series. The Burlington Zephyrs were the other team to sweep its inaugural series. Jerry Peck of the Blazeks was second high individual with 627 and J. Burke of the Mineralites was third with 621. Bill Herrmans and Joe Wilman were next with 619 apiece. The schedule for tomorrow night:

Strachan Coal vs. Burlington Zephyrs; Soper Bros. vs. McKessons Old Crow; Mineralites vs. G. & W. Distillery; Tom Currans Blatz Beer vs. Thornton Beer; Keeley Brew vs. O'Keefe Bros. Coal; Vogel Bros. vs. Lauterbach Coal-Ice; Budweiser vs. J. M. Kralovec & Sons; Pilson Olympia vs. Blazek Tailors.

Classic League.

First place will be at stake tonight at the Crest Recreation in the Sunday division of the Classic league. The Baby Ruth Candies, Pabst Blue Ribbon Beers, and Prager Beers have all won six games and lost three. The Baby Ruths and Pabsts will meet each other, while the Prager Beers are paired with the Oak Leaf Motors. Other matches are Monarch Beer vs. Charles H. Webers, and Winkler Motor Service vs. Kraft O-ke Doke.

Standings:

On North Side Alleys.

Joe Puccinelli had 30 clean frames to provide the best work during the opening of the Gold Coast Major league. This enabled him to get a 706 series that included a 265 game. Other hot shooters were Garry Ledene Sr., 678, with a 247 game; Pete Petersen, 660; Joe Sinke, 649; George Miller, 646; Ed Zajac, 641; Harry Robinson, 629, and Chick Wray, 612. 32 Entered in Midget Auto Races Tonight

Thirty-two of the fastest midget racing car drivers in the country will compete tonight at Riverview speedway, Addison street near Western avenue, in a seven event card, in which double points will be awarded winners of a thirty lap feature to count in the competition for the outdoor championship.

Manager Gerard F. Murray yesterday announced that although Riverview park will close for the season tonight, midget auto racing will be continued indefinitely at the speedway, which adjoins the amusement park to the north. Events have been scheduled for Wednesday and Sunday nights until late in October.

More than 5,000 children of the 45th ward and 300 crippled children from all parts of the city watched a series of exhibition midget automobile races at the speedway yesterday as guests of the Kiwanis club.

SCHOOLBOY WINS TWO EVENTS IN OUTBOARD MEET

Clinton Ferguson, 19 year old Waban, Mass., schoolboy, opened his drive for the national outboard motorboat championship yesterday with decisive victories in both class A and class B amateur events at Burnham park lagoon.

Ferguson, who swept three titles in the eastern division meet a week ago, finished second to Raymond Young, Fort Wayne, Ind., in the first heat of the class A race, but won the second easily and clinched the championship on elapsed time of 14:37.2 when Young was disqualified for jumping the gun.

Wearly Wins Two Heats.

The eastern youth won both class B heats easily with an elapsed time of 13:38 4-5 for the ten miles. Frank Davis, Kansas City, was second and Wood third.

New professional champions were crowned in both A and B classes when Paul Wearly, Muncie, Ind., central division title holder, won both heats of the A class, and Bob Meyer, Chicago, won the class B title.

Meyer was second to Wearly in class A, and Karl Pennaci, Rumson, N. J., was third. Thom Cooper, Kansas City's defending champion, finished fifth.

Disqualify One Contestant.

E. A. Horner, Brighton, Ia., was second in professional class B, with Jack Smith, St. Louis, third. Fred Jacoby Jr., North Bergen, N. J., withdrew from a defense of his class B title because of motor trouble.

Edwin Pabst, Milwauke, won the opening event of the two day meet when finish judges awarded him the midget championship after disqualifying the apparent winner, 16 year old Nell Cooper of Kansas City. Miss Cooper cut inside a buoy on her second turn.

Bill Withington, Pasadena, and Bill Larzelere, San Francisco, only west coast drivers in action yesterday, finished fifth and ninth in amateur class A.

St. Norbert Defeats St. Mary's of Winona, 32-0

De Pere, Wis., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—St. Norbert college lived up to advance notices today by romping through St. Mary's of Winona, Minn., 32 to 0. Val Trepanier ran 60 yards for the first touchdown in the opening period. Steve Belille plunged for the second touchdown, in the next period. Vernon Ellis scored twice in the third period and Belille added a fifth touchdown by running 30 yards after intercepting a pass in the last quarter.

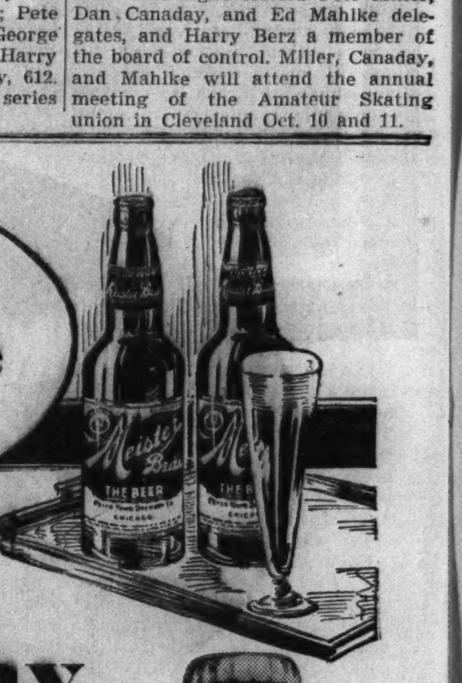
The Illinois-Western Skating association last night elected Pete Miller, Dan Canaday, and Ed Mahlke delegates, and Harry Berz a member of the board of control. Miller, Canaday, and Mahlke will attend the annual meeting of the Amateur Skating union in Cleveland Oct. 10 and 11.

Old Ways Win As Brewers Compete for Public Favor

★ OLD WAY NOT ONLY PROHIBITS USE OF SUGAR AND SYRUP, BUT EXCLUDES EVEN MOLASSES ★



Beer Bottled Old Way without Artificial Gas

Prevents Strong Gassy "Bite"

THOUSANDS are turning now to beer made the old-time way. Near-beer days brought a wave of substitutes. Slow, careful methods of old gave place to hurried brews.

Some brewers tried to save the time of cleaning the Malt and Hops by boiling them twice as long. Some do it still, though this boils the life out of the beer.

To cover the absence of life and sparkle, some use artificial gas to carbonate the bottled beer. But this is a makeshift. It makes the beer too "heady". Too gassy.

Another short cut is to use syrup or sugar in the beer. But this gives a sweet beer, not the true beer flavor.

We know many of you want to find a beer that does not use these hurried methods. Thousands want the old-time beer made the old-time way.

We make that old-time beer and have for 50 years. The Brewmaster who makes it now has been with us since 1906. He has adopted every mechanical invention that helps in cleaning, bottling or packing. But on his life he'll allow no change in the way beer is brewed.

He clings to the finest premium Malt and Hops. And he cleans them as though for a king. He says, "I boil them only half as long because there are no impurities to be boiled out." This keeps the life in the beer—keeps its natural foam and sparkle. Retains all the flavor.

Those who remember the old-time brews recognize the best of old in MEISTER BRAU. We ask you to try this beer made today as we made it 50 years ago. Order MEISTER BRAU today. You'll be glad you found a beer made with old-time care and charged naturally with its own draft beer carbonation.

EASTERN SHORE HANDICAP WON BY WAR ADMIRAL

Leads All the Way in Havre Stake.

Havre de Grace, Md., Sept. 19.—(AP)—A brown son of the great Man o' War, Glen Riddle Farm's War Admiral, flashed into the top flight juvenile ranks today with a smashing triumph over fourteen other 2 year olds in the $10,000 added Eastern Shore handicap.

War Admiral's time was one minute eleven seconds, the fastest in the nineteen years the stake has been run at six furlongs. The colt might have cracked the track mark of 1:10 3-5, set by Time Supply, if he had been pressed.

Leads All the Way.

The Linekyl offspring of Man o' War-Brushup broke on top and set his own pace to finish five full lengths ahead of Mrs. E. Denemark's Orientalist. Jocky Charlie Kurtsinger eased him up toward the end.

Orientalist, a 29 to 1 shot, came from far behind to take the place position from Mrs. Louise Viau's hitherto unbeaten Rex Flag in a photo finish. Millsdale stable's Bostonian colt, Bottle Cap, second choice in the betting, was fourth.

Maemere farm's Maedic, fresh from five straight victories at Saratoga, disappointed betters among the crowd of 16,000, who backed him into 9 to 5 favoritism. The brown colt, in close quarters at the start, finally got clear and moved up to second place near the half, but dropped back to finish fifth.

Winner Challenged Twice.

Only twice did War Admiral have the semblance of a challenge. Mrs. R. A. Van Clief's Broad Ripple got within a length and a half of him at the quarter pole and Bottle Cap was only three lengths back at the start of the stretch.

The early pace was too much for Broad Ripple and the daughter of Stimulus came in 14th, trailed only by Prince Arthur.

The large field made the race worth $11,250 to the winner, $2,000 going to second place, $1,500 to third, and $500 fourth. War Admiral returned $17.70 for $2 in the mutuels.

WESTERN HORSES WIN

New York, Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Golden Eye and Privileged, western colorbearers, won two of the east's historic stakes at Belmont today. The former carried the silks of A. A. Baronni from Reno, Nev., to victory in the 67th Jerome handicap by a head from Maeriel with Tatterdemalion three lengths farther back in third place.

In the Champagne, which had its sixty-sixth running, the Chicagoan, Warren Wright, saw his Privileged defeat Dogaway by half a length. Dogaway's stablemate, Murph, was third. This pair is owned by Mrs. Ethel V. Mars of Chicago.

Both Good Prices.

Golden Eye returned 7 to 1 after finishing the mile over a fast track in 1:36 3-5. Privileged was an 8 to 1 shot and was timed in 1:17 for the six and one-half furlongs. Its time makes the colt a formidable competitor for the $100,000 Futurity over the same course and distance a fortnight hence.

The outcome of the Jerome, which netted Baroni $5,290, is in a measure a duplication of his feat with Top Row, a horse which he picked up in a claiming race to subsequently win more than $200,000 in purses. Golden Eye was claimed from Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark at the Saratoga meeting. Today he had 105 pounds up and Ira Hanford in the saddle.

Favorite Is Beaten.

In the Champagne, Flying Scot was made a short priced favorite at 6 to 5, but he never seemed to get started. The lead was taken by the Milky Way representatives shortly after the break, Dogaway being the fleeter of the pair. He led right down to the final furlong, although Privileged never was far away.

Eddie Arcaro, up on Privileged, apparently had been holding something in reserve, for when he asked for speed, Dogaway promptly took second. Murph then moved out of the pack to be third.

HIGH FLEET WINS 8TH VICTORY IN $5,000 HANDICAP

Pawtucket, R. I., Sept. 19.—(AP)—George D. Widener's High Fleet, the season's leading three year old filly, won her eighth victory in 12 starts today in the $5,000 Weybosset handicap at Narragansett park.

She turned the six furlongs two lengths and a half ahead of Mrs. Marion Cassidy's Bill Farnsworth, which had three lengths on the show horse, Mrs. E. A. Snow's Happy Knot.

Next to last in the six horse field came Victor Emanuel's Miss Merriment, the favorite, which found 125 pounds and the sticky surface of the heavy track too great a disadvantage against High Fleet which had an 11 pounds pull in the weights.

High Fleet closed as second choice and paid $8.30, $3.60 and $2.90. Bill Farnsworth returned $7.80 and $4.20, and Happy Knot's show price was $3.60.

FINISH FIRST ROUND TONIGHT IN SOFTBALL PLAY

Topped by the Rep. Adducci-Paddy Bauler game, first round play in the 16 inch slow pitching softball tournament concludes tonight at I. C. park, 28th and East avenues, Berwyn. The Adduccis, Chicago district champions, are favorites.

Milt Bocek, American association outfielder, will be in the Cardinal K. C. lineup when the west section Knights of Columbus champs meet the Sidlo Zephyrs of Berwyn. The schedule:

7:15—O'Briens vs. Cicero Braves.
8:15—Cardinal K. C. vs. Sidlo Zephyrs.
9:15—Adduccis vs. Baddy Baulers.

Time, :24 3-5, :48 2-5, 1:13 4-5, 1:40 2-5, 1:47 3-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Bonnie Princess, $13.20 straight, $7.00 place, $6.20 show; Defier, $8.80 place, $6.00 show; Pomparagon, $8.40 show. Winner trained by J. Hanover. Went to post at 2:15.

BONNIE PRINCESS, reserved off the pace and raced wide the final half mile, came up rapidly after reaching the final quarter and weakened in the last sixteenth, but outgamed DEFIER. Latter, rated close to the early pace, raced into a short lead under strong riding after entering the stretch and tiring in the final eighth could not hold the winner. POMPARAGON improved his position gradually, came between horses in the stretch and went evenly in the closing eighth.

FOREWARNED, a strong factor from the start and probably much the best, raced wide throughout, and taken in hand after opening up a good lead in the stretch, had to be strongly shaken up to retrieve the lead after his rider apparently had failed to see FANCY FLIGHT on the inside until she had headed him in the final sixteenth. FANCY FLIGHT forced the early pace under light restraint, went to inside in stretch, was lucky to head the winner in the last sixteenth but couldn't hold the lead. KIEVA, sent through small openings the first three-eighths, reached a contending position entering stretch and tired in the drive, but outstayed HARPEN BELLE.

DESGAI, much the best and beginning well, was sharply crowded back on the far turn, again was in difficulty approaching stretch, but securing room between horses in final quarter, moved up rapidly and after reaching the lead drew out fast. MISS BALKO, receiving a hustling ride, opened up a commanding lead on the turn, swerved out in the stretch and weakened in late stages, but outstayed RHINE. Latter, in close quarters early, bettered her position gradually and finishing resolutely, would have headed MISS BALKO in another stride.

CANNY SCOT, having speed from the start and saving much ground, shook off TRINCHERA and withstood RED FLYER'S bid without need of strong pressure and drawing into a clear lead in final eighth, held sway thereafter, but had little left. MISS MELODY, probably best and repeatedly taken back in the early stages, suffered sharp interference from RED FLYER soon after entering the stretch, closed with a rush after swinging to extreme outside and was bleeding a trace following the race. UNDULATE saved much ground and moved up boldly under strong riding in stretch, but hung near the end.

ASYOUWERE, having the benefit of the pace and well in hand for three-quarters, came to outside in the stretch, improved her position steadily, and outgamed STAR BUD in the closing strides. Latter, also rated under restraint for about three-quarters, responded well when called upon, stood vigorous riding gamely the final eighth, but could not withstand the winner. FIRE ADVANCE, well up from start and forced to race wide, was much used in racing MERRY CAROLINE into submission and tired in the drive, but outstayed BANDALORE.

SIXTH RACE—One mile. Handicap. Three year olds and up. Purse, $2,500 added. Net value to winner, $2,260; second, $500; third, $250; fourth, $125.

CLAIMS WOMEN'S HARNESS MARK ON HALF-MILE TRACK

Plainfield, N. J., Sept. 19.—(AP)—A new women's world record for a trotter driven to cart over a half mile track was claimed by Mrs. Arthur Lance of Washington, N. J., as the result of her skilful piloting of Calumet Cheer in light harness races here today.

Competing against one other woman driver and a male reinsman, Mrs. Lance won the first heat of the class A trot with the mare in 2:11¼ and then came back to win the second heat and the race in 2:08, the first half being in 1:04½. This bettered the track mark of 2:09 set by Mrs. John L. Dodge of Lexington, Ky., in 1934 with the trotting mare, Hollyrood Portia.

AL BYRD WINS MILE TRIAL IN BICYCLE MEET

Al Byrd of Chicago won the one mile event in the preliminaries of the Century Road club of America bicycle meet at Humboldt park yesterday. Byrd covered the distance in 2:58.7. R. Cass of Chicago finished second and Oscar Juner, also of Chicago, took third place. The finals will be held today at the Sherman park road course.

Juner, however, won the two mile race and the ten mile event. His time for the two miles was 5:46.3, while he covered the ten miles in 27:10.2. The half mile race was won by Cass in 1:19.5.

BERNARD F., AT 15 TO 1, CAPTURES DETROIT FEATURE

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Bernard F., a long shot, won the $2,500 Marquette handicap today and Mrs. Chesney's entry, Cristate and Professor Paul, galloped in first and second in the $2,500 De La Salle handicap.

It was the second stake of the meeting for Bernard F., which won the Fort Wayne handicap in August, not long after running with a $1,000 claiming tag on him. Proph, the favorite, owned by J. W. Parrish, of Midway, Ky., came in sixth in the field of nine horses.

Bernard F. defeated Oddessa Girl by a length, finishing the five and one-half furlong dash for 2 year olds in 1:06 2-5. Jadva was third. I. J. Collins' horse paid $32.40 to win, $13.10 to place and $9 to show.

Cristate led his stable mate by only a head in the De La Salle. The entry paid $9.60 to win, $7 to place and $4.20 to show. Cristate ran the mile and a sixteenth in 1:46.

$300,000 IS BET, SEASON MARK AT LINCOLN FIELDS

The betting at Lincoln Fields yesterday went slightly beyond the $300,000 mark. This was the heaviest speculation of the Lincoln Fields Jocky club season. It might have run $100,000 higher had not so many favorites been beaten in the early races. The attendance was also the largest of the season.

A big cheer went up from the crowd when the announcement was made that three Chicago 2 year olds had grabbed all the honors in the Champagne stakes run in New York. Warren Wright's Privileged finished first, and Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' Dogaway and Murphy finished second and third.

Tranquillity Farm stable's fleet filly Challite is named in the overnight field for the Dansant purse at 5½ furlongs to be run tomorrow.

On Friday Howard Wells, youthful Kentucky trainer, purchased the 2 year old filly Desgai from D. B. Midkiff. He paid something like $1,200 for the good looking bay. Desgai carried Wells silks to the post in the third race yesterday. She flashed out of the pack in midstretch and took after the leaders. In the final half furlong she passed them and drew out to win by a length and a half, with Miss Balko second and Rhine third.

Desgai paid $50.40 for a two dollar ticket. If young Wells made even a conservative bet on her he won the filly out in this one engagement. Her time for the six furlongs was 1:13 4-5.

GREENTREE POLO TEAM, ARGENTINA OPEN PLAY TODAY

New York, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Argentina's finely mounted polo team and the United States' Greentree four, led by Tommy Hitchcock, ride out to morrow on the Meadow Brook club's famed international field in the first of the two out of three series for the cup of the Americas.

The game originally was scheduled for today, but inclement weather forced a postponement.

The Argentines, mounted on one of the finest string of ponies ever to leave the pampas, have never beaten their North American rivals, but generally are favorites to come through this time. The United States won the first of the international series in 1928, and then successfully defended the trophy four years later at Buenos Aires. Each series went to three games.

Fresh from a victory in the Olympic games, the Argentines will send a fine mixture of youth and experience into the fray, handicapped at 27 goals. Luis Duggan and Roberto Cavanaugh, riding at No. 1 and No. 2, respectively, are handicapped at six goals each.

The Greentree team, winner of the United States Open title, is a 30 goal aggregation. With Hitchcock, the world's ranking player at 10 goals, riding at No. 3, the United States representatives form a quartet of money players. George H. [Pete] Bostwick, playing at No. 1, is handicapped at only six goals, but is unusually well qualified for his position in that he is fast getting down the field in pursuit of the ball hit up to him by either Hitchcock or Gerald Balding, at No. 2.

80,000 Miles at Low Cost

Riefling Automobile Company
2333 S. Jefferson Ave.
St. Louis, Missouri

Dear Sirs:

I am so well pleased with the 1936 Ford Coupe I purchased from you that I am taking the time to tell you of some of the results I have obtained from Ford cars.

In 1934 I purchased a Ford Coupe from your Company. I drove that car 36,000 miles in about fifteen months. I was very much satisfied with its economy and performance, and wish to say that I did not have any motor work done in that time.

I traded the 1934 Ford Coupe for a 1935 Ford Coupe. I found there were added improvements on the 1935 and it was a much better car than the 1934. I drove the 1935 coupe better than 44,000 miles with no repairs, except small incidentals. I was so well satisfied with the 1934 and 1935 Ford Coupes that I decided to buy a 1936. So far the '36 is far superior in every detail to either of the other two cars that I purchased from you, and my gasoline mileage averages 19.2 miles to the gallon.

I could not realize that there were such vast improvements in the various Ford cars, but I suppose manufacture will continue to improve, and there will be something better for 1937. I have driven various makes of automobiles and have never gotten the economy, satisfaction and reliability out of any of them that I have out of the Ford cars.

Yours very truly,

THREE FORD V-8 CARS WRITE THEIR OWN STORY OF FORD ECONOMY

We try to advertise the Ford V-8 fairly and honestly, without disparaging any other manufacturer's product. People seem to appreciate that. But all our advertising would be wasted if the car itself didn't deliver the performance, comfort, safety and economy we claim for it. A lot of letters like the one above indicate that it does.

Only nine holes were necessary in the final half of the match. Mrs. Hill was out in 40, 3 over par, which was considered excellent in view of frequent heavy rains and winds.

Fischer Says He Was Lucky; McLean Irked

Garden City, N. Y., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Lawson Little, who saw Johnny Fischer crowned as his successor today, characterized the Cincinnati player's sub-par finish as "the greatest I've ever seen."

"It can't visualize anything being more dramatic," said Little who relinquished the crown when he turned professional. "I wouldn't be surprised if Johnny stays up there a long time."

Jack McLean, a Glasgow whisky salesman, took the beating standing up, but had a hard time concealing his sorrow when he reached the dressing room and was surrounded by his Walker cup team companions.

He Asks for Pop.

"Please get me a bottle of what the Americans call 'pop,'" he said. "Fischer's the toughest guy I've ever played," he continued. "But that stymie on the 34th was a killer. No, it didn't break my heart; but it made me sore, downright mad. Don't misunderstand me, I have no ill feelings toward Fischer he's a grand boy and a grand golfer, but it seemed unfair for him to get a half on the hole by that stymie when I should have been two up. I wouldn't have minded it so much if I hadn't made a miserable first putt that went four or five feet past the cup."

Fischer was disinclined to talk about his lame left ankle. He hobbled through the last five holes of the morning round and through the same stretch in the afternoon.

"I had to favor it on my drives, especially," said Johnny, "but I got so excited towards the end there was nc feeling in the foot at the finish. Sure, it bothered me, but Jock gave me plenty of chances when his putting faded from the 23d through the 28th hole."

Britons Are Disappointed.

Fischer wouldn't discuss the stymie, accepting it as one of the breaks of the game, but Dr. William Tweddell, captain of the British Walker cup forces and the man who carried Little to the 36th green of the 1935 British final, declared "it was a shame."

"You know," he said, "I've become a fatalist. You Americans are too hot. It's hopeless. We can't beat you. I thought I had Lawson Little on the run last year when he drove into the rough on the last hole, but he smacked the ball onto the green to get a half in fours and he won one up. Today Fischer played the last three holes in one under par each. It's just impossible."

Fischer and McLean were acclaimed by a huge gallery after the match when John G. Jackson, president of the United States Golf association, presented the championship trophy to the Cincinnati player.

"Jock and I gave holes back and forth to one another until finally we decided to settle down and go to work," said Fischer. "And then I got lucky on the finishing holes."

Squares Match on 36th, Wins on 37th.

son [Jimmy] Johnston of St. Paul took it in 1929, the year of the Jones disaster at Pebble Beach. Collegiate Chicagoans remember Fischer as the Cincinnati mailman's son who took the Big Ten title three times—in 1932 at Minneapolis and in 1933 and 1935 at Kildeer, Chicago. As a sophomore he won the national intercollegiate championship.

Never had he come so far in the amateur, despite the fact that under the old medal play qualifying régime, he had stamped his name on the book twice for all time. He led the 32 qualifiers at Five Farms by tying the medal play mark of 142 and then established an all time record of 141 in his home town of Cincinnati in 1933, the last year the system was in vogue. Twice his steady play has earned him a place on the ever winning American Walker cup teams.

Eliminates Goodman, 2 and 1.

In his march to the championship, Johnny defeated six men in 18 hole matches—Eddie Meister of Cleveland, O., 6 and 5; Carlin Short of Akron, O., 5 and 4; Chick Evans of Chicago, 3 and 2; A. W. Breault of Detroit, 3 and 2; Gus Moreland of Peoria, 1 up; Russell Martin of Chicago, 6 and 4—and then won the wind driven, rainy 36 hole semi-final battle with his Walker cup pal and No. 1 tournament favorite, Johnny Goodman of Omaha, 2 and 1.

The gallery of 6,000 received one of the most pleasant surprises of the weather year when they found a perfect September day to greet them this morning, sun washed blue skies beaming down on a course which only yesterday had been lashed by the fury of a coastal hurricane. During the night the press tent, with all equipment, was blown down, so that the attending authors were working strictly al fresco.

Catholic Nines Play Today for State Title

The state Catholic baseball title will be decided today at White Sox park when the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception nine of Springfield, Ill., takes the field against the Chicago C. Y. O. winner, St. Hyacinth. The game, the second of a double-header, is scheduled to start at 3 o'clock.

In a preliminary game St. Stanislaus B. and M., runnerup to St. Hyacinth for the C. Y. O. honors, will clash with St. Mary's, Alton, Ill., one of the most formidable teams in the southern part of the state. St. Mary's, which has engaged in 22 contests this season, winning 18 and dropping four, is well known to local diamond followers, having taken part in past national C. Y. O. baseball tournaments.

Reduce Price for Children.

Due to a special decrease in admission prices for children of grade school and high school age, it is expected that hundreds of boys and girls will go to White Sox park today to watch the double-header. Jack Elder, athletic director of the C. Y. O., announced yesterday that children will be admitted to the games for 10 cents.

The Cathedral squad, which arrived in the city yesterday, boasts the brilliant season record of 15 victories and one loss. In the southern part of the state it swept all opposition before it, losing its only game when three of its regulars were out of the lineup. Hunk Kiethly and Joe Copp are the two best known members of the Springfield nine, both having traveled through Japan on the United States all-star team following the national tournament in Dayton, O.

St. Hyacinth Wins Sixteen Games.

St. Hyacinth, the Chicago C. Y. O. champion, last Sunday traveled to Louisville, Ky., to drop a 6 to 5 contest to the Holy Name nine of that city after defeating St. Stanislaus for the C. Y. O. title. In 17 games this season St. Hyacinth has won 16 and lost one. Today's schedule:

1 p. m.—St. Stanislaus B. & M. vs. St. Mary's, Alton, Ill.
3 p. m.—St. Hyacinth vs. Cathedral, Springfield, Ill.

COURT UPHOLDS LEASE BASED ON GOLD PAYMENTS

Orders Money Rental Be Increased.

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Under a 99 year lease calling for a quarterly rental of 139,320 grains of gold the Emery-Bird-Thayer Dry Goods company must pay the gold equivalent in present American dollars, according to a decision handed down today by Federal Judge Merrill E. Otis.

JUDGE MERRILL OTIS.

The judge ruled that the Boston Ground Rent Trust, the lessor, is entitled to a quarterly rental of $10,158,75 from the dry goods company instead of $6,000, which was the currency equivalent of the gold prior to the devaluation of the dollar.

The dry goods company had sought to enjoin the Boston trust from collecting more than $6,000 in United States currency as quarterly rent, contending that the federal government would pay no more under similar circumstances.

Holds Company Obligated.

Judge Otis ruled that when it became impossible for the dry goods company to pay its rental in gold, because the government had called in the metal, it was obligated to deliver "lawful currency of the United States" equivalent in value to the amount of gold specified in the lease. If the lessee was not willing to do this it should give up possession of the property, he said.

Testimony presented in the case disclosed that the dry goods company made quarterly payments of $10,158.75 from Jan. 1, 1934, until Jan. 1, 1935, and then demanded that the lessors return $20,793.75, which it asserted represented overpayments. The lessors refused, and as a final step asked delivery of actual gold, offering to accept delivery in England.

Rules Gold Statute Void.

Judge Otis in his memorandum opinion said: "Any statute or regulation which purports to compel the lawful possessor of gold bullion [or any other property] to surrender it to his sovereign for anything less than just compensation is clearly void and without effect.

"A's obligation to deliver a stipulated quantity of gold to B certainly is not satisfied by the delivery of one-half that quantity merely because, if the whole quantity were delivered, the sovereign, without right, would seize part of it.

"We do not suppose that if a Missouri farmer is bound by his contract to deliver a horse to his neighbor he can fulfill his obligation by delivering a horseshoe on the theory that if he did deliver a horse Robin Hood would steal it, leaving a horseshoe as souvenir.

Must Pay Equivalent Value.

"Compensation by one party to another party for failure to deliver a given quantity of gold agreed to be delivered in a contract between the parties certainly is to be measured by the true value of the gold and not by a fictitious, artificial value."

Commenting on the "gold clause" resolution passed by congress in 1933, Judge Otis wrote: "The resolution applies only to those obligations payable in money. . . . An obligation payable in fence posts or bushels of wheat or grains of gold is not payable in dollars so as to be included in the language [of the resolution] 'discharged upon payment, dollar for dollar.'"

Attorneys for the dry goods company said they were undecided on what action they will take.

Raps New Deal Legislation.

Judge Otis is the author of several decisions adverse to New Deal legislation. He handed won the first federal court decision holding the Wagner labor disputes act to be invalid. The ruling was made last December. A year earlier, in December, 1934, he ruled against the price fixing clause of the national recovery act.

The Supreme court of the United States has held that congress had the right to abrogate the gold clause in private contracts. In the famous "gold clause" decision it went further and stated that the government had no right to stop payment in gold on its own obligations, but that no damages had been proved in the case before the court, and therefore the litigants cauld not collect more than the face value in devalued dollars.

Canada's Farm Exports to U.S. Climb Sharply

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Canadian farmers found a ready market in the United States during July, a study of foreign trade figures issued by the department of agriculture disclosed today. While exports from Canada to the United States gained sharply over those of a year ago, this country's exports to the dominion were about equal for the two periods.

The department attributed the lack o. increase in United States exports to drouth, which it said caused an upward revision in prices in this country that impeded exports and encouraged an inflow of Canadian products. No reference was made to crop curtailment schemes of the American administration.

Farm Products Rise 102 Per Cent.

The United States imported $9,835,000 of Canadian farm products during the month, a gain of $4,978,000, or 102 per cent, over July, 1935. Exports to Canada amounted to $4,016,000, a rise of only $14,000, or 0.3 per cent.

Canada exported $20,880,000 of nonagricultural products to this country, an upturn of $2,011,000, or 11 per cent. United States exports of the same class climbed 12 per cent, totaling $25,945,000, for a rise of $2,823,000.

The agricultural department statisticians said exports of American farm produce on which Canada reduced duties under the reciprocal trade agreement gained $691,000, or 48 per cent, but that this was largely offset by a drop of $667,000, or 27 per cent, in exports on which tarifs were unchanged.

Canada Gains Under Pact.

Canada, however, gained substantially from the trade agreement. The study showed a gain of $842,000, or 235 per cent, in products on which the United States reduced duties, and $4,136,000, or 92 per cent, in products with unchanged duties.

Exports by Canada to the United States, all commodities, $190,554,000, up $36,884,000, or 24 per cent, from the same 1935 period; nonagricultural products, $144,765,000, an increase of $24,848,000, or 21 per cent; agricultural products, $45,789,000, up $12,036,000, or 36 per cent.

Seven month exports by the United States to Canada, all commodities, $204,906,000, up $26,707,000, or 15 per cent; nonagricultural products, $175,482,000, a gain of $21,830,000, or 14 per cent; agricultural products, $29,434,000, an increase of $4,877,000, or 20 per cent.

Philippine Trade Heavier.

MANILA, P. I., Sept. 19.—(AP)—A large increase in the trade of the Philippine Islands with the United States under the new commonwealth government was reported today by the insular bureaus of customs for the first six months of 1936.

The total was $98,351,965 as compared with $61,801,110 during the same period of 1935.

Exports were $67,164,069 against $35,679,950 in 1935, and imports were $31,187,896 against $26,121,160.

RISE IN COCOA, COFFEE DECLINE HIGHLIGHTS OF COMMODITY MARKETS

A sharp advance in cocoa featured trading in commodities the last week. A new high since 1930 was established before heavy profit taking developed and caused a recession of approximately ½ cent per pound from the top price. Rio coffee sold at a new low for the season.

Hedging pressure resulted in erasing the greater part of the recent upturn in cotton, while increased receipts of hogs caused a sharp recession in lard. Hides, rubber, cottonseed oil, eggs, and grains advanced moderately.

MORE PARIS GOLD ENGAGED; FRANC FAILS TO RISE

While pressure on the French franc eased somewhat yesterday, the unit remained at a profitable point for shipment of gold to this country and international bankers reported that $7,835,000 more gold had been engaged in Paris for shipment to New York.

The easing of pressure was reflected in the reduction of the discount on 90 day franc futures to .36 of a cent below the spot quotation, a drop of .01½ cent from Friday's price on futures. The spot price closed unchanged in New York at 6.58⅝ cents.

Another gold bloc unit showed improvement yesterday for the first time recently. The Dutch guilder rose .01 cent to 67.89 cents. Swiss francs, however, the third member of the European gold bloc, were unchanged at 32.59 cents.

The British pound advanced 1-16 cent against the dollar to close at $5.06 9-16. Japanese yen, linked indirectly to the pound, gained .01 cent at 29.64 cents.

Great Bull Market Ended 7 Years Ago

Yesterday was the seventh anniversary of the end of the last great bull market in stocks and the beginning of the depression. THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE average of fifty stocks established its high record of 311.90 on Sept. 19, 1929. From that date to July 8, 1932, the low point, the average declined 277.92 points, or 89 per cent. Since the latter date, the average has risen from 33.98 to 133.36 at yesterday's close, a gain of 99.38 points, or 292 per cent.

The stock market has been rising a year longer than it declined. The recession from the peak of 1929 to the low point of 1932 took less than thirty-four months, whereas the advance that began in 1932 has continued about fifty months.

Value Dropped $74,034,797,277.

The extent of the loss in values on all stocks listed on the New York Stock exchange during the depression was shown in that institution's monthly compilation. On Sept. 1, 1929, all shares were worth $89,668,276,854, and on July 1, 1932, $15,633,479,577, a drop of $74,034,797,277. At the beginning of September, 1936, the valuation for listed stocks was given as $54,532,083,004, a gain of $38,898,603,427 from the low point of July, 1932.

Prices of membership in the exchange tumbled with stock values. From the high price of $625,000 in 1929, seats went as low as $68,000 in 1932 and $65,000 in 1935. They are now selling around $130,000.

U. S. FINDS JOBS FOR 128,353 IDLE IN INDUSTRY

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Secretary Perkins reported today that the United States employment service found jobs for 128,353 workers in private industry last month, a gain of 23.5 per cent over August, 1935.

New jobs in public employment—such as heavy public works—dropped 7.3 per cent from July to August; and placements on relief employment increased, amounting to 62,632 in August, she said.

Reporting a moderate increase in the volume of applications for work, the labor secretary said the use was largest in South Dakota, North Dakota, Nebraska, and Iowa, due to the drouth.

STOCK PRICES ADVANCE AGAIN IN ACTIVE TRADE

Favorable Business News Is Factor.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 19.—What brokerage house observers described as an excellent grade of buying hoisted stock prices to higher levels on a wide front today. Except for a brief early period when the market seemed to be experiencing difficulty in getting started business was at a fairly active pace and the sales total of 897,300 shares almost doubled that of a week ago.

Steel, railroad, liquor, and amusement shares alternated as group favorites and leading issues emerged major fractions to more than a point higher. Upturns in some of the more volatile descriptions ran as high as 3 and 4 points. Johns-Manville, Spicer Manufacturing, Warren Pipe, American Type Founders, National Supply, General Realty, Checker Cab, and International Business Machine were outstanding specialties.

News Generally Favorable.

Heavy industries continued to supply bullish news, an item of more than passing interest being a reported steel scrap advance to the highest point since 1929. Advices from copper industry centers were favorable, Kennecott's earnings figures bolstering sentiment in that direction. Commission house comment reflected persistent optimism over business prospects, the uninterrupted flow of favorable corporation earnings and dividend news, and the more hopeful feeling with regard to the foreign situation.

But more than anything else, perhaps, was the market's action itself responsible for resumption of constructive activities. The street was impressed by the performance of the list in recent sessions, especially its ability to recuperate easily and quickly from minor sell-offs.

Rail Issues Are Active.

The growing interest in railroad securities was reflected in some fresh activity in that group. Illinois Central, Northern Pacific, New York Central, and Atchison were features with gains running to a point or so.

Schenley again was prominent in the liquor department, adding another point to the gain of nearly 3 points it ran up yesterday. Hiram Walker also came in for some attention.

Most of the steels were in demand, gains of a point or more each being chalked up by U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, and Youngstown Sheet and Tube.

Motors and equipments, amusements, and oils fared well. Shell Union reached a new peak for the year.

The utilities were rather neglected as a group. An exception was the low-priced Commonwealth and Southern which was turned over in heavy blocks for a fractional price gain.

STEEL SCRAP SALE REPORTED AT 50 CENT RISE

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Steel men professed to see further evidence of a strong market today in the reported increase in the price of No. 1 heavy melting steel scrap and the placing of an order for 72,000 tons of beehive coke.

The new price, lacking official confirmation, was $18.50 a ton, an advance of 50 cents and the highest level since 1929. It contrasted with a low of $8.25 in 1932, $30 in the world war days of 1918 and $13 earlier this year. Most of the scrap is held by a few firms and the price increased with the volume demand.

The coke order, ostensibly from a steel company, was placed with the Lincoln Coal and Coke company of Scottdale, Pa. Delivery is to begin Oct. 1 and continue over a six month period.

MILWAUKEE LINE TO CUT TIME ON ST. PAUL TRAIN

The Milwaukee road announced yesterday that beginning Sunday, Sept. 27, its day express from Chicago to the Twin Cities will cut 15 minutes from its schedule. The train will leave Chicago and Milwaukee 15 minutes later than at present, arriving at St. Paul and Minneapolis on present schedules.

The air conditioned train, carrying a cafe observation car, parlor car, and coaches, will leave Chicago at 10 a. m. central time, and arrive at Milwaukee at 11:30 a. m. Leaving Milwaukee at 11:40, the train will reach St. Paul at 7:15 p. m. and Minneapolis at 7:50.

No change is contemplated at present in the run from the Twin Cities to Chicago.

BUSINESS NEWS IN REVIEW

Inflation Fears Rise Again—National Leaders Warn of Grave Effects—Costs of Living Rise—Immediate Business Prospects Favorable—Stock Prices Little Changed for Week.

Inflation fears rose again last week following the statement of Republican Vice Presidential Candidate Frank Knox that inflation, resulting from New Deal spending and borrowing from banks was undermining the savings of insurance policyholders and savings bank depositors. National leaders were vociferous in denouncing present administration policies.

On the heels of the President's "nonpolitical" conference with insurance company executives, held in an attempt to disparage the remarks of Knox, Provident Mutual Life Insurance company's president, M. A. Linton, warned policy holders of inflation dangers in the administration's program of expanding bank deposits through federal borrowing. He said:

"Under present administration policies no life insurance policy is secure, no savings account is safe, because the present spending policy leads straight to inflation. It is not the insurance companies nor the savings banks that are unsound. It is the administration of the United States government that is unsound. Few persons have a greater stake in a balanced budget for the United States than have life insurance policy holders."

Blames U. S.

From Cambridge, Mass., came the charge that New Deal monetary policies are not affecting the United States alone but the entire world. Melvin T. Copeland, professor of marketing at the Harvard graduate school, said that despite the existence of de facto stabilization of exchange between this country and Britain the trade outlook would be far better if there were more assurance that stabilization of international exchange were to continue. The chief obstacle, he said, was not in the lack of international agreement nor the practice of any foreign country, but in the financial policies of the United States government.

Alarm.

Despite the ready absorption of the treasury's latest bond offering, business men viewed the borrowing with alarm. Recalling repeated assurances by New Dealers that federal deficits would be reduced—the only way to stave off inflation—when industry began to absorb the unemployed, industry pondered the fact that its pay rolls were larger and yet the federal deficit had just been boosted to a new peak by the Sept. 15 financing—33 billion 815 million dollars. The latest borrowing swelled the total 500 million dollars. The increase in federal debt in the year ended Sept. 15 was 4 billion 344 million dollars.

Costs Rise.

That inflation is an insidious policy encroaching on the lives of even the most humble was emphasized in a statement of the Independence Fund of North America, Inc., eastern investment company.

"Full effects of dollar devaluation have not yet been reflected in commodity price levels," the concern said. "If this highly adverse situation is aggravated by the probabilities of further inflationary experiments, higher prices for the necessities of life may be expected solely on account of the decreased purchasing power of the dollar."

Immediate reflection of inflation and other events on the small pocketbook were emphasized in a statement of Secretary of Labor Perkins, who reported a rise in living costs of low salaried workers and wage earners of 5.8 per cent in the three months from April 15 to July 15, with food increasing the most. From the low point of 1933 the increase has amounted to more than 10 per cent, she said.

Steel.

While the long term outlook was clouded by uncertainties, immediate business prospects were favorable last week. Some recession in the week's indices was recorded, but preparations for an active fourth quarter continued apace. Steel works operations rebounded from the dip of a week earlier caused by the Labor day holiday. Orders again were on the upgrade and ample assurance was given that the present rate of activity, around 72½ per cent of plant capacity, would be maintained until the end of October at least.

Power.

Automobile output held around 1936, low levels, but was expected to increase sharply when manufacturers reached quantity production on new models, early in October. Six auto makers were building their new lines last week.

Freight.

Railroad freight trafic fell below the 700,000 car mark in the week, but maintained a gain over last year.

Building.

Private engineering construction awards were the highest for any week in more than five years, amounting to $30,513,000. Total awards, including public, were $56,382,000.

Oil.

As the peak of the motoring season passed attention of oil producers turned from gasoline to the fuel oil market. Oil burner sales for the first seven months of the year were 46 per cent ahead of 1935. As September and October usually are banner sales months, increased demand was in prospect. Despite the gain in oil, no dent was made in sales of mechanical coal stokers, which showed a gain of 92 per cent over last year.

Retail.

Retail sales were above last year's as the beginning of the school season and general fall buying offset the effect of retarded distribution in some sections, occasioned by lingering summer heat. In the wholesale market a large volume of reorders was reported.

Bank Clearings.

Bank clearings, swelled by the payment of third instalment federal income taxes, rose to the highest level since the week ended May 6.

Failures.

As business improved commercial failures showed a corresponding decline. The latest report, covering the Labor day week, counted insolvencies of only 110, the lowest since the early days of the post war boom. Retailers accounted for more than half the total.

Securities.

Listed stocks moved lower early in the week, then rallied in closing sessions, and finished little changed from the preceding Saturday. Volume of trading was small, the total for the period barely exceeding six million shares.

Some exceptions to the general trends appeared, notably aviations, which advanced on expectation of further earnings gains. Wright-Aero was the stellar performer, soaring 26 points in the first five sessions on what some observers attributed to a "short squeeze." The floating supply of the stock is small.

Copper shares again responded to the strong tone in the market for that metal. Kennecott and International Nickel established new high marks. Steels recovered nearly all their early losses. Motors, rails and utilities also rallied well from the early setback. Oils enjoyed a buying spurt caused by declaration of a 25-cent extra dividend by Consolidated Oil.

In the bond market rail obligations bettered their position substantially, but changes were negligible elsewhere. Industrials rose slightly, utilities eased, and foreign loans strengthened. United States government issues were somewhat soft.

Commodities.

Commodity markets started operations last Monday under stricter regulation imposed by the commodity exchange act, which became effective Sept. 13. Immediate effects were not discernable.

But Lloyd S. Tenney, business manager of the Chicago Mercantile exchange, in an address Thursday, assailed the legislation as "a jumble," and another striking illustration "of the present trend in governmental legislation by indirect, backdoor methods."

Soy Beans.

A new commodity will be added to futures trading on the Chicago Board of Trade. Directors voted to inaugurate trading in soy beans Oct. 5, contingent on approval of members who will vote Oct. 2 on necessary revision of exchange rules.

The decision was motivated by the meteoric rise in importance of the

MORE BANKERS FLAIL DEPOSIT GUARANTY PLAN

Doubt Soundness of Federal Program.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

With criticism of other policies of the administration growing on all sides it is no longer uncommon for bankers to question publicly the soundness of the federal program of deposit insurance. Criticism of the theory and administration of deposit insurance is growing in vigor daily.

J. M. NICHOLS.

This significant development recalls that the first and most candid criticism of deposit insurance came—not from the country's big bankers—but from the head of a comparatively small Chicago bank who spoke his mind on the subject at a time when other bankers were maintaining a discreet silence. The banker is John M. Nichols, president of the First National Bank of Englewood, who has definite ideas on sound bank management and has had the courage to express his opinions when they were not popular in his own field.

Critic of Roosevelt Policies.

Nichols was an early and relentless critic of the administration's banking policies and deposit insurance was his chief target. It was largely as a result of his efforts that a reduction in the assessments levied on banks by the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation was brought about.

For three years Nichols has been a barb in the side of the national banking authorities and by his forthright statements he made enemies. His detractors have sought to represent him as a crank, an ambitious politician and a publicity seeker. Now he is getting support from many sides.

Among the bankers who have publicly expressed themselves recently along the lines that Nichols has been preaching for three years are Orval W. Adams, vice president of the Utah State National bank, Salt Lake City, Utah, and George W. McLaughlin, Brooklyn banker.

Assails Government Scheme.

Adams is a vice president of the American Bankers' association. Copies of a recent speech he made attacking the FDIC are being widely circulated.

"Does the average depositor understand," Adams said in his speech, delivered before the Montana Bankers' association, "that by insuring deposits in the FDIC, what the government has really done is tantamount to insuring itself against threatened lack of funds, to discourage depositors of America from resorting to the old practices of hiding their savings in a wool sock, to coax out this money from its hiding place and bring it into the vaults of the

WHEAT FIRMER, BUT CAUTION IS SHOWN IN TRADE

Markets Abroad Make Best Price Showing.

Developments in the world's wheat situation yesterday were regarded by the trade as of a character to advance prices somewhat, but there was no snap to the buying of futures in North American markets. Closing trades were confined to fractional gains.

Corn showed independent weakness on the Chicago Board of Trade, with the September option off a cent at the close and the distant futures down small fractions. Oats were irregular and rye held practically unchanged.

Highest prices for wheat futures in leading markets were made at or just after the opening in sympathy with relative strength in Liverpool. The English market failed to follow the full decline in Winnipeg late Friday and closed only about a cent lower.

Traders Restrict Operations.

Commission houses here were on both sides of the wheat market in a small way and professional traders were inclined to restrict operations, fearing untoward developments over the week-end.

A much heavier export business in American soft white wheats at Pacific coast points has been put through recently than has been reported, according to New York messages. It was estimated that 3,500,000 bushels were sold to the United Kingdom and Japan last week. Larger sales might have been made, it was asserted, had it not been for fears that labor difficulties might prevent loading the grain into boats.

Export sales of 500,000 bushels of Canadian cash wheat were reported yesterday, part of which was said to have been taken by Italy.

Comparative Prices.

Closing trades on the September delivery of leading grains at Chicago, with comparisons, follow:

	Yesterday.	Friday.	Wk.ago.	Mo.ago.
Wheat	$1.14¼	$1.14¼	$1.12¾	$1.12⅞
Corn	1.15	1.16	1.13⅜	1.12¾
Oats	.42¾	.42⅝	.42⅛	.44⅛
Rye	.82¾	.82¾	82⅛	.84⅝

Declines in corn futures were attributed to the heavy undertone which developed in the cash market. Several cars of new Texas white corn were received yesterday. A local house had reports that Illinois farmers have started to sell old and new corn, and are buying wheat feeds because of the high prices prevailing for the coarse grain.

Baltimore reported that 32,000 bushels of Argentine corn and 39,000 bushels of foreign rye were received there on Friday.

Grain Imports Increase.

Imports of grain into the United States last week exceeded 2,000,000 bushels. Included in the total were 1,198,000 bushels of wheat for domestic consumption. The preceding week's imports were 933,000 bushels; a year ago, 531,000 bushels. From July 1 to date, a total of 11,131,000 bushels has been imported, in addition to which a large amount is held in bond at leading lake ports by mills.

Approximately 1,000,000 bushels of Argentine corn, 262,000 bushels of Latvian rye, and 29,000 bushels of Chilean oats arrived at the Atlantic seaboard last week. The amount of Argentine corn received at the Gulf and the Pacific coast was not reported.

Last week Argentina shipped 1,811,000 bushels of corn to the United States, and 563,000 bushels to Canada. In the last six weeks exports from the South American nation to this country have aggregated 10,462,000 bushels, with an additional 3,068,000 bushels to Canada.

U. S. BORROWING AGAIN RAISES INFLATION FEAR

National Leaders Warn of Grave Effects.

soy bean for feed and commercial uses and the steady expansion of production in this country. Illinois, largest producer, is expected to harvest 18 million bushels of beans this year, topped only by the 1935 output of 22 million bushels. This year's production will amount to approximately 70 per cent of the national total.

Hailed as the "little miracle bean" commercial possibilities of soy beans were discussed at length at a convention of the American Soy Bean association in Cedar Rapids, Ia. Members were told that there is scarcely a limit to the industrial products that can be obtained from the bean. Soy bean casein is being tried in the production of synthetic wool and soy bean oil offers lecithin, an emulsifying agent used by candy makers, cotton textile mills, and other industries, it was said. Articles now manufactured in which soy beans play a part vary widely, including such things as artificial hands, Christmas tree ornaments, motor car parts, office equipment, telephones, radios, and paints and varnishes. Potential export possibilities, it is said, are the best of any American farm commodity.

Introduction of soy beans into this country is a development of the present century, although they have been raised in the orient, chiefly Manchukuo, for centuries. They were first planted in Illinois as a forage crop.

HOLC.

"I think the Home Owners Loan corporation act is unconstitutional, but I am going to overrule you. I am not going to overturn an act of congress. I'll leave that to the Supreme court."

With these words Judge George Fred Rush in the Cook County Circuit court refused to dismiss a foreclosure suit brought by the government against two Chicagoans. The defendants had asked dismissal of the suit on several grounds, chief of which was the allegation that the government, in dealing in real estate mortgages, is exceeding powers expressly granted to it.

Amoskeag.

In Boston, Mass., creditors and bondholders of the defunct Amoskeag Manufacturing company, onetime giant in the textile world, approved the sale of the company's huge Manchester, N. H., plants to a citizen's group for 5 million dollars. The group plans to sell the plants to concerns which will operate them and restore employment to the thousands thrown on relief rolls by Amoskeag's failure.

Meanwhile, a congressional committee on bondholders' reorganizations announced it would investigate the dead concern in connection with alleged "manipulative activities that caused approximately 50 million dollars' loss to the investing public." It was charged Amoskeag assets were marked up 40 million dollars through bookkeeping mechanics and that 13 millions in cash was transferred from the operating company to its parent concern, Amoskeag company, during the last few years. Trustees reported assets of the concern, exclusive of the plant, totaled $9,300,000, of which $8,800,000 was in cash and the balance in receivables.

Speed.

Next Sunday the Pennsylvania railroad will inaugurate what is said to be the fastest sustained speed of any standard sized steam powered train in the country. An average of 75 miles an hour will be maintained over the 141 mile stretch between Fort Wayne, Ind., and Chicago by the Detroit Arrow. It will make the run in 113 minutes.

Fort William August Grain Movement 23,062,807 Bu.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 19.—(AP)—One hundred sixty shiploads totaling 23,062,807 bushels of grain were moved out of Fort William-Port Arthur during August, the Lake Shippers' Clearance association reported today.

Buffalo led in receipts of wheat at 3,326,120 bushels. Port Colborne was next with 3,320,936 bushels. Lake shipments of wheat came to 19,186,124 bushels. Including rail movement, the total was 19,345,690, sharply below the 37,950,371 in the same month last year but above the 15,438,116 in 1934.

BOND BORROWING LENGTHENS U. S. DEBT MATURITY

Morgenthau Says Interest Rate Is Reduced.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—As a result of recent treasury borrowing in the form of bonds rather than notes, the proportion of long term obligations of the United States was further increased to 55.3 per cent of the entire interest bearing debt, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. announced today.

The figures made public by Morgenthau are exclusive of postal savings, United States savings, adjusted service bonds, and special issues to governmental agencies and trust funds. Bonds sold in the mid-September financing amounted to 460 million dollars.

The proportion of long term securities, or bonds with a maturity longer than five years, was 48.6 per cent on June 30, 1935, and on June 30, 1934, it was 44.7 per cent.

Average Maturity Longer.

Coupled with the change in the form of paper, Morgenthau said, there has been an increase in the average length of maturity of the interest bearing debt. The average on Aug. 31 was nine years and eight months, as compared with seven years and seven months Dec. 31, 1934.

Morgenthau also said that the interest rates paid by the treasury on the debt had been clipped. Although this was true, the secretary failed to mention that under the colossal spending of the New Deal, the debt had risen to 33 billion 815 million dollars, or a 13 billion dollar boost during the Roosevelt administration.

"The average yield on long term treasury bonds was 3.66 per cent in 1932, 3.31 per cent in 1933, and 3.10 per cent in 1934," said an official treasury statement. "In 1935 and 1936 no treasury bonds were offered to yield more than 2.875 per cent; slightly more than five billions of treasury bonds were issued carrying a coupon rate of only 2.75 per cent; $2,611,000,000 carried a coupon rate of 2.875 per cent, and $211,000,000 of 3 per cent of a previous issue were sold at auction to yield an average of about 2.64 per cent."

Short Terms Reduced.

Between June 30, 1933, and the present, Morgenthau said, the percentage of the debt maturing in less than one year has been reduced from 15.6 to 11.6, and the percentage maturing in fifteen years or more has been increased from 18.5 to 27.9.

Morgenthau declared that "if conditions remain substantially as favorable as they are now," it would be possible to refund a major portion of the public debt on far better terms than were possible even a year ago.

It has been the secretary's contention, as well as President Roosevelt's, that the oversubscription of treasury offerings, plus lowered interest rates and lengthened maturities reflect "confidence" in the nation's credit. Many bankers whose institutions are bulging with money which can find no profitable outlet in private business are of the opinion, however, that the money market with interest rates beaten down by the New Deal's fiscal policy, is the reason for the oversubscription.

SMITH-CORONA TYPEWRITER TO PAY DIVIDEND

L. C. Smith and Corona Typewriter company yesterday resumed dividends on the common stock by declaring a payment of 25 cents, to be made on Oct. 1 to stock of record Sept. 23. The preceding dividend, of the same amount, was paid in January, 1931.

Northwestern Electric company ordered a payment of $5.25 against accumulated dividends on the first preferred stock, to be paid Oct. 1 to stock of record Sept. 18. Present arrears on the stock amount to $26.53 a share and the latest dividend is made possible by restatement of the common stock.

A payment on accumulations was also voted by directors of Sterling Securities corporation, amounting to $3, to be paid Oct. 15 to preferred stockholders of record Sept. 30. A dividend of the same amount was paid on Aug. 17.

Directors of Schenley Distillers corporation placed the common stock on an annual basis of $3 with a quarterly declaration of 75 cents a share. The same amount was paid in the preceding quarter but was not designated as a quarterly disbursement. Consideration will be given to another dividend later in the year, directors said.

Lower October Crude Oil Production Recommended

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—(AP)—The bureau of mines today recommended a daily average crude oil production of 2,842,300 barrels to meet October estimated demand for petroleum and provide for reasonable changes in stocks. This forecast was 21,700 barrels lower than for September, but 288,100 barrels higher than for October last year. The bureau said the decrease reflected a small normal seasonal decline in gasoline consumption which was not quite offset by lower recommended withdrawals from motor fuel stocks.

U. S. Company to Make Auto Steel in Australia

CANBERRA, Australia, Sept. 19.—Sir Henry Gullett, trade minister, announced yesterday in the house of representatives that the Armco International corporation, a subsidiary of the American Rolling Mill company, in conjunction with the John Lysaght company of Australia, had decided to proceed immediately with the manufacture of sheet steel for automobile bodies in New South Wales. More than £400,000 a year is now expended for imports of such steel, he said.

U. S. Predicts 11 Per Cent Gain in 1936 Cash Farm Income

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Reporting that drouth boosted prices offset shortened crops, the agriculture department estimated today that cash income of farmers this year would total $7,830,000,000, or almost 11 per cent more than the 1935 total of $7,090,000,000.

Both totals include cash income from the marketing of farm products and benefit payments under federal control plans. The department said "government payments during 1936 are expected to be considerably smaller than in 1935," when they were $585,000,000.

The cash income estimate was described as based on actual income for the first seven months of this year, plus "indications as to sale and probable prices for farm products" during the remainder of 1936.

Receive 4 Billion in 7 Months.

Cash received by farmers in seven months was placed at $4,024,000,000, compared with $3,426,000,000 in the similar perird of 1935.

The advance of prices as the result of drouth reduced crops, and improved "demand for farm products," were given as main factors behind the prediction that farm income for the remaining months of this year would be higher than last year. The increases during the first half of this year were credited to larger supplies of farm products sold at slightly lower prices than in 1935. During the last half, the report said, this will be reversed with shorter supplies and higher prices.

Illinois Income Larger.

The department reported that Illinois farmers had an income of $49,691,000 in July from the sale of their principal products, an increase of $22,064,000 over the same month of the preceding year.

Their July income also exceeded that of July, 1934, which was given as $32,744,000, and that of July, 1933, which was $43,958,000.

Illinois' income from Jan. 1 to July 31, 1935, was estimated at $248,422,000, as against $185,639,000 in the same period of 1935, and $147,733,000 in 1934.

Get More for Milk.

Manufacturers of evaporated milk paid farmers of the nation $55,500,000 last year, more than $10,000,000 above 1934, and 70 per cent more than in 1932, the department reported. During the 1932 to 1935 period, officials said, the average price per hundred pounds paid to producers for evaporation increased about 52 per cent.

Despite the sharp increase in farmers' income from milk, the volume sold to condenseries was only 2.7 per cent larger than in 1934 and 12 per cent greater than in 1932. The 1935 average per hundredweight was $1.35, compared with $1.14 in 1934, 98 cents in 1933, and 89 cents in 1932. During the same three year period the price of evaporated milk rose from $2.37 to $2.73 a case.

FLOOD OF PORK IMPORTS WIDENS BREAK IN HOGS

New Crop Swine Supply Also Increasing.

Heavy importations of foreign pork, which have made the wholesale meat trade more susceptible to the influence of domestic slaughter supplies of hogs, were partly responsible for the severe collapse of the American pork and hog markets last week as the fall movement of new crop swine showed signs of increasing.

The break was the sharpest of the year, with eastern points bearing the brunt. A fall break is seasonable, but it has come earlier than in 1935. At this time last year hogs were setting new 1935 highs.

Sagging fresh pork markets, which last week handled the largest volume of domestic pork in recent weeks, as well as the huge tonnage imported from other countries, curtailed packer demand for live hogs abruptly early in the week.

Light Hogs Drop Sharply.

Light hogs in Chicago fell 50 cents to $1 in less than a week as the sluggish condition of the pork markets scared out a lot of smaller local interests that deal mostly in fresh meats.

Packers have been selling pork on a rapidly declining market for the last two weeks. The attached compilation shows what pork sold for late last week compared with two weeks ago [prices in dollars per hundred pounds]:

	Late last week.	Two weeks ago.

Skin. hams.	15.00 to 20.00	15.25 to 21.00

At the close of the week most hogs under 220 pounds were selling unevenly 60 cents to $1 lower than a week ago, while most other hogs showed declines of 25 to 50 cents. Sows declined 35 to 45 cents for the week.

Other Live Stock Advances.

Practically all other live stock advanced during the week. Steers closed steady to 40 cents higher, with the sharpest gains in the light steers and yearling stock. Hefers showed an upturn of 15 to 25 cents, but cows declined, closing from steady to 35 cents lower. Calves dropped 25 to 50 cents. Stockers and feeders sold steady to 15 cents higher. The average price for beef steers for the six days at $9.30 was the highest weekly price since January. Wholesale beef carcasses closed mostly 50 cents higher than a week ago.

The lamb trade followed an extremely erratic course, falling sharply during the first half of the week with the midweek top at $9.50 equaling the 1936 low spot. A reaction later boosted the top to $10, with final quotations 25 to 40 cents above a week ago.

ILLINOIS BUILDS MORE IN AUGUST THAN YEAR AGO

August Permits Rise in Number and Value.

BY AL CHASE.

Building construction in Illinois registered a substantial increase in both number of building permits and estimated value during August as compared with the same month last year, according to the monthly survey made by the division of statistics and research of the Illinois department of labor.

There were 2,277 permits valued at $5,061,426 issued in niney-six Illinois cities last month. During August, last year, there were 1,748 permits with a dollar value of $3,555,634. This is a gain of 30.3 per cent in number of projects and 42.3 per cent in estimated cost.

Residential Building Loans.

The largest increase was in new residential construction with 338 permits, valued at $2,010,052, issued last month as compared with 154 permits, costing $873,738, issued during August of last year. This is an increase of 119.5 per cent in number and 130.1 per cent in dollar value.

There also was a gain in non-residential building, with August permits totaling 489, valued at $1,477,347, compared with 371 permits, costing $1,388,774, in the same month last year.

Improvements Show Increase.

Permits for additions and rebuilding also gained during August as compared with the same month last year. In number of projects the increase was 18.6 per cent and in value 21.7 per cent.

Contrary to the average gain in building from July to August of 5.1 per cent over the last fifteen year period, last month's totals were less than those of the preceding month of July. The number of permits showed only a slight decrease, from 2,286 to 2,277, but in dollar value the drop was considerable, from $7,091,856 to $5,061,426, or 28.6 per cent.

A similar trend was reported for the Chicago area—the seventh reserve district. Debits amounted to $1,270,596,000, against $845,637,000 a week earlier and $1,048,924,000 a year ago. In Chicago the total was $776,784,000, compared with $845,637,000 in the preceding week and $638,303,000 a year ago.

Bank clearings by members of the Chicago Clearing House association in the week ended yesterday totaled $314,500,000, against $244,700,000 in the preceding week and $272,900,000 a year ago. Daily clearing follow:

The latest move in the drive to increase railroad passenger trafic is scheduled for Oct. 4 when the Pennsylvania railroad will run a 356 mile tour at a cost of $3.50, or less than a cent a mile.

Billed as an "off the beaten path" excursion, the special train will run from Chicago to Logansport, Ind., over tracks which have been used exclusively for freight for many years, thence to La Otto, Ind., and then to Fort Wayne where a stop of an hour will be made to inspect the Pennsylvania round house and view historical equipment. From Fort Wayne to Chicago the excursionists will be offered a speed thrill when the train will attempt to better the average rate of 75 miles an hour for the 141 mile run, which is soon to be established by the road's Detroit Arrow.

While the trip is sponsored by the Chicago chapter of the Railway and Locomotive Historical society, it will be open to the public.

ROCK ISLAND'S PLAN OPPOSED BY BOND GROUP

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—(AP)—A committee of five, representing the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad company general mortgage 4 per cent bonds of 1988, was authorized by the interstate commerce commission today to intervene in that road's reorganization proceedings.

The committee, headed by Thomas I. Parkinson, New York, told the commission it considered the Rock Island reorganization plan "entirely unacceptable" and desired to oppose it.

Public hearings on the reorganization plan have been set for Oct. 6.

LARD CLOSES WITH NET LOSSES OF 12½ TO 15 CENTS

Hedging pressure and scattered liquidation by holders of lard contracts kept the market on the downgrade yesterday, and the close was at net losses of 12½ to 15 cents per hundredweight. A slow distributive demand for lard and cured meats, and an unusually early fall movement of hogs has tended to discourage speculative buyers of lard futures.

Clear bellies [salt pork] closed unchanged to 10 cents lower. Cash lard was quoted at $11.57 per 100 pounds; loose, $11.05; leaf, $11.50; clear bellies, $13.25. Range of futures follows:

STEEL WORKERS OFFER REASONS FOR WAGE BOOST

Answer Fairless, Head of Carnegie-Illinois.

Employé representatives of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation's South Chicago plant, where about 14,000 men are employed, yesterday made public a letter sent to President B. F. Fairless in which they submitted reasons why they believe a wage increase should be granted.

The letter, dated Sept. 14, was made in reply to the communication sent by Fairless a week ago to all the company's plants in which he said an increase could not be granted at the present time "without jeopardizing the business."

The employés' letter supported the statement made by Fairless that the present base wage rate of 47 cents an hour is the highest ever paid by the corporation.

The employés' letter asserted, however, that the maximum annual income of a worker under the present system is $1,173.20. This is due, the employé representatives said, to the fact that an employé may work a maximum of 48 hours a week.

"It is obvious," the communication added, "that with a total income of the amount stated no family of four can subsist independently at this time, far less afford themselves the reasonable advantages available under our civilization today.

"We are not aware that there is any budget in existence today which states that any typical American family can subsist, to say nothing about becoming possible purchasers of industry's mass production, on any figure less than something over $1,300 per year."

Debate Effect of Increase.

Fairless had told the employés that the United States Steel corporation, of which Carnegie-Illinois is a subsidiary, had made a profit in the first half of 1936 for the first time in five years and that the ten per cent wage increase asked would all but wipe it out.

"If the profits for the second six months," the employés' letter said, "can be assumed to be as good as those of the first six months, the annual profits will be a little over $32,500,000. Figuring the wage increase on an annual basis as against an annual profit and for the entire United States Steel corporation would show that the profits, if realized, would still be some $7,500,000 above the additional outlay for wages required by a ten per cent increase."

Former Earnings Recited.

The employés' letter added that the earnings of U. S. Steel during the period from 1923 to 1930 "were substantial" and in excess of presumed "surpluse" requirements, and were divided with stockholders in the form of high dividends and stock dividends.

The group asked that its representatives meet with company officials either in Chicago or Pittsburgh to discuss the wage question further. A representative of the company said the employés' group had been informed that Fairless was away from his Pittsburgh office but that a date would be set as soon as he could be reached.

U. S. Steel has paid preferred dividends for the last three and a half years at the rate of 50 cents a share quarterly, compared with the $1.75 to which the preferred stockholders are entitled.

The Steel corporation, according to President William A. Irvin, is employing 48,000 more men than in 1929 as a result of its "share-the-work" policy which was touched on in the employés' letter.

COPPER AND TIN PRICES ADVANCE SHARPLY IN WEEK

New York, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Copper and tin provided developments of outstanding interest in the non-ferrous metals in the last week. Prices of both advanced sharply, although the rise in copper was confined to the foreign market, where a new peak since April, 1931, was made at 9.95 cents a pound from which point there was a slight recession later. Domestic copper was unchanged at 9¾ cents but majority opinion was that attainment of the 10 cents level has been merely postponed temporarily.

Tin ended the week with a net gain of 1½ cents a pound. The upturn reflected readjustment of prices at London and Singapore in relation to New York, the firmness of sterling, and, hopes for a renewal of the production restriction agreement.

The good demand for lead continued, ending the eleventh week of active buying. Zinc was steady. While there was evidence of a better inquiry for antimony, prices were unchanged for the week.

Chase Bank to Intervene in Rio Grande Plan

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—(AP)—The Chase National bank of New York City, trustee under the Denver, Rio Grande Western Railroad company refunding and improvement mortgage, was authorized by the interstate commerce commission today to intervene in that road's reorganization proceedings. The bank said in its petition that the plan of reorganization of the road now pending, or any other plan submitted, involved "fundamental questions" as to the rights of holders of refunding and improvement bonds.

Use of Iron Ore Increases 51 Per Cent Over Year Ago

Cleveland, O., Sept. 19.—Consumption of iron ore during August showed a gain of 51 per cent over the like month last year, the Lake Superior Iron Ore association has reported. The amount consumed last month was 3,968,845 tons, compared with 3,826,050 the previous month, a gain of 142,795 tons. In August, 1935, consumption was 2,615,927 tons.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 19.—Railroad bonds moved sharply higher today in unusually heavy trading for a short Saturday session. Demand was attributed to large orders and inquiries for railroad cars and equipment which market observers believed augured well for further increases in car loadings. Transactions amounted to $7,493,000, par value, compared with $5,827,000 a year ago.

Elsewhere gains were recorded but upturns were not as uniform as in the carrier division. Trading in federal government issues was negligible and most issues finished unchanged from Friday's close.

Prominent Rail Issues.

Improvement in the railroad list ranged from fractions to several points. Bonds prominent in the upturn included obligations of the Milwaukee road, Chicago and North Western, St. Louis-San Francisco, Lehigh Valley, Peoria and Eastern, Seaboard Airline, and Southern. Atlanta and Birmingham 4s rose more than 3 points.

Industrial and specialty bonds closed higher. American Type Founders 5s jumped 7½ points to a new high mark. Amusement company securities continued their recent improvement with Paramount 6s advancing 1⅛ to 96⅛ and Warner Brothers 6s gaining ⅜ to 97¾.

Convertible Bonds Advance.

Convertible issues moved forward in conjunction with the sharp upturn in the stock market.

Little interest was shown in the market for foreign dollar bonds where pivotal issues moved irregularly in a narrow range. The only outstanding gain was turned in by Polish 7s which advanced 1¼ points to 86¼.

Utility Stocks.

Public interest in shares of the various electric and gas utility corporations has increased greatly in the last few months. Many investors appear to be shopping in the lower priced preferred stock group, as many such issues have participated fully in the generally rising stock market.

To say that the worries of utilities are over would be far from the truth, but a number of factors have combined to give them a better rating with the investing public.

The public utility legislation passed by congress during 1935 presents a serious problem to many of the large holding companies, though they hope that it will be knocked out by the Supreme court.

Another matter that still is of concern involves the granting of federal loans to municipalities to permit them to build plants of their own in competition with privately owned utilities.

A third threat from governmental policy lies in the present administration's program for development of numerous federal power projects.

Aside from the governmental aspects, however, the utility picture is much brighter. Both gross revenues and net income have increased all along the line during the last year. Revival of the heavy industries has boosted use of power to record high levels.

Many companies have begun payments on dividend arrears on preferred stocks, now that earnings not only are covering current preferred requirements but leaving something more besides.

Payment of some of these arrears or prospects of such payments have resulted in higher quotations on many utility preferred stocks.

Optimism in this direction is heightened by the new federal tax on undistributed earnings, which will penalize companies not paying out most of their earnings in dividends. On the other hand, many companies need liquid funds, and many may seek elimination of the preferred arrears through some adjustment of capital structure rather than full payment in cash.

It would seem that carefully selected preferred shares might be suitable for investment of part of one's funds now, but most of the utility common stocks must still be placed in the speculative class. Stocks of operating companies generally are in a better position than those of holding companies.

COTTON DIPS ON HEDGING SALES AND GOOD WEATHER

Cotton markets showed a heavy undertone yesterday, and at no time were prices above the close of the previous day. Scattered selling by the south attributed to hedging against spot cotton and more favorable weather conditions in the western belt helped along the decline. Trade buying was not as aggressive as recently. Net losses on futures in the leading American markets ranged from 7 to 17 points, with the nearby deliveries showing the most loss [a point is equal to 1/100 cent per pound, or 5 cents per bale].

Ginning of cotton from Aug. 1 to Sept. 16, as indicated by reports of E. H. Miller of Shields & Co., aggregated 3,298,000 bales, including 1,374,000 bales during the first half of September. The total for the season to date is the heaviest in more than six years. The crop was reported as having deteriorated in Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, and Texas, but showed little change in other states as compared with the Sept. 1 condition.

Spot cotton closed 15 to 20 points lower, with New Orleans and New York at 12.25 cents per pound, Galveston at 12.05 cents, and Houston at 12.10 cents. Range of futures follows:

BUTTER, EGGS MODERATELY HIGHER; POTATOES DECLINE

Predictions by the bureau of agricultural economics of higher prices for butter and eggs during the coming winter were reflected in a moderate advance in futures on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday. Best prices were not maintained, owing to profit-taking sales.

November butter closed unchanged at 33⅛ cents per pound. Egg futures gained ⅛ to ¼ cent, with October contracts closing at 25⅞ cents per dozen. Weakness in London had some effect on butter in the late trading.

Potato futures declined 2 to 5 cents, with October closing at $1.95 per 100 pounds. Warmer weather in the western states was a factor. Sales of butter futures totaled 39 cars; eggs, 163 cars; potatoes, 8 cars. Range of futures follows:

MORE BANKERS FLAIL DEPOSIT GUARANTY PLAN

Question Soundness of Federal Program.

bankers where it can be easily accessible to the federal government? The FDIC cannot insure against loss of earnings through unavoidable reductions in interest rates, nor against loss of principal through inflation."

Points Path to Inflation.

Last week before a meeting of state bank supervisors in Detroit, McLaughlin warned that "an indefinite prolongation of government borrowings from banks will produce inflation." He also pointed out that the funds of the deposit corporation are chiefly invested in government securities at the same time that banks are overloaded with the same paper.

In 1933 Nichols served notice that his bank would not join the FDIC unless forced to do so. As a national bank and a member of the reserve system, the First of Englewood bank was finally forced to submit but Nichols still maintains that the program is unsound. He does not believe that insurance can be provided against poor bank management. The sound banking rule against putting all the assets in one basket should not be suspended, in Nichols' opinion, because the basket happens to be the federal treasury, particularly when the federal government is spending far beyond its income and shows no intention of balancing its budget.

Nichols' Policies Outlined.

Nichols runs his own bank strictly in accordance with his own ideas of sound banking policy. The bank has not accepted a new deposit account since July 10, 1934. It has no loans to customers on its books. It has reduced its deposits at a time when the deposits of other banks were soaring. It has increased its service charges to customers and reduced the rate paid on deposits below that of other institutions.

Still the public wants to do business with the bank. Hundreds of persons wishing to open accounts have been turned away. Several preferred accounts of $50,000 or more have been declined.

"We tell the people that we don't know how to invest their money safely and profitably," Nichols said yesterday. "We suggest to them that they rent a safe deposit box and put their money where they can get it back and also take a look at it once in a while.

Seeks to Protect Depositors.

"We have half of our assets in government securities but we reserve the right to pay off our depositors with such paper. We don't know when trouble is coming, but we are protecting ourselves as best we can. The remainder of our assets is largely in cash."

Extravagant government spending, if continued, can only lead to one end in Nichols' opinion—national bankruptcy. It was with a view of protecting itself that the bank required that depositors agree to accept government bonds in payment of their claims.

Nichols admits that the policy of maintaining complete liquidity does not produce bank profits. However, so convinced is he that his position is sound that he is wililng to sacrifice the revenues that would come through greater employment of the bank's assets.

Waits for Safe Investments.

"We are merely a glorified currency exchange, but we are makiny enough to get along until the time comes when we feel that we can invest with confidence," he said. "In the long run we will profit from our policy."

Nichols revealed that he had been invited by a group of Chicago business men to move his bank to the loop.

"They promised that they would raise necessary additional capital and guaranteed to bring in $12,000,000 in additional deposits within a week of the day we opened up downtown," he said. "It took me several hours to convince their representative that I was not interested in such a proposition. He appeared astounded, but I finally made him see my viewpoint.

Bank Controlled by Family.

"I have no ambition to be a 'big banker.' I want to run this bank the way it should be run and if I can't do it I will pay off the depositors and shut up shop."

The Nichols family has controled the Englewood bank since 1891. John M. Nichols began to work for the bank in 1911 after three years in his father's lumber yard. He became its head in 1920 on the death of his elder brother.

At one time the bank's stock was the highest priced among Chicago bank shares. Today it is quoted around $150 a share and stocks of several other banks are commanding higher prices.

"Nobody wants to buy our stock when I keep criticizing the government and refuse to accept new deposits," Nichols said. "But we don't want to sell either."

BATTLE ON FOR LEGISLATIVE MAJORITY

YOUTH REVOLT IN METHODIST CHURCH WANES

Council Votes Down Severance Threat.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

An official report of the recent meeting of the National Council of Methodist Youth at Berea college, Berea, Ky., discloses the decision of that council to remain at least tentatively in full connection with the general conference of the Methodist church. The report was made public by the Methodist board of education, 740 Rush street.

This decision, affecting youth organizations in 200 Methodist churches in Chicago, sets aside, at least temporarily, the fears expressed by many church officials that the youth council would go independent and retain at most only a nominal relationship with the denomination. The youth rebelliousness mainly arose from the recent failure of the church's board of education to reappoint two official youth leaders who were accused of extreme radicalism.

However, the relationship between the church and the youth council was permitted to remain on a sort of stalemate basis until a committee appointed by the youths "works out" relationships between the various bodies represented in the council, including the church board of education.

Climax of Convention.

The Rev. Dr. Blaine E. Kirkpatrick and the Rev. Owen M. Geer, the dismissed secretaries whose ousting raised the critical question of whether the church could keep its thumb on the activities of its youth, were present at Berea meetings. Their presentation to the young folks on the final day of the meeting was regarded the climax of the convention. With the honors accorded to the martyrs to the radical cause, the youths now will turn to another issue which their leaders calculate will keep the rift between the youth council and the church from closing.

This cause is the official relationship of the church to the annual peace strike on American campuses. This strike, fostered and blessed by the American League Against war and Fascism, known as the American section of "the Red front," was not indorsed by the church's board of education. The Rev. Hays Beall of New York, president of the council, condemned publicly the board's action.

"It was an unfortunate day for the council and, we believe, for Methodism, when the board of education ambiguously gave us to understand that it not only disapproved but went on to state an attitude quite contrary to the peace pronouncements of Methodism," declared the Rev. Mr. Beall.

Major Point of Tension.

One commentator asserted after the conference was over that this matter of annually recurring student strikes against war is the major point of tension to be ironed out between the board of education and the youth council. Another issue which the leaders of the youths raised was opposition to the merger of the three principal branches of American Methodists, the Northern, Southern, and Protestant, on racial grounds. The merger plan provides a separate conference for Negroes which the youths' leaders frequently referred to as a proposed "Jim Crow" church.

The leaders of the youths had no difficulty in adopting virtually unanimous resolutions of criticism of the church. The Kirkpatrick-Geer section of one resolution declared the dismissal of these men was "unjustifiable" and "arbitrary."

"It appears," the resolution went on, "that there is now in the high circles of the church a determined effort to still the voice of our liberal leaders, which is a source of profound distress and gives suspicion of possible defeat of our entire program. Therefore, we express our profound disapproval of the actions of the board of bishops, the executive secretary of the board of education, and the board of education itself which resulted in the removal of these men.

Greatly Disturbed.

The fact that some of these actions were taken in the face of one of the greatest storms of protest ever registered within the Methodist church is indicative of the fact that it is not a just representation of the position of Methodism. Furthermore, we are greatly distressed by the fact that so many of the moves involved in the whole incident were either sub rosa or indirect in their nature so that no opportunity was given either for a hearing or a clear cut challenging of the action.

"We are undaunted, however, in our determination to continue an aggressive program of study and action. We will not drop our task of building a new world just because of our disappointment. We have faith in the Christian message and are determined that the church of our day and generation shall stand in the very forefront of those forces which are leading to the establishment of a more Christian social order. It is our desire to demonstrate the spirit of Christ, who with love in his heart, nevertheless 'set his face steadfastly toward Jerusalem.' We salute all who may go forward with us and pray God that he will give us strength for the facing of this and every hour."

Venerable velvet—that cloaked royalty in luxury through history—appears for this fall season in styling to match its reputation. Silver fox . . . shimmering light against ebony black, is its accompaniment. This two piece suit with its band of fox at the edge of the tunic fashioned princess style is worn here by Miss Lorraine Stewart, 3548 North Lawndale avenue. It's at the peak of popularity for dressy wear.

Sports afield . . . football in the air . . . and a casual costume goes forth. Fur for warmth, lether and plaid for smartness—these three go together to dress a jaunty miss. The warm colors of the plaid skirt are copied from the pigments of autumn. Tan lether on the jacket contrasts with brown fur. Miss Irene Baker models the costume, which is shown in a northwest side shop.

G. O. P. OUT FOR SEATS IN NORTH AREA DISTRICTS

Striving to Capture Lost Control.

BY STANLEY ARMSTRONG.

In only six of the nineteen legislative districts in Cook county are there real contests on Nov. 3 for seats in the Illinois house of representatives. This results from the legislative primary law which permits the senatorial committees in each district to determine before the primary how many candidates each party will nominate in the districts. In districts in which the major political parties nominate between them only three—the exact number of seats to be filled from each district—the result of the primary is considered equivalent to election.

The north area includes three districts wholly and sections of two others. In two of these—the First and Twenty-ninth—only three candidates were nominated on April 14 for the three seats in each. The contests are in the Sixth, Seventh, and Thirty-first districts in each of which four candidates—two Republicans and two Democrats—were nominated for three seats.

Contests for Senate.

However, there are two other contests on the north side. State senators are to be elected this fall in the even numbered districts. In the Sixth district the candidates are Senator James J. Barbour of Evanston, Republican, and John J. Meyers, Democrat. In the Eighth district, which includes Lake, McHenry and Boone counties, the nominees are Senator Ray Paddock, Round Lake, Republican, and Leo Dailey, Waukegan, Democrat.

In two of the house fights the Republicans are striving to recapture seats lost only recently. Two Republicans and one Democrat represented the Sixth district prior to the 1935 session of the general assembly, and the same ratio prevailed in the Thirty-first district prior to the 1931 session.

In the Thirty-first district, which stretches along the lake shore between Goethe street and Devon avenue, the Republican candidates are Representative Edward P. Saltiel, and Edward F. McGinnis; the Democratic nominees, Representative Pierce L. Shannon and Mason S. Sullivan.

Saltiel Seeks Second Term.

Saltiel, who was born in the district, is finishing his first term. He has been engaged in the practice of law since 1919, and is active in civic and fraternal affairs. For eight years he has been secretary of the board of directors of the Knights of Pythias' Orphan Home and Old Peoples' home, and is the head of a national boys' organization.

The Legislative Voters' league in its report on legislators before the April 14 primary said of him: "He was unusually active for a first term member, doing creditable work in committees and on the floor; he made a creditable voting record and showed decided legislative capacity."

His Republican colleague, McGinnis, was indorsed also by the L. V. L. in the primary race. Of him the L. V. L. said: "An active man of good reputation and pleasing personality who has long been active in civic affairs and appears to have good qualifications."

Prominent in Legion.

McGinnis is assistant manager of an investment firm. He is prominent in the American Legion, having been one of its organizers in this state in 1919. He has served as post, district, and Cook county commander of the Legion, and has been a delegate to many of its conventions. In the Legion he has stressed the promotion of its Americanism work.

Shannon served as a captain of field artillery on the Mexican border and in the world war with a Chicago regiment. He is completing his third term in the house, and the L. V. L. reported that he was rather active, particularly in behalf of needed revision of the small loans act, and appropriations for national guard armories.

Sullivan, too, is a war veteran. He was born in Chicago and was graduated from DePaul university. He was an assistant city corporation counsel for four years, and now is ending his third term in the house. The L. V. L. said that in the 1935 session "he did not appear to be very active or effective."

Sixth District Rivals.

Candidates in the Sixth district, which embraces Evanston and a narrow strip of Chicago running south to North avenue, are: Representative Drennan J. Slater, and Fred G. Koehler, Republicans, and Representatives Charles H. Weber, and George H. Smith, Democrats.

Slater was born in Chicago, and has lived in Evanston for nearly 30 years. He was graduated from the Evanston public schools, Dartmouth college, and Northwestern University law school. Since 1928 he has been engaged in the practice of law.

Reporting on him before the primary the L. V. L. said: "He is ending his second term with an exc[illegible]nt record. Mr. Slater is a carefu[illegible] [illegible]udent of pending measures and a[illegible] knows what is happening in the house. He is one of the leading members on the Republican side and is

BY ELBERT FAUST.

Cradled in the rolling country not far southwest of Half Day, presenting the appearance of an earlier Illinois village, is Long Grove, an unincorporated community of resourceful farmers and tradesmen. Skilfully avoiding the course of concrete roads, it is a contradiction in modern ways, colorfully historic in one aspect and yet as modern as today in others.

Comfort and quiet lie beside two gravel roads intersecting to form the village center—a section road and the old McHenry trail. A hitching rail stands before a general store. On another side is a blacksmith shop, alive with a ringing anvil. A quiet church stands away from the crossroads.

Companions separated by the road are a carpenter shop and a fire house manned and maintained by farmers of the neighborhood. Nearby and seemingly abashed, is a small garage.

25 Homes in Village.

The resident families live in some 25 green lawned houses and cottages. Elm, maple and oak trees shade the village from the summer sun and in winter break the force of winds sweeping across the surrounding hills. Kitchen gardens and fruit trees and an occasional grape vine grow between backyards and fields.

The township farmers are predominantly dairy and truck, engaged in supplying the Chicago market. Before the development of the motor truck and automobile the area's wealth came from the Long Grove cheese factory, which was the nucleus of the village. It is gone now, its place taken by the Chicago milk shed depots.

The custom of early morning buying while lines of horse-drawn wagons waited their turns to unload clattering milk cans was dropped when the factory ceased its operation, but a healthy trade still exists with families of the countryside in spite of the large commercial centers nearby.

Live Idyllic Life.

Living an idyllic life in the midst of hurry and unrest the people of Long Grove have attained a stage of perfection in coöperative relations beyond the reach of larger villages and towns. Complete understanding of individual responsibilities has eliminated the necessity of organized administration. In place of town hall meetings and council arguments are peaceful neighborly conversations.

Occupied with the problems of successful farming, they have not been faced with the typical problems of other communities—relief, crime, questionable municipal improvements, taxation with no visible results.

The elements of modern industry, production and distribution, are present, but not in a degree sufficient to cause concern. A few farm wives can and sell excess produce. Some families process selected products for sale in other communities.

Enjoy Rural Pastimes.

Modern diversions are available in towns not far away. Their popularity, however, is challenged by the pastimes barely familiar to urban residents—town picnics, community dances, baseball games, harvest time, plowing, planting, hunting, the march of the seasons across the fields and through the woods.

One of the oldest residents is Victor Sauer, 88 years of age, who came to this country from Germany as a small boy. Long Grove was but a crossroads and a few farms when he and his parents settled there, attracted by reports of good land. Sitting in the shade of an apple tree in his yard by the side of the McHenry trail, he took pleasure in reviewing his memories.

"You can see how the village got its name," he said. "Over there," he pointed to the north, "is what is left of a great grove of trees. There still is pretty much left of it. I don't remember everything, you know, but these big clumps were all a part of the woods."

Mr. Sauer and a brother, C. A. Sauer, operated the village general store, now owned by John L. Hans, the son of an early family. In his rôle as storekeeper, Mr. Sauer made regular trips to the Chicago markets, exchanging produce and meats for groceries, hardware, dry goods and wearing apparel. It was shortly before the store was opened that he attempted to go to war as a substitute.

He laughed, "I was pretty young then and didn't know much about war. In those days the practice of joining the army as a substitute for a drafted man was pretty common. They used to pay as much as a thousand dollars and that looked like a lot of money to us to get started on. My family didn't let me go. There were not very many of us to be spared from the farm work."

Recall Old Families.

Old family names recalled by Mr. Sauer and Mr. Hans and still borne by present families are Herschberger, Tonne, Umdenstock, Laseke, Eissler, Reimer, Wickersheim, Ritzenthaler, Raupp, Stemple, Fehlman, Rose, Zimmer, and Ruth..

Community interest centers about two district schools, the Long Grove Evangelical church, Community club and Long Grove baseball club. The church hall, a dance hall, and a portion of land furnished for summer outings by Alois Tins, a carpenter, witness the social activities.

In addition to the general store, garage, blacksmith and carpenter shops, the village supports a meat market and barber shop.

Blue Print Machine Added to Maine High Equipment

Maine Township High school has announced the installation of a new blue print machine for the use of students of the industrial arts department. Use of the machine in making copies of master drawings made by students will be directed by C. J. Rogers, mechanical drawing instructor.

Glamor Permeates New Fall Fashions for Evening Wear

BY DORIS LOCKERMAN.

Glamor, they are saying, can be bought. Indeed, so profligate has it become that it is virtually inescapable. Take, for instance, the paradox of a long sleeved black velvet gown, with a slit, tubular skirt in directoire style. Add to it a demure white pique collar, a deep back decolletage. And for good measure a wisp of a hat, atop Recamier curls. You see . . .

Consider the conspiracy of picture dresses in pale blue taffeta, say, tight bodiced, with bared shoulders, pitted against gold lame in its opulent 1935 version, void now of metallic stiffness, and substituting instead the softness of duvetyn, both designed with that gesture to comfort, the swing skirt.

Court Influence Seen.

Resist, if you can, a wasp waist gown of cotton net, with a coat of taffeta lined velveteen that takes its hue from King Edward's coronation. The British court, incidentally, is enjoying a strong influence in autumn fashions. It has served as an excuse for slim dresses in the princess mode, empire gowns of satin, and justified a splurge into elegance that has startled even the designers.

If you get beyond the renaissance colors and the glitter of sequins and jet, to say nothing of bugles and glass beads, you'll notice that skirt lengths are shorter. Two and three inches from the floor is the rule for what is right for evening. And there is a trend toward indecision, sanctioning an irregular length for those whose minds are easily swerved. But in such cases the gowns trail in the back and display a well turned ankle [none other need apply] in the front.

Furs for Trimming.

While you're browsing around the modes of the evening it is well to notice that sable, mink, and sable dyed kolinsky, luxury furs, if ever there were any, precipitate the trimming scene. Whereto for such offers, lady? The directions are easy . . . take the nearest route to your ready-to-wear shop. Such is the quality of allure that is being proffered for autumn evenings by all merchants throughout the city.

Then there are street clothes. Of course you've heard about the alliance between broadcloth and velvet to be worn under velveteen box coats, but did you know that broadcloth has also been seen hobnobbing with Persian lamb, with devastating effect? Did you know that costume suits, which is only a prosaic word for the temperamental dress and coat combinations, are a necessity in the well dressed's wardrobe? Well, they are. But after a costume suit is forced on you, you do have your choice of flared tunic jackets, with the fullness to the back, or a buttoned down the front fitted greatcoat, a short princess one, or a long tuxedo, provided the dress underneath is impeccably tailored, with dressmaker touches [those perversities again].

Black Gets the Votes.

"You don't have to remember these admonitions, because they are flaunted shamelessly by salespeople, who are, to most, the consummate fashion consultants. For instance, salespeople have joined with designers in approving black, which is considered the ultimate in high style, shoving out competitive colors so completely that it has a 90 per cent corner on the color market.

Now that you are sold on a costume suit, you can be gladdened by the assurance that black will be combined with all colors, including parma violet. It will be victoriously amalgamated with Kent green, prune, tomato red, yellow, turquoise, and any other hues you can think of. It will be sold with trimmings of silver fox, mole, and lynx. And, above all, it will be dramatic.

All of which leaves us to be practical. The canny buyers still demand and get reliable tweeds for sports, soft spun cashmeres, supple jerseys. They get three piece suits trimmed in wolf, beaver, and raccoon, with the two underneath pieces sculptured to simulate dress details.

Classics in Dress.

They have Peter Pan collars. They are buttoned down the front. They are gored, flaring, or tubular, with a hidden pleat. They are 14 inches from the ground, or anybody's floor. They have a solid, independent look that defies modes of the moment. They are classics.

And with them are the high necked sweaters, that singly or combined team with sturdy skirts that have become collegian, and the "little" dresses made of durable woolen that will be worn under a tweed coat each morning for a visit to the butcher, the baker . . . or to the women's wear shop to buy the fashionable numbers that will try in vain to take their place.

968 BUILDINGS ARE DEMOLISHED BY WPA WORKERS

Nine hundred and sixty-eight condemned buildings have been torn down, 143 buildings are in the course of demolition, and 113 buildings have been designated for early removal, H. K. Seltzer, director of District 3 of the Works Progress administration, reported last week in a summary of Chicago WPA demolition work.

Eighty per cent of the demolished buildings were residences and 20 per cent were business houses, schools, and warehouses, the summary stated.

The project is sponsored by the Chicago board of health.

STYLISTS TURN SPOTLIGHT ON CHILDREN'S GARB

Fashions for Youngsters Have Wide Appeal.

BY JANE LITTLE.

He has a skinned knee. She probably has a freckled nose. Their shoes are brushed, their hair wet down. They're funny and breathless and independent, and they've grown a foot, those shining children of yours.

And they're all dressed up. Dressed up, that is, after a summer at camp with no dressing at all but shorts or a sunsuit, and an adequate coat of tan. It's queer, you muse, how different they seem when the school bell rings.

There's Mary, now. Didn't she look a little gangling in that challis print cotton or the plaid gingham? Weren't her legs too long, her fase too rugged and boyish? Or were you only remembering last year when she was Shirley Temple size, with her curls still blowing?

Of course the saleswoman said [and she ought to know] that what you bought was right. You can hear her now—

"But, madam," she repeated, "all little girls will be Scotch lassies this fall, in clansman gingham now and a plaid skirt later on."

So you bought a velveteen jacket, an ensemble, they called it, with a white silk blouse and that kiltie-length skirt of highland hues. And Mary is a Scotch lassie.

Navy Jumper Dress.

You picked out a navy jumper dress in wool, with a paler blue rayon underblouse. You thought a long time about that light blue with Mary's eyes. You're sure, of course, about the sweater sets, the one with the monogram, anyway. It will fit right in with that copy of a man's fedora you found in wool felt, with the dented crown. She can wear the jumper dress with the rolled-brim off-the-face, with its little wing feather trim, or with the jersey dress in May wine.

And weren't you indulging your own fancy a bit with that wool reefer coat, collared in velvet, with the upturned bonnet-shaped hat banded in velvet to match?

And Now for John.

And John. People say it's easier to dress a boy, but they don't know about a boy John's age. He's too big for shorts and too small for anything else. He wants ties and handkerchief sets, and they don't come with shirts his size. So he wants them separately. He likes the polo shirt idea, though, since the other boys [he calls them fellows this fall], wear them, and he'll like those cotton pullovers in deep tones to wear with knit nobelt shorts until it's too cold. Then, maybe he'll have grown into knicker suits. Blue or brown are basic colors, with dubonnet elbowing in for shirts, you remember. Have to stock up on jackets, too. One of those light weight corduroy gauchos would do, and a suede jacket, lined in wool.

The sweaters this year, you are thankful, have no gadgets, just a zipper where it's needed, and they're good brushed wool in conservative patterns. There are a host of pullovers with suede fronts and worsted backs and sleeves that look for all the world like something out of a woodman's wardrobe — mackinaws, parkas, capeskins.

Yes, John . . . and Mary, should get along.

BATTLE ON FOR ASSEMBLY SEATS IN SIX DISTRICTS

Koehler, who lives at 1609 West Cullom avenue, is in the insurance business. The L. V. L. in its report on primary candidates said he has been active in civic affairs, "and is said to be capable."

A long time member of the Democratic organization, Weber has been a county commissioner, a member of the city board of local improvements, and now is committeeman of the 45th ward as well as a representative. He is a world war veteran.

Among the bills sponsored in the house by him was one to take unsafe automobiles off the street, a driver's license bill, and one to register aliens. He was co-author of the Weber-O'Grady bill to repeal the Illinois prohibition search and seizure act. The L. V. L. characterizes his record as "discreditable."

Brother of Board Leader.

Smith is a brother of Clayton F. Smith, president of the county board. He is superintendent of construction of the forest preserve district, and before that had his own general construction company. He was born in Chicago and lives at 2200 Carmen avenue.

In the Seventh district, called the "shoestring" because it bounds the city on the north, west and south, taking in most of the country towns, the Republican candidates are Representatives Bernice T. Van Der Vries and Frank E. Foster; the Democrats, Representatives Frank G. Ring, and Emmett McGrath, former representative.

Mrs. Van Der Vries, who lives in Winnetka, was commended by the L. V. L. for "a very good record for a first term member," and added that with additional experience she should become a highly useful legislator. She was an ardent supporter of the permanent registration law, gave much time to school problems, and fought the increase in the sales tax.

Out for Third Term.

Foster, who lives in Harvey, practices law in Chicago. This is his third term and in it, according to the L. V. L., his record was "creditable."

Ring, of Harvey, is a county highway engineer, serving his first term at Springfield. McGrath, Brookfield, has been connected with the Democratic organization for over 30 years. He served three terms in the legislature until he retired in 1934 to run for the county board for which office he was defeated. He is in the oil business.

Republicans say this district will retain its two G. O. P. members in the house.

In the senate contests the Republicans are putting on an aggressive campaign to reëlect Senator Barbour. He is a practicing lawyer, and for five years was an assistant state's attorney. He is ending his fifth term in the upper house, and the L. V. L. report on his twenty years of senate service said:

Active and Valuable.

"Although no longer chairman of the important judiciary committee because of the fact that his party had lost control of the senate, he continued to be one of its most active and valuable members, and in other committees and on the floor he exercised a sound restraining influence upon legislation. His courage and fighting ability have often been proved during the twenty years that he has served the public at Springfield."

His Democratic opponent, Meyers, has held appointive offices at the House of Correction and in the city patronage office under Democratic administrations. For more than 12 years he has been engaged in the real estate business.

Senator Ray Paddock in the Eighth district apparently is assured of reëlection on the basis of the primary figures. Paddock and two other candidates for the Republican senatorial nomination received 30,358 votes, while his Democratic opponent, Dailey, and the other Democratic candidate garnered only 13,171 votes.

Paddock has been engaged in farming many years. He is finishing his second term in the senate and the L. V. L. credits him with being attentive to the senate work, using good judgment in voting, and being an effective spokesman for the dairy interests of the state.

Immanuel Observance to Open Today.

The Irving Park Immanuel Congregational church, Troy street and Berteau avenue, of which the Rev. Edgar Ross is pastor, will observe the 30th anniversary of its founding with services and entertainments which will be held beginning this morning and continuing through the week.

Had Start 40 Years Ago.

The Immanuel church had its nucleus 40 years ago when a small group of northwest siders who met for a Sunday school in a rented farmhouse where to the accompaniment of an old reed organ, young people began their church experiences and paved the way for the church organization ten years later.

In 1897 the congregation moved into a portable chapel on Kimball avenue, and in 1906 when the church was founded there were 35 members listed on the roster. Three of the first members are still active in the church work. They are C. O. V. Jacobson, Mrs. E. H. Hedges, and Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Rise.

FIGURATIVELY SPEAKING, HERE'S LATEST IN STYLE

An Intimate Glimpse Into World of Lingerie.

Since we are all determined, the long and short of us, the lean and the plump of us, to be, each in her own modified fashion, of course, Empress Josephines this season, we're in for some tricky figure molding, so willy-nilly we must hie us off to the lingerie department. First of all, to the corsetière.

Briefly summed up by one of the style authorities the objective is—breast, defined; waist, confined; hip, streamlined.

Foundation garments have been lengthened considerably, confining hips and thighs to accomplish the long sweeping line from raised waist to knee. Extra gores and elastic panels in the skirt are the corset maker's answer to the modern woman's demand for athletic freedom, whatever the fashionable silhouette.

Many Garments Boned.

Many garments are boned at front and back to slenderize the waist, and in the all-in-one the center fabric panel is drawn right up to the brassiere, where it serves as an uplift.

All the new brassieres—even for the heavy woman who used to favor the straight, flattening, tight front piece—raise and mold the breast to natural lines.

Viewed from the back, corsets and girdles have been cut low. The all lastex, two way stretch back is still seen, but for those who maintain it cups the figure there are many new garments with back panels of the regular corset fabrics.

Wide Variety Available.

The shopper will find a wider variety of separate brassieres and girdles this fall. A most comprehensive selection is available to the short, the very heavy and the otherwise "hard to fit" types.

Simplicity of style, perfection of line, fineness of quality and impeccable workmanship are the rule in lingerie. Tailored pieces are the favorites, though for the starry eyed trousseau collector the traditional laces—Val superceding Alençon—hand embroideries, tuckings, and dainty rufflings are lyrically lovely and never have they been more ingeniously combined with the lusterous satins and dainty crêpes of each garment.

Slips are beautifully fitted and—boon to short women!—come in three lengths. A few of the dark silks, reluctant to relinquish their claim to the colorful ruffles that were in vogue last spring, break the hemline with scarlet lined pointed scallops. Pure dye silk has been used in the better colored slips, and even the navies and blacks launder as satisfactorily as the standard pink and white wash satins and crêpes.

Rhapsody in Pajamas.

While on the subject of the wardrobe's intimate items, let it be known that what the manufacturers have done with our sleepers deserves a rhapsody rather than a lullaby. For the romantic they offer gowns of misty chiffon and lace with the empire bodice effect, and others of pale blue silk whose net surplice is caught with pink satin ribbons. For the sophisticated there are figured satins of glowing gold, blue and rose that are cut low in the back and have intricate strap arrangements.

But the pajamas are what bring sheer delight to the practical soul. Cottons with a slightly fleeced surface are to be had in bright plaids and candy stick stripes and plain satinees in all the primary colors. But they haven't a feminine frill. They were adapted from men's styles by a manufacturing house that heretofore has made only men's garments.

The trousers of the knitted suits—swank this season—have ski bottoms. Satin striped rayon is being used effectively for both pajamas and gowns.

CLASSES BEGIN TOMORROW FOR WRIGHT FROSH

Freshmen will begin classes tomorrow at Wright Junior college, 3400 North Austin avenue, with heads unbowed and minus the green cap, the usual insignia of the scholastic neophyte. The college, starting its third year, has acquired traditions only around the spirit of democracy and coöperation, says Dean William H. Conley. Its purpose is the orientation of approximately 2,000 students for post high school who are preparing for university or immediate employment.

DEAN WILLIAM CONLEY.

Wright college is listed for the first time by the accrediting associations and thus its students will be accepted at full credit by universities and colleges throughout the country. Also for the first time the college will occupy the entire building with its 38 class rooms.

A new laboratory has been built that will accommodate 60 chemistry students in addition to a demonstration laboratory for the biological sciences. Other building improvements include a conference room to facilitate the broadened personnel and student advisory program. The library has been expanded and redecorated and 400 students can be admitted at one time.

Last week the entire college was turned over to the freshmen. Placement tests and school tours were given and newcomers were introduced to school leaders. The student council will assist the freshmen through their classes tomorrow.

Within a few weeks the extra-curricular activities will begin for all classes. Clubs take the places of fraternities at Wright. There is a dramatic club, a radio club, chess club and journalists group.

YOU CAN Melt AWAY LITTLE ROUGHNESSES

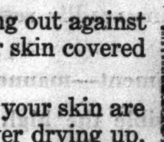
ANY time of year, a morning out against the wind can leave your skin covered with little chappings!

Those flaky bits on top of your skin are just dead surface cells, forever drying up, scuffing off. Harsh winds dry them faster.

A distinguished dermatologist tells how easy it is to melt these roughnesses away: "Dried-out cells on surface skin can be melted off promptly with a keratolytic cream (Vanishing Cream). Then the young, supple, underlying cells appear, giving the skin a childlike smoothness."



How skin roughs up Cross-section of outer skin. Dried-out particles on top make skin rough. Melt them off!

Make Pond's Vanishing Cream your beauty habit. It's a wonderful powder base and overnight cream.

For a smooth make-up—Before powdering, put on Pond's Vanishing Cream. Watch your skin take on new smoothness. Make-up goes on with a "beauty-salon" finish—clings!

Overnight for lasting softness—After cleansing, smooth on Pond's Vanishing Cream. Next morning, feel your skin. Amazing, its extra softness!

Mrs. William L. Mellon, Jr.

"I smooth away any little roughnesses on my skin with Pond's Vanishing Cream. I put it on overnight, too, after cleansing—my skin feels so soft in the morning!"

Did you ever give your Teeth a Beauty Bath as New York Models do?

FRAGRANT, stimulating—it gives your mouth new freshness, your teeth new brilliance and allure. You've got a delightful new treat ahead of you if you will change to Listerine Tooth Paste.

This is the dentifrice so dainty, so refreshing, so beautifying in effect that many exotic New York models use no other. Living by their smiles, these lovely women know all beauty aids—tooth paste in particular—as few ordinary women can.

Their choice is to be expected; after all, Listerine Tooth Paste is made by the famed makers of Listerine. That guarantees its merit—its safety.

There's a Reason

Contained in this dentifrice is a rare combination of gentle cleansers, satin-soft in texture, that were especially chosen by beauty experts, working with dental authorities. No other tooth paste contains this exact formula. They cleanse and brighten in a way that makes ordinary dentifrices seem ineffective. Yet Listerine Tooth Paste is safety itself.

Complete Walls Arrive Ready to Assemble.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Some time ago it was predicted that 1936 would see the beginning of a new building program in this country. Not a boom in the sense of preceding building booms, but a slower, steadier, healthier movement. It was further predicted that the architecture of this modern building program would differ from older forms in that it would be inventive, rational, and useful.

We see this prediction being fulfilled as the autumn of 1936 arrives. A greater volume of building is evident on all sides of us, and most of the homes which are going up are far more rational and useful homes than ever have been built before. Besides this, there is a trend in construction technique which may be termed inventive. Architects and engineers are seeking to achieve, through new methods of construction, better houses for less money.

Progress in Prefabrication.

A year ago the Architectural Forum stated that there were "53 different methods of steel house framing, 44 different precast concrete systems, half a dozen new trends of wood construction, and only a few less innovations in reinforced brickwork." The forum further stated that they all aimed at better construction at lower prices, but that while the first target had been squarely hit in many instances, the second had been mostly missed, with the exception of a few cases.

However, that was nearly a year ago and, in the meantime, architects, engineers, and manufacturers of prefabricated houses and construction systems have been steadily at work. And we are beginning to see some concrete and interesting examples of their achievements.

A new home with prefabricated walls of wood studs, blanket insulation, and plywood is shown today. These walls, together with the roof, went up on the site in two days. The estimated savings in total cost were a little more than 10 per cent. The house cost $8,000 with the present new method of construction. With the conventional method it would have cost $9,600.

Walls Ready to Assemble.

The prefabricated walls arrived on the lot with doors, windows, weather-strips, enclosed radiators, and even the electrical outlets all in place. The house plumbing, that is the piping, was pre-cut, fitted and soldered. All labor was union labor.

The basement excavation proceeded along conventional lines; its construction, poured concrete. Conventional methods also were used for the laying of the exterior brick veneer walls. Adding the brick veneer to the plywood cost about $600.

The savings effected by the factory built walls and roof went into some modern utilities for the new home. The completed and complete house which was turned over to the owners included an oil burning, thermostatically controled heating plant, Venetian blinds throughout, a mechanical refrigerator, a washing machine and an ironer, fitted wardrobes and cedar closets, and a thorough landscaping job. Nor were other minor details forgotten, such as door package receiver, clothes posts, basket and line, lawn mower and hose.

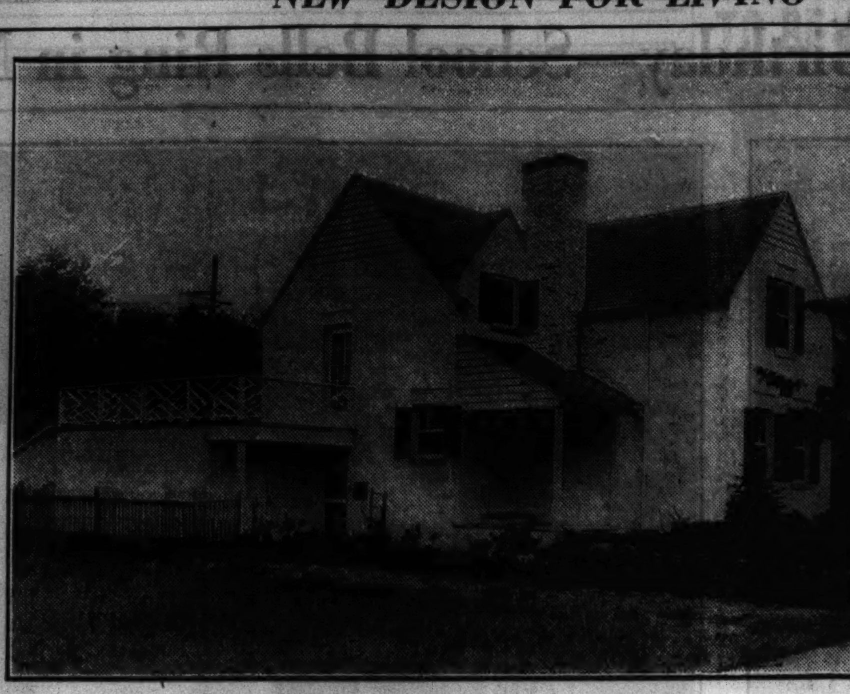
Parquet Floors Pre-finished.

The floors are parquet, the type of flooring once found only in costly homes. These floors were pre-finished at the factory, and arrived on the site ready to be laid.

The module system of planning and designing employed by Mr. Quinn, the architect, does not entail any stock plans or stock designs. The standard units employed are adaptable to a house of any size or any style of architecture. The standardization effects a saving of 10 per cent on present costs, but individual designing and planning are not sacrificed.

The interior walls are covered with a wood veneer, a type of flexible wood surfacing which may be hung by any expert paper hanger. Yet it affords the beauty and grain of real wood, since it is real wood.

NEW DESIGN FOR LIVING



Recently completed, this $8,000 prefabricated house of wood went up on the site in two days, at a saving of 10 per cent in total costs. The exterior walls are of brick veneer. The home of John M. BETHESDA HOME TO HAVE BENEFIT BAZAR SATURDAY

Rev. C. N. Engelstadt in Charge of Event.

The Norwegian Lutheran Bethesda home, 2833—57 North Nordica avenue, will hold its 26th annual benefit bazar Saturday at the home. The Rev. Conrad N. Engelstadt, pastor of the Zion Lutheran church, is president of the Bethesda Home association which is in charge of the event.

THE REV. C. N. ENGELSTADT.

Several months of preparation have been spent in planning nine booths from which knitted articles, hemmed table cloths, bed spreads, quilts and handkerchiefs, the needle work of the women who live at Bethesda, will be sold. There will be a grocery booth, and a fruit booth presenting for sale an assortment of homemade pickles, jams, and jellies.

500 In Association.

Each afternoon and evening women of the association will serve refreshments including the flote grot, popular Norwegian cream porridge. The 500 members of the association are coöperating for the success of the bazar, the proceeds of which will be used for the home maintenance.

The Bethesda home for old people was started in January, 1907, by 24 welfare leaders, who met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hans Baade to plan for the care of the aged. As a result of the conference an association was organized with Joachim Gunderson as president and a building was erected at 2244-2246 Haddon avenue in 1911.

Officers of Association.

Officers of the association in addition to the president are Jacob Nilsen, vice president; the Rev. Oliver G. Fjelstad, recording secretary; Mrs. Paul Jensby, treasurer; Mrs. Paul Ekle, Mrs. R. A. Gustafson, and Harold Gulliksen, associate members of the board of directors.

Members taking leading parts in the bazar planning are Mrs. Lettie Thorsen, Mrs. A. J. Edahl, Mrs. Otto Dahlstrom, Mrs. C. J. Anderson, Mrs. Carrie Olsen, Mrs. Hanna Gulliksen, Mrs. George C. Hansen, and Mrs. J. A. Kragerud.

THREE SUBURBAN CLOSED BANKS TO MAKE REFUNDS

Payments to depositors in closed state banks in Arlington Heights, Barrington and Park Ridge, indicated in a recent article in THE TRIBUNE, will be made early in October, according to an announcement by Louis E. Nelson, deputy receiver. The largest sum will be paid by the Park Ridge bank—a 5 per cent refund amounting $35,000. Arlington Heights repayments will be $17,000, bringing the total payments on claims to 15 per cent. The refund to Barrington depositors will be $14,000.

WEDS SATURDAY

Miss Fannie Klapman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Klapman, 1104 North Spaulding avenue, who will be married Saturday to David William Klibanow, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Klibanow, 914 Evans avenue. Miss Klapman, a cellist, has played with the Woman's Symphony orchestra and the Chicago Civic orchestra. Mr. Klibanow, a graduate of the University of Michigan, is an architect.

GROUND CLEARED FOR WOODSTOCK SCIENCE CHURCH

A site has been cleared for the erection of a new Christian Science church at the corner of South and Dean streets, Woodstock, which will replace the frame structure that has served the congregation since 1914.

It is expected that the new building will be ready for occupancy about December. It is to be cream colored Lannon brick. The Sunday school room will be to the rear of the auditorium and a feature will be an open fireplace. Ralph E. Abell of Elgin is the designer.

Before the 100 year old building that has been demolished was used as the church, services were held in the courthouse by a small band of members. The larger quarters became a necessity with the growth of the congregation. The chairman of the finance committee is C. C. Hopins and James Hecht heads the building committee.

De Soto Isabellans Will Give Carnival Next Month

Chairmen have been appointed and plans are under way for the fall carnival which will be given by the De Sota council, Ladies of Isabella, next month. Proceeds will be added to the Christmas cheer fund for the Angel Guardian orphanage, 2001 Devon avenue. Mrs. Josephine N. Langenbach, council philanthropic chairman, will be general carnival chairman.

Troops Will Vie for Camping Awards.

The northwest district of the Chicago Boy Scout council has announced the eighth annual district powwow will be held Oct. 3 and 4 at Camp Fort Dearborn in the forest preserve near Irving Park boulevard and the Des Plaines river. Units in attendance will compete for awards to be made on a basis of attendance, participation in powwow events, and camping excellence.

Visitors during the event will have an opportunity to witness exhibits of camp equipment, demonstrations of Scout outdoor activities, and the administration of a typical camp. Special inspection hours will be held Sunday, Oct. 4, from 9 o'clock in the morning until 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Early reports of Scout leaders indicate a record attendance of more than 2,000.

Two New Camps Ready.

Chester Koehler, assistant district executive, announced last week that Camp Doddridge Farm, one and one-half miles northwest of Libertyville, and Campinland, near Miller, Ind., in the dunes, will be available for troops of the northwest side and their leaders. Camp Doddridge Farm is completely equipped. Scouts visiting Campinland will find it necessary to provide their own shelter and cooking equipment.

A further district announcement is made of eight boards of review to be held Monday evening. A Sea Scout bridge of review will be held at Kosciuszko park, 2732 North Avers avenue, under the direction of Harold Hansen, B. H. Hart, and Peter Demetros.

Other Boards Listed.

Community boards of review will be held as follows: Humboldt park, Humboldt park field house; Kelvyn park, Smith Recreation center, 2502 North Cicero avenue; Lincoln Square, Chicago Boys' club, 1725 Orchard street; Logan Square, Kosciuszko park; Montclare-Cragin, Riis park, Wrightwood and Mead avenues; Near North side, 1414 North Dearborn street, and West Town, Deborah Boys' club, 2441 West Division street.

The bugle corps is sponsored by Manheim lodge, No. 2, of the Independent Order of Svithiod and it is composed of members of unit No. 2 of the True Americans, the junior order for boys from 8 to 16 years of age.

The first program of the drum and bugle corps will be a minstrel show Friday evening, Nov. 20, at the temple.

BETTER DESIGN FEATURES FALL FURNITURE MODE

Decorators Favor Early American Lines.

Increased activity in real estate throughout the metropolitan area is resulting in a general awakening of public interest in home decoration and consequently, demonstrations of interest in new furniture. Merchants have been aware that this fall would find an increased demand and are displaying unusually complete collections of new pieces.

Noticeable is a distinct trend toward better designs. Designers no longer slavishly copy the lines of existing styles but carefully adapt to modern requirements. They have come to see that in all styles, with the exception of modern, better results follow in the examples set by the great craftsmen of the eighteenth century. To be featured this year are truly liveable designs.

Early American Designs.

Conceded to be the best for slim pocketbooks are early American designs executed in maple. This wood lends itself to sturdy inexpensive construction and the design to simple and attractive pieces. Succeeding gradations are modern, eighteenth century English, and French, all held in esteem by prominent decorators.

Noticeable is a slight breaking away from eighteenth century styles to Queen Anne and French provincial, and an almost infinitesmal decrease in the hold of early American. Exceptions in the general acceptance of period designs are the heavy and ornate Italian and Spanish. Authorities point out they are too large in scale for the small homes and apartments finding increasing favor in this country.

Grain Becomes Finer.

Cabinet woods are becoming finer in grain with the use of eccentric woods diminishing. New treatments and colors are being used in handling the familiar types of wood resulting in honest presentation and fewer devices for ornamentation. The new methods find their origin in the "pickled pine," which was pine of the Georgian period unfinished and waxed.

The new finishes have a rich color ideal as the background for modern rooms. Brass is returning as the favored hardware, harmonizing well with the light surfaces produced by the new methods.

Modern, well within the budget of the average family and the logical style for offices and homes of present day design, is still undergoing change. Purchasers will notice an absence of meaningless decorations and a tendency toward functional design fulfilling specific needs.

Many New Applications.

Many fabrics and woods in use in modern furniture will be new applications. Among them are pigskin paneling, beds with heads and feet tufted in white lether; simulated gold plating on mirror brackets; maple finished in a gray-hued honey color with ripples of brown for use in chests, bookcases, and armchairs.

The French style favored this year is Louis XV. The direct opposite of modern, the two cannot be used in the same house. Care must be employed in its selection to avoid a theatrical and trivial composition. Styles fitting easily into any well designed home are early American, Queen Anne and eighteenth century English. Although the English has a more luxurious appearance than the American, the two may be used together with good effect.

Two Styles Disappear.

Furniture stores point with pride to the practically complete disappearance of a style known to the trade as "borax"—meaningless hybrids flashily designed for inexperienced buyers. Pieces of this type were curious mixtures of period themes incongruous in any setting. Another source of confusion eliminated for this year's buying group is the psuedoclassical, typified by white ropes, Greek keys, urns, and white pillars, likewise impossible in combination with period designs.

The passing of these two types has indicated to decorators the inherent good taste of American buyers and is responsible in part for the general excellence of offerings by established concerns in the Chicago district.

Higgins Rd. Improvement Association Will Meet

The Greater Higgins Road Improvement association will hold its first regular meeting of the fall season Thursday evening in the Norwood park field house, 5801 North Natoma avenue. Samuel Simpson is president of the organization.

FIGURE FITTING FURS TO BE RAGE IN 1936 SEASON

Persian Lamb Again One of Popular Pelts.

BY MILDRED WILDS.

The new flare in fashions is taking a cue these days from the zest of the season. It's autumn again. And as definite as the march of seasons is the need to talk of furs—sumptuous furs that mock at wintry weather and fur coat styling, sleek and smart as the modern woman who wears it.

Neighborhood furriers whose store windows were forlorn, while, through the July and August sultriness, passersby headed for cooling shores and picnic places, are enhanced once more and coats are coming out to greet a season of perky styles, snap and newness. Indeed hearts are in the shops these days for soon fires on the harth will mean frost on the window pane. Milady will not confront a season rich in deep brown, radiant russet, and burnt orange without forethought and "furthought." And what will she see when she does more than think about it?

Fur Styles Change.

Once upon a time when the first snow fell women bundled up in furs—but now there are no more stocky bundles. Women have figures to fit when it comes to furs and princess lines have come into their own. Peplums stand out on finger tip length jackets and the tunic length ones are trim, hugging the waist. Inserted flared gadgets are for fullness, a descendant of the bustle. Revers are wide, protective as though sensing Chicago's blasts—that "zero-ize" the suburbs and that chaff and chap. Collars are raised defiantly and roguish Peter Pan lends a part of his uniform for neat lay-down collars that button snugly.

The tunic type is popularly sketched in black Persian lamb or synthesized in gray Persian and the summary says "a new silhouette—higher waist, fuller flare, and wide, liberal sleeves." Furs this year are made to go around the clock and around the world, and the prize winning costume for practicality is a coat in the piquant Persian.

Mink Has Been Modernized.

The word fur is now colloquial. No more do women dream in vain of that luxurious mink coat that caressed the wealthy and the middle aged. Mink has been modernized and belongs to all ages and all women. With its long-haired cousins, squirrel, beaver, seal, and others, it follows the swagger lines. For these, rugged durability is concealed beneath a rich surface.

Sidney Gaston, a Hollywood stylist designing coats, last week in a downtown fur shop, said, "There is no fur that cannot be styled—whether swagger or tunic; furs, too, have their silhouette."

Whatever the style, fur coats have gone up—in length. Funny little jackets chubby as a barrel are from 32 to 38 inches from the floor. With shorter coats, then comes the popular ensemble with neighborhood stores replete with them. Furs to be chic must harmonize with costumes.

Argentine Broadtail.

One shop has in the lower price bracket an Argentine broadtail coat with a tuxedo front lined in maroon wool crêpe with matching skirt. Another is fashioned from the flattering mode, Havana brown for blondes and gray for brunettes. Again there is a fitted ensemble in gray Persian paw with a black crêpe dress. A gray Ascot tie peeks out under the chin. A mole cape ensemble at the same shop has a reiteration of the Peter Pan collar. The belts on many of them are selected swede and the buttons are bone or shiny glass.

For the tall woman, coats may drop to 60 inches, for rule No. 1 of the 1936 fashion school says "furs for the figure." An eleven striped beaver, soft and silky, is at the top of the luxury list in the longer coat.

Fur Trimmings Galore.

Also there are fur trimmings on nubby wools that follow the trend in cloth coats. The popular material for these coats is astrachana. There is a gray one in a local shop with "L" shaped pockets designed from Persian lamb and a fur button catching the standup collar and holding it high. Bands of fur run in abandonment on dress, coat or suit.

That "tinge of pink" means dental danger—See your dentist

Don't be a "DENTAL CRIPPLE"

Help your dentist—give your gums the work they need—

Switch TO IPANA AND MASSAGE today

THAT first tinge of "pink" on your tooth brush—how harmless it looks—but how serious it can be! Neglected, it may mean the start of a real dental tragedy—a smile lost and loveliness ruined. That's why your dentist—every modern dentist—advises "Never let gum troubles start."

For the sake of your own good looks and good health—when you see "pink tooth brush"—see your dentist. It may be a signal of serious gum trouble. But it's far more likely to be a simple warning of gums robbed of work by our modern menus—gums that need more work and stimulation—gums that will quickly respond to the healthful stimulation of Ipana and massage.

Rub a little extra Ipana into your gums every time you brush your teeth. For Ipana is especially designed to help benefit the gums as well as keep teeth sparkling. Lazy gums waken. Circulation increases. Gums feel stronger. They're less "touchy," and more resistant.

Ipana and massage is approved by modern dentists, taught in modern schools and classrooms. Switch to this modern dental health routine. Your teeth will soon be whiter—your gums firmer. And you'll be far safer from the threat of the really serious gum troubles.

THIS AND THAT FROM THE CUFF OF DIAL TURNER

Musings and Mutterings Before a Vacation.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Musings, mutterings, and a last roundup of news notes before leaving on a fortnight's vacation: The new dramatic series, "Men of Destiny," which will be aired over W-G-N-Mutual, promises to be an even finer radio presentation than Titans of Science was last year. . . . Some of the newer daytime offerings are encouraging. That morning variety hour on CBS with Betty and Bob, Modern Cinderella, John Watkins' comment, and Hymns of All Churches is attracting considerable favorable comment among women. And men, too, are saying nice things about the hymn portion. . . . The Magazine of the Air series looks especially hopeful, too. . . . W-G-N's Marriage License bureau, Trafic court on WBBM, Safety court on WJJD, and the Bureau of Missing Persons on WJJD all have an appeal similar to that of the Good Will court which has been picked to replace Maj. Bowes. People in love [or in trouble] excite the interest of almost everybody.

The Vogue for Tenors.

Top tenors are popular this fall. There are Clark Dennis and Arthur Wright, whose voices are a little alike and somewhat resembling that of Donald Novis; and then there are Jack Shannon and Jack Fulton, a bit alike, too. . . . Horace Heidt's orchestra has come to the front in the two seasons he has been here. Three years ago he was unknown to radio. Now his crew would have to be included on anybody's list of the top half dozen popular orchestras. Sorry he will be leaving us soon. Alyce King, incidentally, is a songstress your observer believes is headed for the top. Only feature Horace lacks is an A-1 male warbler. Jerry Bowne is a lot of fun and we should like to see him used more for specialties. But what is lacking is a chap with Frank Parker's appeal.

Kay Kyser's circus of entertainers have a lot of musical tricks they are going to unfold on Saturday evenings this fall on their new sponsored show. There's another band that has made great progress since it reached here from the west two seasons ago. They ought to go places on this show.

Martin's Music Wears Well.

Freddy Martin's music wears exceedingly well on the radio. He really succeeded as a successor to Wayne King at the Aragon where Orville Knapp's fine orchestra did not. The Knapp band, which is to be kept intact under George Olsen's baton, I believe will be well received when it comes to the Edgewater Beach hotel next month. It was a smash hit at the Waldorf Astoria in New York shortly before Orville's untimely death, where Wayne King followed him and also packed them in.

That Community Sing with Wendell Hall, Milton Berle, and Jones and Hare could stand a little tinkering. Show starts off with the musical suggestion, "Let's All Sing Like the Birdies Sing," a not bad idea if all could sing like the birdies do. That not being true, it would be pleasant to let Mr. Hall, who warbles well, be permitted to do a bit by himself. The Jones and Hare jesting got many a laugh a dozen years ago, but their type of humor and manner of presentation seems outmoded now. Berle, whose rowdy humor goes over big in vaudeville houses, has been dehorned for radio and there's not much left after this process. Berle has a fresh, eager air about him, though, and might do well with some new material.

A Gale Page Crush?

Jim and Marion Jordan deserve a lot of credit for putting over "Fibber McGee and Molly" the way they have in a little over a year. Fibber probably will last a lot longer than Jack Pearl's Munchhausen, who also was a great liar. . . . Gale Page has shown an amazing improvement in her singing style this last season. You're likely to hear a lot more about her one of these days. Remember the Jane Froman radio crush of a few seasons ago? That could happen to Gale Page, too—and may!

Alec Templeton, the blind British pianist, is expected back here shortly for a concert series following a summer's vacation in Vancouver. First one will be for the Kenilworth Neighbors Sept. 29. . . . And Drake hotel and W-G-N fans are happy over the prospect of hearing Pat O'Malley again this fall. . . . Nice things are being said about Al Trace's music, which has been backing up George Givot all season at the College Inn.

Earl Tanner Guest of Morgan Eastman Tonight

Earl Tanner, tenor who used to sing for Morgan L. Eastman in the early days of radio, will make a guest appearance with Eastman when he appears on the Edison Symphony program over WENR at 9:30 tonight.

BEG YOUR PARDON

EVEN NEW HATS HAVE A FORWARD LOOK THIS FALL

High Crown Adds Dash to Fashion Picture.

BY BETTY CRAIG.

For those of you who are counting on brushing up last year's chapeau and passing it off as a 1936 model, save your time and energy, for the new models introduce two such distinct departures from the old style trends that last year's hats are sure to look like poor relations. What last year's bonnet could face the condescending glances of the ultrasmart high hats or the amused smile of the sophisticated berets with their dashing forward swing?

Buyers in the millinery sections of the outlying department stores and small millinery shops are agreed as to the importance of the high crown in the fall fashion picture. This very new line is achieved by blocking in many of the felt models, and by clever draping in the velvets, velours, and antelopes. The forward note is effected by the extention of the crown in the large beret type hats.

No End of Colors.

About color . . . although black is always a fashion favorite, the lovely forest shades are very much in evidence. These include all the warm rust shades and the rich browns, from the golden tints to the warm dark tones, and varying shades of green, all borrowing their colors from the changing autumn leaves. Dubonnet is a smart fall color. Dark blue, a color usually called upon to usher in the spring season, is again being shown this fall. Gray is an important fashion note, but it is a dark gray and can be used with many smart color combinations.

Felt is the outstanding material for daytime hats, although it is also used for many of the dressier afternoon ones. Soleil, cut velour and velvet are equally popular for dress.

Feathers of all sizes, color, and description are used for trimming. There are long, graceful quills, brilliantly colored birds, snowy white wings, and clusters of curled plumes in matching or contrasting colors.

Bird on a Hat.

They are placed in such a manner that they add height to the already high crowns, or serve to accentuate the forward slant. One smartly draped turban has a bird with outstretched wings perched on the very top of its high crown. Another turban, a black one, has large white wings soaring high on either side, the tips extending above the crown. Still another achieves distinction with a large cluster of tightly curled feathers in three stunning colors, brilliant blue, purple, and deep red placed on front of a dipped brim.

Bows are used for trimming on a number of afternoon hats. One gray one is almost completely hidden behind a huge matching bow fashioned of grosgrain ribbon tied low in front. A large black velvet bow with many loops tops another hat, a velour turban.

Very new arrivals feature fur trimming, but these are to be worn later with fur coats.

Important in the fall fashion parade are the snug fitting antelope hats. They may be found in all of the high shades such as kelley green, browns, dubonnet, rust, and, of course, black. One clever antelope turban may be draped into four or five different styles to suit the mood of the wearer.

The classic sports hats have no trouble holding their place in the fashion scheme. They go hand in hand with the heavy tweed coats and new fall suits. But even they have undergone a subtle change. They may be distinguished from last year's models by their higher crowns. Quills are placed at rakish angles and lend brilliant dashes of color. Although many brims are worn dipped down in front, there are any number of casual hats which may be worn with the brim turned up all around. This fashion finds favor with the college girl and the young business woman.

Turbans seem to have captured the fashion spotlight. They have been designed with considerable thought placed on the comfort of the wearer, but not one bit of style or smartness has been sacrificed.

TWO NORTHWEST SIDE MEN WIN IN CLUB CONTESTS

Two residents of the northwest side have been winners in contests held during the summer by the Chicago Motor club. Herbert B. Harris, 5129 North Lowell avenue, received the northwest district award in the backyard playground contest. A. F. Richter, 2916 Marmora avenue, was awarded honorable mention in a competition for amateur photographers.

Selected from a group of 59 entries, the playground Mr. Harris constructed was equipped with a swing, trapeze bar and rigs, several climbing ladders, see-saw, and chinning bar. It was landscaped with a creeping bent lawn and a border of flowers and shrubs. It is in constant use by his two daughters, Beverly, 5 years old, and Virginia, 10 years old. The award was presented by George J. Eckhoff, member of the northwest area council of the motor club.

The amateur photographers' contest was restricted to views of Adams, Carroll, Hancock, Jo Davies, Lee, Ogle, Peoria, Rock Island, Stephenson, and Whiteside counties. Mr. Richter's pictures were made on the banks of the Rock river in Ogle county.

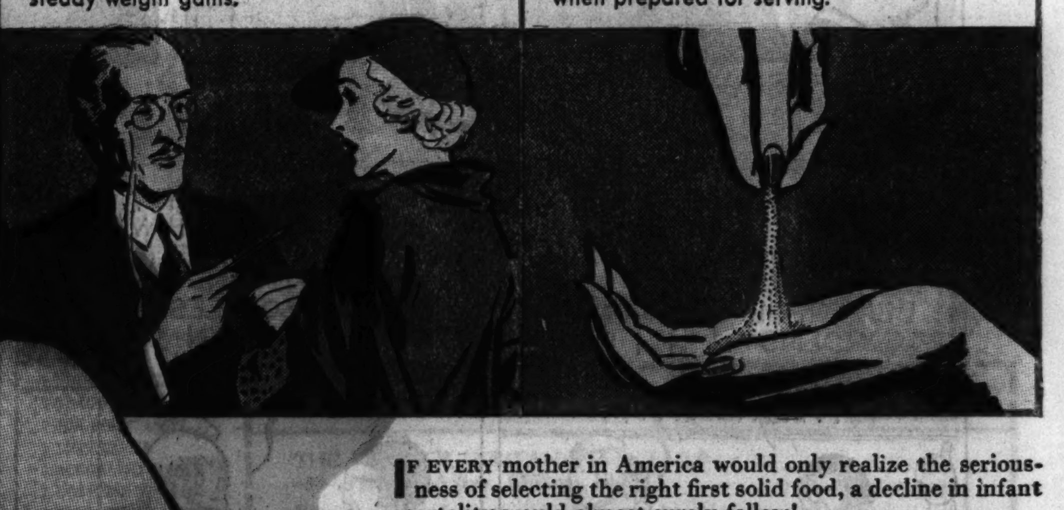
GUINEA PIGS FOR EXPERIMENT. In the laboratories of the country each year 5 million guinea pigs are used for medical research. You are not going to put your baby in a class with these guinea pigs, are you mother? Then don't guess—don't experiment—don't trust solely to your own judgment at first solid food time.

UPSETS NOW CAN BE DANGEROUS. And a wrong choice of the first solid food is often all it takes to bring on such upsets, loss of weight and lowered vitality. Be warned by the medical records, mother. They show that half the diseases of the first year are closely linked with digestive disturbances.

"USE CREAM OF WHEAT," YOUR DOCTOR MAY SAY. And you needn't be surprised at that. Delicious Cream of Wheat has proved its value in millions of cases. Babies like it and thrive on it. Cream of Wheat is digested with amazing ease. It yields an abundance of the food energy required for proper development and steady weight gains.

ALL HARSH PARTS OF THE GRAIN REMOVED. Cream of Wheat contains no particles of the grain which may prove irritating to the young digestive tract. It is purified and re-purified by heat treatment . . . cleaned of all foreign matter. It is the only brand of cereal packed under triple seal for purity. And—it is sterile when prepared for serving.



Cream of Wheat is rich in a type of carbohydrate second only to sugar in the speed and completeness with which it is assimilated.

Doesn't tax digestions. Even the most delicate young systems handle Cream of Wheat with perfect ease.

Is an excellent source of the kind of food energy most needed by every infant.

Encourages steady, natural gains in weight.

Economical! Over 50 servings in every big package . . . at a cost of less than one-half cent apiece!

IF EVERY mother in America would only realize the seriousness of selecting the right first solid food, a decline in infant mortality would almost surely follow!

There is, after all, just one way to play safe . . . consult your doctor. Likely as not he will suggest Cream of Wheat. For Cream of Wheat has achieved remarkable results with babies through 41 years.

This famous cereal is made from the heart of the best wheat . . . rich in the quick-energy food elements infants need most for health and growth. It is as carefully prepared as a fine pharmaceutical product.

Digestion of Cream of Wheat starts right in the mouth, so that it puts no strain on the young system. Your baby deserves Cream of Wheat now . . . and all through his childhood years. Ask your physician about it! 2½ million bowls of this famous cereal were eaten at breakfast today!

MUCH HAS HAPPENED IN THE PAST WEEK-- THE EVIDENCE UNEARTHED BY FRED FREE HAS TURNED THE TABLES- OLD "UNCLE" JACK IS A FREE MAN, WHILE HALK, BORN HORACE GILA, HAS BEEN PROVED GUILTY OF THE MURDER, OVER THIRTY YEARS AGO, FOR WHICH "UNCLE" JACK WAS SENT TO PRISON-
IT'S A LONG STORY, BOYS-- I WAS A YOUNGSTER, WORKING AT DAN MARIGOLD'S MINE--- JIM BURN (OR JACK BOOT AS YOU KNOW HIM) AND HORACE GILA, ALIAS HALK, WERE BOTH CRAZY ABOUT OLD DAN'S DAUGHTER, JANE-
BUT CALL 'EM "BOOT" AND "HALK"- BOOT WORKED HARD- HALK WAS A HANDSOME LOAFER- BOOT LOVED JANE- HALK LOVED OLD DAN'S FORTUNE- JANE WAS ONLY A KID- COULDN'T MAKE UP HER MIND-
WELL- OLD DAN WAS KILLED AND IT WAS MADE TO LOOK BAD FOR BOOT- HALK WAS SMOOTH- HE EVEN GOT JANE TO TURN AGAINST JACK- IT ABOUT BROKE JACK'S HEART- HE WOULDN'T EVEN TESTIFY IN HIS OWN DEFENSE- NOBODY'D HAVE BELIEVED ME IF I'D TOLD WHAT I'D SEEN-
THEY SENT HIM TO PRISON FOR LIFE- THAT'S WHERE HE LEARNED THE SHOE REPAIR BUSINESS- BUT ONE DAY HE GOT TIRED OF PRISON---- AND WENT AWAY- AND JANE MARRIED HALK- DISCOVERED HER MISTAKE PRETTY QUICK, I RECKON-
ANYWAY, WITHIN A YEAR SHE DIED, DISILLUSIONED, LEAVING HALK FIXED FOR LIFE, HE THOUGHT--- TILL I FOUND THOSE PAPERS HE'D HID IN THE MINE- OLD DAN'S WILL, WITH HALK'S FINGER-PRINTS ON IT IN OLD DAN'S BLOOD---
OLD DAN HAD TAKEN A SHINE TO JACK AND HAD LEFT HIM THE MINE IN THAT WILL--- ---AH---WE HAVE COMPANY-
HOW'D HE GET OUT O' HIS CELL?
NO HICK JAIL CAN HOLD ME--- BEFORE I LEAVE I'M GOING TO PAY YOU WHAT I OWE YOU-
HE'S GOT TH' CHIEF'S TOMMY GUN- RUN-
SHOULD I TURN AROUND, SO YOU CAN SHOOT ME IN THE BACK, AS YOU DID DAN MARIGOLD?
OW!
YOUR KILLING DAYS ARE OVER-
HE'S ONLY NICKED- NO USE DOING WHAT THE LAW WILL DO FOR HIM, MUCH AS I'D LIKE TO-
WHILE OUT AT THE COUNTY FARM, JACK BOOT AND FRIENDS SEEK IN VAIN FOR ANNIE-
GREAT SCOTT! IT'S THAT MEAN PERCY DURANCE-
HELP! IT WAS HER DONE IT- LAST NIGHT-
THAT SHE WILD-CAT HUNG MY PERCY BY HIS LEG FOR HOURS- AND LOOK WHAT SHE DONE TO MY SHOT GUN, 'CAUSE I SHOT AT HER DOG--- DON'T I GET PAID FOR THIS?
YES, MR. DURANCE- YOU SHOULD GET PLENTY- AND I'M GOING TO GIVE IT TO YOU-

IT'S AN OUTRAGE, HIM FENCIN' US COMMON FOLKS OUT O' HIS BEAUTIFUL GARDENS-
YEAH? I S'POSE SO-
HE SHOULD LET A LOT O' DOPES HAVE PICNICS IN THERE AND LEAVE TIN CANS AND BUSTED BOTTLES ALL OVER HIS LAWN EH?
AND LET A LOT O' LOUTS STARE IN HIS WINDOWS AND TAKE HIS DOOR KNOBS HOME FOR SOUVENIRS-
BUT THE PUBLIC MADE HIM-
THINK WHAT HE OWES THE PUBLIC-
BALONEY! THE PUBLIC ONLY BOUGHT WHAT HE MADE BECAUSE IT WAS A BETTER PRODUCT, AND CHEAPER-YE CAN BET YER LIFE NO PUBLIC IN INNY COUNTRY IVER MADE INNY MANUFACTURER WEALTHY UNLESS HE WAS GIVING 'EM A BARGAIN-

Thousands of nervous people—men and women—use Ovaltine to restore vitality when fatigued. It is also highly recommended as a strengthening food-drink for convalescents, and the aged—and for sleeplessness, when taken as a hot drink at bedtime.

VISIT THE ENTIRELY NEW, carefully planned American community of modern homes for American families. See how much more you get in beautiful Harlem Heights. Here you can secure:
1. Your own home built to order to suit your individual ideas and budget.
2. Your home built at actual net cost of construction to the firm, if ordered within the next 30 days to further accelerate the growth of this community. This means big savings to you because of wholesale buying of materials in fast growing Harlem Heights.
3. Easy financing made possible by FHA approval of Harlem Heights. A small down payment and long time term [19 years], payable like rent at $30 or more a month puts you in your own home as soon as it is built.
4. Proper restriction assuring desirable neighborhood. Each home is built on a miniature estate as big as 4 city lots with 120 ft. of street frontage. No more than one home on each large 4 lot parcel. No congestion. Plenty of room for children to romp and play.
5. The many families now moving in are the high type you want as neighbors.
6. No complicated building and financing problems. Our simplified plan makes it as easy to buy a home as it is to sign a lease for an apartment and more economical in the long run.
Any one who contemplates owning a home need hesitate no longer. Visit Harlem Heights. See the 50 homes already under construction; many completed with families moving in. Do not delay, act immediately. Drive out to

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Bob Becker

A Calendar for Ducks!

Sept. 19, 1936.

IT may be necessary to hang a calendar in the poultry yard of the Wheaton farm so that the Muscovy ducks will realize that it is the middle of September and therefore rather late to sit on a clutch of eggs. Rawlings was telling us the other day [when we were in the barnyard watching a bunch of fat little Muscovy ducklings] that the hot dry weather of summer, followed by the heavy rains of the past few weeks, have upset the Muscovies and their setting schedules.

At least two of the hens have started to incubate eggs on hidden nests in the orchard. It's late for raising families of Muscovies, but the urge to hatch more ducklings may be explained by the fact that the hens would not start to raise their second clutches of the season when the weather was so dry. Since the rains, however, these Muscovies have decided that climatic conditions are ideal for raising their second families.

A Beautiful Spot on Yorkville Farm.

One of the most colorful and beautiful spots on the Yorkville farm is the silver spring in the lower woods and the wet marshy area around it. A second growth of water cress now is a vivid green in the tiny creek that the spring sends on its way to the Fox river. Almost surrounding the spring is a luxuriant growth of purple asters, jewelweed [or touch-me-not] with its orange and brown blossoms, and golden rod.

We sat near the spring for several minutes the other day to enjoy this picture while the jays and the woodpeckers kept busy in the tall trees near by. This garden of wild flowers around the clear spring pool has been a favorite for the humming birds ever since the blossoms. One of the women on the farm who visited the spring the other day to gather a mess of watercress for salad saw four hummers among the flowers.

Old Home Week for the Poor Fish.

Last week the boys on the Wheaton farm put on a sort of old home week for scores of fish that were rescued from the dried up ponds some weeks ago. When the ponds started to "evaporate" under the hot sun the boys seined the fish from the shallow water and put them in a big tank in the swan house. As soon as the heavy rains filled the ponds to overflowing the boys decided that it was time for the fish to go back to their former homes. So they took them out of their small quarters in the tank and returned them to the wide open water.

Some of the boys on the Yorkville farm saw signs of a miniature "forest fire" the other day, so they stopped their work in the fields to see what was going on. When they located the source of the smoke it turned out that a dead tree was burning, so a few five gallon cans of water were poured on it and the fire was soon under control.

Good Sportmanship —as Some Practice It.

The fire itself, however, was not as interesting as the evidence left beside the tree. The skin of a squirrel was on the ground, so the verdict returned by the jury of farm workers was that some squirrel hunters had started the fire in order to smoke a family of squirrels out of the tree, then had shot one or two of them and left the tree burning. The boys are trying to find out who put on this demonstration of good [?] sportsmanship.

Speaking of hunting, some of the boys are getting their shooting irons ready for war against the crows which seem to have learned that they can get a free meal in the corn fields which have been almost stripped by the corn binders.

The other day there was a noisy gathering of about 25 crows in one of the fields on the Yorkville farm. The corn already had been cut in this plot, but a few ears of corn had fallen from the binder or had been shaken loose as the machine went through the field. The crows swooped down to enjoy this free meal.

CADILLAC

A fine car is always a fine car—and assures extra value in luxurious comfort and dependability to the second owner.

CADILLAC 1935 town sedan, V-12, luxurious 4 door, 5 pass. model with built-in trunk, possibly the most popular of all body styles. 146 in. wheelbase. Very low mileage. Same streamline appearance as 1936 models. Purvis gray finish, chrome metal trim. Center control steering, knee action wheels, 6 wheels, and side mounts. Radio, heater, etc. This will appeal to the new car buyer. Cost over $4,500. Now $2,895.

CADILLAC V-16 convertible sedan, 1933 custom built, Fleetwood body. This car does not show a sign of prior service and in streamline design cannot be distinguished from the latest model. Smartly finished in seafoam green with Burbank top and custom broadcloth upholstery. 6 wire wheels, new heavy duty tires, radio, heater, built-in trunk, etc. Inspect this outstanding value. Original cost $9,500. Now only $2,550.

LINCOLN 1934 Imperial sedan. "K. A." 12 cyl. Large, roomy 7 pass. model on 136 in. wheelbase. Chauffeur driven. Like most cars of the better grade, this car has been intelligently cared for and is perfect to the slightest detail. Midnight blue finish with ivory strip. 6 wheels, side mounts, metal tire covers, and dual equipment. You save over $2,500 at our below market price of $1,395.

DUSENBERG Convertible Sedan. Custom built. A recent model that has been modernized at a cost of over $1,000. Smooth, powerful straight 8 motor capable of over 100 miles per hour. Royal blue finish, chrome trim, Burbank top, chrome wire wheels, side mounts, white wall tires, trunk, hydraulic booster brakes, spotlight, etc. Cost new over $13,000. The only one offered in Chicago. $1,275.

PIERCE ARROW 1934 "Silver Arrow" sedan, 5 pass. model "840-A." This model is positively the last word in streamline automotive styling. Has low mileage and is comparable only to a new car. Attractive olive green finish. Equipped with safety glass, power brakes, free wheeling, wire wheels, radio, de luxe heavy duty tires, etc. This model is seldom found at resale. Cost over $4,300. Now $995.

MOTORS—TRAFIC—HIGHWAYS

Need 4 Lane Chicago to Peoria Road

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 16.—[by mail.]—This second largest city in Illinois has pleaded with Springfield for five years for a four lane highway to Chicago. Gov. Horner this year has responded—if it can be called a response—with a $200,000 allotment for 2.69 miles of construction.

This $200,000 allotment is part of a $10,800,000 state wide federal aid program of 67 projects widely distributed for a maximum of political advantage to the administration. The 2.69 miles is north from a point four miles north of Peoria Heights, a suburb, on Ill. 29. The original construction, this year or next spring, will be a 20 foot pavement so planned on an ample right of way that in the future another 20 foot slab can be laid with a center 20 foot parkway.

This Ill. 29, in the valley or nearby bluffs of the Illinois river, in combination with U. S. 6 between Depue and Joliet, forms a scenic route for passenger car travel between the state's two largest cities, 169 miles apart. The wooded hills and broad valley vistas have been compared esthetically with the palisades of the Hudson river.

Peoria civic and safety organizations have sought and are still seeking for a modernization of this river drive. The plea is based not solely upon the recreational value of the proposed improvement, although this benefit is deserving of consideration since the gasoline tax on recreational driving contributes a tidy sum to road building funds.

The combination of U. S. 6 and Ill. 29 has its commercial and industrial importance also. Sources of trafic in addition to Chicago, Joliet, and Peoria include Morris, Marseilles, Ottawa, La Salle, Starved Rock state park, and Peru.

The trafic on this route, while heavy, is limited by the physical inadequacy and by the hazards of a broken down pavement with bad curves and turns. There is a couple of miles of new slab on the outskirts of Joliet, but thereafter much of the pavement is rapidly disintegrating. A five months' accident record lists 16 mishaps involving deaths or personal injuries.

The accidents are caused more by the pioneer design and location of the old road than by the condition of the slab. Various sections were laid from 1918 to 1923. Curves are sharp, without super-elevation and lacking in visibility. The crumbling cracks, however, forecast obsolescence; there won't be any pavement there in not a great many years, unless the road is rebuilt.

Peoria has one other outlook for a superhighway connection with Chicago. Joliet, Pontiac, Bloomington, Lincoln and Springfield are plugging for the widening of U. S. 66. If they succeed, the U. S. 24 connection between Peoria and U. S. 66 at Chenoa might be widened before the river valley route. But with the present administration in Springfield, this outlook is also remote.

Gov. Horner's engineers, in 1934, recommended an expenditure of $1,030,000 on Ill. 29. In 1936, the route is getting $200,000.

Capt. David Flynn, in command of the trafic division, said yesterday that his motorcycle detail and his accident prevention squads are arresting between 30 and 40 truck drivers per week for failure to have chauffeur licenses.

"It's not a move merely to collect revenue," said the captain. "A truck driver who will violate one law, to operate without a chauffeur license, is not a man to trust to obey other regulations. To arrest these tax dodgers is therefore, to a degree, a safety activity.

"The number of truck drivers evading the license requirements is small, probably less than five per cent. It isn't fair to those who buy the license to let others escape the tax."

Secretary of State Hughes last week reported that there are 10,000 more licensed chauffeurs in Illinois this year than last. The total is approximately 84,000. This includes those who are compensated by the owner for driving another's passenger car as well as truck drivers.

Studebaker Luggage Compartment

Spacious luggage compartments will be found on most 1937 automobiles. This picture shows the 19.6 cubic feet for baggage in the rear of the 1937 Studebaker regal sedan. The company claims that, as a result of its new underslung axle and new flat gasoline tank, it now has the largest luggage compartment of any car.

VOICE OF TRAFIC

THE DANGEROUS AMBER.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—Having had the experience of being knocked down and severely injured about a year ago by a gentleman who was in a hurry and racing under the yellow light to beat the red, I am thoroughly in accord with your criticism. But while arrest and imprisonment of the offending drivers might help some, it seems to me there is a more effective remedy which ought to be seriously considered by the Chicago authorities, namely, the establishment of a rule in effect at Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, and perhaps other places.

This rule provides that vehicles will move only on the green light, and must stop on the yellow as well as on the red light. Pedestrians are allowed to move on the green or yellow light, stopping only on the red light. The effect is:

1. There is no racing by drivers on the yellow light to beat the red.

2. There is no starting of standing vehicles on the yellow light, which gives the pedestrian caught in the middle of the street when the light changes a chance to reach the sidewalk in one piece.

F. H. PLAISTED.

WANTS STOP AND GO LIGHTS.

Chicago, July 30.—It seems to me that with all the campaigning going on about accident prevention that they would see to it that such crossroads as Cicero and Foster avenues and Harlem and Touhy avenues have either stop and go lights or a trafic policeman stationed there.

GEORGE WOLFE.

TRAFIC COURTS ON WHEELS.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 30.—A sure way to cut down the number of automobile accidents is not only to inflict swift and certain punishment on the guilty party, but to assess and collect damages on the spot.

Make it a law that nobody can leave the scene of an accident until all property damages done to another car or a stationary object are paid for on the spot. If the parties involved cannot agree on a settlement, a traveling judge must be called who is waiting for just such emergencies at headquarters. This judge has jurisdiction to punish violations of the trafic law and to assess damages, and must collect such damages, fines, and court costs on the spot or impound the vehicle of the guilty party until they are paid.

In most accidents and collisions the parties involved live far apart, sometimes in different states, and to collect damages is such an involved, costly and time consuming procedure that most people give it up as a bad job and let the culprit go.

A COLLISION VICTIM.

CAR WATCHERS.

Chicago, Sept. 10.—I see the police have taken a hand in stamping out the so-called "whatcher car, mister" racket. THE TRIBUNE should be commended for its fine work in exposing this racket. Now that your paper is progressing in this campaign, let's not stop.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Federal Judge Edward J. Moinet, sitting in Detroit, recently handed down a decision enjoining the sale of reconditioned spark plugs unless all identifying marks of the original manufacturer are removed and the shell and bushing painted red and plainly marked "used." The suit was brought by the Champion Spark Plug company of Toledo.

Nash and LaFayette field representatives and distributors from all parts of the United States and Canada will gather in Kenosha this week for a three day session at which sales and advertising plans for the Nash Motors company 1937 line of cars will be revealed by factory officials. It will be the largest Nash get-together in the history of the company and will be climaxed by a preview of the new automobiles which have created so much interest in the "rumor" stage that the Nash and LaFayette production lines are starting this year for the first time with a bank of "sight unseen" orders said to have topped the 10,000 mark.

B. G. Sykes, Graham distributor for the Chicago territory, announced last week that superchargers will be equipment on a larger portion of the company's 1937 models. In 1935, only 6.5 per cent of the Graham cars had the supercharger and in 1936 the percentage has risen to 28.5.

Chevrolet production for the month of August in the United States alone totaled 87,673 units, the third highest August figure since the all time record for that month, established in 1928, it was announced last week at the company offices. This does not include passenger cars and trucks built for export and in Canada. The month saw the completion of Chevrolet's 12,000,000th car, which came off the assembly line at Flint on Aug. 5, eight months and one day after production of the 11,000,000th.

W. E. Butler, Hudson-Terraplane distributor in Chicago, last week told of increasing accessory sales. Radios, for example, showed a 50 per cent gain over last year. Heater sales in 1936 are far over the 1935 total. Fog lights, special rear view mirrors, and special stop and turn signals are in big demand as a result of increased interest in safety.

Latest of Fall Street Togs Lure Shopper

Smart Wool Dresses Come in Deep, Rich Colors, Youthful, Fitted Lines.

By Rhea Seeger.

THE newest of the one piece fall dresses and the equally effective two piece affairs of thin, high colored wool are indispensable street clothes, the kind you'll choose to wear now without anything more than a velvet bow or taffeta ascot for contrast, later with a fur cape or fur piece, and still later under a winter wool coat or one of the high fashion, short, bulky fur jackets.

Many collections of such wool dresses are luring the seasoned shopper. They're better than ever, have more definite swing than last year, are desirably younger and fitted of streamline, and have all the newest details, such as tricky shirred front sections and moderately draped and tucked sleeves. Most of the best buys are the models with long sleeves, especially the thin wool outfits. But the sleeves are less fussy than the puffed and shirred creations of the last summer. Necklines are high but interesting, and not at all difficult to wear. Belts are wide and stunning, while the newest skirts flare or swing gayly, even a bit defiantly after former seasons of pencil slim fitted numbers. The youngest looking clothes are these dresses with flared skirts that must be worn slightly shorter than you would wear long, straight skirts.

Velveteen Is Staging Its Annual Comeback.

Crêpy weaves, blistered effects considerably flattened jacquarded weaves and tufted wools are new fabrics to look for . . . with velveteen staging its annual comeback for both young and old. Soft suede-like materials fashion ideal dresses for afternoon, if you do not vote for velveteens or the luxurious dress parade velvets. These suedes are tremendously popular because they do manage to slice inches off any streamline.

Colors are deep, rich, and effective, from the lovely dull golds to the bright strong blues and smart plum purple tints. Mahogany, cedar, and russet are big successes and there's a dozen or more shades of green for the green collectors. All the trimming usually goes around the belt line, with an occasional clip. Buttons still streak madly down the outsides of long sleeves, down the front from the neck to hemline, and sometimes down the center of the back.

Two Piece Dresses Are Exceptionally Popular.

Slim, two piece dresses are exceptionally popular. It's the jacket racket revived again. Nearly every two-some has a most modest dress, and then goes the limit with high colored and high powered jackets for color and contrast. Jackets are liberally supplied with pockets, pockets way up high on the shoulderlines. Some have a few pockets, others have squads of pockets, doubling for decorative as well as pocket purposes. Shoulders extend horizontally in crisp formation. Nothing overwhelming about any of them, though. They're really well engineered lines that make the smooth, snug waistline seem even smaller. It's the swing of these dresses that intrigues you so much these days. You don't feel particularly well dressed or satisfied till you have worn your first fall model.

We've sketched five brand new outfits, excitingly youthful, all of them, and as smart as can be, even though they are deceptively simple on the rack.

A . . . Tiny, vertical tucks in sheer wool of a flattering henna shade make this straight one piece dress. It's surprisingly slenderizing, with its alternating bands of plain material with only the tucks magically inverted. The wide belt, high neckline, and long sleeves make it easy to wear and distinctive—with or without furs or outside coat.

Forest Green Wool Makes Smart Three Piece Suit.

B . . . Forest green wool with a semi-fuzzy surface is used for this stunning three piece suit. A leaf green, soft jersey blouse is worn with the slightly flared skirt, and the short, fitted jacket is of green wool with tufted design of burnished old gold oblongs. This ensemble is ideal for wear under a nutria or summer ermine fur coat, or with sports coats of golden beige wool or plaid.

C . . . Smooth velveteen, almost as supple as velvet, in a particularly interesting shade called "putty," fashions this one piece street dress made with long, loose sleeves. Center shirring marks the fitted blouse top, and the gored skirt has a slight flare. The huge belt buckle is of silver metal and holds the wide velveteen belt at the front.

D . . . Wood-violet soft wool is the material for this long sleeved dress. High pockets accent the high neckline of the dress, and plaits achieve shoulder fullness for the sleeves. A jacket of many colors, one that will remind you of riotously colored rag rugs, lends dash to this rib hugging model. High pockets, high, shallow revers, and edges outlined with deep purple tape braid are the jackets' other novel features.

E . . . There is plenty of dash and swing to this skirt with its unusually wide flare. Around the waist is another of those fashionable wide belts that ties to match the tie at the high neckline. Long sleeves make it a stunning street dress for any daytime event. All dresses sketched are to be found in a boulevard shop in Chicago.

Understanding Key to Child's School Success

Sympathetic Teacher Can Aid Special Ability and Prevent Inferiority.

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

AREN'T most of the children you meet in novels the most impossible, unreal little creatures? I always am quite certain they're created from whole cloth by some one who never has had any contact with a flesh and blood child.

At present I'm reading one of the richest and most delightful books I ever have encountered, "Island Magic." Certainly half the novel, or more, is about children, and they are children. To be sure, they're not run-of-the-mill, ordinary children. The setting in which they live and the father and mother they have would obviate that. But they're children who live and breathe and glow, and hold you in their personalities and feelings, quite as much as any grown person in the book.

The writer, Elizabeth Goudge, has a warm insight into the depths and complexities of childhood as well as an appreciation of its capacity for joyousness and sensitiveness to beauty.

Child Develops Inferiority Complex in Wrong School.

One of the most interesting things in the book concerns one of the daughters, Jacqueline. The scene, incidentally, is set in one of the Channel Islands, back in the eighties, when the inhabitants still were a world in themselves, and more French than English.

The mother, Rachel du Frocq, sent her little Jacqueline to the girls' academy where she was so unhappy, snubbed and "snobbed" by the pupils, that she could neither eat nor sleep, and became thin and virtually ill. On the advice of a friend, Rachel decided to send Jacqueline to school at the convent where she herself went as a child. The description of their entrance into the convent school is something I think every mother will love.

Love and Understanding Aid Girl's Outlook on Life.

Jacqueline, frightened almost to death, saw the shutter behind the grill shoot back and an immense pair of spectacles gaze out.

"Behind the spectacles, and nearly obliterated by them, was an old face framed in white linen.

"'Rachel, my dearest child,' cried a shrill sweet voice from behind the spectacles, and the great door, after a creaking and grumbling of bolts, was opened, revealing the tiny black-habited figure of Sœur Ursule."

She greeted Rachel [the mother] and—

"Now, chattering like a small bird, she turned from Rachel to Jacqueline and gathered her, too, to her heart, commenting volubly, as she did so, upon Jacqueline's beauty, sweetness, clever forehead, and likeness to her dear sweet mother.

"Jacqueline's spirits rose. Not so had Miss Billing received her when she had been handed over to her for instruction at St. Mary's college. Here, obviously, was a woman who appreciated her worth, who realized that Jacqueline du Frock was a quite exceptional creature, with brains and beauty far, far above the average. Clasping her arms round Sœur Ursule's neck she kissed her with an abandon of gratitude, and love unfolded its wings at their kiss with the suddeness of a scarlet pimpernel opening at the sun's touch."

Child Finds Happiness In Atmosphere of Understanding.

Rachel felt sure that Sœur Ursule would be the ruin of her child. But she was quite wrong. In the "sun drenched" parlor of the convent overlooking the sea Jacqueline found happiness.

"All her conceited little ways, all her vain thoughts and ceaseless insincerities had grown out of her hidden, unacknowledged sense of inferiority. At St. Mary's she had to act the part of a girl she was not or own herself inferior, but here at the convent the girl she was found favor."

The narrative goes on to relate how, with lessons that did not strain her intellect, with the love and admiration of both the nuns and the girls, she relaxed and bloomed, grew confident but less rather than more conceited, and was filled with love and gratitude.

Teacher Discovers That Child Possesses Special Talent.

One more extract from this touching, beautiful chapter about Jacqueline. Jacqueline, who was scorned for low marks at St. Mary's, had a talent! Sœur Monique discovered that she had magic in her finger tips. She could make lace and embroider.

With humor and discernment the scene at the embroidery lesson is described.

Breathless, Jacqueline sat embroidering crimson roses and golden lilies upon white satin and felt the power she never knew was in her.

"'Child, did you never do embroidery at St. Mary's college?' asked fat Sœur Monique one afternoon.

"'They taught us darning,' said Jacqueline.

"'Darning!' said Sœur Monique. Any idiot can darn. Even the heathens do it. It is a natural gift, like eating, but the ability to embroider is a gift of God.'

"'O,' said Jacqueline.

"'A gift of God,' reiterated Sœur Monique, 'and should have been discovered in you. They considered, I gather, that they educated you at St. Mary's college?'

"'I think that was what the college was far,' said Jacqueline. 'They taught us everything there, geometry and algebra and literature and history and . . .'

"Sœur Monique interrupted with another snort.

"'They may have taught you, but they did not educate you,' she said.

"'Oh?' said Jacqueline.

Child Takes New Lease on Life, Inwardly and Outwardly.

"Sœur Monique explained. 'The function of the educator,' she declaimed, 'is to discover in each individual child the gifts implanted in her by almighty God, and to develop and dedicate them to his service.'"

A conversation between the two sisters ensues, and then, in answer to Jacqueline's surprised questions as to it not mattering if one wasn't clever, Sœur Monique reassures her sweepingly that "healing ran like a fresh stream into all the parched sore places inside her."

So Jacqueline, outwardly and inwardly, takes on a new lease of life.

I won't quote further about Jacqueline and her life and her agonized confession, but you would enjoy it all I am sure. And if you are interested in children, besides Jacqueline there are Colin and Colette and Michelle and Peronelle, and their mother and father, Rachel and André du Frocq, to enchant you in the pages of "Island Magic."

"Island Magic" is a novel but it is full of the spirit of children. If you are a parent, you should read it.

"Island Magic" is by Elizabeth Goudge and is published by Coward-McCann company of New York City, New York.

As fall approaches you may want to make book selections for your children. "Reading for Pleasure in the Teens" is the name of a book list sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

A FRIEND IN NEED

By Sally Joy Brown.

WINTER holds an ominous threat to the poor. Even while the late summer heat was at its height appeals for help carried in them tones of frantic worry. A situation which was nerve rackingly bad during the mild summer weather spreads apprehension and dread as to what bitter winter weather may bring.

As one mother expresses it in her letter: "These warm days make some folks think winter's far away, but I remember last winter, and Joseph being kept home from school because he wasn't dressed warmly enough, and I wished many times that my boys had warm coats and sweaters so that they could get out of doors. After my mother's long illness and death we have many bills, and there is nothing left for clothing, and our children need things badly, both under and outer clothing. Joseph wears size 7 or 8, and Robert needs size 5 or 6.—Mrs. M. E."

This address is on the south side.

An elderly couple, apprehensive of the cold winter, writes as follows.

"Dear Miss Brown: Could you get me two warm blankets for the winter? A few years ago I helped others through your column, and now I need aid myself. We are an elderly couple. My husband was out of work for a long time, and now he earns so little that we cannot buy anything at all. I go out scrubbing to help him a little, but can't do much. I'm in need of everything, but mostly I'm afraid of the winter that's coming.—Mrs. J. V."

The V.'s live in a suburb southwest of Chicago.

Mrs. P. is the mother of ten children and much in need of help. The infant of the family has been ill, and one of the older children is in a charity hospital, having been crushed by an automobile. There are no dishes or cooking utensils in the kitchen, except three cracked cups and two saucepans, plus a few forks and spoons. The father has deserted because he could not find work to support his family, and the situation became intolerable to him. All are badly in need of clothing, especially the mother, who wears clothing size 38, and is in particular need of a girdle to support her back, which has been aching.

The children's ages are: girls, 2 months, 1½, 3, 4, 5, and 14 years; and boys, 6, 7, 9, and 13. The family had a dining room table, but no chairs, and at present the mother feeds the children one at a time in the kitchen. The children have no toys, no books, and seek amusement in the streets. The address is on the south side and an interested case worker will call for things if the distance is not too great.

Another young woman in a similar predicament is Mrs. J. N., living on the south side. She is on relief, but has been unable to obtain any clothing for her expected child.

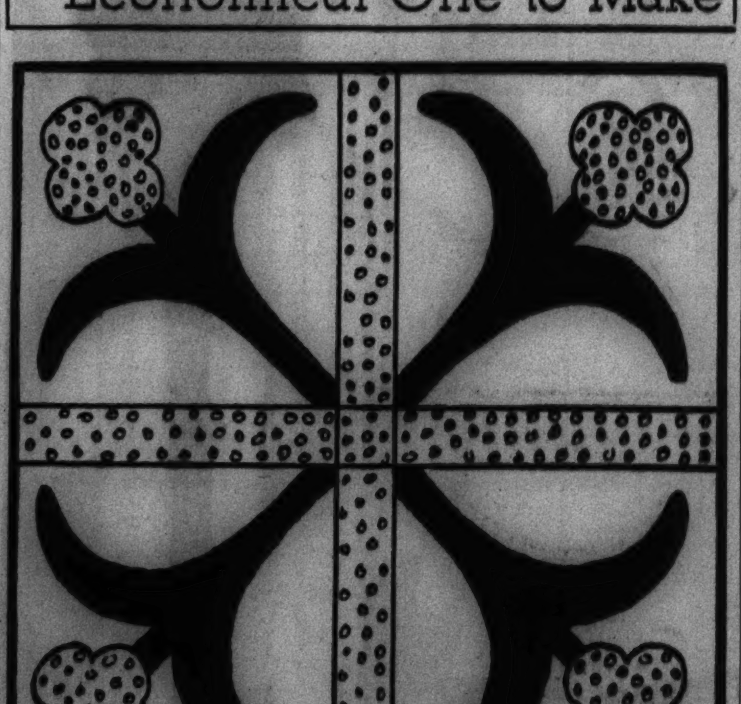
"Flower Trellis" Quilt Is Economical One to Make



FLOWER TRELLIS.

By Nancy Cabot.

"FLOWER Trellis" ranks as one of the oldest of the floral applique patterns. One feature which has not been emphasized is that it is an exceptionally economical quilt to applique. Each of the four blocks containing the floral motif may be made separately and joined under the appliqued trellis. The entire quilt is composed of applique blocks surrounded by a border one and one-fourth inches wide in a material to match the trellis and floral print.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

Here Are Expert Hints on Caring for Cut Flowers

EXPERTS who understand the fine points in the care of cut flowers offer the following hints:

1. Immediately flowers are received in the home they should be placed in water. Often they will take up water more quickly than you expect, so examine the container in an hour to see that the water has not fallen too low.

2. Drafts increase evaporation and cause flowers to wilt quickly. Choose a nondrafty location in the room where the direct rays of the sun will not penetrate and where there is good circulation of air. In warm weather it often is a good idea to place flowers in the ice box over night to freshen them.

3. Choose a container with as much zeal for the health of the flowers as for its artistic appearance. One with a small top will not aerate the water sufficiently and may cause sourness.

A shallow one will not hold enough water. If you use such a bowl change the water more frequently.

In shallow vases a small piece of charcoal will help to keep the water sweet. When an elaborate arrangement cannot be disturbed to change the water use a suction hose to drain and then refill it.

4. Dahlias should have their stem ends dipped in boiling water as soon as possible after they are received. This sterilizing checks bacterial growth and often is used with coarse stemmed plants. Always give this treatment to poppies.

5. The fewer leaves left on the stems of flowers, the less evaporation there is, so it is a good rule to remove all leaves except those which contribute definitly to the decorative effect.

Stripes Are Thing in New Drapery and Upholstery Fabrics

ALL indications point to a striped winter, so far as drapery and upholstery fabrics are concerned. Stripes, up and down and across, stripes wide, stripes narrow, stripes straight and stripes wavy, of flowers and of plain lines indicate what the well dressed room is wearing. The stores will be carrying them in all sorts of materials, too, from inexpensive chintzes to rich, elaborate brocades and satins.

Eggs Beaten Up in Tea a Favorite Dish of Pepys

IN September, 1660, Pepys, that interesting gossiper, gave his tea secret as follows: "To a pint of tea add the yolks of two fresh eggs; then beat them up with as much fine sugar as is sufficient to sweeten the tea and stir well together. The water must remain no longer upon the tea than while you can chant the Miserere psalm in a leisurely fashion."

"Corset Crime" Is Laid to Catherine de Medici

TO Catherine de' Medici has been attributed "the crime" of establishing the corset in its complete form. She abhorred her large waist and contrived a strait-jacket to confine it. It extended from throat to waist. Thus she succeeded in reducing her waist to thirteen inches and this remained the standard for a long time.

Cleveland Is Host to Legion and Auxiliary

Several Hundred Women in Ohio City This Week-end for National Meeting

By Ruth DeYoung.

SENTIMENT mingles with a glow of pride as several hundred members of the American Legion auxiliary take off for Cleveland this week-end to attend the national conventions of the American Legion and its auxiliary.

MRS. MELVILLE MUCKLESTONE. [Paul Stone-Raymor Photo.]

Mrs. Melville Mucklestone, national president of the auxiliary and a Chicagoan, is completing her term of office. At the convention she will turn over the gavel to her successor, Mrs. O. W. Hahn of Wayne, Neb., who takes the presidency after the post of national chairman of rehabilitation.

Mrs. Mucklestone is the only national president Illinois ever has produced for the American Legion auxiliary. Ably she has led the 400,000 members the last twelve months to new civic and patriotic goals.

Legion members not in Cleveland, as well as those who are making the trip for the convention, will have an opportunity to hear Mrs. Mucklestone's report tomorrow afternoon. Her speech is to be broadcast at 4 o'clock [E. S. T.], tomorrow afternoon over a nation-wide radio hookup.

Auxiliary to Meet with Legion for Opening of Convention.

The auxiliary will meet with the Legion for the opening session of the convention at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning in Cleveland's municipal auditorium. The auxiliary will hold its first private session in the afternoon in the Masonic temple. It is at this meeting that Mrs. Mucklestone will speak.

There will be no formal sessions on Tuesday, since it is being set aside as "parade" day, but on Wednesday morning the delegates [Illinois is sending thirty-eight official delegates] will hear a number of speakers, including Miss Agnes Samuelson, director of public instruction in the state of Iowa, and Mrs. Joseph H. Thompson, national president of the Fidac auxiliary.

States' Dinner to Bring the Convention to Social Climax.

The states' dinner will bring the convention to a social climax Wednesday night. On Thursday morning there will be the closing business session. Last week-end available hotel accommodations and even reservations in private homes had been exhausted by the thousands of men and women who will be in Cleveland from all parts of the country.

In New York this week organized womanhood will turn its attention to the sixth annual forum on current problems sponsored by the New York Herald Tribune. The conference will be opened on Tuesday morning in the ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia of New York City, and Mrs. Ogden Reid, vice president of the New York Herald Tribune.

The keynote speech will be given by Mrs. William Brown Meloney, chairman of the forum and editor of the New York Tribune magazine, This Week. As in previous years, the closing message of the forum will be relayed by radio from Washington, D. C., by President Roosevelt.

Between the opening and closing the program will be replete with interest. The first day will have for its subject "The New Way of Living," and will present authorities on the steps that lie immediately ahead in housing, food, power, transportation, communication, and education in a mechanized age. The second day will be a review of the political issues facing America in 1936.

Many Pertinent Topics Are Scheduled for Discussion.

Such pertinent topics as the party platforms, relief, security, monetary problems, labor, agriculture, and the Supreme court will be discussed by John D. M. Hamilton, James A. Farley, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, Charles P. Taft, Col. Henry Breckenridge, and other figures who loom large on the political horizon.

Classes having to do with job opportunities, personality adjustment, and the modern creative arts are in session in the education studio at the Central Branch of the Y. W. C. A., 59 East Monroe street. More than 550 girls attended this spare time school last year.

Personal counseling on vocational problems is given by Miss Ruth Potter and Miss Frances Taylor of the Y. W. C. A. service department. Instruction in the psychology courses is given by Dr. Irene Tufts Meade, psychiatrist with the department of student health at the University of Chicago, and Mrs. Evelyn Duvall, lecturer for the Chicago Association for Child Study and Parent Education.

The studio council, made up of students elected from the various evening studio bodies, helps in planning the curriculum and determining policies. Miss Sparkle Dickey, chairman, is assisted by Miss Irene Henderson, Miss Frances Kabaj, Miss Lillian Stoll, Miss Phyllis Kean, Miss Ella Klecka, Miss Nina McGrath, Miss Isabella Naef, Miss Minnie Nelson, Miss Elizabeth Wolter, Miss Helen Steller, and Miss Vera Serovick.

Martha Washington's Gowns Based on Simplicity

ALTHOUGH possessed of valuable jewels, splendid laces, rich satins, and furbelows, Martha Washington, the wife of the first President, tried to dress simply to express the democratic principles of the new government. One time, with much pride, she exhibited before her guests two dresses of cotton with silk stripes in red and brown which had been woven at Mount Vernon from the ravelings of old stockings and red damask furniture coverings.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

By Eleanor Nangle

To Dye or Not to Dye the Hair Is Question to Be Given Serious Thought.

IT undoubtedly is every woman's right to change the color of her hair if that's what her little heart desires. There's no law except, perhaps, an unwritten, esthetic one, against tinting it a billous green if she's in the mind to do so. Maybe we'd prefer that lovely women wouldn't try to improve on nature, but that's the l. w.'s own business.

Our only interest in hair dyeing and hair bleaching is this: It's not a casual undertaking. The woman who airily decides to take to the dye pots because she thinks hair of another color will make her younger, prettier, or more of a knockout in the eyes of men should make room in her brain for two or a dozen good, serious, second thoughts.

Intelligent Information at Disposal of Every Woman.

When a woman writes us that she has decided to go platinum and asks casually how to do it and what to use, we could bite nails. And when one writes to say she's decided that gray hair is fatal to her charm, that she'd like to know how to go brown or black or red and won't we please tell her what to use, we wonder where she's been for the last ten years, when intelligent information about hair dyeing has been broadcast through the land.

First of all, there always is an esthetic consideration. There's a subtle harmony between hair color and skin tint that's ruthlessly destroyed if the hair color is radically and inexpertly changed. Hair and face just don't match, and if you think that's attractive then we don't see eye to eye in the matter of beauty.

But if, considering this, a woman decides to go right ahead with her project of changing the color of her topknot, there still are other considerations.

Hair Dyeing Precise Science, to Be Handled by Experts.

No woman who wants to look well will attempt to dye or bleach her hair herself. Hair dyeing is a precise science. There's been a great deal of bosh broadcast about the danger of dyes. You'd be surprised, probably, to know how undangerous dyes really are to the average woman. There always will be women with idiosyncrasies to them, just as there always will be human beings who are sensitive to strawberries, eggs, chocolate, feathers, and hundreds of other things that most of us don't find irritating at all.

But, in any case, dyes and bleaches don't belong in the hands of the layman. The method of application is as important to the success, artistically and otherwise, of any hair dyeing job as the product used. If you must follow the impulse to darken those gray hairs or to go blonde in a big way, don't go shopping for any product, no matter what you've heard about it. Shop, instead, for a hairdresser who knows his stuff.

She Who Dyes Must Prepare to Spend Money on Upkeep.

Be prepared to spend money, not only for the original venture, but for the upkeep. Be prepared to have hair treatments between touchups if the hair shows wear and tear. Let the good hairdresser be boss of the whole business; the selection of the product, the shade his experienced eye decides is best, and the method of application. You can't be captain, because you don't know enough about the science of hair dyeing.

The woman who dyes her hair should have a good reason for doing so. It's not a casual venture, but if she takes the plunge let her dive straight into the arms of an expert. That's the formula for safety and success if you must dye or die!

Eleanor Nangle, "through her looking glass," sees everything that is new in the fascinating realm of beauty aids, and tells you about them daily in the Chicago Tribune.

Opinions Differ on Taste of New British Stamps

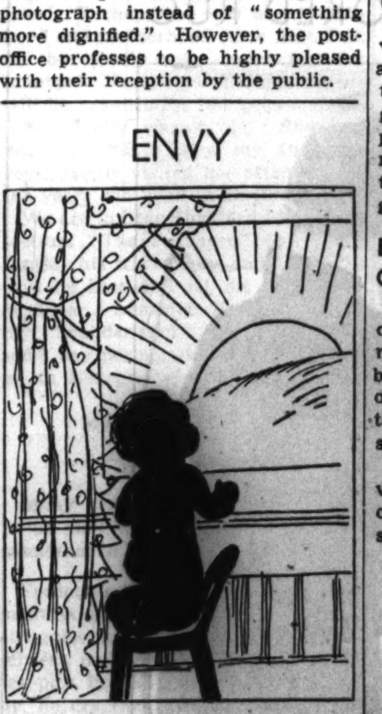
LONDON

Although the London newspapers rather generally express approval of the new postage stamps, one encounters considerable disapproval.

Many people, for example, think that the juxtaposition of the businesslike fee and the purely symbolic crown is "shocking," while the lettering of the word "postage" gives offense as undignified and much too large. Some think that the words "royal mail" should have been substituted for "postage."

But some of the criticism is just conservative uneasiness over the fact that the portrait of the king is a photograph instead of "something more dignified." However, the post-office professes to be highly pleased with their reception by the public.

ENVY



By Eleanor Jewett.

I've followed the sunset around the sky
And I've found that the truly west
Is that bit of the sky where the sun at night
Thinks then the very best!

The sun shifts its bed every evening,
The red blankets trail down the sky;
What fun it must be to sleep that way
And never know just where you'll lie.

My bed is always in one place,
I go to bed always the same—
But there are no walls to the sunset,
A house seems fearfully tame!

Cereals Give Vital Energy to the Menu

By Mary Meade.

SCHOOL days are here again! And if mother is wise she won't listen to "I dowan any breakfast!" She'll see that Johnny makes a habit of getting up early enough to eat a big breakfast, including cereal, preferably a hot, whole grain cereal, for Johnny will be at a sad disadvantage in "readin', 'ritin' and 'rithmetic" unless his tummy is comfortably stoked with energy food to last through the morning.

Cereals cooked in milk are doubly valuable in furnishing what every active man, woman, and child needs to keep alert and healthy. Whole grain cereal not only is a source of protein and energy, but also contains minerals, which are concentrated in the germ and outer layers of the grain.

Both Cooked and Prepared Cereals Are Energy-Building.

Both cooked and ready to eat cereals may be used as bases for innumerable energy-providing dishes—breads, puddings, and desserts of various kinds. Cool September and October days are just the time to begin serving such dishes.

A new whole wheat cereal flake provides a substantial foundation for a crisp ice box cookie with a butterscotch flavor.

WHEAT CEREAL COOKIES.
[4 dozen.]

½ cup shortening
1 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
2 eggs, well beaten
2 cups sifted flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoons lemon juice
1½ teaspoons vanilla
1½ cups whole wheat cereal flakes

Cream the butter well, add the sugar, and blend thoroughly. Add the eggs. Then add gradually the flour, which has been sifted several times with the other dry ingredients. Add flavorings and cereal flakes last. Shape into rolls 1½ inches in diameter, and wrap in waxed paper. Chill overnight or until firm enough to slice. Slice thinly and bake in a hot oven [400 degrees F.] for 5 or 6 minutes.

Leftover Cooked Cereal May Be Used in Tasty Pancakes.

Leftover cooked cereal, such as cooked wheat cereal or oatmeal, may be made into filling luncheon or supper pancakes.

COOKED CEREAL PANCAKES.

1 tablespoon shortening
2 cups cold cooked cereal
2 tablespoons sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 egg
1 cup milk
2 cups flour
3 teaspoons baking powder

Place cereal in a bowl and mix until it is free from lumps. Add the melted shortening, the sugar, salt, beaten egg, and milk. Add the sifted flour and baking powder and beat well. The batter will be thick. Fry in large cakes on a hot griddle. Serve with maple sirup or a sweet jam.

Cooked Breakfast Cereal Is Used in Fruit Puddings.

Your choice of cooked breakfast cereal also will make a super-something prune, pineapple, or apricot pudding. Almost any fruit may be used.

CEREAL PRUNE PUDDING.

2 cups cooked cereal
1 cup mashed cooked prunes
3 teaspoons sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 egg whites, beaten stiff

Mix all ingredients except the egg whites. Fold them into the pudding last. Bake the mixture in a buttered dish in a moderate [350 degrees] oven for 30 minutes. Serve topped with a soft custard made from the egg yolks, or with additional fruit sauce.

All-Bran Cereal Plays Role in Delectable Apricot Bread.

Apricot bread, made with all-bran cereal, slices into dainty and fruity sandwiches. As in the case of the preceding recipe, other fruit may be substituted, although the apricot flavor is distinctive.

ALL-BRAN APRICOT BREAD.

1 cup chopped dried apricots
1 1-3 cups sour milk or buttermilk
3 tablespoons shortening
1-3 cup sugar
1 egg
1½ cups all-bran
2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon nutmeg
½ cup chopped nuts

Soak chopped apricots in milk for 15 minutes. Cream shortening, add sugar, and blend well together. Add egg, and beat until creamy. Add bran, apricots, and milk. Let soak until most of the moisture is taken up. Sift flour with other dry ingredients and combine with nut meats. Add to the first mixture, stirring only until flour is moistened. Bake for 80 minutes in greased loaf pan with waxed paper in the bottom, using 350 degree temperature.

Cooked whole wheat cereal makes a nourishing as well as delicious chowder when carrots, salt pork, and onion are combined with it. Tomatoes or tomato juice, although not called for in the recipe, add to the flavor.

WHOLE WHEAT CHOWDER.

2 cups diced carrots
1 pint boiling water
½ cup diced salt pork
4 tablespoons chopped onion
1 tablespoon flour
1 pint milk
2 cups cooked whole wheat cereal
1 teaspoon salt
Pepper
1 tablespoon chopped parsley

Cook the carrots in the boiling water until tender. Fry the salt pork until crisp, remove from the fat, and cook the onions in the fat. Stir in the flour and cook a few minutes longer. Mix all ingredients in the upper part of a double boiler, stir until well blended and cook about 10 minutes. Serve over crisp toast.

Feathers and Furs Join Paris Style Parade

Outer Wraps and Hats for Winter Months to Be Luxurious and Dramatic.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS. — [Special.] — Paris turns fortune teller just now and foretells the future of the styles for the coming winter, 1936-'37.

Paris says that coats will have bold, flaring skirts and fur without limit to garnish them. Molyneux loads circular skirts of coats with twin bands of opulent blue fox. All the others put heap-big fur in bands around the bottom, or up and down the front, and into super collars. Fox, mink, seal, and astrakhan appear in strange colors, though natural lynx is revived.

Paquin sets enormous fox pockets on cloth coats. Mainbocher lays full length stoles of black fox around the closings of straight long coats. Vionnet applies fur to real swallow-tail coats.

Schiaparelli is a true modernist with a coat that has bureau drawer pockets. She shows handsome slender coats with twin fox scarf collars, or subtle draped ones, or enormous halo collars of precious mink.

Shaggy Fur Coats Come in Wildest of Colors.

Stunted, shaggy fur coats, in wild colors like red and blue, swing out from smart shoulders are in Marcel Rochas and Alix's collections. Three-quarters tunic coats of astrakhan [Persian lamb] and other furs reign at Maggy Rouff and other major houses.

Lelong has a cross-barred Alaska sealskin coat. Sports coats, as straight and undeviating as a Main street in the corn belt, come in giddy plaids and checks. Paquin makes a point of waist length fur jackets held in by embroidered belts.

Suits keep their star part in the styles. Maggy Rouff and others of the Big Six feature suits with eighteenth century "scarlet pimpernel" jackets. These often have fur revers and collars, and slim skirts.

Suits with swallowtail and cutaway jackets and straight skirts are all over the place. Fox fur bands cavorting around the swallowtails of the jackets of day and dinner suits in Patou's show remind one of a preening peacock.

Skirts That Flare Are Pert and Quite Short.

Vying with straight laced skirts are skirts that flare with circular movement. All are pert and quite short, but not spectacularly so.

Suit jackets with big directoire revers and collars made of fur are the thing. Molyneux's black suit with mink revers and a pocket size mink muff is super-smart.

Velvet suits are rampant in dressy daytime fashions. Creed suits have white lace stocks and jabots. Fur hems appear on velvet suit skirts, and fur trims the jackets.

Brilliant brocade and embroidered blouses and sober chiffon ones go along with suits.

Suits of cloth are embroidered around the jackets in Schiaparelli, Patou, Paquin, and other showings.

Daytime dresses tend to be narrow in line, and are fitted closely either in the bodice or skirt, and sometimes both.

High draped necklines and low cut front necklines are in for daytime.

Shoulders are collapsed to normal size on all day clothes.

Tunics and circular skirts offer contrast to slender lines of frocks.

Daytime length metal cloth dresses are super-smart for the end of the afternoon. Dresses with fancy hems of fur or cloth are important. Gay velvet belts are a Schiaparelli feature for daytime frocks. Lanvin peps up dress borders with two bright color pipings and bands.

Mainbocher puts in embroidered armholes and brilliant bands to make dress waists charming.

Dresses Assert Color Personality This Year.

Dresses assert color personality. Have a colored satin or wool or velvet dress with your fur coat this winter. Indian red, regal, ruby, heady wine, royal blue, or vernal green are good colors. Short, black fur cloth coats with colored dresses are big fashion.

Colors for daytime go to extreme. Patou's sofe smoke blue blazes into Schiaparelli's danger red. Soft smoky greens at Maggy Rouff, and fuschia red and purple at Robert Piguet and everywhere else.

Red, red, red, from black carnation red to cerise, ruby, and magenta. Two reds in one dress from Mainbocker. Black, black, black, bigger and better than ever for daytime, but dashed with color. And blue in cathedral window and royal shades.

Broadcloth and duvetyne have returned to favor in a big way. Velvets and satins and clokys are important. Rodier's bright plaid wools are everywhere for sports clothes. Flat crêpes come back big in Patou's collection.

Hats and Shoes Rise to Spectacular Heights.

Hats and shoes rise to spectacular heights, and in riotous colors. Schiaparelli shows bright red shoes and gloves with black frocks for afternoon. Draped velvet toques in two rich colors, some giddily high, some not, are leaders.

Feathers from all known birds make hats and hat trimmings, and laboratory feathers also appear. Feather and velvet flower topknots give more height to small hats. Fur trimmed hats are abundant. Schiaparelli trims toques with blue eyed fox heads.

Shoes keep up along the ankles, at least over the insteps, and some go higher than that. Heels are low and high.

Gloves, still bright, sound notes of contrasting color. Schiaparelli has black gloves with red lackered fingernails and blue blooded vein patterns. Maggy Rouff has bright chenille gloves. Mainbocher has them in rich fabrics.

Fastenings keep fanciful. Maggy Rouff has lether hook and ring closings. Schiaparelli has lether slave chains and lazy coronation crown buttons that lay on their sides. Molyneux favors big velvet hooks and eyes.

Jeweled flowers in clips and pins and bracelets are rampant.

Fox fur stoles are smart with suits.

Coronation Robes Tax the Budgets of British Peers

LONDON Peers' robes for the coronation continue to be the great social problem of the day. As coronation robes may be used only once in a lifetime, so to speak, and are quite different from a peer's ordinary robes, they constitute an expensive problem of which, it now is plain, the skilful substitution of rabbit skins for ermine is to be the solution.

A peer's brand new robe for the coronation costs $175, and a new coronet costs $125. Only eleven robes from invalid or absentee peers or peers' estates have appeared on the market, and the robemakers are busy. By discreetly substituting rabbit skin for ermine in the cape, the cost of the robe may be reduced somewhat, and the silver balls on the coronet don't have to be actual silver.

But there is no escaping the cost of the twenty-two yards of red velvet and the twenty-two yards of silk, nor the robemaker's charge for his erudition, two rows of black spots around the cape for a baron, two and one-half rows for a viscount, three for an earl, three and one-half for a marquis, and four for a duke.

Lighter Colors Most Effective in Bedrooms

Clear, Soft Shades Give Interior a Restful and Pleasant Atmosphere.

"New Curtains and Draperies," a booklet by Claire Winslow, answers puzzlers about correct lengths for curtains and draperies and tells of new, attractive materials and styles of treatment. Price, 5 cents by mail, 3 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby.

By Claire Winslow.

ONE spot where the amateur decorator should know her colors and their combinations is the bedroom. Dark, somber tones have no place there. While deep, vivid green, chocolate brown, and wine red may be dominating colors in occasional rooms in the home, such as rumpus and game rooms, and while they may, occasionally, even get into the living and dining rooms, it is unwise to spread them over the walls of the bedroom.

Light, soft colors are the best there, for they make the atmosphere of the room a pleasing, restful, and serene one. In rooms facing north, or for ones that are dark due to few windows or a neighboring building, it is astonishing to see what miracles can be wrought with clear, light yellow, with pale peach, or pale coral. And for others that have a southern exposure, or that are bright to start with, light gray, green, powder blue, pinky lavender are good.

Interesting Color Schemes Good with Early American.

Because so many bedrooms nowadays have early American maple or colonial mahogany furniture we give several interesting color schemes which can easily be carried out, as all the department stores carry draperies, rugs, and bedspreads in the tones listed, and as the new floor coverings come in every color of the rainbow.

Scheme No. 1—Walls papered in light gray pin-striped in white with a scatter design of graceful, pale yellow and brown orchids. Woodwork and ceiling, white. Floor covering, a medium gray broadloom rug. Bedspreads, quilted yellow chintz edged in brown. Draperies, pale yellow Korean silk made in crisscross style with 5 inch ruffles. No curtains. White Venetian blinds.

Pastel Shades Predominate in Combinations Suggested.

Scheme No. 2—Walls papered in white with a floral design in rose, pink, blue, and green. Woodwork and ceiling, white. Floor covering, all-over carpeting in deep green. Bedspreads, all white candlewick. Draperies, ruffled pink organdy, tied back over ruffled white organdy. An armchair covered in blue and rose chintz. [This room, furnished in maple, may be seen in a Chicago store.]

Scheme No. 4—Walls painted dusty pink. Woodwork and ceiling cream white. Floor covering, room size hooked rug in design showing soft pinks, rose, green, and biege. Bedspreads, cream white homespun. Draperies, dusty pink glazed chintz with white floral pattern, lined in white. White Venetian blinds. No curtains.

Boston Terriers Widely Popular Among Londoners

LONDON There is much favorable comment about the growing popularity of Boston terriers in England. For the first time in history, there now are enough of them in the country to form a class at the next big dog show, which takes place at Wembley early in October.

These Boston terriers are a straight American invasion, for they were introduced here by Americans living in England.

Several members of the American colony in London breed them on their country places, and now the English dog fanciers have taken them up.

Alice Roosevelt's Wedding Gown Especially Woven

HOW time flies. Alice Roosevelt, the brilliant daughter of "Teddy," was married more than thirty years ago to the late Nicholas Longworth. She wore a gown of white satin woven especially for the occasion, and trimmed with rare ancestral lace with a train five yards long. The veil of silk tulle which enveloped her slight figure in a misty cloud of white that reached to the edge of the gown, was held in place by a wreath of orange blossoms. She wore a diamond brooch, a gift from her father, and a diamond necklace, a gift of the groom.

Practical, Tailored Frock Is Perfect Model for Hours in Schoolroom.

Fashion at your fingertips! With emphasis on current trends in styling, the new modes presented in the fall and winter edition of the Chicago Tribune Book of Clotilde Fashions offer you a complete wardrobe which you can create yourself. The booklet, just off the press, is 15 cents, or 10 cents when ordered with a pattern. Address Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Station, NEW YORK CITY; or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.

By Clotilde.

THE school bells already have rung in the new wardrobe problem for most mothers of daughters from 6 to 12 years old. Hours spent in classrooms demand frocks which are practical and yet distinctively styled to suit the fancy of growing youngsters. Because girls of grammar school age require such an abundance of dresses, the patterns which mothers use must be simple to follow. The design illustrated today meets all the requirements perfectly.

The original of this tailored model is created in wine colored cotton broadcloth, a shade and fabric ideally suited to the schoolroom. The yoke neckline fits slender shoulders in a flattering manner. The bodice is gathered into the yoke, as are the sleeves. There are no armholes requiring dressmaking skill. The sleeves may be either long or short and, in either case, they are puffed.

The skirt is fitted attractively through the hipline and flares gently toward the hem, where the desired fullness is provided. Two patch pockets on the skirt are in keeping with the tailored spirit of the tiny collar and its pert little bow.

Various cotton novelty fabrics in dark shades, in addition to the broadcloth already mentioned, are practical and pretty for this little frock. Various sturdy silks also are appropriate, and the winter season will make sheer woolens quite perfect.

Style No. 2588 is designed for sizes 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. Size 8 requires 2¾ yards of 39 inch material.

Why Disregard Etiquet When Driving Car?

By Helen Bartlett.

AUTOMOBILE drivers as a class are about the most discourteous group of people we know.

It is incredible that such a large number of reasonably intelligent individuals can so universally and knowingly disregard all the simple proprieties of the society of which they are a part. The man or woman behind the wheel completely forgets his code of social etiquet and the good manners his mother taught him about respect and consideration for the personal and property rights of others.

Drivers assume a different personality behind the wheel. They immediately discard all the charming little courtesies and become veritable demons. They crowd other cars off the road; they swerve and cut in front of other motorists. They shout at those who attempt to assert their own rights on the road. They get in a "pet" and honk impatiently at pedestrians attempting to cross a busy intersection. They narrowly escape injuring some one and then swear at him because they missed him.

Most Drivers Develop Superiority Complex.

It must be that having control over a powerful motor gives them a feeling of superiority and develops the conceit to a gratifyingly high degree. At any rate, these drivers always think they have the right of way and that everybody else is wrong. They never think of slowing down to allow a car on a crossroad to take a place in a crowded line of trafic. They deliberately shove out into crowded intersections, expecting other trafic to melt away and, instead, create a tangled mess and increase congestion.

They greedily sneak over on the left side of the road when trafic moves too slowly to suit them, dissatisfied with their particular position in the line and always wanting to lead the procession. Then, when it is impossible for them to get back in the proper lane of trafic, they block drivers who are legitimately attempting to make their way in the opposite direction.

Angry Antics of Drivers Traced to Case of Egotism.

They race to prevent another's passing them. They glare angrily at any fellow driver who helplessly causes them to slacken speed for a split second. And all that is saved is a very few minutes or seconds of the actual driving time. Of course, it is satisfying to the driver to beat everybody else on the road because it does demonstrate to himself and everybody else his superiority.

But if that is the sole reason for showing an ugly disposition it is pretty silly. Now think it over. When you walk down the street, for instance, and people directly in front of you stop short to glance in a shop window, do you shout at them and glower as you detour and continue on your way? Or when another person, because he walks faster or is in a hurry, passes you, do you immediately break into a fury and start running after him to "cut" in front of him by way of getting even? Of course not.

Fruit Ice Cubes Are New Note

● To make frozen fruit cubes for summer drinks, simply freeze a piquant fruit beverage in the freezing tray of your refrigerator in the ice cube compartments. These cubes may be served in tall, cool glasses of the same fruit beverage, or with a contrasting or blending flavor. Orangeade cubes in lime or lemonade are perfect, a pineapple juice cube gives a pleasing added flavor to the iced tea glass. Avoid, however, use of a red and a green combination, as the color will tend to turn grayish.

Dressmaker to Queen Mary Defends Dowager's Hats

THE official dressmaker to Dowager Queen Mary of England, Edward Harry Symonds, has made clothes for the women of the royal family since 1911, but he disclaims responsibility for the royal bonnets. He says there is nothing wrong with the hats of her majesty; on the contrary "they have a certain dignity that just suits her personality." In her dresses the queen is partial to lace and embroidery and pastel shades like hydrangea.

In Spain many brides now are marching off to battle with their new husbands.

Several Clever Devices Aid in Hooking Rugs

Gadgets Are a Foundation Material, Tackless All Metal Frame, Needles.

A NEW wool and foundation material for hooked rugs, with which hooked rugs may be made in one-third the time and at one-third the cost, has been introduced by a nationally known yarn manufacturer. After two years of experimentation with various carpet warps the makers have discovered what qualities were necessary for a perfect foundation material for hand made hooked rugs, one which is destined to revolutionize the handicraft.

It is made of a carpet warp of the same texture as that used for the finest domestic rugs. Its durability has been tested and it has been especially designed to enable ingenious women to create their own hooked rug patterns by the use of black lines outlining two inch squares throughout the 36 inch wide material.

Rug Book, Metal Frame and Needle Set Also Presented.

Women also may buy their rug patterns already stamped on this material. Simultaneously with the introduction of the foundation cloth this same company has presented not only a new rug book, containing dozens of designs and reproductions of outstanding rugs from every well known period, as well as instructions for designing ones own rug, but an all metal frame and hooked rug needle set.

Similar to the wood frames, this new all steel rug frame [which is done in pastel shades] has a metal bar across the top and back which holds every color yarn required in the rug as well as the one in current use. The greatest innovation lies in the fact that no tacks are required to fasten the foundation cloth. The frame has hooks along each side to catch the selvage of the material. Chains coming out from the band of hooks hold the material stationary.

Needle Set Designed to Save Great Deal of Time for Worker.

The needle set contains three extra needle points which save time, since several needles eliminate the changing of yarns. The cost of the frame is moderate for an item of this type, and the yarn required for one rug is one-third that of the amount required for rugs hooked on other foundation materials. An enterprising person may buy one frame and rent it out for so much per rug, and soon recover the original expenditure.

The frame, yarns, needles, foundation material and rug hook are sold in a Chicago department store.

NEW APPLIANCES FOR HOOKED RUG

A new foundation material for hooked rugs is worked on a lightweight metal frame. An innovation is the yarn holder pictured at the back of the frame.

Eyes Are Main Feature; Stress Their Makeup

Women Emphasize Mouths Too Much, Says Head of Large Model Bureau.

How to glorify blonde tresses is one of the subjects of the booklet, "Bring Out the Beauty in Your Hair," by Antoinette Donnelly. On sale at the Tribune Public Service Offices, 1 S. Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 5 cents. By postpaid mail, 7 cents.

By Antoinette Donnelly.

LISTEN to this, girls! The advice is given by a man whose business it is to sell beauty to the public in the form of beautiful models. Walter Thornton heads one of the big New York City bureaus for models from whose beauty ranks girls have stepped into Hollywood limelight. Mr. Thornton observes that girls and women all seem to think that the mouth is the main feature of observation. Or, so their color laden mouths would indicate. Whereas, in Walter Thornton's judgment the eyes still hold the power to sway men. So, our authority recommends that women concentrate less on mouth makeup and more on eye allure—shadow, mascara and misty lid. Or at least that they divide their efforts or so distribute them that mouths do not carry all the makeup load and the eyes none. In photographing models the bigger, brighter and better the eyes can be made, the better. The same logic applies to nonprofessional effort. As our authority repeats, it is the eyes that men look into and are held by. He has seen marvelous improvement in eyes with clever makeup.

From time to time in this department, I have discouraged the use of makeup by older women and I still feel that the women with crinkled lids, crow's feet, perhaps puffiness under the eyes are better off without further calling attention to these faults by using eye makeup. But until this is done, I still maintain that a certain freshness of skin is needed for alluring eye makeup. Certain gray haired women have the type of youthful skin to which we refer. Their eyes may be made doubly attractive with artificial shading. Some brunettes and blondes of uncertain age likewise may be among the fortunate possessors of the skin that takes to eye makeup. And, indeed, some women without the perfect skin, but with outstanding personality, may wield the mascara brush and thumb the lid with color. This latter group is a limited one, however.

Eye Makeup Younger Woman's Plaything.

For the great body of women I do think that eye makeup is the younger woman's plaything. They have more use for the gay young sparkle. Even the younger ones have to use eye makeup with excessive care, or the results will be startling rather than alluring. It may be ageing, too, on the young face, unless skilfully chosen and skilfully applied. It's the hard, ageing effect it has on the older face that so often disqualifies it as a cosmetic asset.

You've heard before, of course, that eye makeup should be used with a light hand. But the warning must be repeated again and again. And let me refer again to the unbecoming, older eyelid that does not take eye makeup well. It's a dry lid. The light in the eye is faded, spiritless, weary. Eye makeup takes best and looks best on the lid that is moist and transparent. Even young eyes often profit by a tiny dab of oil or cream on the upper lid. The shadow blends more beautifully over it.

Only once in a while now do you see a young woman committing that unforgivable eye makeup offense of rimming the lower lid with dark color. It isn't done in well madeup eye circles. Eye shadow is used only on the upper lid and not the entire lid usually. Begin above the iris of of the eye and blend the shadow up and outward toward temples. If your upper lids bulge, don't use a shadow. Try to think of the sort of transparent lid that suggests that your eye coloring is showing through when using shadow. Don't think of shadow as a thing apart from the eyes. And try out different shades—bluish, grayish blue and bluish gray, purplish tints, green and bronze, which is lovely for redheads. If you use a dry shadow, mix with cream or oil base. Always get that softening effect of a slightly moist lid.

If you are unhandy, take a lesson or two in eye makeup. Study your professional operator as she puts it on. Don't think this is a job for the amateur or the hurried hand.

Heavy Eyeshadow May Eclipse the Eyes.

I'd warn you not to lay eye makeup on with too lavish a hand at night for dance and dinner wear because, as evening rolls on, one sees often a total eye eclipse set in under the heavy shadow. Especially if a dark eyeshadow is used. The lids stand up better with the blue and greenish treatment, it seems to me. But why not look into some of the lovely new shades—the jewel shades—such as aquamarine, which makes blue eyes look bluer and gives green or gray eyes a lovely tone, especially if used with a sapphire mascara. A coppery brown shade available gives an interesting film to gray and green eyes. And there's an amethyst shade, a gleaming silver spun shadow, and a smoky pearl. You do not have to stick to the old standard colors any more than you use the dead white powders of former days. Even mascaras may be found in sapphire which proves far more becoming to many women than the prominent black, or you might experiment with a dark green or a rich brown carnelian or deep purple.

The purpose of mascara is to give your eyes a wide open appearance as well as to give the illusion of length to lashes. Keep that in mind, for many girls achieve the closed eye look with the heavy eyelash effect.

Eyebrow pencils have a grease or wax base usually. But if you do not get a slightly oiled look to the brows [not oily, understand] dip a finger tip in cream or oil and treat the eyebrow to the soft, moistening effect recommended for eyelids.

Miss Donnelly's authoritative articles, counseling women in matters of beauty and charm, appear every day in the feature pages of the Chicago Tribune.

THE LURE THAT LIES IN A WOMAN'S EYES IS EASILY ACHIEVED

At right: As pretty and adorable as Alice Faye's mouth is, her eyes are the feature which most hold the observer's attention. Alice is decidedly blond and selects her eye makeup, shadow and mascara in accordance with her skin and hair tone, as well as the color of her attractive eyes themselves. Beauty authorities agree that more women should put greater emphasis upon their eyes in makeup than upon their mouths, because eyes have more appeal.

At left: Completely lovely Loretta Young counts among her chief charms the beauty of her eyes. Her demure attractiveness is expressed in her intelligent eyes, which she is careful to make up properly and suitably at all times, avoiding colors and makeup effects which will detract from the loveliness of her orbs rather than enhance them. Antoinette Donnelly gives some valuable makeup hints in the adjoining column today.

These Winter Woolies Are Knitted of a Sheer Angora

By Jean Macdonald.

SKI suits and their necessary accoutrements will be more popular than ever this winter if one heeds railroad and fashion reports. Beneath every correct ski suit will be worn the proper undergarments, warm but lightweight.

The hand knitted panties and vest illustrated today are made expressly for winter weather and outdoor activity. They fit snugly and without a wrinkle, are knitted of a sheer Angora especially designed for sportswear. It is like any other sheer Angora, except that it does not shed, and is so luxuriously soft that one is scarcely aware that it is next to the skin.

The shorts are easy to knit, since the only two patterns are the stockinette stitch and even ribbing. The slightly fitted vest is made to cling to the figure, and to give that "paper on the wall" effect which every one strives for, even under ski suits. The complete set weighs less than six ounces. If less expensive yarn is desired, French zephyr, two ply Saxony, ice wool, or yarn of similar weight and texture may be used.

HOW TO ORDER

If you wish instructions for knitting the set of winter woolies illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Jean Macdonald, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago. Be sure to send name and address with your letter.

Be sure to include the following measurements:

When Chicago Was Young

The Elegant Eighties

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, Nov. 1, 1887.

DEAR JULIA: I enclose a clipping telling of the extraordinary plea that mercy be shown the doomed anarchists of the Haymarket riot, a plea which the Rev. J. Vila Blake, minister of the Third Unitarian church, at Laflin and Monroe streets, is to take to Gov. Oglesby.

Will and I discussed this petition tonight as we sat by the library fire. Is Mr. Blake right in pleading for the commutation of the sentences of these men who will be hanged unless the governor interferes? Mr. Blake admits freely that they inflamed the passions of the poor and suffering, and "purposely spoke words to make wild hearts more wild," but he thinks they aren't criminals in the ordinary sense of the world, and he feels they should not suffer the extreme penalty of the law, because they were in part the product of hard social conditions.

Granted that this is true, Will thinks that clemency would only encourage others to throw bombs, and that if their punishment were commuted to life imprisonment, they would soon be out again, and agitating as before. Mr. Blake's view, you see, is that time should be allowed for public opinion to "ripen," and he closes by stating: "I make a plea not only for these men, but for ourselves, that we may be saved from remorse and shame in the future." It is, at least, a beautifully worded address, the work of a humane man. One hundred members of his congregation signed it.

Well, it's a difficult question. But I do think capital punishment should be abolished. I'm sure no one ever was deterred from evil by the thought of being hanged, while the knowledge that the verdict of guilty means capital punishment sometimes influences a jury to be lenient and to let the culprit go free because they dread making a mistake in voting for the death penalty.

Jenny Lind is dead. The announcement brings back memories of the great moment in my young life when I heard her sing in New York in 1850. I was just a child, but from that moment, she was my ideal of womanly grace and charm as well as my "queen of song." She was adored for her unspoiled nature as much as she was admired for her beautiful voice!

Her success shows that sometimes a great artist isn't recognized at first. You know her debut in Paris, though she was a protégé of Meyerbeer's, was a failure. This was, I believe, the result of a greenroom plot of jealous rivals. She said then she'd never sing in France again, and she kept her word. But Germany received her warmly when she sang there on the occasion of Queen Victoria's visit to Berlin. From Germany to England she went, then, under Barnum, she came to the United States. Do you remember with what mingled feelings we greeted the announcement that she was to retire from the stage when she married her orchestra director, the eminent pianist, Otto Goldschmidt? It did seem too bad that she couldn't continue her concert work. Some singers manage a career and a husband at one and the same time. But she always was old fashioned. Perhaps she was wise. Wifehood and motherhood come first. But, O, that lovely voice, used just for lullabys! Heaven's Hallelujah chorus will be grander for her presence.

She really wasn't old. She was born in 1821. They say that the royal family visited her often during the years she lived in England.

We are to hear Stoddard in his new lecture, "The Pyrenees," this week. I enjoy his travel talks so much. Will says he shouldn't let me hear Stoddard, for I immediately want to take my "wander-staff" in hand. Well, some day perhaps we will be able to go to Europe.

Lovingly,
MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOTNOTES.

Many delightful letters have come to us this week . . . so many, we cannot even list them all.

Frederick P. Vose, commenting on mention of Eli Bates' misfortunes and struggles, says: "There was no bitterness, no moaning, or defeatism, no self-pity in his Massachusetts makeup, no cry that the world owed him a living. And he gave back to the world that which mans and heartens all who have eyes to see and understanding to comprehend."

Charles A. Laurance, Cedar Rapids, Ia., whose printing house published theater programs in that city for more than thirty years, sends a copy of the program of the Vokes Family entertainment in Iowa City in 1883, Rosina Vokes not being in the company at that time, though she later became the most distinguished member of the group.

Horace Spencer Fiske of the University of Chicago sends his "Ballads of Peace and War," among them "The Liberator," which we wish we had space to print. If you never have seen this poem, it would be an interesting bit of literature to read while standing before the St. Gaudens statue of Lincoln in Lincoln park.

OLD CHICAGO HARTHSTONES. 2041 West 110th Place.

Built nearly 100 years ago, the original Morgan home still stands at the crest of the 110th Place hill in Morgan Park. Modernization has improved the interior, but the style of architecture remains unchanged. There is a "captain's walk" atop the roof, which suggests old Nantucket. Could it have been a lookout where the owner watched for Indian prowlers. In 1869, the Blue Island Building association bought the entire Harry Morgan estate which included 1,360 acres. Annexations added to this tract. A town corporation was formed, named Morgan Park, after the original owner. Mrs. Nina T. Joor, the present owner, keeps the house and grounds in beautiful condition.

THE STAMP COLLECTOR

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning value. Do not ask where stamps may be sold as the Postage Stamps and Coins advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

James W. Nyboe of Chicago has loaned this cover from Denmark, showing examples of the new stamps which that country has issued to honor Hans Tausen, leader of the Reformation in Denmark.

IN philately as in other pursuits, history repeats itself. During the gay nineties some collectors who felt that all new issues were not required for postal uses organized the S. S. S. S.—the Society for the Suppression of Speculative Stamps.

This fall the chief topic among clubs and national societies concerns a stamp approval board. The success of such an undertaking will depend upon the personnel of the board, and the coöperation which it receives from dealers and catalog publishers.

It will be no small task for them to decide which issues to approve and which to reject, for the occasions which prompt one small country to issue a commemorative set of stamps, would be multiplied a hundred fold in the case of an older and larger nation. Undoubtedly some issues will be approved and some rejected, where just the reverse would be proper.

If such a board is appointed and serves collectors properly by turning thumbs down on some of the pictorial sets which have been privately printed, and given a character by a one day's sale at postoffices, all will be well. But if an attempt is made to tell any country that it cannot issue commemorative stamps the idea likely will end in a fizzle, for what country will allow itself to be dictated to by an American stamp approval board, or will apply to such a board for permission to issue stamps honoring some person or event in its national history.

Since stamp collecting started it has been lauded as the one hobby where people could do as they choose, and collect what they want without fear of criticism from other collectors. Nearly all collect some things which are not listed in the standard catalog, and many would continue to collect everything issued by their favorite country regardless of the action of an approval board.

Some countries began exploiting the collector as soon as they realized his appetite for stamps, but had this not been so, many countries would still be using their first issue of stamps, and there would be few stamp collectors. Every one knows that stamps can be designed which will serve the country forever, except perhaps when a currency change is made. Norway used one design for about fifty years, but every collector of this country, whether specialist or not, divides this up into a half dozen sets depending on perforations and minor variations. In this case there might have been several issues in new designs without forcing collectors to obtain any more stamps.

At one time all commemorative sets were suspected of being made to sell to collectors, but with the coming of pictorial advertising sets it will be difficult to say which are needed and which are not. Few countries will be so naive as Brazil, which stated in connection with a projected exposition in honor of the 400th anniversary of its discovery, that: "But where in such hard times as these are we to procure the money for this purpose? . . . The proposition for an issue of commemorative stamps furnished a satisfactory answer to the question. As has been shown the commemorative issues of Columbus, Don Henrique, etc., stamps, covered the expenses and even left a large surplus to be expended in exhibitions and magnificent festivals. Indeed, an issue of stamps would be the most indispensible and the safest basis for the realization of projected festivals."

The medals to be awarded in connection with the exhibition of the Golden Jubilee of the Chicago Philatelic society are in the form of a small plaque. The design shows several of the methods used in carrying mail and incorporates the emblem of the society. This emblem

This company, which operated in Chicago in the early sixties, acted as a letter carrier at a time when it was necessary for the people to call at the postoffice for their mail. Regular post boxes were maintained where mail could be deposited for delivery throughout the city or to the postoffice if destined for out of town delivery. Scarcely any of the history of this company is known and additional information will be appreciated.

Beverly Garden Club Having Its Annual Meeting

Many Chicagoans Are On Membership Rolls of Horticultural Society.

BEVERLY, MASS. All of the North Shore colonies will be well represented at the annual meeting of the North Shore Horticultural society, one of the best known in New England, which will be held Friday evening, Sept. 25 at the society hall in Manchester. Mrs. Harold G. Cutler of Wenham colony is president of the association, and there are many Chicago sojourners on the North Shore on the membership rolls. This year the society has held three successful exhibits, and has done much to add to the charm and beauty of the North Shore.

A tea dance and luncheon of especial interest to the younger colony are on the program for the coming week. Mr. and Mrs. Harris Nelson are giving a tea dance at their west Manchester home Wednesday afternoon for Miss Emily Nelson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Nelson of Duncaster road, Chestnut Hill, and for Miss Elizabeth Hampton Robb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Robb. The same afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Shrigley are giving a luncheon at Miramar, their Marblehead home, for their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Shrigley.

Harold F. McNeils Give Luncheon for Daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold F. McNeil recently gave a luncheon for Miss Janet McNeil, their daughter, at the Essex County club in Manchester. Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Cole gave a luncheon this afternoon at Brookby farm, their Wenham home, for their granddaughters, Miss Harriet Cole, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin E. Cole of North Andover, and Miss Eleanor Coolidge, daughter of Mrs. William H. Coolidge Jr. of Beverly Farms.

Mrs. Joseph Leiter of Chicago and her daughter, Miss Nancy Leiter, have closed their Beverly Farms home for the summer. A trip to Europe is in prospect. Mrs. Leiter has done much entertaining at Edgewater House, her lovely home near West Beach, and has had many Washington friends on North Shore visits. The diplomatic corps has been well represented on the guest list this season.

Miss Leiter, who made her debut last October, also has done considerable entertaining. This season she had a wonderful summer yachting, and carried off trophies in many races at Marblehead and Manchester, ranking as one of the cleverest young yachtswomen on the shore.

Miss Mary Barclay Adams is returning home next week after a delightful summer at Quest End, her summer home in picturesque East Gloucester. Miss Adams is a member of the Capt. Ann Garden club and has taken much interest in its activities during the summer.

Keith Merrill Jr. to Attend Yale University.

Keith Merrill Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Merrill of Avalon, Pride's Crossing, is to attend Yale at New Haven, Conn., this year.

The Merrills are planning to be at their Pride's Crossing estate, one of the most attractive in the famous Pride's Crossing reserve, until well into October, when they will go to Washington for the winter.

Miss Eleanor Flood has returned to Washington after a visit with Miss Anne Phillips, daughter of William Phillips, ambassador to Italy, at Highover, the Phillips' summer home on the shore of Wenham lake at North Beverly.

The John Clays are planning to return to their Chicago home next week after a long season at Gloucester.

Mrs. Marshall Field, one of the oldest summer residents in the Pride's Crossing districts, plans to extend her stay at Alger cottage until mid-October. Mr. and Mrs John A. Carpenter of Chicago are to be at their sunset home off Prince street at Beverly cove until late in October. This is their first season at Beverly.

Col. George N. Langhorne has returned to Chicago after a long season on the North Shore where he had a cottage in the Ipswich colony.

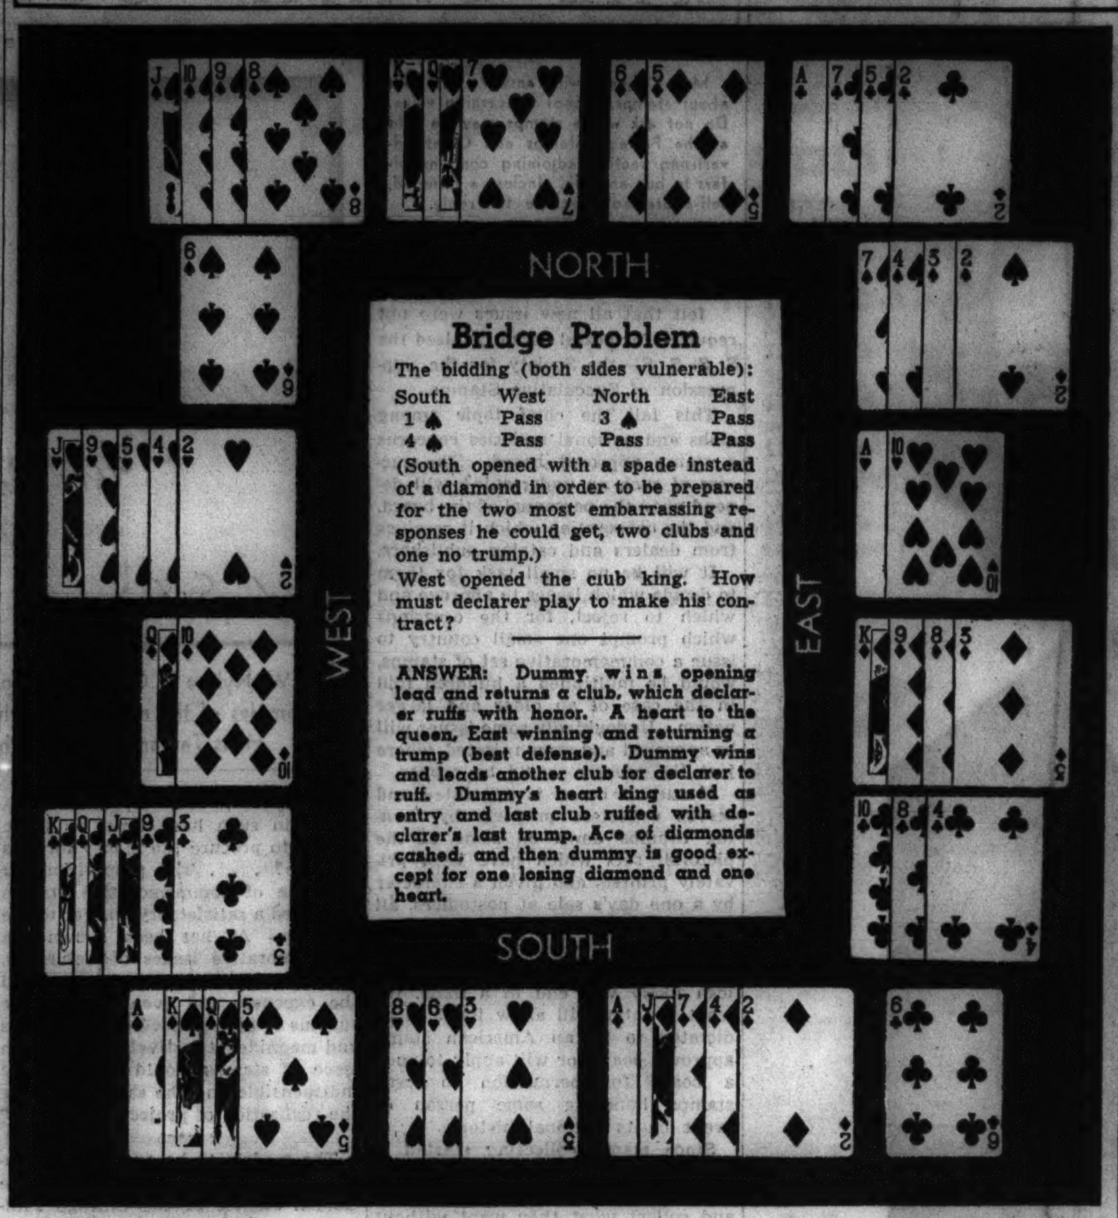
Mrs. Frank Schwab Is Entertaining Mother in England

LONDON Mrs. Frank Schwab, the former Mildred Thompson of Houston, Tex., is entertaining her mother for the remainder of the summer. Master James Schwab, at the tender age of one month, is accompanying his parents to their Scottish home, where he will be joined by his sisters, Charnien and Avril who are, at the moment, spending their holiday at England's "Lido de luxe," Frinton.

Mr. and Mrs. Schwab have several miles of excellent fishing on their estate as well as abundant moors for shooting. Mrs. Schwab's chief interest in the north is a model dairy of Guernsey cows which supply many of her friends with daily milk in London.

A beautiful new suite of rooms has been added to accommodate the young heir, with a superb view over the Scotting hills which, unfortunately, he is too young to appreciate at the present time.

Contract According to Culbertson



Bridge Problem

The bidding (both sides vulnerable):

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

(South opened with a spade instead of a diamond in order to be prepared for the two most embarrassing responses he could get, two clubs and one no trump.)

West opened the club king. How must declarer play to make his contract?

ANSWER: Dummy wins opening lead and returns a club, which declarer ruffs with honor. A heart to the queen, East winning and returning a trump (best defense). Dummy wins and leads another club for declarer to ruff. Dummy's heart king used as entry and last club ruffed with declarer's last trump. Ace of diamonds cashed, and then dummy is good except for one losing diamond and one heart.

By Ely Culbertson

IT IS all very well to be a freethinker—whether the field be politics, love, or contract bridge. Regimentation is painful to many of us; we prefer to be wrong using our own ideas rather than right with someone else's.

But two very potent factors should be considered in any such philosophy. The first is the question of degree. Iconoclasm carried to extremes is ity." And even if we manage to steer called by the very blunt name "insan-well clear of a padded cell, we may still earn the stigma of "eccentric" if we persist in our desire to be "different." The second hazard to freethinking derives from the partnership feature of contract. Since a rigidly defined system of one's own is only a little less repugnant than the same sort of system foisted on one by custom or convention, it must follow that a truly free soul at the bridge table, recoiling from the very breath of standardization, must bid only as the spirit moves him. Which is a great joy and satisfaction to the free soul, but a little wearing on the partner!

Outstanding among the points upon which freethinkers and prosaic conformists disagree is the item of "interference bidding." Here the battlefield is always bloody.

No one is particularly pleased to pick up such a hand as ♠ 9 8 7 6 5 3 ♥ 8 7 4 ♦ 6 5 2 ♣ 8, and it does not make the occasion more festive to hear one's right-hand opponent, the dealer, open hostilities with a one-club bid. As to what to do about it, however, as I have said, opinions differ.

The great majority of us, including most of the so-called authorities, feel that we can't fire a six-inch shell from a busted water pistol; therefore we pass and pray that we'll be let off easily with a mere game for the opponents.

Not so with the stout-hearted, indomitable minority, subscribers to the "interference' theory! They, simply on the evidence of the declarer's bid and their own washout, brilliantly deduce, first, that the opponents must have a lay-down slam, and, second, that they are sure to bid it. That is, they would be sure if let alone, but presto, chango! they'll fix that! How? By bidding a spade and thereby confounding the opponents into believing that the aces, kings, and queens they hold are nothing but mirages. Moreover, these magicians are always ready, even anxious, to pour out the tales of how they talked Mr. and Mrs. Dub out of a cinch grand slam by sticking in a bid on a Yarborough. "Why, they didn't even bid for game!"

Somehow these sagas fail to impress me. O, I don't doubt that the Dubs stopped short of game, but why should I believe that it was the interference bid that stopped them? There is not the slightest doubt in my mind that they are the type of players that would stop because they saw their own shadows. Why is it that the victims of the aforesaid feats of magic never happen to be experts, nor even normally aggressive players?

At least there is a refreshing change here from the technique used in fish stories. When interference bids are proudly described we are told only about the fish that were landed; the big ones that got away, so dear to piscatorialists, are never even mentioned. And 'twere better that way, for otherwise we would hear tales of horror that would cause a Dracula to blench!

We might, for instance, hear about the hand shown just below, played recently in an expert rubber game at Crockford's club, New York:

NORTH
♥ Q 9 5
♦ K 7
♣ A K 6 5 3

♠ K J 2
♥ A J 10 6
♦ Q J 10 8 3

EAST
♠ 9 8 7 6 5 3

♠ 10
♥ K 3 2
♣ Q J 10 7 4 2

The bidding (North-South vulnerable):

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	1 ♠	3 ♣	3 ♠
3 N. T.	Pass	Pass	Double
Redouble	Pass	Pass	Pass

What happened to East and West on this hand was not the result of one of those unfortunate misunderstandings between partners that are bound to occur once in a blue moon. West was fully aware of East's predilection for interference overcalls, but even after making due allowance West could not resist doubling on his splendid three-suit holding. At the very worst, he felt, declarer would make no overtricks.

East opened the six of spades; West's king went to the ace. Declarer then led his low heart to dummy's king; West won and returned the spade jack. North's queen won while dummy discarded a heart, and now six rounds of clubs were run off, which left West searching frantically for safe discards. The search was in vain, however; whatever he let go, he was trapped. In desperation, and quite correctly, with only four cards left to him, West blanked his heart jack in the hope that his partner had the guarded nine; obviously, if declarer had the diamond king (which was strongly indicated), only he (West) could guard the diamond suit. But this was just as satisfactory to the declarer as a diamond unguard would have been; he claimed the last four tricks with the ace-king of diamonds and the queen-nine of hearts.

Now for a few brief observations.

The score of 2,300 points (including rubber bonus) could not have been approached even if North and South had actually reached a slam and, after bidding it, had made it. And both of these contingencies were far from certain; in fact, it is a moot point whether the slam should be bid. But even granting the bid and its success, North-South would roll up only 1,570 points (it would certainly be bid in clubs).

But the minimum loss of 730 points was not the only damage done by East's remarkable interference bid—nor the greatest damage! The partnership was doomed from that time on; West could never again feel free to raise an overcall or to double. And the losses bound to accrue from lost faith are past calculation!

Each Monday in The Daily Tribune Mr. Culbertson writes a bridge article especially for beginners. Articles for more advanced players on other days.

Today's Questions

Question: Please enlighten me on this point: My partner makes an opening bid of two by mistake. I keep the bidding open. Can opponents force us to make a game bid, or can partner pass short of game?

Answer: Here is the same old question in a new form. I am beginning to despair of ever getting the forcing two bid thoroughly understood by all players. Obviously my correspondent is laboring under the delusion that if the two bid referred to had not been the result of a slip of the tongue, the opponents properly could have insisted on the team reaching game, and, again obviously, he feels that only the slip should relieve them of this burden.

The fact is (and now for the steenth time I shall try to make this very plain) that laws of the game are one thing and conventions quite another. Thus if a player bids out of turn or does any one of a great many other illegal things he can and should be penalized according to the laws of the game, formulated and published by an international committee. Where conventions are concerned, however, whether they be conventions of the Culbertson system or any other system, it is simply a question of whether or not the players wish to follow them. Obviously in respect to a forcing two bid it is to the players' own interests that they use it according to the advice of its inventor. If, either through ignorance or willfulness, players decide to use half a convention and to abandon the other half, that is strictly their own affair, and in the long run they will be the losers. Thus, whether or not the opening two bid was made "by mistake," the opponents had no right whatsoever to insist that the bidding be carried farther than the bidders themselves wished to carry it.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Sept. 21.

This is an excellent time to plant narcissus, for early planting enables the bulbs to make a good growth before severe weather. Old bulbs that were grown in pots should be cleaned and planted in the garden, for they will make excellent clumps. They may be used in the perennial borders or in front of shrubs. Peonies are best planted now. Divide old clumps into fair sized plants, not too small, or they will take too long to develop. Plant two inches deep, but allow for settling of the soil if the bed is newly made. Separate lily of the valley every three years in early fall. Plant three inches apart. These do well in shade.

Tuesday, Sept. 22.

It is a good time to clean dead wood out of trees, for it is easily seen while the foliage remains. Long, rampant limbs may be shortened to shape the trees. Do not allow trees to branch too low. Paint wounds with coal tar or thick paint. Make the new lawn at once if it has not already been made. It is much easier to make a lawn now than in spring, for at that time the ground is wet and not easily placed in workable condition. If a period of dry weather comes use plenty of water.

Wednesday, Sept. 23.

Order the shrubs and trees that are to be planted this fall. Buy the best stock, with a good root system and good tops, for such stock will respond quickly. Do not plant a hedge row along the front sidewalk where the front yard is small, for planting these only narrows the street. Plant refined shrubs, such as the bridal wreath, privet, mock orange, dogwood, or snowball, in the angles of the house, and the coarser leaved kinds in the back yard along the fence. Always use good soil. If the soil is poor, replace. Hedges may be given one more trimming now.

Thursday, Sept. 24.

It is always a good plan to pot a few of the tender plants that are growing in beds for indoor use. These include the lantana, petunia, begonia, coleus, and geranium. After potting, put in a shady place for a few days, and gradually bring them into full light. Some annuals also may be potted and brought indoors, such as the pot marigold, the smaller asters, zinnias, and others. Wet the ground and allow the water to soak in for a few hours, then carefully dig. Plan to have a number of pot plants to use in the house. A good list will include the aspidistra, date palm, Boston and holly fern, asparagus sprengeri and plumosus, spider plant, rubber plant, aloes, cactuses, and other succulents.

Friday, Sept. 25.

Transplant pansies that were sown in August. These delightful plants are suitable for early flowering. Many tender bedding plants may be propagated before cold weather or frost. Keep the garden in good condition and cleaned of all rubbish. Collect leaves to use as protecting material and for the compost heap. See that the glass in the hotbed sash is intact.

Saturday, Sept. 26.

Many evergreens are injured because the soil is not kept watered. Do not allow these plants to enter the winter period in a dry state. Start paperwhite narcissus in pots of soil or bowls of pebbles, and water for early flowering. Keep the Saintpaulia or African violet in subdued light and do not water the leaves.

Raleigh Tavern Reproduced in Williamsburg

"Making the Most of the Dinette," a booklet by Edith Weigle, tells how to furnish this small room so as to make it seem more spacious and attractive. Price 3 cents by mail, 2 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby.

By Edith Weigle.

IN the days of the eighteenth century taverns and inns were prosperous in Williamsburg, Va., for many visitors thronged there to attend the assemblies and the courts. The most popular hostelry of them all was the Raleigh tavern, built before 1742. It was destroyed by fire in 1859 and today it would be nothing but a shadowy memory had not the restoration of the town brought it to life again.

On the foundations of the original structure Mr. Rockefeller, who financed the enormous undertaking of re-creating colonial Williamsburg, had the tavern built once more and today you may see it in all its charm, exactly as it was originally designed. To the right, as you enter, is the long, beautifully furnished salon known as the ladies' retiring room. Here women could gather while the men were imbibing in the tap room.

Furniture of Period Covered in Rich Wine Red, Deep Blues.

Furniture of the period is gorgeously upholstered in rich wine reds, in deep blues, and green. I remember one sofa, especially, that was done in Chinese yellow brocade and a commodious, deep seated wing chair in an English chintz. It was spring when I was there and on one of the tables was a huge old punch bowl of Chinese porcelain filled with fragrant branches of white syringa blossoms.

There are several dining rooms in the Raleigh tavern, for in those days every one did not eat in the same room. The Daphne room, for example, was used by the most distinguished guests and, although rather small and intimate, resembling the dining room in a private house, it still is elegant and formal in its character. At the long table, laid in white damask and heavy silver and set with white Wedgwood, Washington and his party often sat.

The draperies were of heavy, lustrous brocade, looped back, under a deep, gathered valance edged with tassels. On the side tables were bowls of daffodils, and through the open windows gentle, balmy little breezes blew in from the gardens.

The Apollo room was used for dining, and also for the dances for which the tavern was famous. It is a long, rectangular salon, spacious and noteworthy because of its interesting lead blue painted paneling. Here, as everywhere else in the public buildings of restored Williamsburg, only authentic furniture of the period is used. There is not one jarring note, not one color or fabric out of key.

Williamsburg Influence Apparent in New Furniture Exhibit.

If you want to see how great an influence Williamsburg is having on furniture and materials of our own day, visit the galleries being opened by a Chicago store tomorrow. You will see a most interesting series of rooms and alcoves in this Virginia colonial style. The decorators of the store have made every effort to show the furniture against the correct backgrounds, and with the right drapery fabrics and accessories.

There are six rooms in all—the Susanna Allen and Alice Page bedrooms, the Raleigh [Apollo] and Berkeley dining rooms, and the Wren and Gloucester galleries [alcoves]. A picture of the Raleigh room is shown today. The walls, while not wainscoted as are the original ones, are tinted in the true lead blue. The draperies are in deep red and beige floral linen, the rug has been especially woven, and the furniture, while not accurate copies of the pieces now seen in Williamsburg, nevertheless has the spirit and beauty of them.

The long table is made up of three separate ones and may be easily taken apart, the two end pieces serving as side tables. The chairs are Chippendale and are almost perfect reproductions of the originals. The sideboard is Sheraton in feeling.

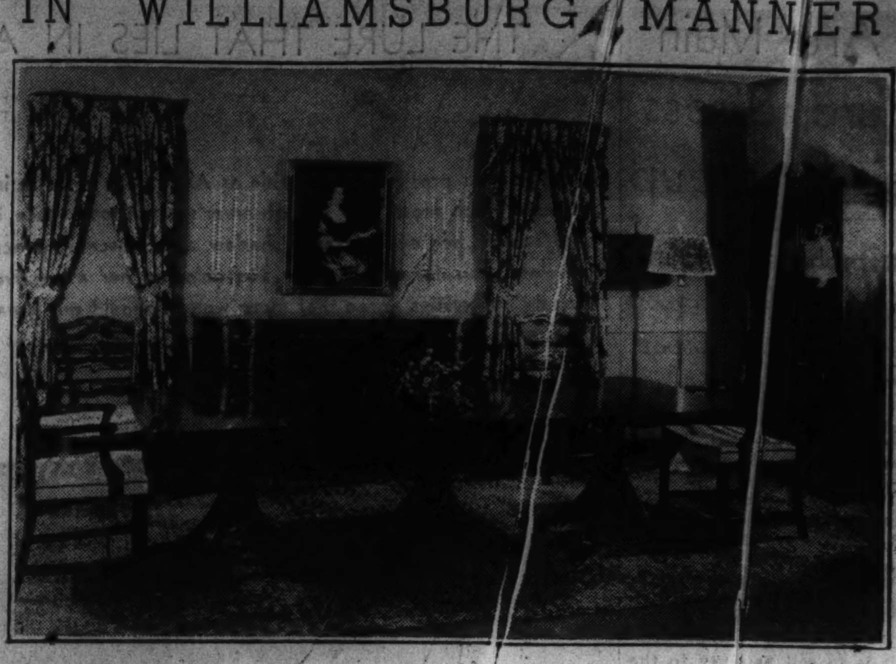
The other picture shows a lovely little dressing table in the Alice Page bedroom. The chair is one of the most charming we have ever seen for the purpose, Chippendale in style, but with an unusual low back. Note the graceful cabriole knee on the table leg. These pieces will be available, also, in the same Chicago store.

Because so many people are anxious to duplicate the Williamsburg paint colors in their own colonial homes, Colonial Williamsburg, Inc., is endeavoring to make a number of these tones available in limited quantities to home owners. A great deal of time is required to perfect a technique of production that will assure the permanence of these colors, and to ascertain how they may be produced in larger, although limited, quantities, the corporation states.

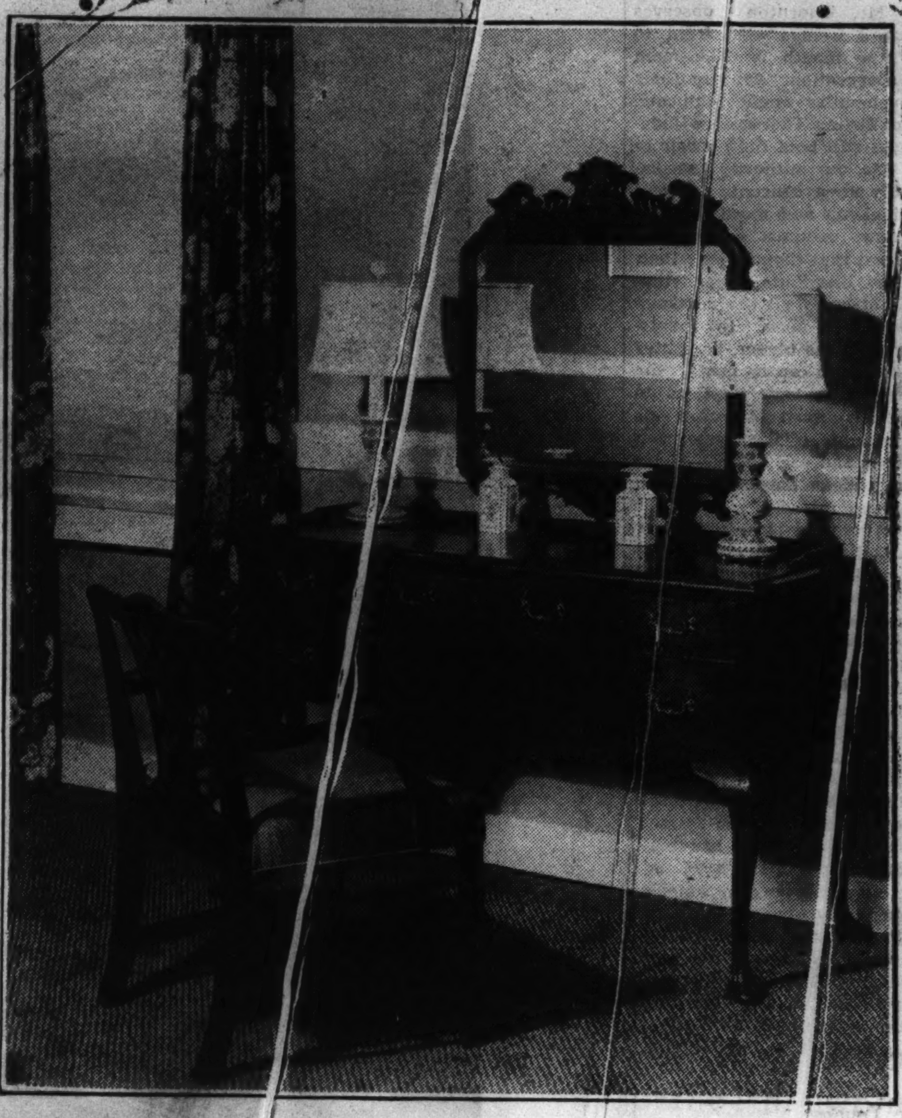
In the meantime persons who wish to use authentic Williamsburg colors now obtainable are requested to address inquiries to Colonial Williamsburg, Inc., Williamsburg, Va.

On Oct. 4 The Sunday Tribune will have a special section devoted to National Home Furnishings week with the latest news and pictures of furniture,

IN WILLIAMSBURG MANNER



This beautiful furniture, in the manner of colonial Williamsburg, Va., is being shown in especially decorated rooms to be opened tomorrow in a Chicago store. Effort has been made to reproduce the correct background colors, draperies, accessories.



This glimpse of a grouping seen in the Alice Page bedroom of the Williamsburg exhibit at a Chicago store illustrates the charm and beauty of colonial furniture.

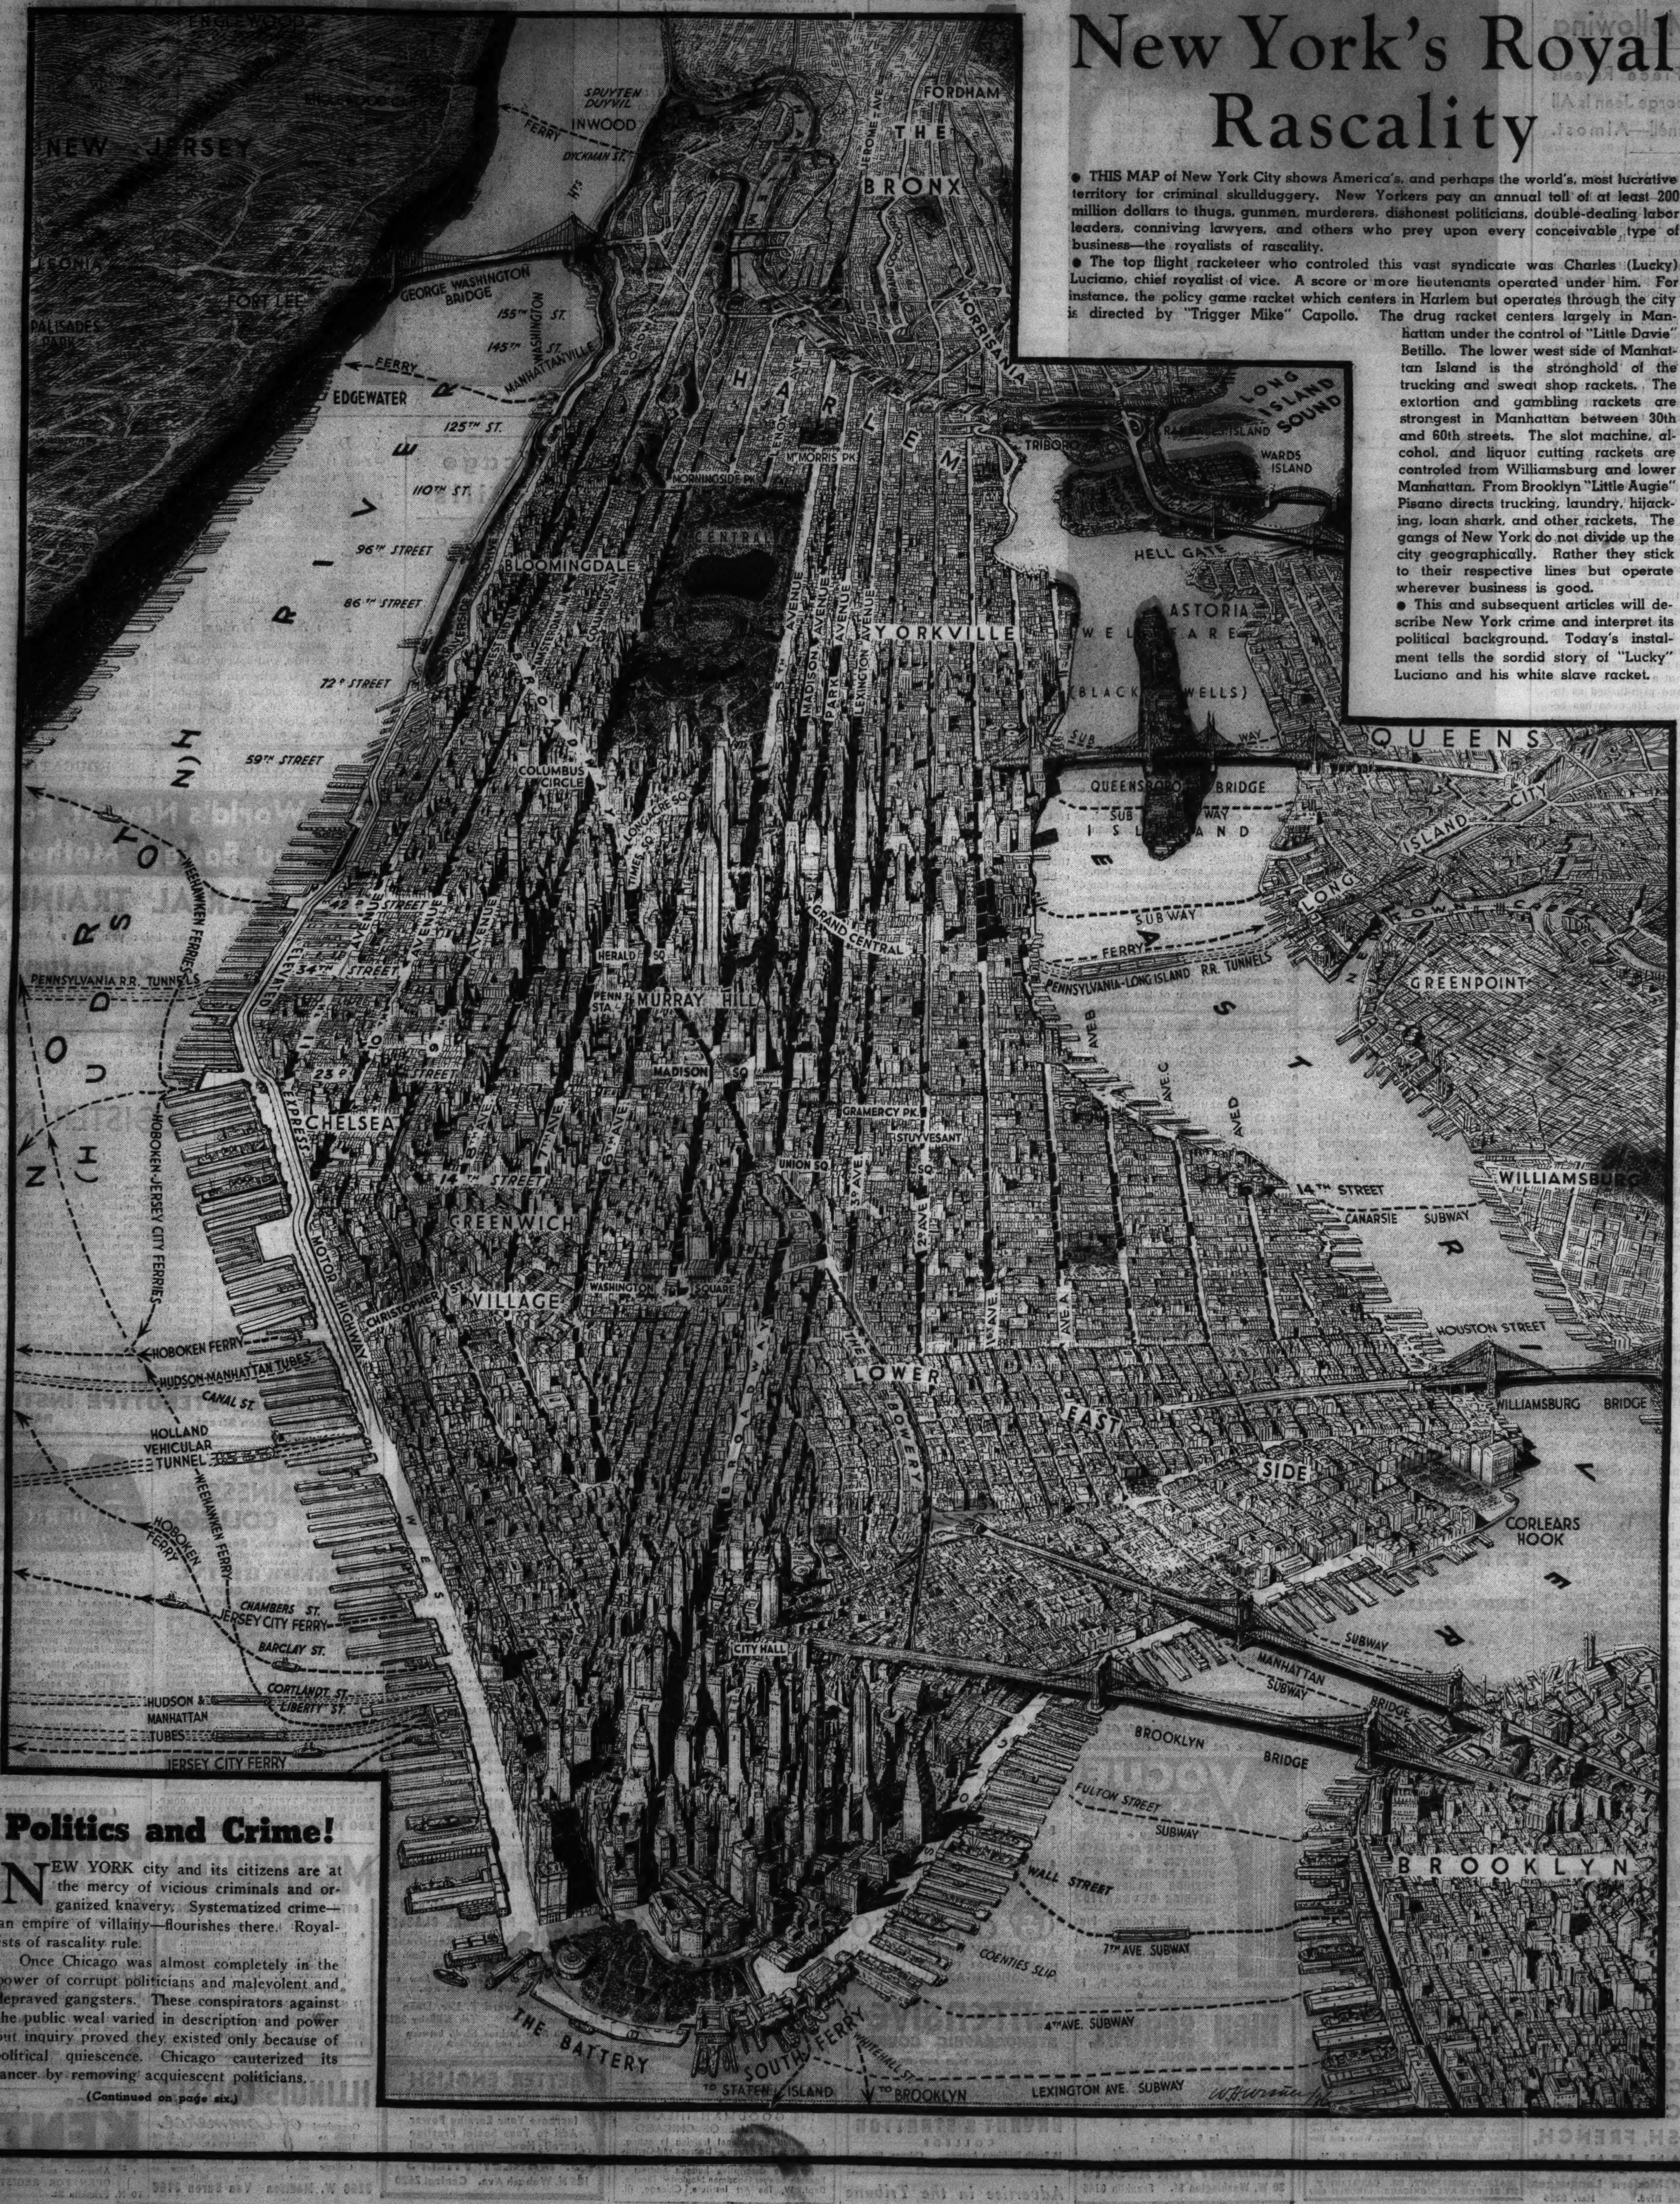
New York's Royal Rascality

● THIS MAP of New York City shows America's, and perhaps the world's, most lucrative territory for criminal skullduggery. New Yorkers pay an annual toll of at least 200 million dollars to thugs, gunmen, murderers, dishonest politicians, double-dealing labor leaders, conniving lawyers, and others who prey upon every conceivable type of business—the royalists of rascality.

● The top flight racketeer who controled this vast syndicate was Charles (Lucky) Luciano, chief royalist of vice. A score or more lieutenants operated under him. For instance, the policy game racket which centers in Harlem but operates through the city is directed by "Trigger Mike" Capollo. The drug racket centers largely in Manhattan under the control of "Little Davie" Betillo. The lower west side of Manhattan Island is the stronghold of the trucking and sweat shop rackets. The extortion and gambling rackets are strongest in Manhattan between 30th and 60th streets. The slot machine, alcohol, and liquor cutting rackets are controled from Williamsburg and lower Manhattan. From Brooklyn "Little Augie" Pisano directs trucking, laundry, hijacking, loan shark, and other rackets. The gangs of New York do not divide up the city geographically. Rather they stick to their respective lines but operate wherever business is good.

● This and subsequent articles will describe New York crime and interpret its political background. Today's installment tells the sordid story of "Lucky" Luciano and his white slave racket.



Politics and Crime!

NEW YORK city and its citizens are at the mercy of vicious criminals and organized knavery. Systematized crime—an empire of villainy—flourishes there. Royalists of rascality rule.

Once Chicago was almost completely in the power of corrupt politicians and malevolent and depraved gangsters. These conspirators against the public weal varied in description and power but inquiry proved they existed only because of political quiescence. Chicago cauterized its cancer by removing acquiescent politicians.

Finds Bitter Stage Critic Is Mellowing

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—The season dawdles toward an opening. It is lucky for the producers that it does. The weather turned midsummerish again this week, and if there had been the usual supply of Labor day openings there would have been little trade to support them. As it happens the second week of September promises to provide the real opening of the new theater year. Five plays and a revival are scheduled.

Meantime the theater-minded public, or that portion of it that reads literature on the theater, has been going back through last season with George Jean Nathan in a collection of critical observations entitled "The Theater of the Moment," just published by Knopf, and a second collection of amusing observations by Cornelia Otis Skinner, called "Excuse It, Please," issued this week by Dodd, Mead & Co.

Nathan grows mellower as he grows older. There are a fairish number of things nowadays of which he approves—usually with an apology, always with an explanation that, to him, still leaves the Nathan ego rampant if not dominant. But this new graceful acceptance is one that a younger Nathan pooh-poohed and pish-tushed as infantile and weak. He even has become a defender of the legitimate theater as it is, not as he would remold it.

Likes the Theater Better than Any Number of Things.

"When all is said and done, there is something about the theater that all the moving pictures, radios, phonographs, automobiles, restaurants-with-entertainment, dance halls, free band concerts, and seasonal al fresco amorous impulses in the world cannot kill," writes George in a foreword glowing with optimism.

"It is the gilded, and sometimes golden, toy of the arts, and it has been that for centuries on end. It has behind it tradition . . . and each year, whether it is healthy or whether it is ailing, it manages to recapture and to offer at least a snatch of its old glory." . . .

Nathan finds evidence that the literary drama is returning and, as others have done before him, thanks the movies for that. "The motion picture, by ridding the theater of its demi-emotional and demi-intelligent audiences, has created a residual audience that, both emotionally and intellectually, is more or less a unit and that, unlike the former miscellaneous audience, may be approached by a producer upon recognizable and at least partly anticipated and understood terms. This is his explanation.

O'Neill and Cornell Are Among Few He Recognizes.

He named Eugene O'Neill, Maxwell Anderson, and S. N. Behrman as the three American dramatists at present leading the procession. He selects Katharine Cornell, Helen Hayes, Lynn Fontanne, and Ina Claire as the leading American actresses. If he were forced to name one of the four as the first lady of the theater he would, a little reluctantly, accept Miss Cornell, thus:

"Miss Cornell has a sweep and inner something . . . for which Miss Hayes seems at times to have to struggle. Miss Hayes, on the other hand, has a vocal trickery, most cajoling, for which Miss Cornell in turn, on the other hand, often has to struggle. Miss Hayes seldom has given a distinctly inferior performance; Miss Cornell on occasion has. Miss Cornell has a natural stage presence that Miss Hayes must create by artifice. That Miss Hayes is able to create it is doubtless further to her acting credit. . . . However, taking our arbitrary and questionable premise as we find it, it remains a toss-up between Miss Cornell and Miss Hayes, with the favor, at the moment, just a shade Miss Cornell's." This because of the greater variety of Miss Cornell's rôles. . . .

There are touches of the old Nathan that are more stimulating. He gives you a view of the current Broadway, for example, that is devastating. A worm's eye view it is, and exaggerated, but vastly illuminating. "Fiction and legend, working their wicked will upon those innocents, listing in the farther reaches of the land," writes George, "have converted what is one of the ugliest, cheapest, and most thoroughly unromantic streets in the whole world into a de luxe avenue of fairyland."

Proves Times Square Isn't What It Is Played Up to Be.

He then proceeds to take his reader by the hand and escort him on a tour of Times square, shop by shop, window by window, past all the cheap, grimy, second-rate exhibits that make up the market place that is the fabled "crossroads of the world," and reveals it for what it has become.

He could do the same, if he were so moved, for the boulevards of Paris, or the Main streets of any sizable city in the world. And when he speaks of the old Broadway as a sweeter and better place to stroll in than this new collection of flashy shops and honky-tonks, he is forgetting just how messy the old Broadway was. Even without the huckster pushcart, and Coney Island barker atmosphere southern European Americans brought to it, it was a messy, overpraised, exaggerated, small town affair. But the Nathan account is eloquent in its expression of disgust.

It is in this same chapter, too, that he pays his respects to the first night portion of that superior audience when he says the legitimate theater is building for itself. "The present Broadway first night audiences continue to resemble in the aggregate nothing quite so much as a zoo, minus only the peanuts and a small measure of the smell," asserts George. "These audiences do not go to determine what effect a play has on them, but to determine what effect they have on the play, and to demonstrate it in such a loud, vulgar, and generally offensive manner that the more sensitive and intelligent ushers promptly consider throwing up their ignominious jobs and entering the somewhat more delicate and less self-insulting profession of sewer repairing."

Calls First Night Audience a Gathering of Half-Wits.

You who have wished so longingly to be a part of that glamorous first night mob may reasonably rest a little more contentedly in your homes after reading that. But if you are still intrigued by the thought of sitting with these gatherings [and they really are worse through the early season], consider Mr. Nathan's further estimate of such an audience. "Its taste is the taste of half-wits, its manners are the manners of bounders, its intelligence is the intelligence of shoe clerks, and its smell, despite all its expensive perfumes of Arabia, is the smell of dead and dying brains." The old Nathan as you may see is still on call.

I would commend also to any reader's attention a subdivision of the chapter on "Playwrights," which Mr. Nathan devotes to the young propagandists, the youthful radicals who seek to overthrow the Anglicized theater of the capitalists, and to substitute a theater of life and of living problems.

"Little Red Writing Hoods," George calls them. "They seem at the moment unable to make up their minds whether it is better for them to go to Moscow, serve Stalin, make $15 a week and freeze to death, or go to Hollywood, serve Metro, make $500 a week and bask in the warm sun." . . .

Finds Reds Gnaw Greedily on White Bread of Capitalists.

He finds such eloquent Marxians as John Howard Lawson, Paul Sifton, Samuel Ornitz, John Wexley, Albert Bein, Albert Maltz, and the Messrs. Sklar and Peters, who have written most of the propaganda dramas tinged with red for various radical producing groups, sold to Hollywood, or accepting help from the capitalistic Guggenheim Foundation. He catches the socialistic Elmer Rice being called to account by the government for a short payment on an income of $157,000 a year. His exposures are ruthless and revealing.

George Jean Nathan is a brilliant analyst of the theater. For thirty years or more he has sat, a vigilant if embittered watchman, in his own Gotham tower observing the life and people of New York, theatrical New York in particular, and hating most of what he has observed. He believes thoroughly in the efficacy of so-called destructive criticism. It is, he reasons, the only criticism that makes its targets mad enough to stir them to reformative action.

He is not always fair, nor inclined to be. I never have caught him in a deliberately dishonest statement, but I often have caught him indulging his prerogative of personal conviction, to me a dishonest gesture. He can be cruelly unfair to an actor or actress to whom he has taken a dislike. Many of them he has read out of the theater. But curiously they continue to return and not infrequently to live and prosper to the confusion of the Nathan judgment. . . .

Book of Unacted Monologs Is Entertaining Collection.

The Cornelia Otis Skinner book, "Excuse It, Please," is made up of a variety of what might be described as unacted monologs. Miss Skinner, a credit to the stage family lineage she represents, has a gift for writing as well as characterization. Having made a success of those mono-dramas with which she has toured the country, she finds time hanging a bit heavily on her hands during the tours her success has dictated. Therefore she fills in the extra time writing new monologs. Those that please her particularly she adds to her spoken repertory. Those that do not fit the demands of the stage quite so completely she allows to collect in her desk, I assume, until she has enough to make a book.

"Excuse It, Please," is such a collection. Between these covers you will find Miss Skinner's original and amusing reactions to various adventures, including dancing and skating, horseback riding and telephoning. They provide good light reading, particularly for the Cornelia Otis Skinner public, which is growing apace, or, perhaps, even faster.

COMES UP SMILING

One thing about Fred Astaire—he always comes up smiling. Maybe it's because he usually draws Ginger Rogers for a screen partner. As you know, probably, the two are now appearing in "Swing Time," which is in its third week at the Palace.

San Carlo Opera Adds Two New Sopranos to Troupe

Chicago Prima Donna to Sing 'Faust' Heroine

Stella Lenci, Youthful Italian, to Be Heard in 'Aida' and 'Il Trovatore'

STELLA LENCI, young Italian mezzo-soprano, and Charlotte Symons, Chicago soprano, have been added to the San Carlo Opera company principals and will be heard here in the three weeks' engagement opening Monday, Oct. 5, at the Auditorium theater.

Miss Symons made her Chicago operatic debut with the San Carlo company two years ago and was drafted by the Metropolitan last fall. She will return to the New York organization in midwinter.

Signorina Lenci, although Italian born, was reared in Minnesota, where she received her first musical training, completing it with two scholarships at St. Cecilia conservatory in Rome. She made her operatic debut as Amneris in "Aïda" at the Adriano theater there three years ago, and has been heard in various opera houses on the continent, and at Covent Garden, London.

She sang the principal rôle of Suora Madre in the world première at the San Carlo Opera house in Naples of "Il Miracle," religious music drama composed by Lacetti. Her répertoire includes such rôles as Carmen, Azucena in "Il Trovatore," Adalgisa in "Norma," and Beppe in "L'Amico Fritz."

Miss Symons, daughter of V. D. Simons of Chicago, studied in this city, at the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia, and in Italy. She sang three years with the Philadelphia Opera company before making her Chicago debut under the Fortune Gallo management. Previously she had been heard in Chicago in recital, and as soloist with the Apollo club.

In the first week of the San Carlo engagement, Signorina Lenci will be heard as Amneris in "Aïda," and as Azucena in "Il Trovatore." Miss Symons, in the opening week, will sing Marguerite in "Faust" and Nedda in "I Pagliacci."

The opening night's performance of "Traviata" will present Lucille Meusel, Charlotte Bruno, Philine Falco, Dimitri Onofrei, and Mario Valle. "Aïda," Tuesday night, Oct. 6, will be sung by Bianca Saroya, Signorina Lenci, Aroldo Lindi, Mostyn Thomas, and Harold Kravitt. Hizi Koyke, Florence Wylde, Charlotte Bruno, Rolf Gerard, and Mario Valle will be heard in "Madame Butterfly" on Wednesday night. "Faust" will be sung on the night of Thursday, Oct. 8, with Bruno, Falco, Gerard, Thomas, and Kravitt supporting Miss Symons.

Bianca Saroya reappears Friday night in "Lohengrin," with Wylde, Onofrei, Valle, and Kravitt. Stefan Kozakevich makes his first appearance of the week at the Saturday matinée, singing in "Martha," with Meusel, Bruno, and Gerard. On the same evening Saroya, Bruno, Lindi, Thomas, and Kravitt will constitute the cast of "Il Trovatore," with Signorina Lenci.

"Cavalleria Rusticana," to be sung Sunday night, Oct. 11, will include Saroya, Bruno, Falco, Kenneth Sakos, Fortune Gallo's new Greek tenor, and Kozakevich. Falco, Lindi, and Thomas will sing with Miss Symons in "I Pagliacci" on the same evening.

Some one has apparently gone to the trouble of finding out what sort of books several famous musicians read. Here are the announced results:

Lily Pons likes "The Life of Maria Malibran," the story of a famous coloratura of another generation, whose career, no doubt, had many points of similarity to that of the diminutive star of present day opera, concert, movies, and radio.

Lauritz Melchior goes for Hugh Walpole. The English novelist befriended the young Danish singer when the latter was studying in London. The ties created then have never been broken, and the manuscript of "Rogue Herries," they say went to Melchior for his approval before even the publishers had seen it.

Lotte Lehmann prefers the works of the German author, Felix Salten, but that preference, like Melchior's for Walpole, is based, partly at least, on personal acquaintance. Jascha Heifetz votes Dostoievsky's gloomy "Brothers Karamazov" the greatest of novels, but has definite leanings also toward the gentler Romain Rolland's "Jean Christophe." Enid Szanto, the young Hungarian contralto who is coming to Chicago this season, admires D. H. Lawrence. Macabre Ezio Pinza finds in Pirandello and Poe a type of nourishment on which he thrives.

Ormandy in his lighter moments turns to Tolstoi's "War and Peace." Elisabeth Rethberg to Sudermann's "Dame Care."

Rudolph Ganz, conductor, pianist, and composer, will wield the baton when the Federal Music project presents its seventy-five piece Illinois Symphony orchestra in the opening concert of its fall and winter programs on Sunday afternoon, Oct. 4, in the Blackstone theater. Among other conductors in this series will be Nikolai Sokoloff, former conductor of the Cleveland Symphony orchestra; Albert Goldberg, Alexander Savine, and Izler Solomon.

"THEY MET IN A TAXI"

The feminine lead in "They Met in a Taxi" (Oriental) fell to the lot of Fay Wray. Chester Morris drew the role of leading man. We thought you'd be pleased with this pose of Miss Wray.

Progress in Rio

The Cine Metro, the first theater in Rio de Janeiro to have an air conditioning plant and the first one to have upholstered seats, will be opened soon by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. A gala première is planned and "Mutiny on the Bounty" will be the first picture shown.

The new motion picture house is a stadium type structure with a seating capacity of 1,500 seats. As part of this construction there will be also a five story office building.

The auditorium is modern style with modern decorations. The lobby and other adjoining rooms—lounges, smoking rooms, and rest rooms—the in colonial Brazilian. The most modern sound equipment is another feature.

Sunday Musical Series.

The Beaux Arts salon will inaugurate this afternoon a series of Sunday musicals to be held at 180 East Delaware place. Rita De Simone, soprano, is today's artist. She will be assisted by Alexander Aster, pianist. Among the musicians announced for succeeding Sundays are Isidor Berger, Helene Pollenz, and Marie Ludwig. Mathilda Ernestine is in charge of the series.

Stock Guest Director at Shell Tonight

Makes First Appearance of New Season in Last Park Concert of Year.

FREDERICK STOCK, conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, makes his first appearance of the new season tonight when he acts as guest director at the Grant park band shell. Under his baton will be 300 musicians, the combined forces of the Chicago Symphony, Chicago Civic Opera, Woman's Symphony, and Chicago Philharmonic orchestras. This concert, originally planned for last Sunday but called off because of rain, brings to a festal close the 1936 free lake front series. The program:

1. Overture Solennelle..........Glaszounow
2. Symphony No. 5, E minor.........Tschaikowsky
3. "Sigurd Jorsalfur" suite.........Grieg
4. Largo.........Handel
5. "Ride of the Valkyries"......Wagner
6. "Les Preludes".........Liszt
7. "Wine, Woman, and Song".....Strauss

In case of rain the program will be played next Wednesday evening.

The Palestine Symphony orchestra, organized by Bronislaw Huberman, will begin its first season on Dec. 26 in Tel-Aviv, with Arturo Toscanini conducting. Concerts in Jerusalem and Haifa are to follow. The orchestra will then go on a short tour to Egypt, playing in Alexander and Cairo under Toscanini. The permanent conductors, Steinberg and Dobrowen, take charge of the new organization in February and continue until the end of the season, May 15.

So convinced is Mr. Huberman of the excellence of the group [it will have several musicians who held important places in famous German orchestras] that he already is planning a tour to Great Britain and the United States, some time within the next two years. He hopes that the orchestra will be self-supporting in four years.

Paul Whiteman is to be the only guest conductor of the Philadelphia Symphony orchestra this coming season. Leopold Stokowski will take three weeks in November and three at the end of the season. Eugene Ormandy has all the rest. A feature of Mr. Stokowski's first three week period will be the world première of Rachmaninoff's Third Symphony.

Samuel Chotzinoff, New York music critic, reported this summer on a visit he made to Hugo Ara, violist of the now disbanded Flonzaley quartet. The retired musician lives on the island of Isola Pescatore, in Lago Maggiore, Italy. He has sold his viola and keeps about him no mementos of his professional life. Although Ara maintains no connections with the outside world, considering himself a part of the humble community of fishermen around him, he does hang on to an American cocktail shaker.

Tokio is deeply interested in European music and musicians, and provides large audiences for recitalists who undertake tours of the far east. Among recent musical attractions in the Japanese capital were Jacques Thibaud, violinist; Emanuel Feurermann, cellist, and Walter Herbert, conductor.

Emanuel List, Metropolitan opera bass, is remaining in Europe for a month or so after the Salzburg festival to take part in a recording of the second act of "Tristan und Isolde." The name parts are to be sung by Lauritz Melchior and Kirsten Flagstad.

TAKES PART OF WEBSTER

When you see "The Gorgeous Hussy" (United Artists) you'll behold Mr. Sidney Toler impersonating Daniel Webster. This fine actor plays in support of Joan Crawford, Robert Taylor, and Franchot Tone. Also in the cast are Melvyn Douglas and James Stewart.

Rare Movies

A RARE film of "The Atonement of Gosta Berling," a Garbo movie made in 1924 by Mauritz Stiller, is regarded by John E. Abbott as the gem of his collection.

Abbott is director of the film library of the Museum of Modern Art. A recent three months' trip to the capitals of Europe netted him about 500 reels, approximately 100 miles of rare film, some of which is so old it will require expert processing to restore it.

The library's collection, begun last year, also boasts early Fairbanks, Hart, Pickford, and D. W. Griffith movies.

Movie Heads Again Bidding for Bankhead

Her Success in California Stage Play Attracts Hollywood Producers.

By George Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special.]—Although Tallulah Bankhead had a film contract at $5,000 a week when she was here the last time, and although her present stage stipend is only $1,000 a week for starring [theater salaries are currently only a fraction of what films will pay the same players when they want their services], the Tallulah who is back from New York, London, Alabama, and Washington, and who again is giving Hollywood and its inducements the calculating eye, is a vastly more assured and confident young woman.

She just has completed seven weeks on the Califorina stage in "Reflected Glory," a starring vehicle written for her by Playwright George Kelly and produced for her by Lee Shubert.

The particular reason for Miss Bankhead's present satisfaction lies in the fact that movie producers and directors who were wagging their heads dubiously about her three or four years ago are now, after "catching" her in the play several times, trying to woo her back to the screen. Such a wooing ought to make any girl happy. The last time Tallulah Bankhead was wooed to the screen she cashed a couple of hundred thousand dollars in salary checks, even though several of her film stories proved tepid successes. The fact that the stories were poor was no fault of hers.

Knockers of 1933 Now Her Ardent Supporters.

For her next venture in films there will be a fat salary, and undoubtedly there also will be better stories. But over and above this there is the personal gratification that those who shook their heads about her in 1933 now already are telling her what a great girl she is, and what a great film success she will be.

It was evident, as we were ushered into her dressing room at the Belasco theater, that Tallulah's new status in Hollywood pleased her. She began dividing her time between sipping coffee, applying her own stage makeup, and diverting us with an unbroken flow of lively phrases and sentences.

Being a forthright person in her expression of views, and also being a bit impulsive in phrasing herself in the past, Miss Bankhead became involved in unpleasantness over one magazine interview which she disowned in 1933. She now has adopted a protectively clever way of discussing things with interviewers. She just keeps on talking all the time. No interviewer can shift her flow of ideas and reminiscences onto an embarrassing subject, because Miss Bankhead uninterruptedly pursues a channel of conversation upon which she herself and not her interviewer embarks. That being noted, with appreciation for the deftness of her conversation, a strategy, this interviewer permitted his eyes to be pleased while he relaxed and listened. What he saw was satisfaction sparkling in her smoky blue eyes. Clever timing, a word or phrase synchronized with a pat of her powder puff, make what she says seem more interesting.

Voice Reminiscent of Late Lilyan Tashman's.

Her deep and throaty voice, reminiscent of the late Lilyan Tashman's, but fuller and much like that of the Rev. Aimee McPherson—when Aimee is at her most vibrant mood—but not so scratchy a voice as Aimee's—makes what she says seem glowing. The confident cock of a pair of somewhat square shoulders makes what she says seem authoritative. You look and listen and understand why the Bankhead papa is speaker of the house of representatives in Washington, if daughter "gets it" from papa.

From Los Angeles Miss Bankhead takes "Reflected Glory" to New Haven, Conn., for an eastern warmup, and then opens in New York Sept. 21.

"I would have taken the play to Washington so daddy could see it, but congress is not in session now and he is home," she said. "I took my last play to Washington just so daddy could see it. He couldn't take the time to run up to New York. We had a great time that time. Of course, it's out of the question to take this play down home."

"Daddy" is the Hon. William B. Bankhead, speaker of the house. "Home" is Jasper, Ala. [population, 5,313], where daddy now is spending a profitable summer electioneering with his constituents. The last time he ran, Tallulah says: "I went back home and shook hands with so many people I got a relapse. I had just recovered from a long illness and the strain of trying to remember names and of "placing" acquaintances I might have known in my kid days was too much for me."

Twentieth Century-Fox already has two mature and experienced actresses on contract and in featured rôles, Jane Darwell and Helen Wesley. In fact, recently there has been a distinct display interest in middle aged women players with stage background. Both the public and the film producers seem to have decided to feature them.

Well, how do you like this smiling picture of Margaret Lindsay? Nice, isn't it? Miss Lindsay's over on the State-Lake screen this week playing the feminine lead in "The Law in Her Hands."

GOOD Morning!

Diverting, to say the least, is this little who-stole-the-jewels comedy.

From the moment the beauteous lady in bridal regalia hops into the cab of hard boiled Taxi Driver Jimmy Donlin and beseeches him to "DRIVE ANYWHERE, and keep on driving!" you find your interest nailed to the question: What is it all about?"

IS the lady, as she says, the rich, socially prominent Miss Anna Fletcher who, "because I couldn't go through with it," has just deserted her bridegroom, a count, at the altar? If so—why?

Speed Laws, Stop Lights Mean Nothing to Heroine.

And who will pay Jim for going through lights and breaking speed laws? The maiden in distress says her papa will take care of all that, settle with the police, and give her savior a nice bonus besides.

If true, this last listens swell to the unwilling rescuer, who has the ambition to own a taxi fleet and who is considerably short on the down payment needed to start the desired enterprise. Besides the girl IS pretty. And when he takes her home to his modest apartment he finds that she can cook . . .!

He lets her spend the night on his couch—for Jim's not the lad to deprive himself of his own bed for any dame!

Picture Reveals What Mystery Is All About.

Next day he does a spot of shopping for her . . . and, later, learns that Miss Fletcher had married her count and that "Edna" is—well, never mind. AND—that a string of valuable pearls—well, never mind about that either. Must leave something for the picture to reveal.

Though some of the action—I refer to the caveman antics of the hero and bits of the dialog—are rather forced and farfetched, the film moves along at a fast, amusing, and suspenseful pace.

Fay Wray and Chester Morris team well. Raymond Walburn as a male society reporter, who is Jim's steady customer and who rallies nobly to the support of his favorite driver and the lady who decamps in his waiting taxi, is superb. Lionel Stander gets a lot of laughs as Jim's pal, a driver known as "Fingers" who has done time for his regrettable habit of appropriating other people's property but who is proud of his prowess and insists on lifting this, that, and t'other thing just to keep in practice.

See you tomorrow!

'Romeo' Pursues 'Juliet' Across Country in Film

HOLLYWOOD gossip insists that the plot of "Sing, Baby, Sing" is based on the recent John Barrymore-Elaine Barrie escapade, but 20th Century-Fox officials, producers of the film, deny the reference. The story deals with a fellow dubbed "Romeo," the rôle played by Adolphe Menjou, who pursues his Juliet, portrayed by Alice Faye, from New York to Chicago to Los Angeles, and vice versa.

THE VOICE OF THE MOVIE FAN

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Bouquets for Mae and a Brick for "The Bride Comes Home."

My dear Miss Tinée: I thank you so much for your interesting as well as intelligent reviews of all movies. It is refreshing to know that we can rely on you as a critic to give an honest opinion of a movie.

As regards Loretta Puciaty's letter in a late SUNDAY TRIBUNE, the dumbness most certainly is not on your part, but her. Of course, every one to their own liking in entertainment, but surely it took no mental giant to decide that "The Bride Comes Home" was one of the sappiest movies ever to waste good actors and an actress of Miss Colbert's caliber.

MARY K. STEPHISON.

Editor's note: And thank you, kind friend!

'Blossom Time,' 'Night of Jan. 16' Come to Chicago Stage

Four Theaters Start Seasons in September

"Dead End" Gives Vivid Picture of Delinquent Boys on Waterfront.

By Charles Collins.

CHICAGO is talking about the theater again. It is discussing the stage setting and the swimming boys of "Dead End," which came to the Studebaker a week ago; it is curious about the statistics of "Blossom Time," which returned to the Grand Opera house last night; it is eager to solve the melodramatic mystery of "The Night of Jan. 16," which opens at the Selwyn this evening; and it is dipping into the history of the Chinese drama in preparation for attendance upon "Lady Precious Stream," which will appear at the Harris a week hence. The thrill of playgoing is in the air again, after the long, sultry dawdle of the summer months, and the stir of interest along the rialto suggests that the tide has turned toward a revival in stage affairs.

In the aftermath of the "Dead End" première, it should be stated that the play is not the solemn, sociological affair that its theme, when announced in a synopsis, might suggest. True enough, it deals with a "problem"—the familiar aspects of a slum environment as viewed by settlement workers—but it treats the subject in a vivid and stimulating theatrical way, with spirited scenes of naturalistic comedy and broad strokes of exciting melodrama. It is far from being a great drama, but it is the best show that ever came out of earnest thinking about "blighted areas," street ragamuffins, and juvenile delinquency.

A Novelty of Stage Design.

"Dead End" is primarily a novelty in the department of stage settings. It may be bracketed with "Street Scene" of seven years ago as a drama that depends largely upon the fidelity and integrity with which the stage directions of the author are realized in theatrical architecture and the treatment of crowd episodes. Its appeal is chiefly visual, and Normal Bel Geddes has scored a triumph as stage designer in his development of this value.

The boys in the foreground of the picture — young water-rats whose innate devilishness and rampant vulgarity may be forgiven because of the benighted conditions in which they have been born and reared—are always amusing. They run true to their breed in vitality and animal spirits; and their behavior is as interesting as that of a cageful of monkeys. Sidney Kingsley, the author, has apparently made a close study of the species in its habitat and recorded their exploits like a naturalist. I would like to believe, however, that he has exaggerated their expectoration complex, and I hope to see at least one of them reply to a salivary greeting, not by turning the other cheek as appears to be their custom, but with a swift sock in the eye for the perpetrator of the outrage.

Bad Boys in Modern Style.

These are not boys in the romantic tradition of American literature which Mark Twain founded and Booth Tarkington carries on. They are in the modern style, and dirt, physical and moral, seems to be their native element. Here, says the author, are the young whelps of the city abysses who are being formed by their environment into the criminals of the future.

All this, of course, is elementary Hull House stuff, but it also makes first-rate playgoing for the antisociologists. Kingsley's dramatization of the Sutton Place area on the New York waterfront—a place where poverty huddles at the skirts of luxury—was a brilliant stroke of play-making.

Return of "Blossom Time."

The reappearance of "Blossom Time" in Chicago for a stay of two weeks should be a cause for rejoicing among the operetta fans. This popularization of the life and immortal melodies of Franz Schubert has become a modern classic, and its lovely score, when properly sung and played, can be heard with pleasure ad infinitum. J. Charles Gilbert, who has the rôle of Schubert, is a veteran of almost 2,000 performances. George Trabert, who has the second male rôle, is a fine operetta singer, well known on the German-American as well as on the English speaking stage. Diana Gaylen, the prima donna, is new to the tradition and to Chicago playgoers.

Murder Trial Play Opens Tonight.

"The Night of Jan. 16," which will be tonight's event for frequenters of premières, comes to the Selwyn after an eight months' run in New York. It is a trial scene play, unfolding a murder mystery, and the ending of the play, happy or otherwise, depends upon the verdict of the jury, which is drafted from the audience every night and permitted to sit upon the stage throughout the performance. This is a new idea in showmanship which was the talk of Broadway last season. It has a minor appeal to the gambling instinct, for every juror is paid a fee of $3 for his service.

The cast of twenty-three players includes Curtis Cooksey, Kaye Brinker, Sarah Padden, Buford Armitage, J. Arthur Young, Virginia Barton, and Marcella Swanson. The impresario is A. H. Woods, who has cut a wide swath in the history of the American stage.

HEROINE IN CHINESE DRAMA

Constance Carpenter acts the central role in "Lady Precious Stream," the Chinese play which comes to Chicago after runs in London and New York. This production will begin the American Theater society's season at the Harris theater on Sept. 28.

Parisian Stage

ONE of the most popular of France's dramatists, Edouard Bourdet, has been made director of the Comedie Française. He won international fame ten years ago with "La Prisonniere" ["The Captive"].

Gaston Baty, Jacques Copeau, Charles Dullin, and Louis Jouvet have been appointed stage directors. Copeau was the head of the "Vieux Colombier" troupe which played ancient and modern French drama and comedy in New York during the war.

Bouche Revue Begins Tour at the Oriental

The State-Lake theater offers a new show called the "All Girl Revue." The cast is two sister teams, the Watson Sisters and the Burke Sisters, are featured.

The stage revue, "Shooting High," remains at the Palace theater. In the cast are Mells, Kirk and Howard, Gene Sheldon, Loretta Fischer, Doris Rhodes, Ruth Pryor, E. Staniloff, the Oehman Twins, and 16 ballet girls.

"Tobacco Road" Run.

"Tobacco Road," in New York, reached its 1,200th performance on Sept. 12. It has only 91 to go before the record of "Lightnin'" falls. Then it will challenge the "Abie's Irish Rose" record.

He appeared in the Theater Guild's revue, "Parade," last year. Metaxa comes to the Chez Paree after work in the film, "Swing Time." He was co-starred in London with Peggy Wood in "Bittersweet." WPA Premiere

ADDED to the list of fall premières in Chicago is a dramatization of the novel by Sinclair Lewis entitled "It Can't Happen Here." This play by Mr. Lewis and J. C. Moffit is announced by the Federal [WPA] theater bureau for an opening at the Blackstone on Oct. 20. This means that the current "Broken Dishes," will conclude its engagement on either Oct. 3 or Oct. 10.

"It Can't Happen Here" will be staged under the direction of Harry Minturn, with a cast of 75 actors. The anti-Fascist novel has been a best seller.

New York's Royalty of Rascality—Its Tie-up with Politics

Record of 8 Years of Venality

By WAYNE THOMIS.

New York.

A STARK and accurate depiction of New York's powerful criminals was presented during the recent trial of Charles [Lucky] Luciano, No. 1 royalist of New York's rascality. With him on trial were a dozen associates, all charged with syndicating vice.

It was an amazing, almost unbelievable tale. It bristled with blood, violence, and the sordid details of the bagnios. Yet the prosecutors were careful to inform the trial judge and the jury that the vice enterprise was only one of Luciano's lesser criminal ventures. Business, labor, gambling, dope, and money lending "rackets" have blossomed and yielded fabulous riches to the underworld for more than eight years, the prosecutors said.

This era during which colossal schemes for extortion spread like weeds through the fields of honest business coincides with the administrations of Franklin D. Roosevelt as governor of New York state; Herbert H. Lehman, his successor, and F. H. La Guardia as mayor of New York City.

Mr. Roosevelt now is in the White House, but his power still extends to New York. He wields his scepter through his great friend, Jimmy Hines, political leader in upper Manhattan, who has a monopoly on dispensing federal patronage in America's greatest metropolis. This is the Hines who was the pal of William [Big Bill] Dwyer, booze overlord; Owen [Owney] Madden, gang leader and Dwyer lieutenant, and the late Arthur [Dutch Schultz] Fleigenheimer, beer baron and policy game czar, all of them of New York.

Governor Lehman's attitude toward criminals and politicians in his state was given new emphasis in his handling of the charges brought against District Attorney William F. X. Geoghan of Kings county—the Brooklyn section of New York City—for his questionable activities in the now famous Drukman murder case.

Samuel Drukman was the bookkeeper of two racketeer garage owners. He was slain by his employers after they discovered he had embezzled thousands of dollars. The two partners and a third man, nephew of one of the racketeers, were caught by police in their garage with Drukman's body and his blood on their hands, but within a few days they were released. Later it was learned that numerous bribes had been passed.

Subsequently a special grand jury investigated the case. The murderers were indicted and convicted, and several individuals designated as "fixers" in the conspiracy also were sent to prison. This grand jury on three occasions demanded the removal of Geoghan as prosecutor. Ultimately Lehman agreed to hear evidence against Geoghan, but last Thursday he dismissed the charges with the assertion:

"I am firmly convinced of Mr. Geoghan's honesty."

"Lucky" Luciano rose in criminal circles after an apprenticeship of 20 years. As an immigrant boy of 9 years, ignorant of American speech and custom, he first became associated with criminals when his parents settled on the lower east side of Manhattan Island.

New York state sociologists after questioning the gang leader on his early life, reported: "He was enrolled in a public school, where he stayed five years. His conduct record was satisfactory, but his school record low because of persistent truancy. On June 11, 1911, he was committed to the Brooklyn Truant school, where he stayed four months.

"At the end of this period he dropped his father's name of Lucania and his own given name, Salvatore, and took the name Charles Luciano. He was already beyond influence of parental control . . . with the result that by the time he was 18 years old he had acquired a definitly criminalistic scheme of conduct."

Luciano's first arrest came on June 27, 1916, in New York. The charge was possession of narcotics. He was convicted and sentenced to a state penitentiary, then paroled on Dec. 30, the same year. From this beginning Luciano rose, until, early in 1932 he became the "boss racketeer" of New York City.

In between those years he was arrested by the police 28 times. The charges ranged from trafic violations through felonious assault, possession of a gun and sale of narcotics. He paid fines or escaped conviction repeatedly until he was indicted in 1936 on a charge of compulsory prostitution.

For a time Luciano was a henchman of the late Jack [Legs] Diamond, a boss gunman for the aforementioned Owen Madden until he branched out for himself. In 1926 Luciano was arrested with Jack Diamond and the latter's brother Peter on a charge of assault, but was discharged.

By 1929 he had switched his allegiance to the gang of Joe [The Boss] Masaria, who ruled gambling and bootlegging in the Coney Island area. In October, that year, Luciano's closest brush with death occurred. And it was then that he proved the appropriateness of his name "Lucky" by being one of the few men to return alive from a gang "ride."

He was seized by underworld foes and dragged into an automobile in Brooklyn. He was stabbed half a dozen times and beaten with gun barrel and blackjack. His lips were sealed with tape. His hands and feet were bound and he was dumped from the car on Hugenot beach, Staten Island, and left for dead.

Hours later, however, he recovered consciousness and was taken to a hospital, where he recovered. Steadfastly he refused to name his assailants and, although held in a $25,000 bond for a time, ultimately was released.

Luciano was the first lieutenant of Joe, the Boss, by 1930. He was known to every important gangster in New York. When Joe, the Boss, was cut down by underworld bullets in the summer of 1930, Luciano took charge of the gang. Within a few months his men dominated the underworld.

Indeed, so well did Luciano and a few intimates operate that by March, 1935, a Manhattan county grand jury issued a proclamation to Gov. Lehman asserting that he must take some effective action against racketeers, who were "threatening to strangle all legitimate business in the city."

The warning came as a shock to the majority of New Yorkers. Cloaked in protection supplied by complaisant police, corrupt prosecutors and gangster-owned judges, the activities of the criminals had been concealed. Now the citizenry was learning for the first time what had been going on in their city and state.

New Yorkers discovered that racketeering was rampant. Their governors, Roosevelt and Lehman, from 1928 onward, although possessed of extraordinary executive powers under the state constitution, had done little or nothing to halt its malevolent growth. They also perceived the falsity of La Guardia's boast that New York was a "clean" city.

The grand jury's blunt words forced Lehman to appoint a special investigating unit—a grand jury to concentrate upon extortion schemes which are the basis of all rackets, and a prosecutor to devote all his time to this work. A vigorous young Republican, Thomas E. Dewey, eventually was named as prosecutor.

The governor's order gave Dewey extraordinary powers and superseded William D. Dodge, the Democratic district attorney of Manhattan. Lehman sought to avoid appointing Dewey, who had a splendid record as a federal prosecutor, and attempted to give the job to several Democrats, but the aroused public sentiment forestalled this maneuver.

Dewey's first move was to establish his own force of investigators. They were separate from the police department and District Attorney Dodge's staf so there could be no "leak." What they discovered, the story of Luciano's rackets and in particular the complete account of the "organization" by means of knife, fist, lead pipe, and gun of "every prostitute in the city and every big booker of prostitutes," was outlined by the special prosecutor in his opening statements at the trial last May 11.

"I'm not prosecuting these thirteen defendants because they are engaged in vice activities. I am not interested in sending prostitutes or even the bookers of prostitutes to jail," Dewey declared.

"I am seeking to get at Luciano because he is the boss racketeer of New York today. He controls a dozen other rackets, operates the city-wide policy games, has crews of sluggers in labor racketeering, and uses his army of 10,000 to 15,000 young criminals, who are anxious to kill, slug, bomb, or maim in order to gain favor, to extort enormous sums of money from legitimate business and the ultimate consumers of literally hundreds of different commodities.

"Luciano is an example of the modern top ranking racketeer. He was one of the underworld untouchables. He owned the four district [political] leaders in the territory he called his own. He made those politicians. He put them in office and he used them as tools just as he used his gunmen. When he wanted something from them he called them to his penthouse headquarters. It was not a case of seeking them out, but of calling them to him.

"Al Marinelli, the county clerk of New York county, was one of Luciano's tools. He made Marinelli. We will show that Marinelli, like the other district leaders, was a frequent visitor to Luciano's quarters in the Waldorf-Astoria and in other of the city's best hotels. This indicates some of his power."

Without further preamble the trial began before Supreme Court Justice Philip J. McCook, also a Republican. Immediately after Dewey finished his statement to the jury three of Luciano's fellow defendants, all of them described by the state as "bookers" of women, pleaded guilty. They were Al Weiner, son of [Cockeyed] Louis Weiner; Pete Balitzer, and David Marcus.

Then came the hideous story from the lips of Dewey's witnesses.

Rose Cohen, 25 years old, was the first to appear. Calmly she admitted her profession. Rapidly she told her story that she had been born in New York and had lived with "a man." When the man left her she walked the streets for six months. Questions and answers follow:

Q.—Did you thereafter meet Peter Harris (Balitzer used the name as an alias)? A.—Yes. I met him through the madame of a house where I occasionally worked?

Q.—What did Pete say to you? A.—He asked me if I wanted to book steadily. I said yes. He said, "You know what you have to wear?" And I said "Yes I know. Evening dresses."

Q.—What day of the week would you get in touch with Pete for the address of your next week's house? A.—Either Sunday night or early Monday morning. I'd call Pete and he'd call me back and give me the number of a house.

Q.—And you would go to this house? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you meet a man named Jo-Jo? A.—Yes. The week I worked for Molly Leonard.

Q.—How much did he get? A.—Thirteen dollars.

Q.—Was this part of your earnings? A.—Yes.

Q.—How much did you have coming yourself? A.—Seventy-eight dollars.

Q.—How much had you earned that week, net? A.—One hundred and thirty dollars.

Q.—What were your gross earnings that week? A.—Two hundred and sixty.

Q.—Out of the $260 did you give the madame half? A.—Yes.

Q.—That's the universal custom? A.—Yes.

Then came a long succession of Luciano's women victims. Their testimony was similar to that of Rose. They were called for the purpose of explaining the system of the syndicate to the jurors. One of them was Dorothy Arnold, a petite blonde, flashily dressed. Her examination follows:

Q.—When did you come to New York? A.—I came with my husband, who was a salesman of gowns and lingerie for a few months.

Q.—What did you do after that? A.—I entered a house of prostitution in January, 1935, at 77th street and Broadway. The girls started bringing men to my apartment.

The witness told of keeping several houses and of paying money to Luciano's hoodlums to provide a "bond fund" for her girls. These payments, she explained, were to provide bond money and funds for an attorney if the girls were arrested. The syndicate boasted, she explained, that no girl who booked through it would go to jail.

Q.—How much a week did you pay? A.—Ten dollars for one girl, twenty dollars for two.

Another witness, Betty Winters, a madame, testified that she had booked from various syndicate members and she brought the names of other defendants into the record: Ralph Liquori, Nick Montana, Jack Ellenstein, and Jimmy Fredericks.

It was at this point that the first of the three defendants who pleaded guilty took the witness stand to give evidence for the state. Al Weiner told the booker's side of the story. He said it was his father, [Cockeyed] Louis, who started him in the white slave trafic. In 1933 he went to work as an assistant to his father, who had about 30 houses and some 60 girls on his lists.

In December, 1931, when Louis decided to go for a vacation to Florida he took his son around to his houses and introduced him to the madames and the girls. Later, when in 1934 Louis was sent to prison on a vice charge, young Al took over the entire business. During the course of his examination he substantiated the statements of Dewey, who had said:

"A girl usually stays in a house one week. Most prostitutes have men with whom they live and to whom they give their money. They have these men for protection. In some cases they are in love with the men.

"The girl usually lives in a hotel or rooming house with her man. She'd go to her house at 2 or 3 in the afternoon, do her 10 or 12 hours' work and return home.

"The number of times she has earned a fee is checked. Say a girl earned $300 a week, the average. She would pay half this, $150, to the madame, 10 per cent of the rest, $15, to the booker for putting her in the house.

"Usually she would pay $5 a week for the services of a doctor, $15 a week to the madame for board and an additional $15 or $25 for bond money. That left her, roughly, $100 a week for herself.

"Prior to 1930 most of the town's bookers were independent. They were Montana, Weiner, Peter Harris, Balitzer, and Dave Marcus. The Luciano crowd got the idea that by getting $10 a week out of the earnings of each girl and guaranteeing the girl would be freed when arrested they could clean up.

"Jimmy Fredericks was in the old group. Some time before Tommy Bull—Perronochio—and Little Davie—Betillo [both were defendants]—as servants of Luciano planned to take over this business. Some months later in 1930, the people who had been engaged in the business of taking $10 a week for bonding prostitutes, were called down to a meeting. They didn't know what it was about. They were taken to a restaurant.

"In walked Charlie [Lucky] Luciano. They rose in deference to this ruler of crime. He spoke briefly. He said: 'You guys are through. I'm giving this business to Little Davie.'

"And such was the power of the mere spoken word of this man that they folded their tents and went away. They left the racket and disappeared."

How Lucky's mobsters imposed their "organization" on the madames and upon recalcitrant bookers was told by a woman and a man called as state witnesses. The first of these was Joan Martin, a middle aged woman who told how she was knocked senseless and her furniture wrecked and rugs slashed with knives.

The witness said that in 1930 she was booking through Charlie Spinach, who told her she would have to join the combination. She refused to pay bond money and he warned her that there would be trouble. In August, 1930, she said, four men came to her house. One of them she identified as Little Abie. He told her:

"If you don't pay for bonds we'll run you out of New York."

She said she ordered the men to leave and they "took the couch apart and broke up the rest of the furniture." When she screamed and the landlord appeared the men told him they were from the police department and warned him not to interfere. Next day she changed her mind and began paying bond money.

David Marcus, also known as Dave Miller, the second of the defendants to plead guilty, told the story of how violence was used to dissuade competition with the vice syndicate. He said the gangsters began giving him unwelcome attention in August, 1931. At Broadway and 54th street one night he and his wife were approached by four men. They were Joe Levine, "Whitey," "Ralph," and another man he did not know.

Q.—What happened? A.—I was backed up against a wall and a knife was put against my stomach. They said: "You have 24 hours to get out of town." They pushed my wife away. After I caught my wits I said: "What's this all about?" and one of the men smacked me in the face. One of the men told me that the big bosses were getting into the racket and the little fellows would have to get out.

Q.—Did you ever see Whitey and his friends again? A.—Well, a short time before that they shot at me.

Q.—How was that? A.—I got a telephone call from 'Six Bits' (a small fry gangster) and I was to meet him at 71st and Broadway. I got as far as the door of my car in front of my house when six shots were fired at me from another car. I dropped on my face on my car floor and wasn't hit.

Q.—What did you do then? A.—I decided to give up and shipped my family to California.

On May 20, nine days after the trial began, Pete Harris, the No. 1 booker for the vice ring and the third of the men who turned state's evidence by pleading guilty at the opening of the case, took the stand. He was pale, his shifting eyes did not meet those of Luciano, who sat a dozen feet away glaring at him. His mouth twisted as he talked.

Harris told how he worked for a "house" in Chester, Pa., was arrested and finally wound up in New York in 1930. He lived with a girl and took her earnings for a while, then began booking other girls.

Q.—What happened? A.—One day Abe Wahrman and Joe Levine told me an organization was being formed for protection of bookers and I would have to join. I told them I didn't make enough. Later I met them again and denied I was making enough money to join and finally they cornered me in August, 1931 and told me I'd join or get out of town. I said I'd go out of town and then got in my car. Some of them followed me in and put a gun on me and went to my home. I got scared they were going to dump me on the road when they said they would ride me out of town and finally settled by agreeing to pay $100 a week.

Later in 1931, Harris said he learned a new combination was taking over the first one. He said he conferred with Little Davie Betillo and wanted to know who was running the new organization.

"I said: 'Listen, who's behind this? You get six or seven pinches a day and it costs about $500.' He said: 'Don't worry. Charlie Lucky's behind it.' So I said: 'All right.'"

Florence Brown, "Cokey Flo" to her underworld acquaintances, told a dramatic story linking Luciano with the vice ring. She said she was a former sweetheart of Jimmy Fredericks and as such had been with her man and Luciano while they talked business. She was in a restaurant with Tommy Bull, Fredericks, and Davie Betillo when she met Luciano.

Q.—What was said? A.—They all said: "Hello, join us," and we did. There was some conversation in Italian and a little in English. Then we left in a car, I drove.

Q.—Anything said about prostitution in the car? A.—Yes. Jimmy said: "Gee, I think some of the bookies are holding out." Charlie Lucky said: "Can't you get them all together?" Then Davis said "Yes we can. Naturally it'll take time." Charlie Lucky said: "Tell you what you do, you get all the bookies down on the carpet, see that it does not happen again."

"Cokey Flo," saw Charlie Lucky, Betillo, Fredericks, and Tommy Bull together on several other occasions. Once she sat with them as they discussed the bonding syndicate. She quoted Lucky as saying:

"I don't like it. There's very little money in it and things are getting tough. A lot of the madames are causing trouble and the only thing to do is to step on them, don't talk to them.

"We could syndicate places on a large scale, same as the chain stores. We could even put madames on salaries or commission. It would take a little time, but we could do it, if we closed now and reopened later."

Thelma Jordan, a pretty prostitute, gave perhaps the best picture of the Luciano organization. She told how Harris [Balitzer] first booked her and later she met Benny Spiller, also a defendant, and became his "girl." Benny injudiciously used to tell her about the crime syndicate.

Q.—What did he say? A.—He said he was a member of the combination and that Davie Betillo, Little Abie, Tommy Bull, Jimmy Fredericks, Charlie Lucky, Jerry Bruno, Meyer Berkman, and Jesse Jacobs were members. He said Charlie Lucky was the boss, or head, and he used to tell me he wished he had the money Charlie Lucky took in each week. He told me Davie was immediately under Charlie, and Abie was next in line. Tommy Bull was treasurer; Jimmy Fredericks collected the bond money from the madames, and Meyer Berkman and Jesse Jacobs were bondsmen.

Appeals to Luciano to allow one of his bookers to retire were coldly received, according to Mrs. Mildred Balitzer, wife of Pete Harris. Summoned by the state, she said that she had appealed to Luciano in New York and later in Miami during the winter of 1934, to allow her husband to "get out of the racket," but the boss refused.

For nine months Luciano lived as "Charley Ross" in the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, directing his racketeering operations from his sumptuous suite and frequently meeting his lieutenants there. He was asked to leave the hotel after the assassination of Arthur [Dutch Schultz] Fleigenheimer, policy king and former beer baron, on Oct. 24, 1935.

"There hasn't been a witness of Mr. Dewey on this stand that I ever saw in my life. I never took a dollar from a prostitute in my life."

Dewey began his cross-examination by referring to the narcotics charges against Luciano. He allowed the witness to tell how he was convicted and served an eight months' sentence in a federal penitentiary. Suddenly Dewey asked:

Q.—Does the date June 6, 1923, mean anything to you? A.—No.

Q.—On June 2, 1923, don't you remember selling a two ounce box of dope to an agent of the secret service? A.—I was arrested, but I didn't sell it.

Q.—On June 3, 1923, didn't you sell the agent again? A.—No.

Q.—At 143 East 13th street on June 5, didn't another agent see you? An objection to this question was sustained.

Q.—Wasn't your apartment searched that day? A.—Yes.

Q.—And didn't they find two one and one-half ounce packages of morphine, and two ounces of heroin, and some opium in your apartment? A.—No.

Q.—Didn't you give a statement that at 163 Mulberry street they would find a whole trunkful of dope?

The witness closed his eyes. An affirmative answer would brand him a squealer—the ultimate in derogation, according to the underworld code. His replies had been fainter and fainter. Now he stopped. Finally, in a voice that barely reached the ears of the jury, he said: "Yes, I did."

Luciano's companions stared incredulously at him, apparently unable to believe their ears. Dewey pursued his advantage:

Q.—And you still want this jury to believe you were not selling dope? A.—I was picked up, but I wasn't guilty.

Dewey next recalled Luciano's arrest for a trafic violation in July, 1926. In the car police found a shotgun, two pistols, and forty-five rounds of ammunition. Lucky's companion was Joe Scarlisi, a gunman for Al Capone until he was killed later.

Q.—What was the purpose of the shotgun and the pistols? A.—I was out shooting pheasants.

Q.—What? Shooting pheasants in the middle of July, and with two pistols? What did you use the pistols for? (There was no answer.)

The prosecutor proved that Luciano had lied in obtaining a permit to carry a gun in New York. He also showed that Luciano was arrested for carrying a gun in Miami.

The Luciano trial lasted more than four weeks. On June 7 the jury of business men deliberated twelve hours, then brought in a verdict of guilty against Luciano; David Betillo, his first lieutenant; Thomas Pennochio [Tommy Bull], treasurer of the syndicate; Abraham Wahrman [Little Abie], Luciano's contact man; James Frederico [Jimmy Fredericks], general manager; Benny Spiller, an investor in the syndicate; Ralph Liguori, the syndicate's strong arm expert; Jesse Jacobs, an unlicensed bondsman, and Meyer Berkman, Jacobs' assistant.

Jack Allenstein [Jack Allen], a syndicate collector, and the three bookers, Al Weiner, Peter Balitzer [Pete Harris], and David Marcus [Dave Miller], had pleaded guilty. The latter three turned state's evidence. Allenstein entered a guilty plea at the close of the state's case.

The conviction came on June 7. On the 13th of that month Judge McCook sentenced Luciano to serve thirty to fifty years in Sing Sing prison. Betillo was given twenty-five to forty years; Frederico, twenty-five years; Liguori, seven and a half to fifteen years; Wahrman, fifteen to thirty years; Pennochio, twenty-five years; Ellenstein, four to eight years; Harris, two to four years; Marcus, three to six years, and Weiner, two to four years. Jacobs, Spiller, and Berkman have not yet been sentenced, and presumably they are aiding Dewey in getting information concerning other rackets in the hope of receiving less severe terms.

After the trial Dewey explained that Luciano was titular head of the entire New York underworld. The gangster arranged the murder of [Dutch Schultz] Fleigenheimer in 1935 as the last obstacle to his absolute reign.

Luciano controled labor racketeering; a whole series of business rackets, such as trucking, florists, perishable produce, laundry, cleaning and dyeing, baking, building materials, beauty culture, garages, building wrecking, ice cream, kosher meats, lumber, restaurants, ice, roofing material, dairy products, circular distribution, linen supply, clothing manufacture, motion picture operators. At the same time he ran the larger policy games, owned a series of gambling houses, and his men controled the "loan shark" racket. He also was the largest dope operator in the country.

The vice ring was a $12,000,000 a year plum. But Luciano's widespread rackets produced more than $150,000,000 a year net, which was split among perhaps 200 "top" men and roughly 15,000 lesser henchmen

Politics and Crime!

New Yorkers for years have been kept in ignorance of the immunity of the iniquitous. Probably only a few citizens even today know of the relationships between the crime empire and political leadership of the last eight years. And, so far, New York City has not acted to clean house in the Chicago manner.

In a recent speech President Roosevelt termed his political opponents "royalists of the economic order." Now any true test of royalty is the power it exercises. By this definition the political royalists of New York for the last eight years have been Franklin D. Roosevelt and Herbert H. Lehman, governors; and Mayor F. H. LaGuardia.

Royal rascals of New York City are able to rule there, as was the case in Chicago, only through political connivance or indifference.

An example of this indifference or connivance by New York authorities was the whitewashing given District Attorney William F. X. Geoghan of Kings county, New York City, by Governor Lehman last Thursday. The governor dismissed charges of incompetency and of questionable handling of the now famous Drukman murder case brought against Geoghan by a special grand jury which had investigated not only the murder but the bribery conspiracy which was an outgrowth thereof.

From New Yorkers the underworld exacts a tribute of at least $200,000,000 annually, as the tangible first costs. It is a levy enforced by fear, and the funds pour into the pockets of corrupt labor leaders, gunmen, unprincipled lawyers, and recreant politicians.

Among the high chiefs of crime was Charles (Lucky) Luciano, who rose to supreme power after a 20 year career of infamy, during the period 1928 to 1934. Lucky Luciano's reign was nearing its peak in 1930 when Roosevelt was governor of the state. Luciano is the subject of the accompanying article.

Skyrockets to Fame in Film World in 18 Months

By ROSALIND SHAFFER

Hollywood, Cal.

THERE isn't anything in the fairy tale books about handsome young men who rise to sudden wealth and fortune just by sheer goodness, as it happened with Cinderella and all the heroines. Prince Charming is just born that way, conveniently supplied with a white steed and a hat with a plume on it and a purse heavy with gold.

Though there are no Cinderella men in fairy tales, they do exist in Hollywood. This Hollywood is a land possessed of such potent magic that rare feats of make-believe are accomplished that would send a respectable magician howling with envy back to his mountains.

Can you imagine a young fellow, hero of a couple of college plays, moving to Hollywood and deciding to become a movie star, and then becoming one? And then in eighteen months of work becoming the sensation of the film world? And dislodging a whole list of seasoned actors with established reputations? And getting so close to being head man that King Gable is the only one topping him in box office popularity? And having Irene Dunne and Janet Gaynor and Joan Crawford and Virginia Bruce and Jean Parker and Eleanor Powell, and now Greta Garbo, as the object of his studio stage affections? It would make anyone dizzy to even imagine such a possibility, not to mention having it happen—bang! bang! bang!—right like that.

All these thoughts were running through our head as we sped half awake through the mists of the morning toward the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio to see what manner of man was this. We'd sighted the handsome young Mr. Taylor from afar at cafés and about town a couple of times, but Barbara Stanwyck had always been there, and you know how that is. Then, when we'd been given an assignment to write an article about Mr. Taylor, we'd spent some time trying to catch up with him. It wasn't so good—he was completely occupied in the business of being Armand, while Greta Garbo was playing Camille. A couple of false alarms; we could see him today, they'd say. Then a quick call—no, we couldn't; the company was working late.

Then this morning, with sleep heavy on our pillow, the phone rang. "If you can get here in twenty minutes you can see Robert Taylor," the optimistic press agent announced with that pious air that early risers use when speaking to late ones. "We'll be there," we lied, and rushed for the shower bath, thanking heaven for the trick ball of soap on a rope that is a new acquisition in our shower. If the soap had slipped away just once we'd never have made it. Now, almost awake, and driving through the thick fog toward Culver City, we ruminated the facts we knew of this rising young star and finally gave up thinking about it, they seemed so impossible. We probably weren't awake yet, we decided.

"Bob has an awful pain in the neck and wants to go home. We've been sitting on him and holding him here for you by sheer force," said the press agent, taking our spectacular arrival all for granted. Evidently all the women who come to the studio to see Robert Taylor arrive wild-eyed, soapsuds bulging from their ears, and stockings on that are not mates. Ah, well, such is fame.

It seems that the reason for our sheer good fortune in finding a bit of time in the busy Mr. Taylor's schedule was due to Greta Garbo's misfortune. Greta, just between us girls, had been feeling rather pippish and wanted to go home. This sudden release for the day made young Mr. Taylor realize that he had been having a pain in his neck for three days but hadn't had time to think about it. When the publicity department told him that a slightly damaged blonde wanted to interview him he said whatever it was that he said, but decided to stay and go through with it if we didn't mind his having an osteopathic treatment while we talked about life and love and a career and regrets and ambitions and things.

Did we mind? Well, when we stop to think what a couple of million quivering feminine fans would give to see Robert Taylor get an osteopathic treatment we just hung on to the arms of our chair and swooned over such luck. We're just as ga-ga over him as you are Bob was pretty nice about it. He welcomed us into his little sitting room office at the studio and explained about his neck and asked if it was all right with us and would we mind if he took off his shirt. Nothing can describe that moment—nothing in the books of etiquet that we have read had quite covered that subject, but we just took our rule of thumb, which is to take anything dead-pan, and got along swell.

As the huge Scandinavian began his rubbings on the base of Bob's neck we looked at Bob carefully. Lovely blue eyes; in films they look dark, but they're a heavenly shade of blue. They're the eyes of a very nice young man who hasn't been disillusioned, who hasn't seen a lot of ugly things that have made him cynical. They look right at you in a friendly, straightforward way as he speaks. You wonder how in the dickens a nice boy like that is going to be able to cope with all the things that happen to movie stars.

Now, about that elegant hairline with the dip over the forehead; it's real, girls, and no spirit gum and pieces of hair go into that effect. As for the wave, it's real, too; no amount of rubbing and mussing around on the part of the burly and indefatigable Andy, the osteopath, was able to make it look unattractive.

"It really frightens me," he said, "this quick rise in films. Working along at the studio, I've known things were going pretty well, of course, by the fan mail and by the reviews. I hadn't realized exactly what it meant, though, till my trips to New York and Dallas. In Hollywood fans crowd around and want autographs, but that's all right, in fact, it's marvelous; but they're sane and under control. But those New York fans! It was an awful experience. I had my shoe pulled off and they had to get the police to rescue me when I went to a Broadway theater. My shirt was torn, and for a while I felt in actual danger of bodily damage. In Dallas, where I went to the Centennial, two rangers, former football men, went with me as bodyguards, and it took their football practice tactics to get through the line at the hotel and the theater. The publicity man, Dean Dorn, was hit because he was trying to help me through. They got my shirt, my tie, my coat, and my handkerchief. When I was in a car riding through the Centennial exposition grounds a little old lady got up close to the car as it moved slowly through the crowd, took a good look at me, and snorted, 'Why, he's just like any young fellow.' She was the only one with sense in the crowd.

"Of course, I enjoy such popularity, but I wish the enthusiasm or curiosity, whichever it is, could be expressed in a little more restrained way. It frightened me when I realized how quick people are to deify a movie actor. It's a tremendous responsibility. People expect so much. I know a lot of my rise has been just good breaks. For that reason I know that I have to work hard to bring up the standard of my acting so as not to flop. The only way to maintain this skyrocketing is hard work. I hope I won't get silly over success; I think my parents raised me to have more balance than that. One thing I am sure of, though; even if I lose my head, I'm going to save my money."

Along about here Andy picked up the young man by the neck and held him aloft, dangling him by his submaxillary bones. (You know, where it hurts when you have mumps.) Mr. Taylor looked a trifle pained and a bit surprised by this betrayal of confidence on the part of Andy, but obligingly dangled and let his spine snap and crackle merrily. "Ah-h-h-h!" breathed Mr. Taylor contentedly when set down on terra firma. "That feels better."

"You know," said Andy, all the time giving gargantuan thumps to the really gorgeous Taylor torso and spine, "I really didn't come over on your account, Mr. Taylor; I just heard about you incidentally. I came over to see how Miss Garbo is. I thought it was about time I was coming over to look after her. Now I find she's gone home ill." Andy fell to percussing (it's not what you think) the fifth dorsal vertebra meditatively. You could see Garbo had got him.

"My father was an osteopath," said Bob. "The one sour note in the success I've had is that father isn't here to enjoy it with me. He was a wonderful doctor. I'd have seen he never had another thing to do but just look after young Taylor." Bob's father died the year before Bob got going in films. The bond between them was very close. For a time, Bob says, he'd hoped to follow in his father's footsteps and become a doctor.

"I gave that up when I saw what I'd have to go through in the way of preliminary chemistry; I wasn't good at that," he said, grinning.

While Andy solemnly and masterfully rotated the Taylor shoulders upon which the lovely Camille weeps and sighs, Bob got to talking of college, and what it's worth to a boy, and his own experiences there. Bob had grown up in the little town of Beatrice, Neb., where his father had a prosperous practice. Born Spangler Arlington Brugh, Bob comes of Pennsylvania Dutch stock on his father's side and is of English-Scotch descent on his mother's. Her name was Stanhope.

High school days in Beatrice were uneventful. He was elected class president on what he calls "a trick of public speaking, being able to keep from being self-conscious in a crowd." Leading rôles in high school plays and singing in the church choir had been enjoyable, but Bob had had no urge toward a theatrical career at all. He thought of himself as a prospective physician. Piano lessons, an abortive attempt on the saxophone frowned down by the conservative Pennsylvania Dutch side of the house, and then real pleasure in playing the cello developed a taste for music. He won the high school musical contest by playing "The Swan" on his cello, and the local teacher strongly urged Bob to follow it up, considering he had the quality for a concert cellist. Then came an oratorical contest, which he won. The prize was a ten-day trip to Detroit.

This was his first sight of the great world and a big city. Beatrice, Neb., is a town of twelve thousand.

When Bob was sixteen his father gave him an automobile of his own, with the stipulation that he was never to exceed thirty-five miles an hour. Though often tempted, Bob says he never did, and that it has since governed his temptation to drive too rapidly. His father was a potent and wise factor in the life of his son, if one can judge from what Bob says. Bob used to drive the car forty-two miles into Lincoln to take his cello lessons.

Shortly he began doing radio work with a group of boys who sang semi-professionally over KMMJ at Clay Center under the optimistic title of the Harmony Boys. Then came college at Crete, Neb.—Doane college. Freshman year Bob played the lead in the class play. He was enrolled in liberal arts, and after his first year began worrying about what he'd do for a career. Chemistry had balked a medical career, for which he had lost his taste by now. The music teacher urged a musical career. Instructors urged him to use his gift of speaking and his fine voice for a law career. He felt no urge for Blackstone.

At the end of his sophomore year Professor Gray, his cello teacher, accepted an appointment at Pomona college, near Los Angeles, and young Taylor decided to follow him and attend Pomona. When a letter went back to Beatrice one day from Pomona with the news that again Bob had the lead in the class play, his father dryly remarked, "No matter where we send that boy, he gets on the stage." It was more prophetic than his father knew.

In Taylor's senior year at Pomona he was very active in dramatic work. The last semester saw him in five plays. Yet he made a B average.

In one of these school plays, "Journey's End," Taylor attracted the attention of a studio scout. It was during the first half of his senior year at Pomona, and Taylor had taken the part as a second best thing. He had really wanted to go to Oregon and enter an oratory contest there. During the performance, in which he played Captain Stanhope, the scout came backstage and told Taylor to go out to Culver City for an interview. He went. He saw the studio with its sound stages, makeup department, enormous sets, the huge back lot with its jungles and London streets, its romance and its mystery. It thrilled him. For the first time he began to consider the possibilities of a motion picture career.

The studio was mildly interested; the casting director gave him an audition. He was invited to see Oliver Hinsdell, the studio dramatic coach, and to arrange for classes. This he did, and drove over from Pomona twice a week. But school work made it difficult, and he had determined to finish his college career, on the advice of his parents. He gave up the Culver City jaunts and completed his college work at Pomona on June 19, 1933.

Following graduation Bob told his parents frankly he would like to try film work. They agreed that if it was what he wanted to do, he should do it. With a modest capital to finance himself, Taylor moved to Hollywood and set about his chosen work. He went back to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and on the advice of Hinsdell enrolled in a good coaching school, reporting to Hinsdell weekly. This course was interrupted by the death of his father. When he returned to Hollywood in October, 1933, he took up his course again, and in February, 1934, signed a contract at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for $35 a week. He worked occasionally at the Pasadena Community playhouse, waiting and hoping for a studio part.

Eventually it came, but not at the home studio. Will Rogers was looking for a young man to play the juvenile in "Handy Andy," so to Fox Bob went to earn his spurs. He dearly cherishes his memories of Rogers, who was most kind to him.

Then came "There's Always Tomorrow," with a part for Taylor. "Wicked Woman," "West Point of the Air," and "Murder in the Fleet" gave him rôles, each solidifying his experience and knowledge of screen technique. Then came "Society Doctor." The rôle of a young country doctor was given to Taylor. He played it earnestly, with memories of his father reverently entwined in every word he spoke. With the release of the film Taylor was a star. Fan mail began to come in huge canvas sacks.

Then the rôles began to come swiftly; they have followed each other so fast since that first hit that Taylor hasn't had time to get a sun tan or keep up his tennis game. It's been steady work. "Times Square Lady," with Virginia Bruce; then "The Broadway Melody of 1936"; he starred with Irene Dunne in "Magnificent Obsession"; then "Small Town Girl," with Janet Gaynor; "Private Number," with Loretta Young, and "The Gorgeous Hussy," with Joan Crawford. He is now working, as we said, with Garbo in "Camille."

Taylor is six feet tall and weighs 165 pounds. His romantic interests have been Irene Hervey, whom it was rumored he was about to marry a year ago. Recent months have seen him as the devoted swain of Barbara Stanwyck, with whom he played in "His Brother's Wife." It is doubtful whether Barbara and Robert will marry for a time at least, as Taylor always has said he would devote himself to working hard at his career until thirty and would then marry. He still has quite several years to go, as you can easily calculate, but a young man could change his mind.

Hollywood since the days of Valentino has seen nothing as phenomenal as the quick popularity of Taylor. With a few months' work in film rôles, he has surpassed Gable in fan mail. In a magazine poll of girls from sixteen to twenty Taylor received four times as many votes as Gable, who was his nearest contestant. The feminine favorites were Claudette Colbert and Myrna Loy as tops.

Other polls show interesting results on Taylor's skyrocket success with the fans. A trade paper which took a poll of 1,192 exhibitors in theaters all over the country, of all sizes and classes, during the last week of July this year, found that Clark Gable was tops for the men, followed by Taylor, then by Cagney, Dick Powell, W. C. Fields, Chaplin, Gary Cooper, Edward G. Robinson, Paul Muni, Eddie Cantor, Harold Lloyd, and Bill Powell.

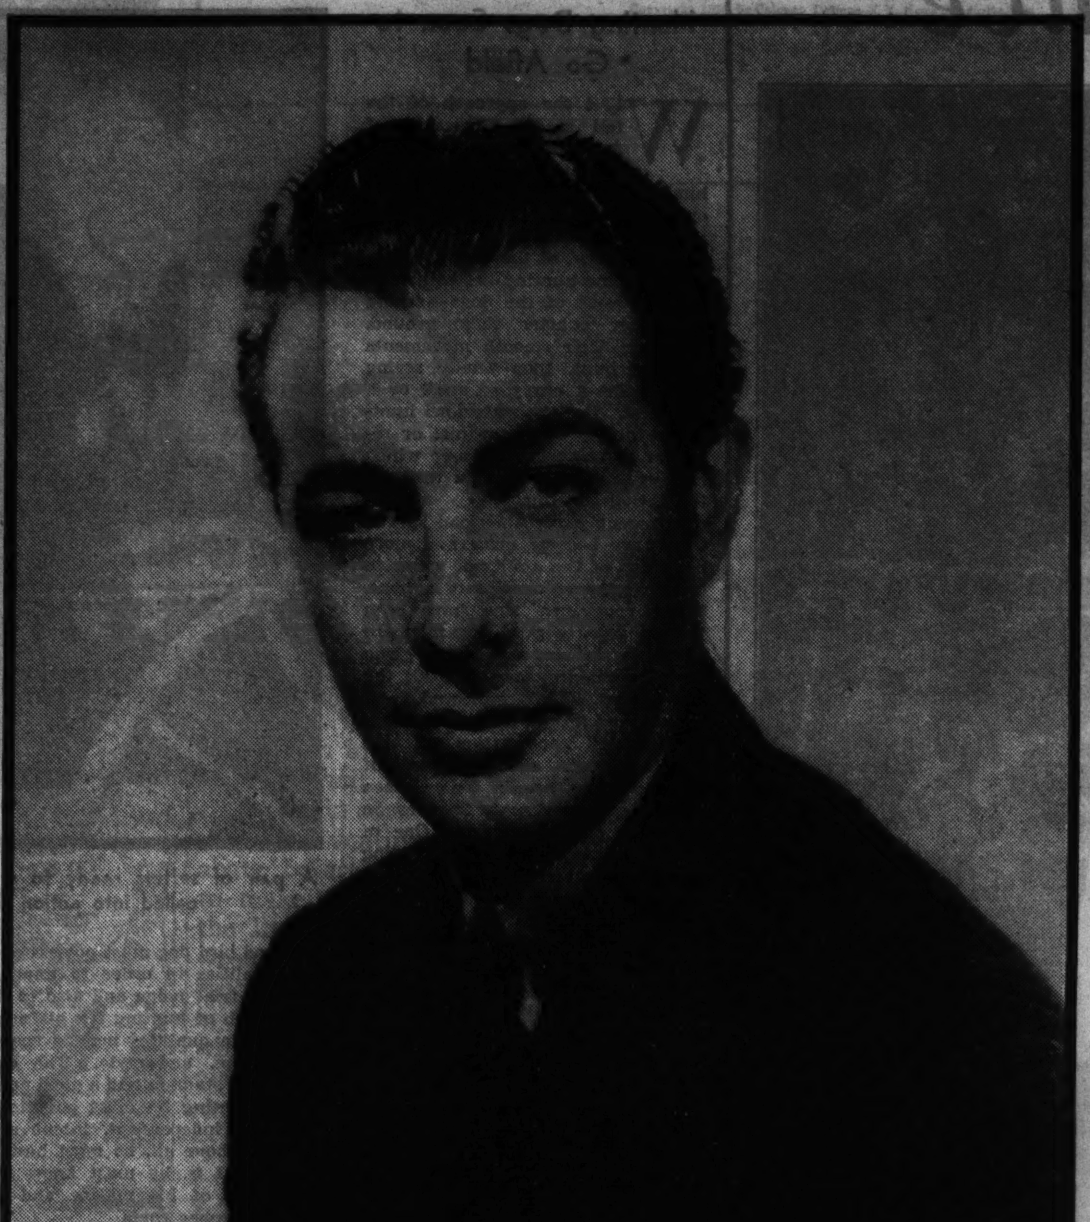
At the studio where Taylor is employed the publicity department says: "Taylor is one star who is ahead of his publicity. Exhibitors keep yelling for more Taylor pictures."

In the voting the trade paper reports that Gable, though hard pressed by Taylor votes, gives every evidence of holding his own as first-spot sex appeal man, but many audiences have not as yet seen Taylor films. A later vote may overwhelm the Gable solidarity. Strangely enough, both men are of Pennsylvania Dutch stock.

James Cagney, Taylor's runner up, shows a wider audience appeal than formerly, with steady growth in popularity over the year before. Formerly a big-city favorite, small towns like him, too.

Dick Powell has undoubtedly increased his public favor through his radio broadcasts. His popularity is also general, not confined to types of places.

The standing of W. C. Fields is remarkable when one considers his absences from the screen due to illness. Charles Chaplin proves, too, that absence can make the heart grow fonder.



Robert Taylor, who in the brief space of eighteen months became the sensation of the cinema world, dislodging in popularity a whole list of established actors.

It was not so long ago that young Mr. Taylor was only five years old. Here he is shown at that age with his mother.

Trees Reveal History of Weather

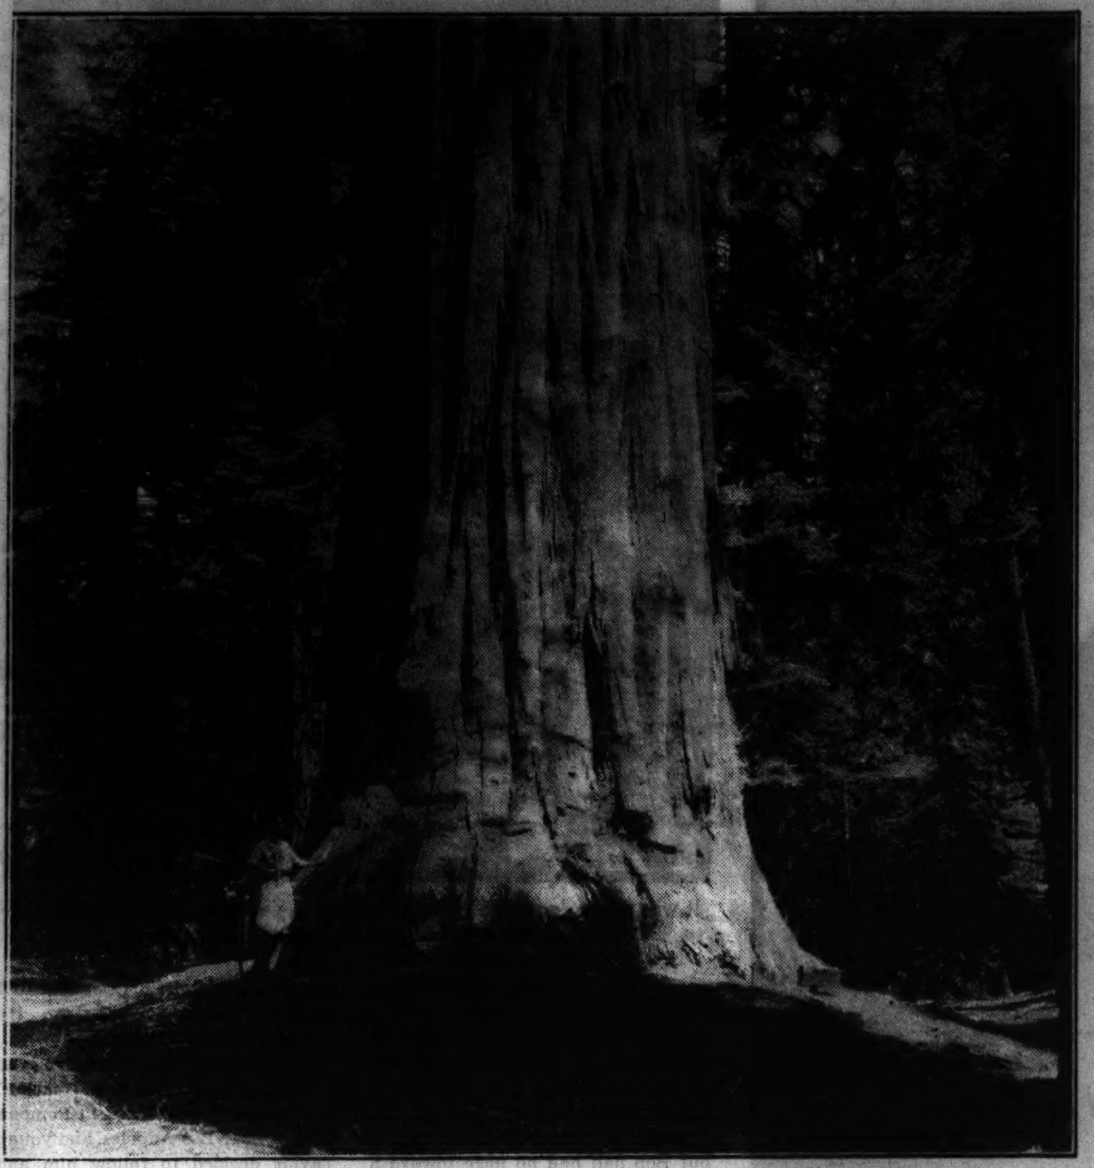
By DR. THOMAS M. BECK

THE dry years that have afflicted this country since 1930 are by no means the first of their kind. In the southwest, where drouths are of the bigger and better variety, we know that there was a superdrouth in Arizona that lasted from 1572 to 1594. It was more protracted than the one from 1435 to 1450, but did not last quite so long as that of 1276-1299. And while still on the subject, mention should be made of the dry spells of 900-907 and 782-797.

These facts are stated not for the purpose of acquainting you with the past misbehavior of Arizona weather but for the sake of the actual years given. These dates are as accurate as anything in the history books, a fact all the more remarkable since the witnesses of the events possessed neither writing nor a calendar accurate enough to fix the exact years.

The method of determining such information is quite simple in theory. If we wish to learn the date of President Lincoln's assassination we can do one of two things. We can look it up in the encyclopedia. The date we find probably is right, but still there is a chance that the historian made a mistake. Or we can go to a library and search through the files of a newspaper until we come to the account of it. This fixes the time with absolute certainty, because the one thing in a newspaper that even the most skeptical readers concede to be true is the date.

We learn the dates of these drouths by the more accurate method of consulting contemporary records. The historians in this case are the trees, which are quite incapable of falsifying. The method of reading these records, developed by Andrew E. Douglass of the Lowell observatory, is based on the simple practice of determining the age of a tree by its rings.



Giant sequoias such as this one have given weather records of the last 3,000 years.

A tree grows only at its surface, with the inner bark depositing the lifeless woody matter beneath it. During the spring and early summer this process takes place much more rapidly than in the late summer and autumn, when the wood is deposited in a relatively thin, compact layer. There is, of course, no growth during the winter. The result is that the wood is deposited in the concentric rings that no one can help noticing.

The growth of a tree in a particular year depends on a number of things, such as soil, temperature, and rainfall. Of these the amount of rain is the greatest variable. Douglass reasoned that the width of the rings should be a rough measure of the rainfall of the year in which they were formed. He checked this idea by comparing the government weather records of thirty years with the average width of tree rings over the same period and found that the trees gave a reliable record of rainfall.

The actual widths of the rings are not exact measures of the rainfall, however. For one thing, old trees grow much more slowly than do young ones, and consequently the outer rings are narrower than the inner ones. Moreover, a given ring may vary in width in different parts of the tree's circumference. After correcting for such variations Douglass was able to assign a number to each ring which was a sort of inverse measure of its thickness; that is, the narrower the ring the greater the number. In other words, these numbers provided a measure of the dryness of any given year.

By marking off years on a strip of paper and then drawing in vertical lines whose lengths corresponded to the dryness of each year (see Figure 1), a graph could be obtained illustrating the weather history of a tree. Of course, such a history covers only the lifetime of a particular tree.

Fortunately, the early Indians of Arizona had built their pueblos in sheltered places, and the dry climate had preserved the rough wooden beams used in the construction of the dwellings. By preparing a chart of such a beam and matching a portion of it to the early part of a similar chart of a tree of known age Douglass was able to extend his weather history backward a few centuries. The process could then be continued back still farther with wood from still older pueblos.

As is seen in Figure 1, this matching is by no means perfect. No two places more than a few miles apart have identical weather in a given year, and consequently it is only coincidence when the marks from two trees for a single year match exactly. Nevertheless the charts match well enough over a period of years so that even an unpracticed eye can quickly see the similarity.

FROM OLD BEAM (WHICH APPEARS TO HAVE BEEN CUT IN 1568)

Age of old timbers can be determined by matching their rings with a piece of wood of known age.

The dry weather preserves the wood for a long time, but eventually it must decay. A thousand years is about the upper limit for wood exposed to the elements. Fortunately, the Indians used fire, which now and then, through accident or intent, burned their houses. The charcoal thus formed can last indefinitely if protected from mechanical wear. Moreover, the ring structure of the wood is preserved without distortion. While usable pieces of charcoal are not plentiful, enough have been found to extend the record back a dozen centuries.

These findings are of interest not only to the meteorologist but to the historian and the anthropologist. Obviously the date of the outermost ring of a log is the year in which it was cut, and this gives a means of dating the ruins of Indian dwelling. For example, it has been found that the pueblo at Turkey hill was built with timbers cut between the years 1160 and 1278. The first year is doubtless that of the pueblo's founding. Its abandonment probably occurred several decades after the latter date.

In this way Douglass has been able to identify the oldest occupied house in the United States as one built in 1370 at Oraibi, Ariz. The oldest house of all is a pit house found near Flagstaff which dates back to 660.

Douglass had limited his investigations to the pines of Arizona. When it began to attract attention, Ellsworth Huntington undertook a study of the rings of the giant sequoias of California, some of which extended back 3,000 years. He found what appeared to be definite trends in rainfall which lasted for centuries, and, out of curiosity, attempted to correlate these periods with known political and economic history. While the relations he found between rainfall and cultural history probably were only coincidences, he observed that the golden age of ancient Greece and Rome and also the rise of medieval civilization took place during times of greater than average rainfall, while the fall of Rome and the dark ages occurred during arid times.

Subsequent work by Douglass on American and European trees has added weight to the theory that rainfall and weather in general occur in certain definite cycles. Now, it is ticklish business to try to interpret a wavy curve in terms of cycles of a definite period. The evidence is never conclusive, as the cycles are by no means as perfect as those of an alternating current or of the sun's elevation. Nevertheless Douglass found very good evidence that tree growth, and hence rainfall, occurs in cycles of eleven and a half years.

This is particularly significant when it is recalled that this period coincides exactly with that of the variation of sun spot intensity. The connection between these two facts is clear. A variation in sun spots is a variation in the amount of the sun's radiation. And since all weather phenomena are dependent on solar radiation, it is not surprising that tree growth should vary in the same way.

A complicated effect like weather may be the result of several simpler causes which vary in the same period as sun spots, but in different phases. The weather cycle resulting from the sum of the cycles of these other factors may no longer have the same period, but its resulting period usually will be a simple multiple of the 11.5-year period of sun spots.

Charles Greeley Abbot of the Smithsonian institution has investigated weather history as recorded by such independent records as tree rings, the level of the Great Lakes, varves (layers of clay and sand deposited by the annual melting of glaciers), and rainfall records, and has concluded that throughout most of the world weather follows a 23-year cycle.

It can be seen that this is exactly twice the period of sun spots and therefore quite in accord with the evidence of Douglass and others. Abbot probably is the only one who can derive any satisfaction from the weather of the present year, which is exactly 23 years after the cruelly hot, dry summer of 1913, which in turn came 23 years after the serious drouth of 1890. He cites evidence that the weather of the northwest plains states seems to follow a 46-year cycle instead of the 23-year one of most of the rest of the country. If his theory be true, then we can expect one more year of dry weather after this one, since the drouth of 1890 was followed by subnormal rainfall in 1891.

Mostly About Dogs

By BOB BECKER

Hunting Dogs Soon to Go Afield

WITH the approach of the fall season thousands of American sportsmen begin to think about dogs that hunt. Within a short time all of our hunting breeds will be in action after months of idleness.

A great deal of the enjoyment of upland game hunting lies in watching the work of the dogs—seeing how they quarter their ground, watching their smooth movements as they hunt, then finally seeing them point a covey of quail or a pheasant. For the waterfowl hunter the ability of his spaniel or retriever to bring in the game which he has shot is as much a thrill as the actual shooting.

In recent years American sportsmen have become more and more conscious of the ability of a dog to heighten the enjoyment of a hunt. These sportsmen also have seen that in using a good dog they are aiding in the conservation of game birds by making sure that all the game they kill is retrieved. All over America sportsmen are showing greater appreciation of the hunting breeds, and during recent seasons these breeds have been gaining more and more followers in all parts of the country. One of the advantages of the hunting breeds is that they make pleasant companion dogs in the house as well as efficient workers on a hunt.

Because of this increased interest in hunting dogs, field trials are becoming more numerous, attracting more entries, and gaining many new followers. Men who own hunting dogs realize that by training their dogs so that they can place well in field trials they also are training their dogs to be more useful in hunting. In almost all cases the best dogs in the field trials are the best hunting dogs.

A brief background sketch of field trials brings out a number of interesting facts.

The most popular field trials are those for bird dogs, the main breeds of which are pointers, English setters, Irish setters, and Gordon setters. During the course of a calendar year about 400 separate programs for bird dogs are sponsored by various field trial clubs.

The first bird dog trial took place near Memphis, Tenn., on Oct. 8, 1874, and was staged by the Tennessee State Sportsmen's association. Since that date the sport has flourished in many sections of the country.

In a field trial for setters and pointers the killing of game birds is not essential, the work of the dogs being the important thing. A drawing is held, usually the evening before the trials begin, matching dogs in pairs. Each dog is piloted by a handler, who may be the owner or a professional bird dog trainer, as he is run over a prescribed course. The judges follow on horseback. The handlers direct their dogs by whistle, voice, and hand signal. The dogs are graded according to ages. There are puppy events for dogs under one year of age, Derbies for contestants under two years of age, and all-age stakes for dogs of any age.

A pair of setters ready to start an upland game hunt. Thousands of American bird dogs will be called into action during the fall hunting seasons, and also to run in field trials.

A good bird dog must possess certain qualities in order to impress the field trial judge and also to do a good job of hunting for his master. These qualities include speed, nose range, and style. The dog must have stamina and a good nose. In his hunting he must be intelligent and independent, intent and steady. Above all, he must handle well. That is, he must know the commands of his master and be trained to obey them.

The dogs are judged on three main points—ground work, bird work, and training. On ground work the judge analyzes the intelligence, speed, range, and stamina which the dog exhibits. The bird work includes the quickness and accuracy of the dog's pointing ability, as well as his style in pointing and his stanchness after the point has been made. In training the points which count most on the judge's score sheet are the manner in which the dog hunts on the course and finds game, his responsiveness to the commands of the master, and his steadiness to wing and shot.

Most of the bird dog trials are on quail, pheasants, prairie chickens, ruffed grouse, and Hungarian partridges.

Many men who own and use bird dogs on their hunting trips have taken no interest in field trials, evidently with the idea that they are merely games and do not improve the ability of their dogs. On the other hand, hundreds of men would rather match their dogs against other dogs in a field trial than to actually hunt over them. Men who like to hunt and also like to participate in field trials are constantly urging their hunting partners to take more interest in field trials. They say it is a sport which is interesting and wholesome and deserves support.

In addition to field trials for setters and pointers we now have many trials for springer spaniels, cocker spaniels, retrievers, beagle hounds, foxhounds, coon hounds, and other breeds. Spaniel trials have been making rapid forward strides in entries and popularity. Coming up fast are the retriever trials. This fall there may be at least three retriever trials in the middle west, as well as many in the east.

This department believes in field trials for sporting breeds because the training for trials does almost as much good for the dog entered as it does for the owner of the dog. Many a dog owner learns more about the breed that he likes by attending or entering his dog in a trial than he could learn in five years out of books. The field trial is the show window and proving ground for dog work, and every bit of the training that a dog and his master experience while preparing for a trial is just what both need in the hunting field.

DOG NOTES

National dog week starts today. This is a week set aside to focus attention on the value of the dog in the home. Thousands of towns and cities will observe the week with appropriate programs.

The annual observance of national dog week was started in 1928 by a group of impartial national sportsmen headed by Will Judy, editor of Dog World magazine. They felt the need of more intimate relationship between man and his great animal friend, the dog. The slogan of the committee in charge of the week is, "Every home needs a dog and every dog needs a good home."

Owners of dogs on farms and estates have to watch their pets closely at this season, because the inclination of many dogs is to roam over fields and woods. On the Tribune experimental farm it seems as if fall brings a sort of epidemic of wandering dogs that get into the fields and woods and make trouble. These trespassers, often traveling in a pack, can cause a lot of trouble on a farm.

The owners are to blame for the bad habits of these wandering dogs which need discipline and restraint. To allow a dog to run around as it pleases in the country is bound to make it a vagabond, cause it to lose a sense of responsibility toward its home and its master, and give it an opportunity to develop poultry or sheep killing habits. It's natural for a dog to want to chase things, even automobiles. By letting a country dog do as it pleases about leaving home for a tour of the country and amuse itself running after sheep is courting trouble.

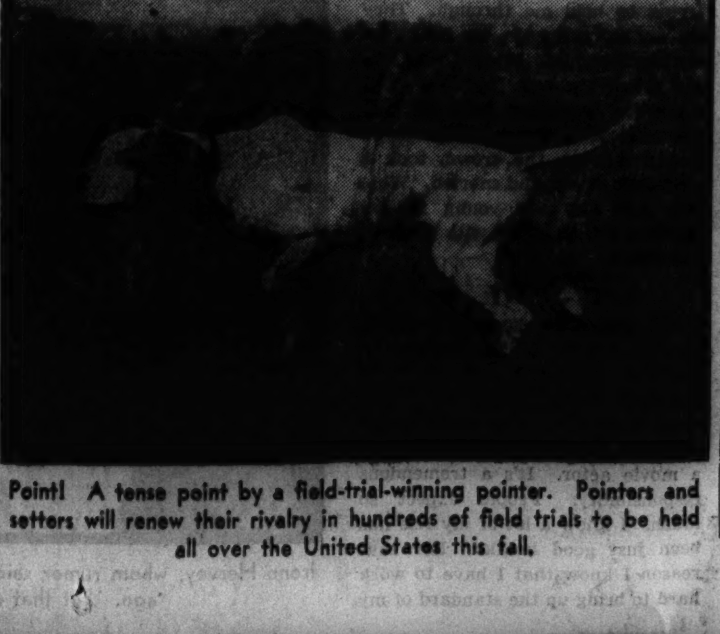
On the experimental farm it is necessary to keep a constant watchout for vagabond dogs. Some of those caught killing poultry and stock were pure-breds.

We have heard of dogs doing a lot of things, but until recently we never knew that there were "hobo dogs" which ride the rods like human vagabonds.

A German shepherd dog was "arrested" by railroad detectives in Cleveland for this offense. The dog was seen to dive under a train, and when he failed to come out on the other side of the tracks the detectives investigated and found him perched on the rods, all ready for a free ride. They pulled him out from his place and turned him over to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

The diploma of honor awarded by Dog World magazine for outstanding deeds by dogs was given to a mongrel recently.

Buddy, the dog, is owned by Milton Lee, Cuyahoga Falls, O. Mr. Lee's small daughter was alone in a farm field when suddenly a horse came charging across the field. The dog leaped at the horse's throat and forced it to veer away from the spot where the frightened child was standing.



Point! A tense point by a field-trial-winning pointer. Pointers and setters will renew their rivalry in hundreds of field trials to be held all over the United States this fall.

THUNDER AND LIGHTNING

By W. E. Hill

Copyright, 1936, by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.

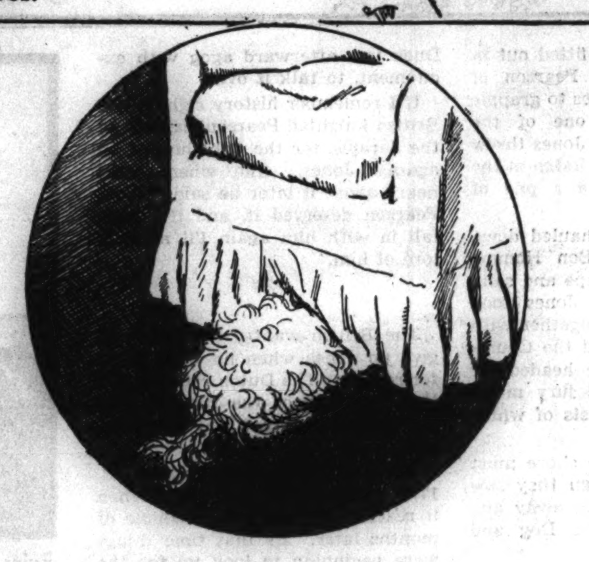
Just to show you how dangerous it is to use a telephone during an electrical storm, we tell what happened to Evelyn. One day, while waiting in a corner cigar store for a storm to let up, Evelyn decided to phone her boy friend and pass the time of day. Got the number all right, but couldn't hear him plainly, so she asked him to raise his voice. He did, and just then the lightning struck. Was she terrified! Now, she shudders whenever she hears his voice. Won't go out with him any more.

Here's a swell way to speed the week-end guest. Early Sunday afternoon the host or hostess, or both, should turn on the short wave and get a little static. Then, let the one who can look saddest say, "Dear, we can't bear to think of your leaving, but you really should start home. Because there's static on the radio, and that means a thunderstorm before night!"

Bad storm in the suburbs. Sooner or later, current will go wrong, leaving the house in darkness. And the friends who are waiting for the storm to abate before going home will have to make a lark of it. After awhile, the lights will come on—at just the wrong moment—showing some one enjoying a good old-fashioned yawn, or doing a little home dentistry which will be a shock to sensitive natures.

Lobby of country picture house with patrons waiting for the thunder and lightning to cease. Very clubby and no one minds, except a few who remember they forgot to close their windows before starting out.

Action close-up of lower half of stout girl wearing new suede shoes, trying to cross wet street on heels so as to avoid puddles.



The dog who hates electrical storms.

The girl who hates to be alone during thunderstorms. Shown scouting around for some one to keep her company while the thunder and lightning are at it. Finally induces Lillian, the cook, to sit up with her.

The nervous girl who thinks a tree, a building, or whatever is next door, will be struck by lightning and will fall on her. Has to be comforted and petted. Otherwise she gets a terrible headache.

What's New in World of Airplanes and Air Transportation

Woman Flyers Win More Laurels

By WAYNE THOMIS

BY WINNING the Bendix trophy race at the National Air races recently concluded at Los Angeles, woman pilots of the United States emphasized the claims they have made for years—that women can fly airplanes just as well as men and are the equals of men in their navigation, meteorological knowledge, and general good judgment.

Women, it is claimed, have excelled as stunt pilots and have made records comparable with those of man flyers in transoceanic, transcontinental, and other flights, and also have made endurance, altitude, and other marks in the past. The Bendix victory was their first scored in a major speed event in which the country's best man pilots also were participants.

Mrs. Louise Thaden of Bentonville, Ark., and Blanch Noyes of Memphis, Tenn., who brought their green Beechcraft, 450-horsepower Wright motor, from New York to Los Angeles in the Bendix race ahead of four male competitors, are inspectors for the bureau of air commerce in charge of air marking. They were forced to resign their jobs to compete in the race but have been rehired.

Both women are veteran flyers, each having flown for more than nine years. Mrs. Thaden won the first women's transcontinental air Derby, set an endurance flight record with Mrs. Frances Marsalis of Centerville, Mo., another expert flyer, and has been an instructor, an airplane saleswoman, and an airport manager.

Mrs. Noyes had her first instruction at her home town. She entered the Derby Mrs. Thaden won but was forced out after her ship caught fire in the air. She landed that plane safely but was unable to continue because of the damage caused by the fire. Her husband was killed in an airplane accident several years ago. Her appointment to the air commerce bureau is of recent date.

Two other woman flyers are in charge of air-marking projects for the bureau. They are the Misses Helen Richey of McKeesport, Pa., and Helen MacCloskey of Pittsburgh. Miss Richey was co-pilot with Amelia Earhart in the latter's "flying laboratory," a Lockheed Electra, Wasp Sr. engines, in the 1936 Bendix race. They finished fifth in a field of five teams to complete the race.

Miss Richey is the only woman to hold a job as pilot on one of the regular air lines, having been employed in 1935 by Central Airlines. The pilots' union rejected her as a member and she finally resigned because the line would not send her out to work in bad weather as well as good. Miss MacCloskey has been entering air races for more than four years and is an expert speed flyer over closed courses. She holds the women's light airplane distance record—526 miles, in an Aeronca.

The two "star turn" woman flyers of the United States are without doubt Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam and Miss Laura Ingalls. Miss Earhart's record is probably better known than that of any other woman flyer in the world.

Miss Earhart has flown the Atlantic ocean twice, made the first flight from Honolulu to the American mainland, set transcontinental speed marks in both directions, and flown an autogiro. Most of her flights were purely stunts, but she has been a director of the Ludington Lines, one of the early air transport lines, and now she is preparing for experimental work with Purdue university.

Laura Ingalls also has made the headlines with her stunt flights. She once held the women's record for consecutive loops and rolls, entered some of the early women's air races, and in 1934 made a solo flight of 16,000 miles around South America. In 1935 she set new speed records for women's flights both east-west and west-east across the United States. She won second place in the Bendix trophy race this year, flying her Lockheed Orion, Wasp 550-horsepower motor.

The best woman race pilot probably is Mrs. Gladys O'Donnell of Long Beach, Cal. She has been flying in the air races for years, winning several of the women's transcontinental races in the '20s. She now operates an airport and flying school.

On the basis of solid achievement, experience, and all-around skill Mrs. Phoebe Omlie of Memphis, Tenn., is the dean of all active American woman pilots. She has been flying for fifteen years.

English women also have numerous achievements in aviation to their credit. Mrs. Amy Johnson Mollison has been flying for ten years and only a few months ago made a new set of records for speed flights between London and Cape Town and return. Jean Batten, a New Zealand girl, flew the south Atlantic in a light plane, and Mrs. Beryl Markham, a society matron, successfully flew the north Atlantic against head winds in a small ship last Sept. 4 and 5.

Old Inn at Flamborough Is Reminder of Event

By DAVID DARRAH

Flamborough, Eng.

WHAT a memorable sight the fishermen and farmers of Flamborough must have seen out there over the rocky headland one moonlight night a hundred and fifty-seven years ago come next Wednesday!

The North landing, as the small cove in the white cliffs is called, was seething with excitement. People in the Royal Dog and Duck inn (where you can still get food and a night's lodging) ran down to the coast. For the bailifs of Scarborough had sent word posthaste that a hostile squadron had been sighted off the coast.

The hostile squadron belonged to Commodore John Paul Jones, and at the masthead of his flagship, the Bon Homme Richard, flew the flag of the Continental congress. Jones had a couple of other ships with him, the Alliance and the Pallas, and he wasn't long in furnishing excitement for the terrified farmers of Flamborough head.

Around here there are few mementoes of the famous battle that took place off those white cliffs between Jones and Capt. Richard Pearson of the Serapis, supported by another ship, the Countess of Scarborough, but they still talk about Jones' exploits in the Royal Dog and Duck, and up in Scarborough in a small park near the beach they have a big rusty anchor which is said to have belonged to the Serapis before Jones' guns shot it off. The anchor was picked up in 1904 and presented to the town of Scarborough.

All this section of the country was in terror of Jones, who had made landings and raided the country. So when he with his fleet of three ships was first sighted off Sowerby, on the south side of the headland, they all hurriedly hid the family plate and everything that was valuable.

But Jones and his three ships tacked around the headland. They were looking for the British Baltic merchant fleet, escorted by the Serapis and the Countess of Scarborough. At about 7 o'clock they came upon the British, and in a few minutes cannonballs were crashing against the coast and falling on the headland, and for the next three hours the crowds lining the cliffs and signalmen in the stone tower watched one of the world's most desperate naval battles.

The whole fight was plainly visible from the shore in the moonlight. While Jones was engaged with the British men of war the merchant vessels slipped away and ran for Scarborough castle to seek protection under the guns of the fortress there.

Capt. Richard Pearson

After a short time the Pallas conquered the Countess of Scarborough. The battle between the Bon Homme Richard and the Serapis lasted longer. The roll of cannon and flashes of flame against the night sky by 10 o'clock had drawn all the countryside to the landing. Some had their muskets, for it was not known what Jones would do. The armament of the Serapis was far superior to Jones' ship, an old tub which he had just fitted out in France. But Captain Pearson of the Serapis allowed Jones to grapple with him, and then one of the American sailors under Jones threw a hand grenade down a hatch in the Serapis which exploded a pile of ammunition.

Soon after Pearson hauled down his colors. But the Bon Homme Richard was in bad shape and sank a few minutes later. Jones took over the Serapis and, together with his other two ships and the Countess of Scarborough, he headed for Holland, having rigged jury masts on the Serapis, the masts of which had been shot away.

The watchers on the shore must have been relieved when they saw the hostile ships moving away and they went back to the Dog and Duck to talk it over.

As I walked through the graveyard of the Flamborough church, musing on the famous battle, I noticed a stone slab covered with green moss, sacred to the memory of Anthony Hogarth, who died in 1835 at the age of 83, and I wondered whether he as a young man of 25 had seen the fight from the cliffs and had gone back to the Dog and Duck inn, afterward agog with excitement, to talk it over.

If I remember history rightly, the British knighted Pearson, captain of the Serapis, for the fight he put up against Jones. And when Jones heard about it later he said, "Well, Pearson deserved it, and if I ever fall in with him again I'll make a lord of him."

The British wanted the Dutch to give up Jones when he went there for repairs. The Dutch refused, and that was one of the reasons why the British declared war on them, too.

The battle took place on Sept. 23, 1779. And it was glad news when it reached Philadelphia a couple of months later. By that time things were beginning to look up for the continentals; Burgoyne had been defeated, the alliance with France had been signed, and Anthony Wayne had stormed Stony Point. The Conway cabal had also been exploded.

It wasn't long after this battle till Jones was again raiding the English coast, and such was the fear he inspired that two months after the battle, in December, 1779, when the speaker had just taken his place in the house of commons in London, a report ran through the lobby that Jones was sitting in the gallery. Alarm spread through the house. A search was made and they found that, lo and behold, Paul Jones was sitting in the gallery.

But he was a tailor by the same name.

Ruins of Scarborough castle. It was to this castle that the British merchant fleet fled for protection during battle off Flamborough head.

Up along this coast, too, they kept a strict watch for Jones for the rest of the war, and they had a song which ran:

You have heard of Paul Jones,
Have you not? Have you not?
And you've heard of Paul Jones,
Have you not?
He was a rogue and a vagabond,
Was he not? Was he not?

Maybe they sang this over their pints at the Royal Dog and Duck. Jones, of course, would be a rogue and a vagabond for raiding the English coast, but Drake for raiding the Spanish main would not.

Today they play golf beneath the stone tower on the grassy headland above the cliffs where Paul Jones' stray cannonballs rolled a hundred and fifty-seven years ago on that moonlight night when he captured the Serapis.

Discoveries and Inventions - Our Debt to Private Enterprise

MEDICINE

HUMAN progress depends to a large extent upon private enterprise. The world goes forward because in it are men and women who accomplish important tasks, who create, discover, and invent. Remove all incentive or place the people under drastic regimentation and there would be no more advancement.

Mme. Marie S. Curie

In medicine and surgery and associated fields that have to do with health and hygiene individual endeavor has counted greatly. And in medicine and surgery considerable progress has been made as the result of discoveries in other fields of science, such as chemistry and physics.

Radium, for example, that relatively new element that has been employed successfully in treating human ailments, was discovered by a Frenchman and his wife, physicists and chemists. The world owes a debt to Prof. Pierre Curie and Mme. Marie Sklodowska Curie.

Although the possibilities of radium have not been explored fully, enough has been revealed to show that this element is highly beneficial to mankind in many ways. Physicians have learned that the same diseases that are treated with X-rays may be treated with radium. Under suitable conditions the rays from radium have been used successfully to treat cancer, although it cannot be said that radium is a cure for all forms of this disease. Healthy tissue is several times more resistant to the action of radium rays than diseased tissue; so, under proper administration, diseased tissue may be destroyed, while healthy tissue is not affected. Radiation from radium is capable of destroying the bacteria which cause cholera, typhus, anthrax, and similar diseases. Radiumtherapy has come to be an important aid in the war on human ailments.

The work of Professor Curie and his wife was chiefly in the field of radioactivity. After the discovery of the radioactive properties of uranium by Henri Becquerel in 1896 Professor and Mme. Curie devoted their entire energies to that field and two years later obtained radium from pitchblende.

In the following years they did a great deal to elucidate the properties of radium. Professor Curie was killed in a street accident in Paris in 1906, and since that time his widow has carried on his work. Both were recipients of many scientific honors, including the Nobel prizes for physics and chemistry. In 1921 Mme. Curie was presented with a gram of radium by the women of the United States, and in 1929 American friends gave her $50,000 with which to purchase radium for the laboratory of Warsaw, her native city.

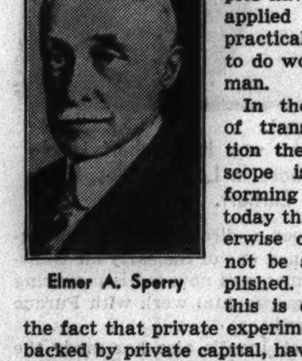
TRANSPORTATION

PRINCIPLES of the gyroscope, a rotating wheel mounted in such a manner that it is free to rotate about any axis, have been known for considerably more than a hundred years. But it is only within recent times that these principles have been applied in a practical way to do work for man.



Elmer A. Sperry

In the field of transportation the gyroscope is performing tasks today that otherwise could not be accomplished. All this is due to the fact that private experimenters, backed by private capital, have pursued the mysteries of the gyroscope and solved a number of them.

The world has as a result the gyro compass for use on ships where the ordinary magnetic compass would be worthless; the gyro stabilizer for ships, which helps keep vessels from rolling and pitching in a heavy sea; the roll and pitch recorder, an instrument that determines a vessel's amplitude of roll and pitch and the periods of these motions; the gyroscopic track recorder, which is used on railroads to determine the condition of roadbeds; the turn and bank indicator, an instrument used in modern airplanes; the gyro pilot, operated electrically from the gyro compass to steer all types of craft; and the gyro control that is used in naval torpedoes.

Among the names of inventors who have labored over the problems of the gyroscope that of Elmer Ambrose Sperry stands out prominently. Sperry, who was born in 1860, began experimenting with electric arc lamps at an early age and established a factory for the manufacture of such lamps in Chicago in 1879. For many years thereafter his principal fields were chemistry and electric illumination. In 1915 he perfected a searchlight which has become the standard of the world's navies and armies.

Sperry's most important inventions, however, were based upon the application of the principles of the gyroscope. His gyro compass was installed on the U. S. battleship Delaware in 1911. This device, unaffected by the great mass of metal on a battleship, has come to be utilized on all war craft, including the submarine. Upon it the entire system of modern gunnery is based. The gyro compass is employed on merchant vessels and even on private yachts.

Electrically sustained gyros for naval torpedoes also are the invention of Sperry. During the World war he developed aerial torpedoes with automatic gyro control.

Additional experiments by Sperry brought forth the gyro pilot for steering ships, the automatic gyro pilot for stabilizing airplanes, the gyroscopic roll and pitch recorder, the gyro stabilizer for vessels at sea, and several other similar devices. The ship stabilizer is used on vessels of the principal navies of the world and also on some of the modern ocean liners.

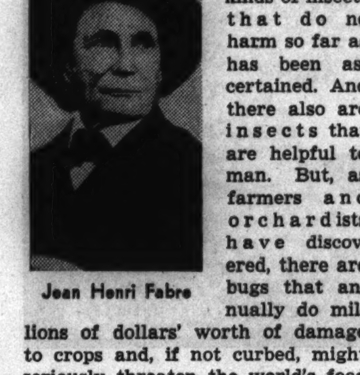
SCIENCE

OUTNUMBERING in species all the rest of the animal kingdom, insects are not to be disregarded by man, even though a bug is only a bug and individually an insignificant specimen of life.



Jean Henri Fabre

As everyone knows, there are certain kinds of insects that do no harm so far as has been ascertained. And there also are insects that are helpful to man. But, as farmers and orchardists have discovered, there are bugs that annually do millions of dollars' worth of damage to crops and, if not curbed, might seriously threaten the world's food supply.

It is essential, therefore, that man should know the life story of every type of insect, its habits and its powers for good or evil. It is an interesting study, however, that relatively few have taken up. As a science entomology presents a limitless field. Entomologists in the main labor in their field for the sheer pleasure of gaining knowledge that will benefit their fellow men and not for any rewards or glories. It is because these entomologists have learned many facts about their tiny subjects of study that agriculture and some other means of human livelihood continue to flourish. The findings of the entomologists have kept within bounds the threat of the bugs.

Many great scientists have been developed in the realm of entomology. The first of these was Aristotle, whose lead in that field was followed for 2,000 years. The foundation of modern entomology was laid in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries by a series of wonderful memoirs. Of these the most famous were M. Malpighi's treatise on the silkworm, published in 1669, and J. Swammerdam's "Biblia Naturæ," which was issued in 1737, fifty years after its author's death.

In recent years the mention of insects always brings to mind among persons who have read much the many volumes written by Jean Henri Fabre, who knew insects better, perhaps, than any other man. He was not a book entomologist, but rather one who knew his subject from years of first-hand study of the tiny forms of life.

Fabre was a Frenchman. He was born in 1823 and died only twenty-one years ago. As a young man he was a teacher, but after taking his doctor's degree in Paris he discovered that his work was to be the study of the life history, habits, and instincts of insects. After his so-called retirement in 1871 he devoted all of his time and energy to his study. He paid but scant attention to books, all of his discoveries being based upon direct observation.

Although the ways of all insects interested Fabre, his principal attention was given to the hymenoptera (bees, wasps, ants, etc.); coleoptera (beetles, weevils); orthoptera (grasshoppers, crickets, etc.); and araneida (spiders). The wasps, with their power to sting their prey in such manner as to paralyze it, revealed to Fabre a high degree of intelligence on the part of the little insects. He wrote a great deal about wasps, bees, and spiders, and his deductions concerning the relation between the animal and the human mind and between entomology and agriculture are to be found in detail in his writings.

HOUSEHOLD

WHERE electric current is available no appliance in the modern home is more keenly appreciated than the vacuum cleaner. It has reduced wear and tear on the family broom, saved the hand-pushed carpet sweeper for the many emergency jobs, such as picking up cigaret ashes, and virtually eliminated the semi-annual beating of rugs in the back yard. The electric vacuum cleaner is not only useful in removing dirt from floor coverings but is employed for cleaning curtains, upholstery, and other objects of homes and offices.

Like countless other inventions that have helped make housework easy, the vacuum cleaner is the creation of private enterprise — the work of men and women who have not been held back by tyrannical rules and regulations.

The vacuum cleaner was invented, so far as can be learned and by his own admission, by H. C. Booth, an engineer of London. He patented his invention in 1901 and named it the vacuum cleaner. All of the early vacuum cleaners were constructed in the form of a portable plant consisting of a pump driven by a gasoline or electric motor. These were mounted with filters on portable trolleys that were taken from house to house or office to office as cleaning was deemed necessary. A long, flexible hose was introduced into the house or office building from the plant, which remained outside. Cleaners of a somewhat similar type now are mounted on motor trucks.

Shortly after the introduction of the portable vacuum cleaner, fixed installations of central plants were established in basements of large buildings, with pipes leading to each room to which could be attached the suction instrument.

The type of vacuum cleaner most commonly employed in the modern home is a development of the first large portable plants and the fixed installations. It, however, is a lightweight, portable device, usually on wheels or rollers, that can be moved from room to room and connected by means of an insulated cord to wall outlet or electric light socket. The machine consists in its principal parts of a nozzle, a motor unit attached to a fan which sucks up the dirt out of rugs, a chamber (usually a collapsible cloth bag) for receiving the dirt, a handle for use in directing the device, and a switch for turning the current on and off. The chamber, or bag, which receives the dirt is called the filter. Often in the case of a cloth bag an inner bag is also supplied. This helps keep the dirt from being forced out into the air when the bag is fully inflated by the action of the fan.

Various types of nozzles are provided for different kinds of work. For cleaning rugs and carpets the nozzle attached directly to the motor unit is used. For reaching into tight places and for cleaning curtains a nozzle is attached to the motor unit by means of a hose.

The Siege of Baler - A Record of Spanish Heroism

How a Handful of Soldiers Held Out for 337 Days

Forgotten Men—They Faced Bullets, Hunger, Disease

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

DISTANT booming of heavy guns puts hope into the hearts of the beleaguered. A searchlight from far at sea plays upon the battered church in which a heroic company of soldiers waits impatiently for rescue.

From the trenches of the foe that hem in the old church and from the native huts in which enemy officers are resting through the thick tropic night there come no sounds. Perhaps the besieging force, hearing the sounds of the guns at sea, is speculating upon their source and wondering how soon it should take to flight—how soon it should move away silently along the native paths through the dripping jungle.

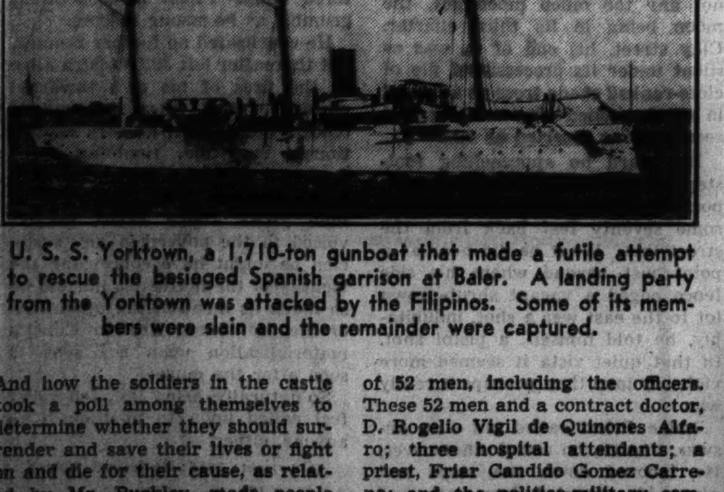
All night long the men of the little company besieged in the church stand by their loopholes gazing anxiously toward the sea. When dawn arrives the firing seems closer, and as the afternoon wears through it comes so near that the crash of the heavy guns shakes the old church on its foundations. The officer in the church orders his men to fire three volleys from their rifles in an effort to attract the attention of those upon the vessel that had flashed its searchlight beam upon them in the night.

The firing moves away. After a while it is heard no more. Another night closes in on the forgotten men in the little church. Two of them climb into its tower and wave long bamboo poles upon the ends of which are burning rags. No use. The vessel has passed beyond the mouth of the bay and far down the coast, leaving to their fate the gallant defenders of the church.

When the American gunboat Yorktown brought a few hours of hope to the Spanish garrison besieged by Filipino insurrectionists in the seacoast town of Baler the siege had been in progress 291 days. For 46 more days it was to continue, until finally the besieged force was completely out of provisions and was forced to capitulate or die of hunger.

The siege of Baler was not an important operation from the military standpoint It was too far away from the civilized world and too obscure to attract any great attention, but its story still is one that provides a lesson in patriotic devotion to duty. The names of the men who participated in that hopeless fight against enemies who greatly outnumbered them, and against hunger, disease, and filth, may be forgotten in years to come, but their valiant deeds ever will be remembered.

They were Spaniards. That is sufficient to show that they were courageous men. No matter what is said about Spain as a fighting nation, it must be admitted that the Spaniard individually is a brave soldier. This has been proved again in the present civil war in Spain. Readers of newspapers are familiar with the siege of the old castle and military academy, the Alcazar in Toledo, where 1,500 rebels under Colonel Moscardo fought off for week after week the attacks of a superior loyalist force until, last Friday the ancient fortress was blown up by enemy mines. How the priest with compassion in his heart went to the commander of the besieged force and implored him to surrender in order to save the lives of the men, women, and children cooped up in the ancient castle was told to the waiting world by Henry Buckley, one of The Chicago Tribune's war correspondents in Spain.



U. S. S. Yorktown, a 1,710-ton gunboat that made a futile attempt to rescue the besieged Spanish garrison at Baler. A landing party from the Yorktown was attacked by the Filipinos. Some of its members were slain and the remainder were captured.

And how the soldiers in the castle took a poll among themselves to determine whether they should surrender and save their lives or fight on and die for their cause, as related by Mr. Buckley, made people here in America pause in amazement at the courage of the Spaniards. The women and children were still in the Alcazar when the loyalists' mines completed the wreckage resulting from weeks of bombardment.

The siege of Baler in some respects was similar to the siege of the Alcazar. Priests played an important part in each. In each Spanish bravery was carried to glorious heights.

Modern Spain is a topsy-turvy land. Its politicians are scheming opportunists and its country is in chaos. In fact, Spain has little now of which to be proud except the valor of its people.

In a far-away corner of the Philippine archipelago, on the east coast of the island of Luzon, stands the town of Baler, walled in by mountains on the landward side and facing the vast expanse of the Pacific—a lonely, isolated place. Although only about 125 miles from Manila, it was difficult to reach from the capital in the nineties, when the Filipino rebels were at war with the government forces.

In the summer of 1897, when Baler's entire defending force consisted of a garrison of five men, the politico-military commandant of the state of El Principe, of which Baler was the capital, sent word to Manila to rush more men to guard the town. Fifty soldiers under Lieut. Don José Mota were dispatched to Baler. On the morning of Oct. 5, 1897, this force was attacked by insurrectionists. Many of its number were slain. The survivors fortified themselves in the old church—the same church later to be the center of a three months' siege and still later of the memorable siege of eleven months which is the subject of this article.

Two days after the attack on Mota's force a steamship put in at Baler. The captain of the vessel saw bodies of slain Spaniards on the beach, heard the story of the attack, and steamed away to Manila for aid. One hundred men under Capt. Don Jesus Roldan Maizonada were sent to the relief of Baler. They arrived there on Oct. 17. The troops that were relieved departed for Manila two days later, and then began the three months' siege of Captain Roldan's company. On Jan. 23, 1898, a force of 400 men under Major Genova arrived at Baler almost simultaneously with the news that the Spaniards and the Filipinos had signed a peace treaty at Biacna Bato.

With conflict on the island apparently at an end, the Spanish authorities determined to withdraw Major Genova's battalion from Baler and replace Roldan's company there with a new detachment of soldiers. This detachment, which was under the command of Second Lieutenants Don Juan Alonso Zayas and Don Saturnino Martin Cerezo, consisted of 52 men, including the officers. These 52 men and a contract doctor, D. Rogelio Vigil de Quinones Alfaro; three hospital attendants; a priest, Friar Candido Gomez Carreno; and the politico-military commandant of the state of El Principe, Capt. Don Enrique de Las Morenas y Fossi, were destined to undergo terrible hardships during the 337-day siege of the church in Baler. A number died of wounds and disease. A few deserted. Two were executed for traitorous acts. And 33 came through the ordeal of the siege alive.

The soldiers under Lieutenants Zayas and Cerezo and the newly appointed governor of the state of El Principe, Captain de Las Morenas, departed from Manila during the second week of February, 1898. They went by boat up the Pasig river into the Laguna de Bay, continuing to Santa Cruz, where they disembarked and continued on foot, passing through Magdalena, Majayjay, and other villages. Finally they reached Mauban, on the coast, after a 25-mile march through the jungles that consumed two days. They were picked up by a transport at Mauban and taken by sea to Baler, a crude town of native huts surrounding a few buildings erected by early Spaniards, most important of which was the old church.

Genova's battalion and the company under Roldan departed from Baler on the transport that had brought the replacements. Lieutenant Cerezo, the only officer who survived the historic siege, later in his account of that siege wrote:

"The departure of the transport is in reality the first scene, as it were, of the tragedy. . . . Those rations that had been left for us on the beach were the last we were to receive. With these and those stored in the church we were to face a long siege. Who could have believed that not one man, not one cartridge, not one sack of biscuit were we to receive from our army?

"Our supply of ammunition was not scanty, but the same could not be said of the rations. When all had been brought in we could see how greatly damaged they were; not only on account of the circumstances under which they had been landed and brought in, but also because of the place of storage, which was exceedingly damp and cramped and which lacked ventilation and sunlight. Besides, we did not bring a great many with us, and Genova's force, with its daily consumption of rations for 400 men, had about used up the best articles, leaving us only the damaged and the unserviceable."

It should be remembered that when the Spaniards under Zayas and Cerezo landed at Baler the regions thereabout, and in fact the whole island, were in a comparative state of calm as a result of the peace declaration. The soldiers and their officers did not know that hostilities soon would be resumed. Also it should be remembered that when the detachment went ashore at that lonely post on the Pacific (Feb. 12, 1898) the U. S. S. Maine still was riding safely at anchor in Havana harbor. It was not destroyed until three days later and there was as yet, of course, no Spanish-American war.

Captain de Las Morenas and the officers in command of the detachment were eager to win the friendship of the Filipinos in the region of Baler, a majority of whom were members of the Tagalog tribe.

Little of importance transpired at the station of Baler until April, when it was learned there by the Spaniards that the natives were recruiting in nearby pueblos for a renewal of hostilities. During the month of May word came to the men in the isolated post that the United States and Spain were at war and that Commodore Dewey had defeated the Spanish squadron in Manila bay.

The natives gradually grew sullen and then threatening. On June 30 a group of them fired upon a Spanish patrol as it was marching across a bridge on the west side of the town. The Spanish troops there immediately took up a defensive position in the old church. The siege was on.

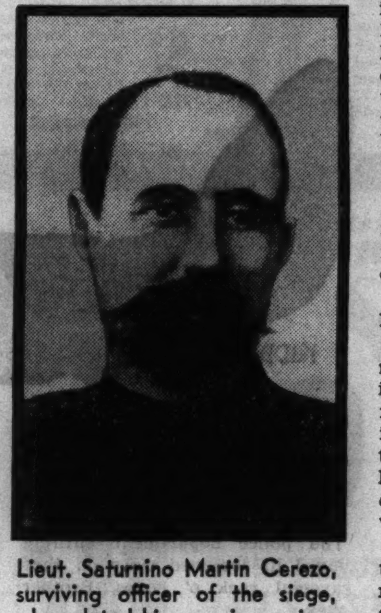
Filipinos from the surrounding territory swarmed to Baler, and under the command of one Calixto Villacorta they invested the little church that had been turned into a fort. They constructed a series of trenches about the place and utilized a number of the native huts as positions from which to fire on the church. Villacorta demanded the surrender of the church, and even a priest was called upon to use his influence to obtain the surrender. Friar Leoncio Platere, a colleague of Friar Carreno, wrote to Captain de Las Morenas, urging him to abandon Baler. The besieged force determined to hang on until rescued.

The Filipinos were well armed and had a certain knowledge of military tactics. Their marksmanship was excellent, but the Spaniards were well protected by the thick cement walls of the church. It was not long, however, until the zinc roof of the church was badly riddled by gunfire. The Filipinos had provided themselves with a few small cannon that wrought considerable damage at short range.

But the enemy in the trenches was not the greatest danger. Before the siege had been in progress many weeks disease appeared among the men. Dysentery rendered a number of them almost helpless. And, still more frightful, that mysterious ailment beri-beri began to claim its victims. The priest, Carreno, was its first victim. He died on Sept. 25. The beleaguered men knew not how to combat the deadly malady, for, it should be noted, there was no general knowledge then that beri-beri was caused by a diet of rice. The Spaniards ate polished rice, acknowledged now by medical science to be the cause of the disease, until their supply of that food ran out, and then fell back on palay, unhulled rice. The besieged men attributed the disease to some unseen agent in the humid air or to the moisture in the ground. The efforts they made to fight the fatal ailment by trying to improve the ventilation in the church and by wrapping their feet in strips of cloth or lether so that they would not come in contact with the ground (their shoes soon were worn out) were pitiful. On Oct. 18 Lieutenant Zayas died of beri-beri, and on Nov. 22 the disease took Captain de Las Morenas. Still others died of beri-beri and dysentery. And yet the siege went on.

Several times the natives attempted to assault the church. Once they got so near that they were able to rear a ladder against its north wall in an effort to set fire to it. At another time they reached the wall of the corral on the west side of the church and fired through its loopholes on the Spaniards as the latter went to their newly dug well for water.

The Spaniards, on the other hand, attempted sorties. In one of these they managed to set fire to some of the native huts closest to the church and to seize some fruit and vegetables that hung from trees and vines near by. These edibles had tempted them from time to time. They were greatly in need of such sort of food. Later, when their rations were almost exhausted, they shot several carabao that had wandered in from the native lines to the no man's land between the native trenches and the church. The carcasses of a couple of these animals were procured by the Spaniards at the risk of their lives, and the besieged force for a few days feasted on fresh meat. But the natives soon saw to it that no more carabao grazed near the old church.



Lieut. Saturnino Martin Cerezo, surviving officer of the siege, who related his experiences in a book that has been translated into English.

The Filipinos brought up a fairly modern cannon to use against the Spaniards. All the while the defenders of the church depended upon rifle fire to keep the enemy at a distance. Once, however, they experimented with artillery fire. There were several obsolete cannon in the old church. The Spaniards secured one of these at a loophole (there were no mountings), filled it with explosives taken from rifle cartridges and rockets, and fired it. The cannon bounded back in its recoil across the room in which it was fired and almost tore a hole through the opposite wall. The attempt was not repeated.

The siege wore on through the weary months. The men in the church were dying of disease and wounds. All the while the enemy was being reinforced. From time to time new native officers arrived to take command of the besieging army.

Word came to the Spaniards, in the form of letters and old newspapers, that the American force in the Philippines had defeated the Spanish army and that the islands had been turned over to the United States. But Lieutenant Cerezo refused to believe this information. He thought the Filipinos were attempting to trick him into surrendering.

On April 17, 1899, came the effort of the United States gunboat Yorktown to relieve the garrison at Baler. The vessel put in close to shore near the town, threw a number of shells from the six guns of its main battery at the native villages along the beach, played its searchlight upon the jungles, and sent a landing party of 17 men ashore. Those of the landing party who were not killed by the fire of the natives were taken prisoner. The Yorktown steamed away without having rendered aid to the little garrison in the church.

On June 2 Lieutenant Cerezo finally was convinced that the Spanish government had abandoned the Philippines—along with him and his little force. His food supplies were exhausted. There was nothing left to do but surrender. Just prior to this he had contemplated making a break with his survivors and trying to fight through the enemy lines. He had ordered two would-be deserters shot as a preliminary to this attempt to escape. There was sadness in the officer's heart as the executions were carried out.

Referring later to the executions, Lieutenant Cerezo wrote:

"It was a terrible and painful measure, which I could have taken immediately on discovering the facts, and which I ought to have imposed without further delay when the desertion was attempted; which I had continued to delay with the desire and hope that someone else would decide it and end it. . . ."

When the garrison moved out of the church there were left only 33 men, including the lieutenant, the doctor, and one of the hospital attendants. The prisoners were taken across country to the seat of the Filipino government at Tarlak. From there they were taken to Bacolor, near San Fernando, where they were placed under the protection of American authorities, put on a train, and sent to Manila. On July 20 they boarded a ship for Spain, and on Sept. 1 they arrived at Barcelona, to be made much of as heroes.

(The foregoing account is based on the book "Under the Red and Gold—the Siege of Baler," by Don Saturnino Martin Cerezo.)

Judge Priest Turns Detective

By Irvin S. Cobb

As Judge Priest, at Night, Awaits an Expected Caller, a Pistol Shot Shatters the Stillness of the Shadowed Streets—the Murderer Has Struck Again

THE STORY TO DATE

Judge Priest promises pretty young Virginia Landrum, daughter of wealthy parents in a small Kentucky town, that he will win her father's approval of her sweetheart, Wally Bledsoe. Next morning Virginia has disappeared. Traces of a struggle in the swamp lands of Buzzard's Tail tell she had been abducted by two men. Bailey Reynolds, Mrs. Landrum's nephew, offers his assistance in the search. Judge Priest privately follows clews of his own apart from Chief of Police Mallory. Wally Bledsoe can't be found for several days. When he returns from a camping trip Judge Priest satisfies himself the boy isn't guilty and prevents his arrest. The judge has Wally and Sherif Giles Birdsong do some secret investigating for him. Gabe Pitts, mulatto servant at the Landrum home, tells the judge he has discovered a clew and will call at his home that night, when he is frightened off by Brother Coxey, eccentric cult leader, befriended by the Landrums. Next day Gabe Pitts has disappeared. A farmer brings a message to Mr. Landrum, supposedly from Virginia, which he says he was paid to deliver. Gabe Pitts is found murdered.

INSTALMENT V.

"HOW was Gabe killed, Giles?" asked Judge Priest.

"Shot in the back of the head. The bullet's still inside his skull. Look's like a .32-caliber did the work. It was done at close range; there are powder burns on the scalp. You know that old flooded gravel pit on the south of the Cherokee highway about three-quarters of a mile this side of the Landrum place and about fifty yards back from the road, behind a little strip of waste pasture land? Well, the body had been dragged across that patch of ground—we found the marks through the weeds, but there wasn't any use lookin' for footprints in such a place — and then it had been heaved into that pit.

"Here's the way I reconstruct the thing: This here Gabe Pitts, havin' waited until it was good and dark, slipped off from his job and was hoofin' it east, meaning to turn off into Buzzard Tail just on ahead, when the killer rose up from ambush behind him and let him have it right through the brain. So, if I'm right, he never got down into Buzzard Tail at all. Still, just to be on the safe side, I searched the corpse. Nothin' in the pockets but a dollar and twenty cents in change and a mess of the kind of junk a darky naturally would have — rabbit's foot, cigarets, old rusty pocket knife—truck like that. But where does all this leave us, would you say?"

"Giles," quoth Judge Priest, "I'd say it leaves us where we've got to stir our stumps to see that whutever's printed in tonight's paper will support the supposition that this here obscure darky's assassination wuz nothin' more than the outcome of a row with some unknown member of his own race. And the less the paper has to say about him havin' worked lately fur the Landrum family the better fur our purposes. I'll undertake to handle that detail."

Evidently Judge Priest had influence with the publisher of the Evening News, because the tragedy of the gravel pit rated but little space in that night's issue.

Under the subtitle "Gabriel Pitts, Colored, Deceased" the old judge presently made another entry to bring his sheaf of notes up to date. Two hours later he unlocked the drawer, meanwhile having fulfilled his promise to drop in on Landrum at the latter's home; and he took the sheets out, and to the bottommost page he added a final paragraph, and this paragraph he punctuated with a big, triumphant exclamation point.

"Gettin' somewheres at last!" He said it aloud, since there was none there to hear him.

On Saturday sundry lesser chapters were written into the scroll of the Landrum kidnaping case — to wit, as follows:

A coroner's jury held a perfunctory and hurried session over the remains of one unimportant Gabe Pitts, the verdict being "Death by a gunshot wound at the hands of a party or parties unknown." The account of the inquest as published in the evening paper was even briefer than the inquest had been. Without becoming known in the transaction, the late employer of the deceased, Mr. G. W. Landrum, arranged for the funeral and paid the bills for it.

By radio and by the news associations and by the staf correspondents of various big city papers, who since the story "broke" had been flocking into town, this statement was broadcast throughout the nation: That, at the urgent request of the family, no move against any suspects would be undertaken by constituted authorities or law enforcement officers anywhere until the parents of Virginia Landrum had full opportunity to establish contact with her captors; this truce, this policy of hands off by all and sundry, to prevail also until the prisoner had been released. It furthermore was set forth that violation of this pact by anyone, however well intentioned, might result in the death of Virginia Landrum.

Chief of Police Mallory went about proclaiming that this step was merely a reprieve for the real malefactors — namely, the members of the Broderick group—and that as soon as the ransom had been paid over and the young lady restored to her people and the ban lifted he would do things and reveal things calculated to rock the continent. Being pressed for particulars, he shook his head; his look, though, was most portentous, his manner confident.

The police department entirely relaxed its loosened clasp on that prayerful rack o' bones, Brother Coxey.

In every church in town prayers were said on Sunday morning for the safe restoration of Virginia Landrum. Judge Priest had meant to attend the services at St. Gregory's, where the Landrums were communicants and the rector a fellow member of his in the sorely diminished roster of Gideon K. Irons camp, U. C. V., but as he got up from breakfast, suddenly he smote his brow and vilified himself scandalously.

"Well, ain't you the lether-headed old idiot!" he berated, addressing blank space. "How come I didn't think of that before?"

Having thought of it, whatever it was, he lost no time in rectifying his sin of omission. He made Jeff stop the car at the hotel long enough to pick up one of the secret service men, Hostetter by name, and then they drove to the residences of first one and then the other of the heads of the telegraph offices — Western Union and Postal—and to either of these gentlemen Hostetter showed his credentials, and Judge Priest, under pledge of secrecy, explained the purpose of the calls, and the final upshot was that the better part of the forenoon was spent in going over files, and about noon Judge Priest took back with him to Clay street attested duplicates of divers original telegrams, which he locked safely away. He did not take them forth again until that evening after young Wally Bledsoe returned out of the north, all travel-stained. But that's getting ahead of the story.

ABOUT three o'clock, while he was still heartily on the last lap of his customary Sunday afternoon nap, came in an excited voice an urgent summons from somebody down at the postoffice. An air mail letter, postmarked Detroit and addressed to G. W. Landrum, had just been received. In accordance with a prearranged plan, a clerk had been watching for just such a letter. Instantly he had called the Landrum home, and Landrum had asked him to call Judge Priest also and tell the judge that he was immediately to be, please, at Bailey Reynolds' office in the Planters' Bank building, diagonally across from the postoffice; that Landrum and Reynolds were rushing to town now and would meet him there. And the clerk would be there, too, with the letter, he added.

Judge Priest had much the shorter distance to travel, but the Landrum car, driven at breakneck speed, had the start of him, so when he wheezily entered the others were already in Reynolds' office and the envelope had been opened and its contents had been read. With a shaking hand Landrum thrust it at Judge Priest. It was short—a few typewritten paragraphs on a single sheet. Its purport was to this effect:

(a) The girl was perfectly well and would remain so, provided every requirement hereinafter set forth strictly and absolutely was adhered to.

(b) A cash sum of one hundred thousand dollars was the price demanded for her safe return, payment to be made in advance of Virginia Landrum's release.

(c) This sum was to be made up of federal reserve banknotes, divided into specified proportions of five, ten, and twenty dollar denominations, the bills to be unmarked, not numbered consecutively, and with indiscriminatingly varied serial initialings.

(d) The messenger chosen to transfer this money must be a discreet and trustworthy individual, one not of unusual or striking personal appearance; a person, moreover, in the confidence of the girl's parents, but likewise one who since the kidnaping had not been prominent in the printed accounts.

(e) As soon as the ransom was ready, and that positively must be in one week's time from the time of posting this letter, the emissary must bring the money in person to Detroit. Unaccompanied, he was then to go to the Peninsular hotel in that city, registering as "Benjamin B. Franklin of Franklin, Tenn.," must take a single room on an upper floor, and remain there, absolutely alone, until communicated with by an agent of the kidnapers, the mere fact of his registering being sufficient notice to the person or persons who, as soon as was deemed convenient and expedient, would deal with him in the preliminary phases of the transaction.

(f) In addition to the money he must bring with him, for delivery with the money, a signed waiver from the parents of the girl in which they absolutely pledge themselves to make no effort now or hereafter to ascertain the identities of those who had carried off their daughter, and in the event of these identities subsequently being ascertained in other quarters, further and solemnly guaranteeing neither to sanction the arrest nor aid in the prosecution of any parties directly or indirectly implicated.

(g) As soon as the money and the pledge had been turned over to the accredited representative of the kidnapers, "B. B. Franklin" would be informed as to the whereabouts of the girl and also receive full directions which within twenty-four hours would bring him to her, or, the case might be, bring the girl to him. Until then the good faith of the kidnapers must be taken for granted, but the agent dealing with "B. B. Franklin" would bring to their first meeting convincing proof that he served the kidnapers and also proof that the girl was at that moment in the custody of the kidnapers.

(h) No outsider was to be informed that this ultimatum had been received or that negotiations were actually under way looking to her return; from the time he left home no one was to trail "B. B. Franklin" or guard him or watch over him in any fashion whatsoever; no hint, no suggestion, no instigation, no intimation of any sort whatsoever was to be divulged to private or public law enforcement officers either before the recovery of the girl or at any time thereafter.

(i) Any violation, witting or unwitting, in any essential detail of any of these orders or all of them positively would mean the immediate death of Virginia Landrum.

There was no signature.

Judge Priest finished reading all this and without a word stood staring at the others over the rims of his spectacles.

"It sounds authentic—comes from the identical quarter where we were expecting it to come from," said Landrum, answering the unspoken question in the old man's eyes. "But, after all, it might be a hoax. Some perverted practical joker or some outside crook hoping to extort this money from me on false pretenses by taking advantage of my credulity and my natural anxiety—it might be either of those."

"So it mout, but my offhand guess is this here is orthodox and regular," stated Judge Priest. "Whut would you say, Bailey?"

"Lacking evidence to the contrary, I'd be inclined to agree with you, Judge."

"Well, mebbe there's a way of testin' it—in a way. Ef this here page of paper should correspond to the page of paper on which the fust communication wuz written — the one that come over frum Illinois last Thursday — then I'd say that would seem practically to clench the case."

Before he finished the sentence Landrum was producing from a wallet a folded sheet. The police had photostats of it; this was the original. And the two sheets matched perfectly — same dimensions, same texture, same watermarking.

"I'm satisfied," said Landrum. "And I'll play the game out with these scoundrels according to their own schedule. I'll keep the faith with them, just so they give me my child back. If this weren't Sunday we could start getting that cash together right now. But we can start at it bright and early tomorrow morning. But who's to take it there and turn it over to them? That's the next question for quick decision."

"It shorely is," agreed Judge Priest. "Well, ef you're askin' me, my ticket is already made up and the nominations closed."

"Who?"

"The only man that properly answers to these here plans and specifications. Somebody that's close to your family, and you can't get much closer than by blood ties. Somebody that's devoted to you and yit, due to modesty, ain't been too conspicuous in this affair, but has more or less kept in the background whilst renderin' valuable aid. Somebody that's right alongside, G. W.—your wife's nephew, Bailey Reynolds here."

"Of course!" exclaimed Landrum. "The ideal choice." He laid an arm about Reynolds' slender shoulders.

"I'd rather not," protested Reynolds. "It's a fearful responsibility. If anything should slip, anything go wrong, why, I'd never forgive myself, that's all." In his perturbation he pulled off his nose glasses and nervously polished them. "Try to think of somebody else who's suitable, Judge Priest, please! I—I've never had any intercourse with this sort of people. I mean with open and avowed lawbreakers, desperate men. I belong in a real estate office—that's where I belong."

"Who else kin you think of?" demanded Judge Priest.

"Why, you, suh. As a judge on the bench you've been dealing with the criminal classes most of your life. I'll do anything I can—have been glad to do what little I could. But not this, please!"

But neither Judge Priest nor Landrum would listen to him. Together they argued him down, battered his demurrers flat. At the end of five minutes he reluctantly had consented to undertake the ultimate negotiations.

Once committed to the venture, he showed commendable zeal, and with it capacity for organization. He was the sort who would have timetables on his desk. He did have. He spread them out, consulting schedules. As soon as the cash was ready he could start.

"Why pester with trains," objected Judge Priest, "when an airplane is swifter? You won't be so liable to attract unwelcome and mebbe dangerous attentions, flyin'."

"But I've never flown, suh."

"I have—and liked it. You leave that part to me, son. Memphis is the nearest place, I reckin, where we kin hire a private plane. I'll book you a fast machine and a reliable licensed pilot frum there, and he kin flit up here when we need him and land right behind G. W.'s house—there's a natural landin' field there—and you two kin slip off without anybody, hardly, bein' the wiser fur it."

The old man had a masterful, overbearing way about him. So on that basis the tactics were planned and the planners parted. And when the chief strategist got home, after having stopped at Ye Ole New Era Eatery for a light snack, it being Aunt Dilsey's Sunday night out, there was the just-returned Wallie Bledsoe awaiting him.

"Well, son," declared Judge Priest, "jedgin' frum your advance reports by wire, you've fetched home the middlin' meat, shore 'nuff! And you've certainly moved fast and covered a heap of ground. I've got some news fur you of the latest developments, but that kin wait till I see how you've come out."

"It was your work from this end that facilitated things," said the youth. "Having that young Irishman meet me at Columbus, O., saved a side trip on to Toledo. And the prison staf were most helpful, thanks to you and the government."

While he was saying this he was undoing the flap of a portfolio. From it he extracted a fattish sheaf of inclosures — various official looking documents; an array of notes, with a rough index in his own handwriting; a number of printed forms, their blanks filled in with typewritten entries; and four photographs, profile and full face, obviously police-made photographs.

Having completed a swift review of these articles, Judge Priest walked over and shook his emissary's hand and hugged him warmly.

"Son," he said, "I can't begin to tell you how thankful I am—don't know whut we'd 'a' done without you. And ef I'm one to say, this here is goin' to do more to completely reëstablish you in George Landrum's good graces—yes, and in his affections—than a whole carload of promises about you bein' a reformed character would've."

"I'd like to go to see him right away."

"Don't do it—not jest yit. There's quite some things that not even George Landrum knows, and the time ain't ripe fur him to hear 'em yit. In due season he'll be told everythin', or else he'll be findin' it all out fur himself. Ez soon ez I finish tellin' you about what's jest come off you run along and wash the cinders out of your hair and tell your mammy and pappy fur me that I'm proud of their boy and owe him my eternal gratitude to boot."

It seemed there had to be an inevitable delay on the part of the local banks about assembling the requisite amount in bills of the sorts specified in the ransom note, especially as the receipt of the note was, of course, being kept as a profound secret among those within certain intimate inner confines. Regarding the use of a plane there also were vexatious complications. Finally Tuesday afternoon word came that possibly some time that night, and surely by Wednesday noon at the very latest, the pilot would be ready to bring his two-seater up to Kentucky.

It was Tuesday night about ten o'clock and almost bedtime for Judge Priest. But he put off going upstairs for a little while longer. He was restless; had a foreboding that something was about to occur.

Tomorrow would make a full week since Virginia Landrum disappeared, and for nearly all of that week, with an increasing intensity Judge Priest had been conscious of the beating in of all these countless thousands of psychic waves upon him and about him. Perhaps that was why he felt so jumpy tonight.

For occupation he got out his private dossier, but hardly had he spread the documents and the photographs upon his desk top when the telephone bell tingled, sounding especially sharp and insistent in the brooding quiet which filled this rambling, peaceful old house. Jeff should be sound asleep by now. Anyhow, Jeff's quarters were out at the back in the kitchen wing. So the judge went to answer the call. "Hello," he said. "Priest talkin'."

Almost the very first words which came over the wire acted upon him as a galvanic shock would have done, making him press the receiver closer to his ear, that he might miss not a single syllable.

"Judge Priest," a familiar voice said, "this is Bailey Reynolds. I'm speaking from my office. Sorry if I disturbed you, but this is most important. Tip Zeiner—you know who he is, of course—is here with me, listening to what I'm saying to you. He has something to divulge—something of the utmost consequence to him, and something, he claims, which has a direct and vital bearing upon the very matter about which we've all been so concerned. I have advised him that you rather than the Landrums or anyone else are the person he should consult with. Is all that quite clear to you, suh?"

"Absolutely; go on!"

"He wants to see you now—at once. Will that be convenient for you, suh?"

"You know blame well it will. How soon kin he get here?"

"In the time it'll take him to walk from my office to your house—say, seven or eight minutes."

"I'll be waitin'! You comin' with him?"

"No, suh, not if you don't mind."

"Tell him to hurry!" snapped Judge Priest, and hung up.

He stood for a little spell, tugging at his chin beard. Tip Zelner, eh? Tip Zelner, former blacksmith and general ne'er-do-well, living alone out in the country but given to spending many of his working hours in doubtful company about town. Where and how, if at all, did he enter into the still unsolved major problems of this mystery? Here for a fact was a new factor.

Judge Priest went and awakened Jeff and told him to put on his clothes in the event that a third party might be required to attest an affidavit, say, or witness a sworn statement.

HE CAME back to the living room, fidgety with a mounting impatience. He looked at the old wall clock — thirty-nine past ten. Bailey Reynolds had telephoned at right around the half hour. Pretty near time now?

He stepped out onto the front porch, peering into the gloom. It was a clear night but a dark one, the stars not especially bright and not any too much moonlight, the moon being in its third quarter. Clay street, his end of it, was as silent under its processional file of close-ranked shade trees as a lateral in an abandoned mine working, and seemingly as deserted as one.

He heard no approaching footsteps on the rutted brick pavement, possibly because his house stood some seventy feet back from the street line. What he did hear at a point just beyond where his side fence edged a vacant shrub-grown lot to the east was a shot, indubitably, he told himself, a pistol shot. In that quiet vista it seemed more violently loud than perhaps it really was.

Judge Priest called out — no answer, though, no sound whatsoever. He labored down the steps and along his graveled door path and out of his front gate and down the sidewalk. Just beyond his property line a patch of dense shadow met a spectral dappling of palish gleam, and right here a man's shape lay face upward upon the bricks. As he came up to it the legs drew up convulsively once, twice, three times, then straightened down widely apart, like a pair of calipers, and he could see them quiver as tremors ran up them from the toes.

Judge Priest bent and stared. There was light enough for him to make out the face. He recognized it — Tip Zeiner's. The eyes were blinking as though Tip Zelner were dazedly wondering what had befallen him. But Judge Priest knew. As a young man he had served four years as a private in the Confederate army, seeing much active campaigning, and his maturer years had been spent in a community of high-spirited, pistol-packing citizens. He knew Tip Zeiner was as good as dead, and, sure enough, as he stood over him Tip Zeiner gave one small sniffling sound and did die.

Judge Priest did not lift the body. But he knelt by it and after a moment made a painstaking search of the pockets, even undoing the shirt front. Apparently, if specifically he counted upon discovering some object of interest on the dead man's person, he was disappointed, for what he found he restored to the pockets.

HE HEAVED himself upon his feet and stood harkening intently. Except for his own quick breathing he heard nothing, from up the street or from down it or from anywhere at all.

He started back the way he had come and right at the gate met Jeff, running out half dressed and with no shoes on, so that in his stockinged feet he padded very quietly. Indeed, Judge Priest practically bumped into him before he ever saw him. As they met, breast on, Jeff's eyes widened and he began staring over his master's shoulder and on beyond, and he pointed with a quivering hand and tensely whispered, "Look, Jedge, look behind you!"

Judge Priest spun about. Almost above the sprawled form on the pavement yonder reared a gaunt figure indifferently silhouetted in the moonlight. But even so Jeff knew those flowing whiskers, that great shock of long, tangled hair, that skeletonlike body, that craned and spindly neck. It couldn't be anyone else. It couldn't be anybody but Brother Coxey, the crack-brained zealot from the briar patch on Chickasaw highway.

"S-sh!" warned Judge Priest. The pair of them stood and watched. The eccentric squatted and examined the body, very briefly, though. Then he stood erect again and looked toward the pair at the gate, and, throwing both bony arms aloft, he waved them in a movement which might betoken defeat or despair or possibly satisfied vengeance. It all depended on how you diagnosed the gesture. Jeff diagnosed it one way, Judge Priest perhaps another.

For possibly ten seconds — it seemed an age to Jeff — Brother Coxey remained in this posture. Then he dropped his arms, sang out shrilly some inarticulate outcry the purport of which Jeff could not catch, and at a quick but shambling gait made off, going eastward, toward downtown and the business district. He vanished as silently as any wraith.

"Come on, Jeff, we better call the police," bade Judge Priest, quite in a matter-of-fact tone. "There's been a man killed."

"Who — who is it, suh?" stammered the dumfounded Jeff. "I heared the shot, but I 'lowed fur a minute it must be an automobile backfirin'."

"I know who it is all right," answered the old man. "And, moreover, unless I'm woefully mistook, I've got a purty toler'ble good idea ez to why he's been killed. Come on, let's git the police. Looks like here lately people that start fur my house to keep an appointment git fatally stopped on the way," muttered Judge Priest in a petulant grumble as he swung indoors.

He vouchsafed no further remark, but thereafter left Jeff to burn alive in the fires of his own thwarted curiosity. And when a squad of officers did appear, as very expeditiously they did, tumbling forth from an official automobile, Jeff, being present, was astounded to note that Judge Priest neither voiced to the policemen any suspicion he might have concerning the identity of the murderer, nor did he so much as mention the apparition of the cadaverous Brother Coxey's materialization upon the spot so soon after the murder.

So naturally, being Jeff, Jeff didn't feel called upon to mention it to anyone, either.

An Open Letter to George Brent

Dear George: Sometimes we don't like the best things that come our way; we don't see them in their true light, even at times to the extent of considering them as adversity. The coming two years in your life hold real opportunity for you to become more serious, more deep in your understandings and appreciation of character, and thus better able to portray the more subtle rôles. Steer around the too light and frivolous. With best wishes, WYNN.

FEEN-A-MINT THE CHEWING GUM LAXATIVE

Famous Fair Vanishes Through Magic of Wreckers

Gorgeous City of Pleasure a Memory

By WILLIAM O'NEIL

THE weedy odor of a vacant lot has replaced the carnival smell of popcorn and hot dogs in the summer sun. Silence, disturbed only by the occasional call of a workman or the clang of a sledge on steel, has replaced the raucous voices of loud speaker and barker. Motorists on Columbus drive can see the lake again, across what seems to be a tumbled mass of green and piles of sand.

It is difficult now to locate the sites upon which once familiar buildings stood. The open sweep of the drive on the mainland is strange without the straddling blue bulk of the Hall of Science to break the view to the south.

The wrecker's hammer fell first on the Hall of Science on Feb. 11, 1935. A year later almost to the day A Century of Progress Exposition had been torn down in half the time required to build it.

Of all the buildings erected for the World's Fair only three remain. The Administration building, at the end of 14th street on the shore of the lagoon, has been refinished in the interior and now serves as the offices of the Chicago park board.

The gold paint is peeling from the peaked roof of the Lama temple on 16th street, west of where the Hall of Science formerly stood. The building has been given to the Chicago Archæological trust, but whether it will reopen it on its present site as a museum or transport it to Jackson park on a barge has not been determined.

The reproduction of Fort Dearborn, near 27th street on the outer drive, will be reopened by the park district as soon as the work of landscaping the grounds of Burnham park has been completed.

From steel work to light bulbs, the rest of the material that went into the Exposition buildings at the Fair is scattered across the eastern half of the United States. A small section of the General Exhibits building still is standing, but this serves only as a warehouse and will be torn down shortly.

Early in February, 1935, the Exposition authorities opened bids made for the job of tearing down the Exposition buildings. Contracts with private exhibitors, such as the motor companies, required them to remove their own buildings, and most of these already had been removed.

The wrecking contract went to Barker-Goldman-Lubin of Springfield, Ill., when it was discovered that they were offering to pay $28,000 to be allowed to do the job, while other companies demanded sums ranging from $40,000 upward.

Toppling the Sky Ride towers was not the most difficult feature of the wrecking operations, according to A. H. Lubin, president of the wrecking concern. That job took a great deal of calculation, but the actual work was completed in a few seconds.

"You may have thought you were walking across a temporary bridge when you crossed the lagoon at either 16th or 23d street," he said, "but we found out that they would have done pretty well for a permanent job when we came to removing them.

"There were about 1,600 piles in all supporting the two bridges, the great fountain, and the various exhibitors' buildings which were built in connection with the bridges. Each pile was a southern pine log from 60 to 75 feet long which had been driven 40 feet into the mud bottom of the lagoon.

"We went down 22 feet under water with huge chains to get a grip on each pile, but even then the strain almost tore the log in half before we could get it out, as we had agreed to do. Working at top speed, the best we could average was twenty logs a day."

Because the logs were partly ruined, the wrecking company set up a small lumber mill on the shore of the lagoon and cut them up into lumber. This same saving spirit prevailed in all the other wrecking operations — and, incidentally, enabled the company to make a profit on the job, as it was entitled to all salvage.

The pumping equipment in the grand fountain alone had sufficient capacity to supply the daily needs of a city of 1,000,000 people. This was sold, along with 12,000,000 feet of lumber, 8,000,000 feet of wallboard, 20,000 tons of steel, 50 miles of pipe, the fence which inclosed the grounds, some 3,000 floodlights, and 3,000 door checks.

A candy company in Bloomington, Ill., took the southeast wing of the Agricultural building, rearranged the steel work, and made an addition to its factory.

A metal products company in Cicero is using part of the Hall of Science as an addition to its factory.

Many of the model houses which lined the lake shore near 31st street were loaded on barges and towed to new sites in the Indiana dunes.

People who saw the east tower of the Sky Ride fall insisted that they felt a shaking of the ground. Mr. Lubin disputes any such statement. A sensitive seismograph, an instrument which could record an earthquake on the other side of the world, was set up near the tower and revealed no trembling of the ground.

Early plans had called for tearing down the great towers in the reverse of the building order—piece by piece, from the top. It was felt, however, that stress and the weather had undoubtedly loosened some of the rivets and plates and that death for some of the workmen would be the inevitable result. Inasmuch as the company already had decided that the metal in the towers would be good only for scrap, engineers began making plans for wrecking them.

Three hundred tons of cables, stretching from tower to tower, gave sufficient weight and strain to pull the west tower over when the backstays and supporting cables were cut with dynamite explosions. This pulling force was not available when the problem of cutting down the east tower arose.

The wrecking company had made plans literally to cut the legs from under the giant structure by building firebrick cupolas around the north legs of the tower and firing them with fuel oil until the tower toppled of its own weight, when Maj. Lenox R. Lohr, general manager of the Fair, suggested that they use thermite, a mixture which would reach a temperature twice the melting point of steel in twenty seconds.

With 750 pounds of thermite around each of the north legs, ten-foot sections dropped out when the mixture was ignited. Almost human in aspect, the tower buckled to its knees and fell.

As each building was wrecked the parts were taken to the salvage yard that had been established east of the Travel and Transport building on the lake shore. Here broken plasterboard was cut up into marketable pieces, and even the remainder was ground and sold for fertilizer.

Buyers coming to the salvage yard were not the only ones reached for the sale of the material. Aided by an efficient corps of salesmen, the company got approximately a million dollars for the twelve and one-half million that had gone into the cost of the buildings.

Walter Gregory, head of the permanent lake front fair commission, which hopes to retain at least a part of the value to Chicago of A Century of Progress Exposition, said that the board was now awaiting the decision of the army engineers and the state on the construction of permanent bridges across the lagoon at 16th and 23d streets, from the mainland to Northerly Island, before going ahead with the tree planting and landscaping that will precede the erection of the buildings of the permanent fair.

Money for the bridges is available in the six million dollar Works Progress administration grant to the commission, but some civic organizations and yachtsmen are fighting them as a means of stopping the permanent fair plans. Mr. Gregory said he was confident that the permission to erect the bridges would be granted soon.

Scribe Guest at Temple Palace While in Peiping

Finds Mrs. Wm. Calhoun the Perfect Hostess in Lovely Oriental Setting.

By Cousin Eve.

The American ambassador, Nelson Johnson, said it to me, so I can say it: Peiping is not a Chinese city, it is a Mongolian capital, a Tartar town, an outgrowth of Manchu hordes overrunning it in the past. It lies upon an arid plain, behind high gray walls and glorious gates, and I do not yet, after an eventful week, find adequate words for Peiping. To the north lie the mountains, to the west those blue, blue hills called the "Western hills," where for 2,000 years citizens of Peking have worshiped in temples beautiful and intricate as dreams. And where fashionable people today take these same temples for their summer pleasures and gives parties over the week-end.

The American ambassador's family and Mrs. William Calhoun share a great temple on a far blue hill and we are going up this week. To the south lies China, and twenty-four hours away by express train, Nanking, the new capital where our embassy moves in October. The French and German embassies already are there, and the British are going down in the autumn and returning in April, when the Americans, too, will occupy their Peiping compounds during the summer months.

American Setup in Legation Quarter Is Impressive One.

The American setup in the legation quarter is impressive, with half a dozen large stone houses for the ambassador, his counselors and secretaries, a row of attractive looking apartments with gardens for the military, and a large swimming pool. There also are some businesslike brick barracks for the marines, who are numerous enough and husky enough to make even the most timid American tourist feel safe in a foreign land.

The atmosphere of Peiping is rosy, luminous, and at night prodigious stars hang overhead, seeming almost to illuminate its long, long streets and templed avenues, which are otherwise ill lighted. Few of Peiping's streets are paved and sidewalks are just as rare.

There are trains and buses, no taxis whatever, and a cheap system of getting about by rickshaw. These amusing little brassy gocarts, like rocking chairs, are drawn between two shafts by a coolie, who runs and trots most of the time. At first one has a sense of being a burden to a fellow at 7 cents an hour. But after a few days one realizes that he is just another coolie, liking his job. Such pretty, slim Chinese girls ride in rickshaws, such plump men of China waving large fans! And long defiles of tourists, ever welling into Jade street, Flower street, where are exciting shops. Houses of Peiping are mostly of one story.

I am visiting in one of the show houses of Peiping. In the north part of the Tartar city, it dates from the eighteenth century, when it was a beautiful temple in its own gardens, with gods and ceremonial possessions. Now it is the residence of Mrs. William Calhoun, formerly of Chicago, and one time ambassadress to China. The palace is at 10 Ma-Ta-Jen Hotung, a long, narrow, unpaved street between high gray walls. The wall's massive front door, able to stand time and stress, is lackered Chinese red, and studded with huge gold nailheads. The garage door also is red. Mrs. Calhoun met me in the red lacker gate house with ten smiling, white robed men servants ranged behind her. By a second handsomely furnished gate house we reached the great, square paved center court where in summer is centered the life of the house.

Here are grouped the temples. En face is the great main temple, which formerly lodged the god of war, and which now is a most sophisticated living room full of modern and antique elegancies, bowls of tube roses, and opalescent lanterns, under a gorgeously painted raftered roof. To the right of the court is the dining room a long narrow room, beautifully done in old Chinese pieces, screens, side tables, paintings, and again one notices the gorgeous raftered ceiling. On the left of the court is Mrs. Calhoun's own suite. Here, too, are wonderful garderobes finished in brass and many an exquisite old Chinese treasure.

Two Tall Dragon Trees Guard Court Entrance.

To enter the court one passes between two tall dragon trees which in spring are for weeks a mass of pink flowers. Ahead are two great straw mats, one right, one left, each with its cushioned lounging chairs and tables. A screen of pink oleanders, fig trees, and palms marks them as the court dining and reception rooms, respectively.

Trotting back and forth are two little Tibetan lion dogs, most engaging. The life of the court is fascinating. The few nights we dine at home the high awning peng rolls back, and we sup à la belle étoile with only two tiny lanterns to light the mysterious dark court and temples.

Yesterday at the tea hour two charming people, Gen. and Mrs. William H. Crozier, came to say farewell. After seventeen months in Peiping they are going back to Washington via the world. The general, a gay, gallant figure, tall and slim, was full of stories. He saw Peking in 1900 when he was a young officer with the American troops who helped to save the day. Instead of a gaunt and starved lot, he said, the American women came forth smartly attired in pretty clothes.

Mrs. Crozier, charmingly slim and mondaine, wearing exquisite jade jewels, here and in Japan has been making oriental collections, which she intends to present to the new Mellon museum in Washington. A fashionable crowd saw the Croziers off at the airport today.

Property Purchased Fifteen Years Ago by Admiral Tsai.

I have not finished the geography of the temple nor, indeed, its history, which is interesting. The property was bought fifteen years ago by Admiral Tsai, well known in Chicago, to protect his own estate next door. He finally sold it to Mrs. Calhoun and Miss Anne Carrere of New York, changing it into a dwelling at the pleasure of the new owners.

One little temple over the wall has been kept by the priests for the gods, there safely installed. I daresay before sailing I shall have to burn a little incense to propitiate the goddess of the sea.

At the back of the living room runs a long cheerful gallery full of beautiful curios, books, magazines, comfy seats, and Mrs. Calhoun's well equipped desk. The light flows in from two small side courts and terraces, each with its pair of ginko trees, its own lovely small temple. The gallery ends in a huge square salon which once was the abode of the goddess of the sea, but now has the smart world of Peiping cocktailing in it, playing bridge, and dancing from October till the end of May. Mrs. Calhoun keeps Wednesdays from 6 to 8 throughout the season when her guests meet tout Peiping.

On opposite walls of this beautiful salon are two huge kangs or sofas, gorgeously carved, and upholstered in yellow brocade. They belong to a friend, Alexander Kirk, American counsellor at Rome, known here as "Buffy" Kirk. People furnish grandly à la Chinoise, all sorts of temples and palaces. But usually their furniture is too big to take home, so they park it with some kind compatriot.

My temple room is at the right of the salon. I am enchanted with it. The bed is Chinese, a black frame covered with gold brocade and supported on the curly heads of four laughing lions. The south front is all windows. The furniture is Chinese, handsomely brassed. I study the beautiful ceiling much. Above the apricot walls the high cross beams are indigo blue. On top of this apple green, peach, emerald, violet, and black and white mingle in close design. The narrow ribs of the peaked roof are flame and spring green. Never a dull moment under such a roof!

The charm of Peiping for me is the leisurely pace. I like letters and invitations brought by hand. I adore impromptu parties. It is now what we call midsummer at home, and what they call "autumn" in Peiping. Yet the social round continues. Many people, they tell me, still are away at Peitaho beach, but we lunch out every day in charming houses, dine often en ville, and have more cocktail parties and teas than we can manage.

My charming hostess is called "the first lady of Peiping," and her house is a great center for entertaining, distinguished but informal, the most difficult kind. Mrs. Calhoun not only speaks Chinese, but she has a background of diplomatic experience from the old great days of the emperors of China when she was often a guest in "the forbidden city." She also has a wide knowledge of oriental art and culture, and a fascinating understanding of Peiping. Nobody knows as she does the times and seasons to see the marvelous sights of the city.

Mrs. Calhoun Gives Unique Dinner in Scribe's Honor.

One night this week Mrs. Calhoun gave a unique dinner in the most beautiful park of Peiping, Pei-Hai. It was for me, so that I could meet most of the American embassy personnel, and the kind of party one never wants to forget, never could forget. We drove out early to the "north sea lake" and its park, much enlarged and beautified by the Mongol emperor, Kubiai Khan. He raised a hill on an island in the lake, planting it with rare trees. It is the hill on which the white pagoda stands today, and is described by Marco Polo in flowery language. Pei-Hai was the favorite resort of the great emperor, Ch'ien Lung, and also of the dowager empress, Jzu Hsi, who now is being made out by historians about the worst character in all history. Under the Manchus ice carnivals were held here, and skating and jumping meets by picked men. All bumps in the ice were smoothed out with hot irons.

At the little pier our barge was moored, looking too lively, with lanterns ready to be lighted, and half a dozen of Mrs. Calhoun's housemen in white robes beaming over the superb buffet at the stern. Here was the good natured chef, spouting French in the excitement of demonstrating the various chaudfroids, pink crevettes, salads, jellies, and delicacies of the season. We had a roof over us, but otherwise the barge was open, and four boatmen waited on the bank to propel the party. The lake on which we were to embark was smooth as gray satin. Sunset clouds were deeply edged with pink, and around the shores masses of pink lotus flowers were closing firmly for the night.

Many Distinguished Guests Are Present at Gathering.

We were twenty-two in all, including Ambassador and Mrs. Nelson Johnson; Col. and Mrs. Isaac Newell, who have just returned from six months in the United States; Col. and Mrs. Erskine, Lawrence Salisbury of Chicago, secretary of embassy; the George Merrills, the Faretts, and Miss Elizabeth Johnson of Washington, sister of the ambassador. As soon as everyone was seated, the boatmen shoved off, and we were poled dreamily from shore to shore. On all sides were beautiful far vistas of bright lights, of black groups of trees against a waste of sky where 10,000 stars were flashing.

I had the good fortune to be seated next to the American ambassador. In his state deparment days he was called "Chinese Johnson." Now it is the most delightful thing to listen to his reflections on the future of Asia, the destinies of China and Japan. I was absolutely spellbound by the ambassador's intellect and the brilliancy of his mind. Mrs. Johnson, "Jane," as she is called by the colony, was a Wyoming girl who came on a visit to the embassy with her brother some years ago. Mr. Johnson fell in love with the lively young woman from his own state, married her, and she has made a most sympathetic and popular place for herself in the diplomatic set.

Mrs. Johnson Uses Main Hall as Dining and Living Room.

We dined one night this week with the Johnsons in the great gray stone United States embassy. Over across the lawn was the house where Ray and Constance Atherton lived in the old days. The embassy is huge, and Mrs. Johnson uses a corner of the main hall for the salon, another far corner for the dining room.

Later we all went to the theater. It was the first night of "Lady Precious Stream," and we were to see a famous female impersonator, Cheng, next to Meilan Fan, the greatest in China. We occupied two boxes upstairs, and I thanked all the gods and little fishes when we were safely out alive, as it was the sketchiest and most crowded place in which ever I was.

One finds many an old friend in Peiping. Residing here in a charming apartment is Mrs. Warrington Cottman of Baltimore who came out a year ago to marry her daughter, Marie-Claire, to Brice Goldesborough of the embassy. Mrs. Cottman is a fascinating woman, gay and brilliant, and a sister of Charles Howard of Winnetka.

Another most attractive woman who was in Chicago only last winter with the Laurance Armours and Mrs. Barney Goodspeed, is Mrs. Henry Hussey, formerly of Kansas City. I lunched with her one day in her large house with its many inner courts and army of white robed servants. It was a smart and interesting party. One of the guests who intrigued me much was Mme. Dan, a young and pretty sister of the famous Princess Der Ling, and the equally noted and much younger Mrs. White. Mme. Dan is slim and enigmatic, and recently has gone into the business of designing evening gowns from the brocades of her ancestors. Chinese women are thin as eels and they bob their black locks which gives them a rather childish air.

After lunch Mrs. Hussey led us into a large court and here we met her flock of pigeons. Many of them had whistles tied to their feathers, and when they flew up and circled like a fleet of airplanes, the most enchanting music seemed to come from the spheres above. Mrs. Hussey is pretty, alive, full of ideas. The pigeons, I thought, became her vastly as pets, as they are far more poetical than lap dogs.

Paris Pattern Jacket Frock Has Glamor and Practicality

No. 5155—The Paris pattern for this jacket dress is available in sizes 14 and 16, and in 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measurement.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The jacket dress, which may be worn with or without a blouse or dickey, is something that gives chic to any wardrobe. This Paris pattern, No. 5155, brings it to you with all the glamor of the French capital, and you may make it at home.

This model is designed to have the smart braid edges which all the big Paris dressmakers feature, but you may leave them off, if you prefer. The original model of this frock was made of dark green sheer wool with raspberry red braid edges applied around the notched revers, the peplum, and the belt. Red edges also are smart on a black or dark blue dress. Bright green braid edges go beautifully on a brown dress. Velvet ribbon may be used with great effectiveness.

New Home of Arts Club Near Its Completion

Visitors to the Unfinished Quarters Impressed by Beauty in Every Room.

By Judith Cass.

"MADAM, the Arts club is not yet open," politely says the elevator starter in the south Wrigley building to those curious ones who ask him on what floor the new clubrooms are, but in virtually every case the answer is: "I know that, but I want to see the rooms, just the same."

And see them they do, for it is an easy matter to take the elevator to the second floor and there wander around the rooms which, even in their state of incompleteness, give promise of being most delightful. One is impressed by the size of the new home of the Arts club as well as by the view, which is interesting no matter in which direction one looks. The Michigan avenue bridge, the river west and east, and the lake all do their part to make the new clubrooms attractive. If teatime isn't a popular hour at the club during the coming winter, we shall be surprised, because the view is such a fascinating and dramatic one.

Club Should Be Ready for Grand Opening by Oct. 1.

The day we visited the rooms we could not go up to the second floor of the club, the third of the building, for workmen were busy on the winding stairway upon which one will ascend to the dining rooms. We almost were knocked down by a pushcart so filled with huge boxes that the pusher could not see ahead, and we almost stumbled into a vat of wet plaster, so we contented ourselves with a quick peep into the one large and two smaller wood paneled exhibition galleries at the north of the building, the large lounge and assembly room fronting on the river, the card room, and the men's and ladies' dressing rooms. All was white and gray that day, for none of the color scheme evolved for the decorator by Arthur Heun and Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, the president, had been started as yet.

Just when the club will be ready for its grand opening is uncertain now, but the officers and Mr. Heun are hoping that it will not be much later than Oct. 1, when all is in readiness for the members to see their new rooms in all their glory and pristine newness. Mr. Heun has been summering at Fish Creek in Wisconsin, coming down to Chicago occasionally to watch the progress of the work, and Mrs. Goodspeed has been in the east since midsummer, but she will be at home in about a week or ten days.

College Days Bring This Year's Debut Season to Close.

Society had a large dose of debut teas during the last two weeks, but now, for a few weeks, the debutantes will fade into the background, for all those who were "coming out" in the early season have done so, and either already have left, or will leave soon, to take up their studies. The teas in town will not start until later in the season.

This afternoon in Winnetka in the Christ church parish house there will be a reception for the popular rector, the Rev. E. Ashley Gerhard, and his attractive wife, who have been in Winnetka 20 years. The woman's guild of the church is giving the reception from 4 until 7 o'clock as the opening of its fall and winter program.

Mrs. Thomas E. Wells is giving a luncheon today at her home in Lake Forest for two of the season's buds, Miss Sylvia Peter and Miss Louise Blossom. Miss Peter, daughter of the William F. Peters, will be at home to enjoy all the debutante festivities this winter, but Miss Blossom, daughter of the junior George W. Blossoms, is leaving shortly for Sarah Lawrence college. Next Saturday night the junior James H. Douglases are giving a dinner-dance at the Shoreacres club for Miss Anne Winston, the Farwell Winstons' debutante.

PRESIDENT ARTHUR was tall and well proportioned. He was classed as perhaps the handsomest man who ever filled the office of President. He was faultless in his dress and yet he was not given to the following of any style, but rather that of good taste. He was the first President to have a valet.

Chicagoans Linger at Bar Harbor During September

BAR HARBOR, ME.

With most of the resort hotels closed and club activities at a virtual standstill, the Bar Harbor colony, many members of which are staying on until October, is contenting itself with small informal parties at the various cottages on the big summer estates. Chicagoans during the last week have enjoyed a period of rest prior to returning home.

Mrs. A. A. McCormick is visiting Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen at Baymeath, her estate in Hulls cove. Other visitors at Baymeath are Hubbard Phelps and Mrs. Louise De Koven Phelps of Chicago. Mrs. Bowen is leaving for Chicago on Tuesday.

Mrs. William McCormick Blair will go to New York today. She plans to spend a week there before returning to Chicago. Edward Blair, son of Mrs. Blair, was elected commodore of the Bar Harbor Yacht club for the 1937 season. The election took place on Mr. Blair's 21st birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer, who with their son Gordon and their daughter Pauline have spent the entire season here at their beautiful estate, Hare Forest, are returning to Chicago the first week of October.

Thomas Husband of Chicago is a guest at the Potter Palmers.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Pike, active members of the Bar Harbor social colony, who also took a leading part in the golf tournaments at the Kebo Valley Country club this summer, departed for their home in Chicago last Monday.

After spending almost the entire summer at their cottage Greenway Court, on Oldfarm road, Mrs. Marvin Frost and her son, Bostwick, returned to their home in Lake Forest this week after a fortnight's stay at Up-away, the home of Mrs. Charles Sumner Frost, who plans to return to Lake Forest early this week.

Old French Custom Banned Gloves While Dancing

TOWARD the end of the fifteenth century in France kid and silk gloves with gold and silver embroidery on the back were in fashion. It was indecorous to give one's hand gloved to any one, or to wear gloves while dancing. Many women of rank carried light walking sticks of valuable wood with handles ornamented with the image of a bird.

Diplomatic Corps Presents Dress Taste of the World

WASHINGTON, with its diplomatic corps representing every nation in the world, presents to the fashionables the dress taste and artistry of other nations. For instance, at a recent social function at the royal Italian embassy, Signora Sbernadori, wife of the Italian air attaché, presented an enchanting picture in a gown of black and white figured chiffon with ruffles of flame colored chiffon forming the sleeves. Her huge black hat had a flame colored flower worked into its trimmings. Signora Sbernadori is graceful, tall, and slim.

Summer Season at Ephraim Is Drawing to Close

EPHRAIM, WIS.

With most of Ephraim and Fish Creek summer residents and visitors departing for home or school, another summer season rapidly is drawing to a close. On Wednesday of last week Mrs. John Matter, her son Jack and daughter Janet, and her guest, Miss Jane Eitel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Eitel of Highland Park, motored back to the city, where Mrs. Matter is reopening her Winnetka home.

Miss Matter will return soon to Wellesley for her sophomore year and Jack again will attend school in Winnetka. The latter arrived in Ephraim only a short time ago, after spending the summer with the Donald Watts group bicycling through Austria and Germany. Mrs. Matter plans to join Mr. Matter in Ephraim for a part of October.

Sydney Beaches Alluring Except for One Factor

Presence of Tiger Sharks Calls for Warnings from Patrol Airplane Service.

By Mason Warner.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Australia.—Sydney has a half dozen wonderfully alluring bathing beaches, with long stretches of fine white sand, a long rolling surf, a sun that shines 2,400 hours a year, electric lighting for the late trade, efficient crews of life savers—everything, plus, that goes to make swimming and surfing such joyous pleasure.

In addition the Sydney beaches have a surf patrol airplane service. That is to warn bathers of the presence of sharks. It is claimed that a tiger shark does not pick up the scent of a human being at a distance of more than thirty yards. The planes fly long green streamers when all is well; when sharks are nearer than thirty yards a red streamer is flown to warn of the danger. Bathers are advised to go to shore when the red banner is flown. Most of them do, for casualties on the beaches are seldom reported. As many as 100,000 bathers are on the beaches Saturdays and Sundays during the season.

A Fine Haven for Ocean Vessels.

Tiger sharks favor the Sydney waters and more of that species were sighted in the 1936 summer season from January to March than in any previous season. There are five tiger sharks seen to one hammerhead. Sharks are reported by the surf patrol to be more abundant when the warm winds from the north are blowing.

Famous Sydney harbor is truly a huge and fine haven for ships. The entrance is not imposing. On the contrary, it is so unimpressive that early navigators did not recognize it as a harbor and sailed past to go into Botany bay. The harbor entrance is less than two miles wide and lies between North Head and South Head, two rocky promontories so placed that they seem to meet and mingle when viewed from the sea at most angles.

Once past the Heads the colossal capacity of the harbor comes into view. It is beautifully set within a ring of rugged hills. The distance from the Heads to the back waters is twelve miles, but there are so many large bays and inlets that the shore line of the harbor measures 212 miles. At the piers are ships flying the flags of all nations.

The Largest Bridge in the World.

Five or six miles from the Heads Sydney's huge harbor bridge towers high and stupendous, connecting North and South Sydney. It is the largest bridge in the world—and will be until San Francisco's pride is completed. It commands the Sydney scene and is visible for miles. In spite of its massiveness, it is a graceful structure.

The bridge does its share in relieving the trafic jams during the rush hours. It has a capacity for carrying 138 tramcar trains, 6,000 motor cars, and 40,000 pedestrians an hour.

Sydney crowds are not all in the streets when offices and shops close. Liquor laws provide for the closing of all saloon doors at 6 p. m. I stepped into the barroom of the Australia hotel at 5:30 p. m. and I thought I was at a town meeting. There were nearly 400 men and no women lined up, drinking—not hurriedly, not slowly, just socially and steadily, at a rate that puzzled a stranger until the law was disclosed to him.

All Through Drinking at 6:30

At 6 o'clock the lights were dimmed and doors were closed. Late comers were turned away. They went quietly, without protest and without plea for special recognition. At 6:15 the crowd had thinned out to a hundred. A porter went from group to group with a softly spoken "Gentlemen, please!" and at 6:30 not a single man remained in the barroom, although cash registers had tinkled until 6:15 while the bored looking barmaids served last calls.

Tourists find Sydney's zoo interesting because of the kangaroos, emus, wallabys, kaola bears, and strange looking birds on exhibition. Animals from foreign shores as well as native beasts are gathered there, and they present such a sleek, contented, and well fed appearance that they are living testimonials to the competence of their caretakers. Even the camels are clean.

The aquarium at the zoo is unique. There are fascinating exhibits of gorgeously colored tropical fish and strange shaped denizens of the deep, and in addition there is a pool in which are swimming four huge sharks—two queer "carpet sharks," flat shaped, that spread themselves carpetwise on the floor of the pool; a monster "gray nurse" ten feet long, and Skipper Jack, a tiger shark 11 feet 6 inches from tip of nose to tip of tail.

A Man's Arm and the Arm of the Law.

In May, 1935, Skipper Jack, who had then been in captivity only a few weeks, seemed "off his feed," as an attendant explained it. He did not recover his spirits until he spewed up a man's arm.

The incident led to a celebrated case in Australia's criminal annals. The arm was tattooed and was identified as that of a man who had been reported missing. One of Sydney's well known shady characters was under indictment for the murder of the missing man. Prosecution was unable to proceed because no corpus delicti had been produced; no murder could be proved, although evidence that the body was thrown into the harbor had been introduced.

The tattooed arm was produced in court and identified as having belonged to the missing man. But the judge refused to accept an arm as a body and the man charged with murder was finally set free.

SOUTHERN MICHIGAN ATTRACTS WITH WOODS AND WATERS

Pastoral scenery blends with the rugged primitiveness of the once famous timber areas to give Michigan a diversified appeal to the early autumn vacationist. This is Clark's lake, in Jackson county.

THE VOICE OF THE TRAVELER

Letters regarding travel conditions and experiences are welcomed. Please keep them brief. Address: Travel Editor, Chicago Tribune.

THOSE AWFUL AMERICANS.

New York City, Sept. 15.—To the Travel Editor: I have recently returned from a summer in Europe and I am still wondering why you middle westerners allow so many of your people to go traveling and to advertise your section of the country as the most boorish, the least cultured, and the least civilized in all the world.

Don't any of you hicks out there know the correct use of tableware, or how to wear clothes, or how to conduct yourselves in polite society? Or are you being grossly misrepresented by your travelers? It would be interesting to find out.

In the course of my trip I saw Americans—and I'm sure they were from the middle west—actually wearing sports clothes at dinner, both on shore and aboard the ship. I heard them talking, or trying to talk, with perfect strangers, and it was evident that they had never heard of the rule about the necessary preliminary of proper introductions. None of them, so far as I could observe, knew which fork or which spoon had precedence over the others. Was I ashamed of my country and its people!

Don't publish my name, or I'll have half of your readers writing me and telling me what they think of me for having dared to point out their imperfections. And, heaven knows, I've heard enough from them already. E. F. S.

WHAT THE GUIDE DIDN'T TELL.

Chicago, Sept. 12.—To the Travel Editor: The anti-religious wave in Spain is only additional evidence of the anti-religious tide which in recent years has been spreading in many parts of the world, of which Germany and Russia are outstanding examples.

During my trip to Russia, some two years ago, I had an opportunity to obtain first hand information of the relentless persecution of the church. Here I saw the fixed and definite policy of the government to crush religions of all kinds. Some of the means employed to accomplish that purpose are the anti-religious museums found in all the large cities [owned and subsidized by the government] and also the constant barrage and propaganda through the use of the radio and press.

Recently I visited Mexico, and I was interested in determining whether the policy of the Mexican government was in any way similar to that of communist Russia.

It is the policy of the defenders of the present Mexican governmental régime to deny persecution of the church. I well recall how, as one of a group of tourists, I was led by a guide into an ancient church in Mexico City. This guide, licensed by the government, explained that the church was open and pointed to a half dozen or more people who at that moment were devoutly kneeling in prayer. The guide then stated that all stories of religious persecution in Mexico were lies, and that we could see for ourselves that there was no such persecution. He admitted that there were individual cases where priests and nuns were brought to justice for immoral acts, but that these cases were isolated and infrequent.

There were many things this guide did not tell us, and which I learned for myself as a result of my study of this subject. I am herewith itemizing some of the things the guide did not tell us:

1. By official decree in 1857, all of the property of the church was confiscated and the church was completely crushed. The church enjoyed a breathing spell during the Diaz régime. In 1917 the laws of 1857 were reënacted and every vestige of property of the church—including lands, buildings, mortgages, etc.—was confiscated by the government.

2. While all the churches remain the property of the government, nevertheless, the different states comprising Mexico are given discretion on the matter of permitting churches to remain open. In some states not a single church is open to the public, and, even where churches do remain open, there are no services and priests do not officiate.

3. Priests and nuns have been hounded, driven out of Mexico, deprived of their citizenship, and their personal property has been confiscated.

4. Where churches have been abolished, priests are prohibited from performing baptismal or marriage ceremonies.

5. In those cases where a limited number of priests are permitted to officiate, priests are not permitted to express their opinion on political matters.

6. No religious education is permitted in public schools, under severest penalties.

7. Religion is caricatured in the newspapers and through posters, and radio addresses denouncing religion are delivered, all typical of the kind and character found in Russia.

8. No group of people may congregate for purposes of religious worship in any place except the church, and, where there is no church such assembly is unlawful.

9. Many churches are used as military barracks, and in Mexico City there was one ancient church plastered with socialistic and communistic cartoons.

10. The philosophy of the people and the government is reflected in the mural decorations found in the public buildings. One of these decorations appears in the National Preparatory school of Mexico City. This mural was painted by José Clemente Orozco, one of the most important present day artists. It shows a picture of Christ, swollen and bloated to the bursting point, with a tiny crown on a luxuriant head of hair. The leer in his protruding eyes is most revolting. Christ is shown conniving with a capitalist, who is preparing to plunge a dagger in the back of a workman, who is on his knees before Christ, imploring help.

It is futile for the Mexican government to disclaim any intentions to persecute the church. This persecution is in the laws of Mexico. The constitution of 1917 is a complete answer on the subject that Mexico is guilty of religious persecution. Here are two of the important provisions found in this constitution:

Article 3 provides: "Education imparted by the state will be socialistic and, furthermore, will exclude all religious doctrins and combat fanacticisms and prejudices."

Another provision is that no religious body or minister of any religious sect will be allowed to establish or direct schools of primary education.

Here are other provisions:

Neither a deputy of congress or a senator can be a minister of religion.

The president of Mexico may not belong to an ecclesiastical body or be a member of any religious sect.

Ministers are disqualified from inheriting by will from any person with whom they are not related by blood, within the fourth degree. A violation of this provision is not subject to trial by jury.

Magazines and newspapers containing articles, writings, or correspondence intended to propagate any religious doctrin are barred from the mails.

Religious education in schools is prohibited under severest penalties.

Having observed what was taking place in Russia I left Mexico with the distinct feeling that the Mexican government, in its policy on religion, is following the pattern of soviet Russia, and that the Mexican attitude and philosophy on the subject of religion are identical with that of Russia, and that, even though the Mexican government may from time to time open more churches as it has within recent months, nevertheless, the church as an institution in Mexico is hopelessly doomed and that its power and influence have been permanently destroyed.

HIS WONDERS TO BEHOLD.

Utica, Ill., Sept. 11.—To the Travel Editor: It is impossible for so avid a travel page fan to resist any longer the urge to write you. Though my traveling has been limited, I wish to share what I cherish as my ten most beautiful or thrilling moments—never to be forgotten moments that come before the vision again merely by closing one's eyes:

1. The thrill of my first airplane venture . . . just over the home town, but how different . . . the ribbon of silver river, the Illinois . . . everything in miniature.

2. My visit to the old log cabin set back in the hills of Cambria county, Penn., where my mother lived when a child.

3. A storm on Lake Michigan . . . no horizon visible to the naked eye . . . an experience appreciated only by those who love to watch a storm.

4. The gypsy life . . . a roughing trip through the Tennessee mountains in an old flivver truck.

5. My first, much longed for, and long awaited view of the Atlantic . . . blue sky and blue water, and a white surf pounding on the rocks near West Palm Beach.

6. The trip on the railroad through the sea, from Miami to Key West.

7. Sunset over the government building at Apa Locha, near Miami . . . each spire and dome a different pastel color.

8. Boatloads of sponges and huge turtles being docked at Key West.

9. The boat trip through the upper Dells of the Wisconsin . . . so much like our own Starved Rock, but on a much grander scale.

10. A November sunset above Lover's Leap at Starved Rock . . . the autumn foliage alive with color in the clear air, and then the unutterable beauty of the rosy afterglow reflected on sky and water . . . a glimpse of paradise to a nature lover.

Then, for good measure:

11. Moonlight on Miami Beach . . . a strong, cool breeze bringing the smell of salt air from the sea . . . the grotesque shadows of the palm trees.

One wonders how a seeing man can doubt there is a God who must have wrought all this! BERTHA GORDON.

OUT WHERE THE WEST BEGAN.

Wyoming, Ill., Sept. 8.—To the Travel Editor: In your "Voice of the Traveler" department on Aug. 23 Elizabeth Snively of Rock Island, Ill., mentioned that Mount Holyoke was the first women's college in America.

Lindenwood college at St. Charles, Mo., was founded in 1827 by Maj. George Sibley and his wife, Mary Easton Sibley. It derived its name from the linden trees on the campus. The Indians often came there for a handout of food.

Lindenwood is the oldest women's college west of New York.

Paris Not What It Used to Be, Says Traveler

Beauty Is Still There, but Something Else—Besides Tourists—Is Lacking.

By Frederic Babcock.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS.—[Special.]—Seven years can make a lot of changes in a man, or an institution, or a city. The seven years since the beginning of the depression have brought a thorough overhauling in things and values, but nowhere is the change more noticeable than here in Paris.

Our cruise of western Europe ended at Havre, and thereupon we grabbed a boat train and came to see if there was anything left of the playground of the world. We hadn't been here since the summer of '29—just before business went to hell. We wondered if conditions would be about the same as they were before. They weren't.

First of all, we missed the taxi din. Gone are the tin buggies and their incessant tooting. They have given way to limousines as good as Chicago's Yellows and Checkers, and somebody must have issued an order that a driver must never blow his horn until after he has run down a pedestrian. Maybe that's an improvement; maybe not. At any rate, it didn't seem like Paris.

The World Has Gone Somewhere Else.

Then, again, it no longer is true that you can sit at a sidewalk table at the Café de la Paix and watch the world go by. The café and the tables are still there, but the world isn't going by. Perhaps much of the traveling world has gone up another street, or perhaps it has gone to another country. This summer there are about as many tourists in Europe as ever, and it would seem that there would be enough of them to go around, but apparently many of them forgot to come to Paris.

On the left bank, La Coupole and the Dome were almost as well patronized as ever, but some of the other cafés were empty by 11 o'clock at night. Paris as an 11 o'clock town just didn't make sense.

It must be the rate of exchange. We got along fairly well until we tried to buy a SUNDAY TRIBUNE and were calmly told that the price was 12 francs, or 84 cents. Not even the home town paper was worth that much.

The vibrant, nervous, gay Paris of old had lapsed into somnolence. Its beauty was still there, of course. The long green leaves were still curling out from the horse chestnuts along the Champs Elysées; the Bois de Boulogne, with its 2,000 acres of rustic paths and restful lakes, was doing business at the same old stand. But something else was lacking. [Or, possibly, we had seen so much grandeur in the course of our cruise that we were jaded with scenery.]

Just as Good as It Ever Was?

Clara Laughlin, who ought to know, says Paris is as good as ever.

"There's just as much opera as before, and as many good plays," she points out. "Nothing has left the great galleries and museums—a lifetime is still too short to do justice to them. The fairs and fêtes are still in full swing. There are just as many children playing in the Champs Elysées, the Luxembourg, the Parc Monceau. Not a single fountain sends a smaller volume of flashing water towards the sun; no flower bed has one bloom less than it once had. Lovers still keep their trysts in the Tuileries gardens. Old people still find fellowship with the birds. The quayside stalls are no less rewarding than ever; the picturesque bits of life along the river banks don't change at all. There's no falling off in the families picnicking in the woods. The races are still run in the same beautiful settings, and watched by as many smartly gowned women. Paris is still the gayest of gardens."

Maybe so. But, somehow, our enthusiasm is far from the boiling point.

Tomorrow we're going to London. We trust it hasn't been so deeply depressed by the depression.

GOING SOMEWHERE?

BERMUDA and the Bahamas, friendly rival resort islands of the Atlantic, will be the goals of a series of triangle cruises sailing Oct. 27, Nov. 5, and Nov. 12 aboard the Queen of Bermuda, a pleasure vessel designed for the transportation of passengers only. This was announced last week by James N. Findlay, passenger manager of the Furness Bermuda Line. The cruises will last seven days, with a full day at each of the resorts.

An indication of the size of the tourist trafic this fall was found in the fact that all attendance records were broken at Mammoth Cave National park over the Labor day week-end. Five thousand persons made trips through the cave—an increase of 12 per cent over last year's figures.

American Air Lines, Inc., will round out its flagship fleet service today by opening its southern transcontinental sleeper plane schedules. The club flagships, termed by company officials the world's largest and fastest land transports, and carrying 21 passengers, already operate nonstop service between New York and Chicago and between New York and Boston.

Travel and steamship agents in Chicago once more are emphasizing the fact that if midwesterners wish to get the choice accommodations this winter they will do well to book early. Already much of the best space on the liners taking the winter cruises has been grabbed up by the early worms.

Eighty travel agents from Chicago and the middle west will leave for New York tonight aboard a special train over the Pennsylvania road. Tomorrow night, as guests of the Cunard-White Star Line, they will attend a dinner on the Queen Mary, and on Tuesday they will make an inspection tour of the new liner.

The Hubbell Tours, Chicago travel agency, yesterday announced a series of six all expense, personally escorted tours to Mexico, via New Orleans, starting Oct. 10 and covering all the principal high spots of the southern republic.

R. E. Peterson is the new manager of the agency department of the United Air Lines in Chicago. On Tuesday he succeeded Ben V. Varner, who resigned to take a position outside the air transport industry. Mr. Peterson has been manager of the United's tour department, and before that was associated with the Dollar line.

Ancient Skeleton Found in Hungary

MINDSZENT, Hungary.—(AP)—The skeleton of a warrior dating from the occupation of the country by Hungarians more than 1,000 years ago was discovered near here by Gaber Csallany, director of the Szentes museum.

The hands had been crossed as if in prayer, and a primitive cross was found beside the skeleton—proof, it is said, that the man was a Christian. Burial, however, had been in the pagan fashion, with a horse, bow, and bowcase bearing artistic dog designs.

Fail to Get Visa; Passed Anyway

HELSINKI, Finland.—(AP)—Scores of American travelers, en route to Russia through Finland this summer, were permitted to continue their voyage despite the fact that their papers were not in order.

More than 100 of them, say officials here, arrived without the necessary Finnish visa. Invariably they said they had been told a visa was not needed for Finland. They were not stopped, although immigration officers did some heavy eyebrow lifting.

Great Smokies Fill the Bill for Any Vacation

Mountains of the South Are Paradise for Equestrian, Hiker, Artist, and Writer.

By Dorothy Schmidt.

TAKE it from this enthusiast, you can't go wrong if you select the Great Smoky mountains as the spot for your vacation in spring, summer, or autumn. Those richly timbered hills in eastern Tennessee and western North Carolina offer all that any hiker, equestrian, scientist, photographer, artist, writer, or just plain garden variety of nature lover could desire. If you wish to forget even your pet hobby, and spend a leisurely few weeks in joining the rocking chair brigade, you will find that the cozy and restful vista of the Smoky mountains will ease frazzled nerves in a miraculously short time.

What's more, those hills are air-conditioned! And that's a touching little note to remember when the heat of a midwestern summer lays you low.

Gatlinburg Is Small Community Rich in Historical Background.

An overnight train trip brought us to Knoxville, Tenn., early one July morning. A ride in a modern bus gave us our first glimpse of the mountains which form the cozy, yet awe-inspiring, approach to the little town of Gatlinburg, situated just outside the national park which Uncle Sam has made of the wonderful mountains. We made the large hotel our headquarters for several weeks of hiking, motoring, and never-ceasing wonderment at the lavish hand which nature employed in creating this part of America.

Gatlinburg is a small community rich in historical background. Its principal citizens today are the descendants of revered early settlers who battled nature and Indians for the maintenance of their farm colony back toward the end of the 18th century. The conveniences of Gatlinburg are such that, should you choose not to abandon urban comforts entirely, you may enjoy a twice-weekly movie unreeled in the school house, and beauty care at a modern salon.

Trails Are Paradise for Person Who Loves to Hike.

Most enjoyable to us, of all the aspects of our vacation, was the hiking. With the exception of days off in order to indulge in sightseeing trips, almost every period between dawn and dusk found us in walking boots and culottes, out on a trail with the unusual native guide, Wiley Oakley, whose knowledge of the mountains and the plants and the animals found in that region has brought many a scientist to Gatlinburg to consult him. There is more to Wiley than his fund of information. This interesting man, once he learns to like one, is uninhibited in his répertoire of "tall" stories, songs, and poetry, all of which he has composed himself.

Without exception, the trails are breath-taking in their beauty. Whether one climbs the mountains or follows the song of a bubbling creek to its source, the enjoyment is the same. The only difference lies in the amount of stamina required. Most of the trails bordering on the creeks are fairly level in their course, making a hike of from ten to fifteen miles, round trip, an excursion for even a tenderfoot. However, the trails which wind around mountains, following a steady ascent to the summits, call for a little something in the way of chest expansion. The government has seen to it that the greatest percentage of the trails is clean. The paths created by Indians and early settlers have been cleared of obstacles and undergrowth, and widened to a comfortable four feet, often more.

Beautiful Timber, Rare Flowers, and Waterfalls Enrich Trails.

No matter where one walks, there are beautiful trees, rare flowers, and waterfalls. Along the trail bordering on Roarin' Fork creek there are the Seven Sisters falls, surrounded by rhododendrons. Halfway up Cove mountain the hiker passes Laurel falls, also rich in the loveliness of these same trees. Among its many picturesque spots, Mount LeConte, highest point in the Smokies with the exception of Clingman's dome, boasts of Rainbow falls, which descend majestically from a rocky promontory and merge into a stream which tumbles over moss-covered bowlders all the way down the mountain. On the trail to Rainbow falls, which are half way up Mount LeConte, one passes three other falls of lesser majesty but equal beauty. Most are nameless, perhaps because no human imagination has come around to the matter of entitling the loveliness which nature created without thought of the artificiality of nomenclature.

The Smokies are Valhalla for the hiker. Travelers come from all parts of the nation for the sole purpose of climbing Mount LeConte. There are several approaches to the summit. Some of the trails are long; others rather short. The average mileage for the ascent and descent is sixteen miles. One trail is the Rainbow falls route, already mentioned. Another is called the Boulevard trail, and yet another is the route past Alum Cave bluffs. The entire trip, up and down, need not be made in one day, although many hikers complete the venture in that manner. The hotel at which we stayed maintains a comfortable lodge on Myrtle point, at the summit, for the convenience of its wandering guests, who may dine and sleep at the lodge and descend the next day. The sunrise and sunset, as viewed from the top of LeConte, are unforgettable.

Motoring is one of the chief joys in the Smokies, and tourists have no monopoly on this, either. The residents of the Smoky mountain region feel the constant urge to get behind the wheel at some time in the day or night. One feels at home in those mountains. Austerity is absent. Sunshine and clouds play upon the heavily wooded hills with the artistry of an organist creating tones at the manual of his instrument. Every cloud pushed by the wind fashions a shadow which intensifies the green of the timber, while the sunshine creates patches of lighter hue right alongside.

One of the favorite trips is to Clingman's dome, the highest spot in the Smokies. It is situated in North Carolina, a comfortable distance from Gatlinburg. Along the route one sees the principal scenic spots of the region, including the Chimney Tops, Bullhead mountain, Sugarland mountain, and LeConte. On a clear day one can see from the Dome the Blue Ridge, the Black Ridge, and the Appalachian mountains, as well as the Smokies. The famous "smoky" haze crests the panorama, and for appreciation of the sight only silence is adequate. Were one to see the scenic places along the route to the Dome a hundred times a day, the view never would be the same twice. The constant interplay of sunshine and shadow defeats monotony of either color or outline.

Our sentimental nature selected the Chimney Tops, whose twin crests rise loftily heavenward, as the grandest of the peaks in the Smokies. Making a choice is, of course, both exceedingly difficult and unnecessary.

There is one thing about the Smokies which you will remember long after you return to skyscrapers and city pavements: you will feel simultaneously that you are insignificant and yet indisputably a part of the majestic serenity which those mountains possess as their share of the beauty of the universe.

When is the Cherokee Indian fair to be held this year at Asheville, N. C.? —B. B.

Oct. 6 to 9.

Is autumn a good time to visit Brown county, in Indiana?—L. M.

Yes. The scenic beauty of the area reaches its peak in the fall, when the frost turns the foliage into a riot of colors. Also, the state park and the adjoining game preserve are less crowded at that time.

Please tell me something about the extent of the activities of the German Youth Hostel association. —F. H.

The association, started twenty-seven years ago to provide lodgings at minimum cost for hikers of every nationality, now has more than 2,200 hostels and provides sleeping quarters for about 5,000,000 persons a year.

Meadow Brook Steeplechase to Be Saturday

Long Island Society Looks Forward to Gay Annual Gathering at Westbury.

By Nancy Randolph.

NEW YORK— Long Island's country gentry is shaking out its old tweeds for the swankiest private steeplechase meet of them all—the Meadow Brook—to be run next Saturday on Squire Ambrose F. Clark's estate at Westbury, N. Y.

It would be a bit ostentatious to wear sparkling new tweeds. The well worn ones are more in keeping with the slightly British, wholly "quality" atmosphere of the meet.

As usual it is held on the last Saturday in September, and is the first of the private steeplechases in autumn.

'Brose Clark has a lovely big meadow on his Westbury estate completely ringed around by woods. There's a high spot in the center where the spectators stand. No automobiles are allowed to enter, and if you haven't a tallyho, or haven't a friend who has one, you enter on foot. The only exception to this anti-gasoline buggy rule is the ambulance.

Crowd Goes to the Clarks' Home for Lunch Afterward.

After the steeplechases are run at high noon the crowd files through the woods to the Clarks' home for lunch. The Clarks' hospitality on this occasion is unbounded. The food always is delicious and there always is more than enough champagne to quench the thirst his guests work up watching the races.

Society is on a bender and money is no object. Expensive whoopee, incident to the international polo games and the September debutante season in the swank suburban districts of Long Island, Westchester, Connecticut, and New Jersey, will have put a million dollars in circulation by the end of the month.

The butcher, the baker, the candlestick maker, the florist, the caterer, the courier, the carpenter, the electrician, and the trombone tooter are the direct beneficiaries. And what the sleek pseudo-society wine salesman is reaping is nobody's business.

Sonny Whitneys Give Supper Dance at Long Island Home.

The Sonny [Cornelius Vanderbilt] Whitneys gave a large supper dance at their Long Island home last night, following the first of the international polo matches between the Greentrees and the Argentines.

Despite the price of platinum, people even are buying jewels again. What's more, the polo set, for which September is a busman's holiday, is buying hay, oats, tack, and what not. It is estimated that the Argentine players will pay a minimum of $5,000 for food for their string of ponies, and an equal sum for new equipment and repairs for bridles, boots, and saddles. Multiply this by ten to include the many local strings of polo ponies and players. It adds up to a nice tidy little sum, doesn't it?

Back here in town, after their summer somnolence, the fashionable night clubs are beginning to reopen, with announcements of new ones coming in every mail.

Like the nice young people they are, Jimmie and Doris Duke Cromwell are not sulking about the recent rebuff given their swimming pool plans by the Hawaiian board of harbor commissioners. They still hope to have a winter home in Honolulu.

When the Hawaiian board of harbor commissioners abruptly refused them permission to construct a pool on the beach property they purchased there recently, the Cromwells simply called up the New York architect, who's been commissioned to design the house and pool, and asked that he revise the plans.

Doris Cromwell Is Just Another Tourist There.

"When these plans are completed we'll submit 'em to the commissioners and hope for better luck," Jimmie said. "Naturally, we were disappointed when the first plan was rejected, but we're going to try again," he added.

They're still crazy about Hawaii, where Doris wasn't the "richest girl in the world," but just another tourist who wore old clothes and rode in an inexpensive, rented car. And naturally they'd rather have a home there than in Palm Beach, even though the Hawaiian commissioners' decision that permission to build a beach pool would be "class legislation" were harsh words to a girl who's never yet flaunted her wealth.

One of the most interesting auction sales ever held in New York ended yesterday, and the entire contents of the palatial mansion of the Henry Schniewind Jrs., at 8 East 79th street, are ready to be carted off to their new owners.

Everything from their kitchen pots and pans to the magnificent art collection, was put on the block for the highest bidders. Within a few days the beautiful thirty-two room building will be as empty as a haunted house.

Schniewinds Lived in House About Twenty-Nine Years.

The Schniewinds built the house and lived in it for about twenty-nine years. During that time they collected a veritable treasure in furniture, rugs, paintings, and objets d'art. The rooms were jammed so tight with rare pieces that a tour through the house was like a visit to a museum. Their oil paintings, which included the works of George Romney, Sir Thomas Lawrence, Sir Joshua Reynolds, and many other famous artists, as well as their collection of 14th and 16th century religious carvings, were particularly notable.

The antique Agra carpet alone, which covered the floor of the library on the second floor, originally cost $25,000. The Gobelin 17th century tapestry, the Aubusson and needlepoint tapestries, the bronze and marble statuary, the satinwood grand piano, the sterling dinner service, the dishes, and the beautiful furniture all have passed into new hands.

It was in this house that the Schniewinds brought up their four daughters and their son. Their daughters, Emily, Margaret, Helen [who died a few years ago], and Ethel, all are great beauties, and were the rage in Manhattan and Long Island during their deb days. They had loads of friends, and the house on 79th street, which is just off 5th avenue, constantly was filled with gay young people.

The house itself was sold a few weeks ago. When the advertisments appeared in the papers announcing the auction sale, Mr. Schniewind's name was omitted by his request. But the address is so well known in Manhattan's social life it was impossible to keep the owner's identity a secret.

"Letters to an Artist" Show Real Van Gogh

Collection of His Epistles Clarifies His Attitude Toward Life and Art.

By Eleanor Jewett.

NO COMMENT could be more opportune than this for the publication of new material connected with Van Gogh. The Viking press just has issued "Letters to an Artist," letters written by Vincent van Gogh to his artist friend, Anton Ridder van Rappard, from 1881 to 1885. Walter Pach contributed the introduction. The translation from the Dutch was made by Rela van Messel.

In these letters Van Gogh stands out more the man and less the creature of misfortune than he does in Irving Stone's "Lust for Living." One feels more deeply for him and respects him more as one receives from his writings his attitude toward life and art. Here is an honest, sincere individual, living a life that is peculiarly Christian during those very moments the world scoffed at him Van Gogh gave shelter to a woman of doubtful character and her two children, it cost him the good graces of nearly all who knew him. And yet when one reads how he felt when he did it, one only can bow one's head at the Christlike gesture.

Van Gogh Realized that His Work Was Not Popular.

From the letters, too, one finds that Van Gogh was as alive as his severest critic to the fact that his work did not sell. He writes in connection with some sketches which he had asked his friend to exhibit:

"My idea about the drawings, and why I asked you to show them if you have a chance to do so, I would like to say again, is based on circumstances outside myself. I so often am reproached with the fact that I don't sell, and am asked: 'Why do others sell and not you?' Therein lies the constant complaint against me. I answer that I most certainly hope to sell in the near future, but I think the surest way to bring this about is by trying to work regularly. All my attention and concern is to make progress."

How Van Gogh might smile [quite gently, we think] could he learn the prices his work commands today. Those painters who were popular in his day are forgotten, but he has come into fame.

Paintings Reveal Unusual Depth of Understanding.

As one looks around the galleries of the Art institute where the Van Gogh paintings and drawings are hung, it is impossible not to feel the personality of the man who created them. They distil a melancholia and a sense of unceasing effort. These are not pot-boilers. There is nothing here of surface painting. Each is as though wrung from the very soul of the man. And his understanding of the sufferings of humanity is great. One must go far to find anything better than the figure drawings of Van Gogh, his praying women and humble old men, his tender mother and child, the laboring people with their griefs and resignation. It is possibly in these studies that Van Gogh reaches his greatest heights.

The paintings, however, are rich, too, in a personal interpretation of manifold incidents. More lasting than his drawing or design is his color. That often is beautiful beyond words. It is rich, deep, subtle. It seems rather petty to speak of liking or disliking Van Gogh. He is to be taken as a natural phenomenon and rejoiced in. His strength lies in his independence and his disregard of all fixed boundaries that inhibit living and working.

And how generous he was to other artists! The letters show that. In fact this collection of Van Gogh letters, is one of the truly important contributions to art and literature that the year has yielded.

News of Interest to Lovers of Art.

Nan Rice is exhibiting portraits in the Tudor gallery, Chicago Woman's club, from Sept. 16 to Oct. 2.

Rudolph Weisenborn has opened a drawing and painting class at his studio on Sundays from 10 to 1 o'clock.

The International Horticultural exposition in the International amphitheater closes today, and among its many beautiful features is an exhibit of paintings by Chicago artists. Julius Moessel has a gorgeous gallery of decorative murals. His work never before has been shown so extensively, and every inch of the large expanse he covers is worthy of the closest attention. He has humor, imagination, and an unusual technique. Mr. Moessel must be ranked as one of our outstanding painters.

In the picture gallery are found many beautiful compositions with flowers. There are a few landscapes and marines, and one or two pictures which readily fall into no special category, but are interesting for themselves. The exhibition was secured through the coöperation of the Chicago Galleries association, the All-Illinois Society of Fine Arts, Beverly Hills Art society, and the Vanderpoel Art association. The jury of awards consisted of Harry L. Engle, Robert W. Grafton, J. A. Campbell, Arno Bretsnyder, and this writer. We had a thrilling time awarding ribbons of various colors, and most of the paintings were so worth while it was not possible to skip many of them.

Among the blue ribbon pictures are "After the Frost," by Lucie Hartrath; "A Desert Garden," by Frank V. Dudley; "Gay Company," by Anna Lynch; "My Mantel in Paris," by Anna Lee Stacey; "Daisies," by Harriet B. Krawiec; "A Bit of Summer," by Gerald Frank; "Horse Show," by Walter Krawiec; "Head of a Hereford Bull," by Eugene Glamen; "Wall Pocket on Back Porch," by Berenice Newman, and "Overlooking Andeley," by John F. Stacey.

Robert Grafton, a member of the jury, is the official portrait painter to the stockyards. The Saddle and Sirloin club hangs a number of portraits by him. He was asked to paint a Japanese mural for the background of a garden in the current horticultural exposition, but his wits saved his brush for he evolved the attractive idea of a rising sun in a monotone backdrop. The effect is just right, and all praise to Mr. Grafton.

Cottage Colony Lingering On at Watch Hill

Several Chicagoans Keeping Summer Dwellings Open as Season Ends.

WATCH HILL, R. I.— The cottage colony at the Hill is lingering and enjoying some of the pleasantest days of the late summer. Of the Chicago contingent whose houses still are open are Mr. and Mrs. William J. Chalmers, Mrs. George R. Nichols, Mr. and Mrs. Oren E. Taft, Mrs. Louise De Koven Phelps, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hibbard. Mr. Hibbard left for Chicago on Monday. Mrs. Hibbard will follow next week.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Forgan and their family closed their cottage Tuesday to return to New York. Hubbard Phelps has gone to Bar Harbor to visit his mother, Mrs. Louise de Koven Phelps, who is spending the week with her mother, Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen. Mr. Phelps will return for a week-end with friends here before leaving for the Dallas Air school at Dallas, Tex.

Mr. and Mrs. Oren E. Taft, who plan to keep their cottage open until Oct. 1, will have many families to keep them company, among them being Mr. and Mrs. A. Clifford Shinkle and Mrs. Vachel Anderson of Cincinnati, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald M. Byrnes, Mr. and Mrs. Brenton Welling, Walter R. Herrick, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Thatcher, Jabish Holmes, all of New York, and Mrs. Henry Van Cleff of New Haven. Mrs. W. King White and Mrs. John C. Virden of Cleveland are leaving Thursday for their homes.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Joy of Detroit will leave Watch Hill next week, going to Hot Springs before returning to their Grosse Pointe, Mich., home. Mr. and Mrs. Truman H. Newberry of Detroit leave next Monday for New York to spend a few days before going to their home. Mrs. Clement A. Griscom III., the former Olga Lihme, is entertaining her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Bai Lihme, who recently returned from abroad and came directly to Watch Hill.

Watch Hillites are looking forward to the new arrangement which will be in effect next season for the combination of the Misquamicut Golf club and the Beach club. Frank Hibbard of Chicago has been one of the most enthusiastic promoters of the plan. A new beach clubhouse is to be built, much larger than the present structure, with space for a party of 100 at dinner. One hundred bathhouses are to be reserved for members of the combined clubs.

This Crocheted Blouse Is Ideal for Winter Suits

By Ellen Bruce.

WHEN the children have gone back to school and the house is quiet, there are moments when we would give a pretty penny for pickup work. Crochet items, whether they are large or small, are especially adapted to these odd moments.

The crochet blouse illustrated today is grand for pickup purposes, because the pattern is not difficult to follow. Made of sheer white crochet cotton, this shirtwaist blouse may be worn with winter suits or with knitted and crocheted ensembles. Single and double crochet are the principal stitches, and the buttons and buckle are the only trimming.

With concentrated effort this blouse may be completed in approximately four days. As pickup work it will not take forever, and the blouse will be finished before one realizes that a new item for spare time work again must be found.

HOW TO ORDER

If you wish instructions for crotcheting the shirtwaist blouse illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Ellen Bruce, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago. Be sure to send name and address with your letter.

CHARMERS OF JAPAN: THE GEISHA GIRLS

"A PERSON OF PLEASING ACCOMPLISHMENTS"—So translates literally the word "geisha." The elaborately kimono-ed entertainer above is pleasingly accomplished, and more; to the Japanese she is a star.

OBSCURE BUT HOPEFUL—A geisha who has not yet reached the peak of her career.

THERE ARE GEISHAS AND GEISHAS, dancing and singing. This one, holding a lion mask in a pose of the dance of the lion, is of the terpsichorean category.

A SMALL FORTUNE ON HER BACK—In all Japan, no other women wear kimonos so rich as those of the geisha. Delicately embroidered and exquisitely dyed, the kimonos are held by obi (sashes) of finest silk.

Neighbors Tell How WILLIAMS OIL-O-MATIC Cuts Heating Costs

LUCKY FOR US, WITH A BIG RAMBLING HOUSE, THAT OIL-O-MATIC GIVES MORE HEAT FROM LESS OIL.

That's because Oil-O-Matic's Patented Metering Pump measures every bit of oil—never wastes a drop.

AND BURNS HEAVY, LOW-COST FUEL OILS. WHAT A BREAK FOR THE OLD PURSE!

ON TOP OF THIS, NO REPAIR BILLS IN 5 YEARS! YOU RESPECT AN OIL BURNER AS WELL BUILT AS THAT!

Oil-O-Matic's remarkable freedom from repairs is partly due to its Projected Flame principle . . . with no part of the operating mechanism subjected to intense heat.

The Knit-tex Coat $27.50

ABOVE is an actual photograph showing how a Knit-tex Coat looks on an average man, and that is the way it will look on you.

The reasons why Knit-tex Coats are worn by so many thousands of men are many. The fabric is a special exclusive cloth of unusual wearing quality, yet it is soft and very fine in appearance. The coat provides snug warmth on all but the very coldest days of Winter yet always feels light in weight in mild weather. It is drizzle-proof, never wrinkles, never gets out of shape and seldom needs pressing. You will wear it to business, for evening-wear, for traveling, for motoring, and for every other purpose that a topcoat is used.

Angora Knit-tex — running mate to Knit-tex — is a coat of very great luxury. It derives its unusual softness of texture and its luxurious appearance from the long hairs of the Angora goat — an animal which lives in mountainous regions where the days are hot and the nights very cold. Because of these two extremes in climate, Nature has given Angora hair ample warmth and little weight.

That is the reason the Angora Knit-tex Coat is adaptable to all types of weather. It would appeal to men who seek something especially fine.

Go to the Knit-tex store in your city and try on one of the many new Fall Knit-tex styles. You will find that store listed in the columns at the left.

NEW hope NEW help

FOR YOUR SKIN

through beauty-giving MILK OF MAGNESIA!

Have you an "Acid Skin"?

HERE'S help you've never known before—in two remarkable NEW-TYPE face creams! You know how milk of magnesia helps an internal acid condition. Just so these milk of magnesia creams act on the external fatty acid accumulations on the skin, helping to refine the texture and to correct unsightly faults.

SKIN specialists have long known the unique power of milk of magnesia to refine and beautify the skin.

Now, after years of laboratory experiment and tests, the Phillips Company, original makers of the famous milk of magnesia, has perfected a way to hold this beneficial ingredient on the skin long enough to be truly effective—in these new-type face creams.

PHILLIPS' MILK OF MAGNESIA TEXTURE CREAM
Here is the perfect way to get all the beauty-giving action of milk of magnesia for your skin! Just as milk of magnesia helps an internal acid condition, so, in this cream, it acts on the external fatty acid accumulations on the skin to which such unsightly flaws as coarse texture, large pores, oily shine, blackheads, and rough, scaly skin may be related. You'll be amazed at the way this new-type cream goes right to work on your skin.

A perfect foundation cream. You've never seen a cream that takes and holds make-up as Phillips' Texture Cream does! This is because the milk of magnesia prepares the skin, smoothing away roughness and freeing it from shine so that powder and rouge go on evenly and adhere more closely.

PHILLIPS' MILK OF MAGNESIA CLEANSING CREAM
Until you use this new-type cleansing cream, you'll never know what pure delight a cleansing cream can be! It has an ability to cleanse far beyond that of ordinary creams because the milk of magnesia not only loosens and picks up the surface dirt and make-up, but helps to neutralize the fatty acid accumulations on the skin. Leaves your skin soft, smooth and really clean!

Of course you'll want to try these remarkable new creams. Send coupon today for trial jars — enough to last a week. They're free!
